The Previews of M-G-M's "The Women" and "Babes in Arms" have been held!

When you see them for yourself you will understand the furore they have created.

No season has ever, thus early, yielded two such sensational attractions.

Previews of other early releases from M-G-M will be held shortly. What you have heard is true. M-G-M is racing far ahead of the entire field. The wise money is on Leo!

THE MERCHAN

FOR WARNER BROS.

1. We announced on March 14, 1939 that we would release 48 feature pictures, 104 short subjects and 48 trailers. We also stated that "Quality is not a Passing Fashion". Our production performance since this date and the pictures finished and available for release justify that statement and announcement.

2. An exhibitor who licenses all feature motion pictures offered shall have the right, if he be not in default, to eliminate proportionately among the several price brackets, 20% of the total number of features licensed, if the average of the license fees for all features shall not exceed $100., and 10% if such average is in excess of $100.

3. We confirm our policy of long standing of allowing an exhibitor to eliminate any feature which may be locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

4. We expect all top bracket pictures to be played on preferred playing time.

5. We will license a run designated by us of our features in any situation to any exhibitor of good reputation as a theatre operator and customer, whose theatre is in good condition and who operates under a policy which will not substantially reduce our revenue from any other run, provided such exhibitor and we can agree upon the number of features to be licensed, and other terms and conditions.

6. We confirm our policy of long standing and our intent to continue to license our pictures to our regular customers who prove to be satisfactory.

7. No exhibitor will be required to license short subjects, trailers or reissues as a condition of licensing features.

8. No recording charge will be made in connection with the licensing of any of our feature pictures.

DISING POLICY

1939-40 SEASON

9. To assist in the booking problems of our customers, and for the mutual benefit of our customers and ourselves, it is our intention to hold a number of test exhibitions of pictures in order fairly to establish their proper price bracket allocation, and we will allocate features to particular price brackets not later than 14 days after the national release date thereof, to first run exhibitors in those cities which we may use as "Test Cities" and to all others, on giving notice of the availability of each feature.

10. We have never at any time coerced or intimidated any exhibitor to license our pictures by threatening to build or otherwise acquire a competing theatre, and we will never do so. It is our belief that the quality of our pictures and the high standard of our production create a demand for our pictures.

11. For over five years it has been our policy to arbitrate with any customer desiring so to do, all claims and controversies which may arise under our license agreements, and our form of license agreement contained an optional arbitration provision. We will continue to give to each of our customers the option to arbitrate all such claims and controversies.

12. Clearance is an absolute necessity in the conduct of our business and we therefore intend to continue our policy to negotiate with each of our customers for clearance reasonable as to time and area.

This policy will apply for the motion picture season 1939-40 and to all license agreements covering the 1939-40 products made after Jan. 1, 1939.

THE MAKING OF A GREAT PICTURE

Darryl F. Zanuck, Vice-President in Charge of Production at 20th Century-Fox, makes his production plans for THE RAINS CAME.

Author Louis Bromfield approves the screen treatment and casting of his best-seller.

Director Clarence Brown, associate producer Harry Joe Brown, author Bromfield, Darryl F. Zanuck iron out final details.

When Darryl F. Zanuck out-bid all competitors to secure Louis Bromfield's best-selling THE RAINS CAME for 20th Century-Fox he determined to screen the book with utmost fidelity.

Important step was to bring author Bromfield to Movietone City for a series of conferences with ace director Clarence Brown, associate producer Harry Joe Brown.

Hollywood's talent was fine-combed for the one player best suited for each role, down to the smallest bit parts. Some of the choices: Myrna Loy as Lady Esketh, Tyrone Power as Major Safti, George Brent as Tom Ransome. For the important role of Fern, 58 girls were tested. Tentatively chosen, Brenda Joyce, a newcomer, was given 15 additional tests before a final decision was reached. Witnesses of her work in the picture predict Miss Joyce will make an instantaneous hit, reach the heights of stardom.

Rare among Hollywood writing men is praise such as the following, with which author Bromfield greeted the completed picture:

> This is my story and these are my characters. As a novelist I am grateful for the privilege of seeing this book come completely to life. In my opinion, "The Rains Came" is a great picture. I should like to express my gratitude to Darryl F. Zanuck and all those at 20th Century-Fox who helped recreate it with such astounding fidelity.

Vol. 136, No. 10 — September 2, 1939

BACKSTAGE

THERE is more than a wisp of something new in the air between Washington and the motion picture, most especially the institution that is Hollywood. The building of a line of relation and communication, which would have as little as might be to do directly with that other relation signalized in the anti-trust suit, appears to be in nebulous prospect.

Broadly it may be considered that Hollywood is thinking about getting at least a shade more intimate with the New Deal.

Two developments most recent may be taken to point more than slightly in that direction.

The appointment, or assignment of Mr. James Roosevelt, of a few months experience with the Goldwyn organization, to a study of inter-studio relations, at the instance of Mr. Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Producers Association, the Hollywood subsidiary of the Hays Office, and by courtesy of Mr. Samuel Goldwyn, obviously brings a scion of the White House into intimate relation with the institutional aspects of the industry, for a wide angle view.

Without official declaration, which would in no event be expected, Hollywood judges that young Mr. Roosevelt is being put into the first step of a process by which he may become the president of the Producers Association, as the first executive to make a full time job of it. The post of president, in the prior practise of the organization, has been substantially a chairmanship, with the work largely delegated. A consequence has been that the job for the whole has been under the titular leadership and control of a dominant executive of one of the parts. There appears to be that about the present and future of the functions of the organization which would indicate the desirability of more detachment, among other considerations perhaps even more esoteric.

AGAIN impinging on the delicate threading of the loom for a new fabric, comes the announcement of an excursion of Mr. Frank Murphy, the new United States Attorney General, to Hollywood to attend, and maybe say something at, a function held by the Motion Picture Democratic Committee, where there is to be awarded a scroll to the producer of the picture which in the last year has done best in "service to democracy."

Externally this might be a matter entirely between that highly politically minded group, the "Committee", consisting mostly of players and directors articulate about ideologies. But it is to be noted that a considerable number of studios put product in nomination, all of Hollywood in fact save two, and two important, organizations. Also there has been that about the background indicating that there was official "industry" favor for the notion of inviting Mr. Murphy to preside at the awarding in Hollywood.

There are those who fancy that possibly a pattern is forming by which the government's anti-trust suit will belong entirely to New York, while Hollywood carries on a Washington program quite its separate own.

IF WAR or PEACE

IMPENDENCY of war brings speculation on its consequences to the motion picture, specifically the American motion picture industry. Most immediately appears certainty of narrowing market, territorially, and acutely restrictive attention of censorships, alertly suspicious.

However, within its own national boundaries, and probably in most of the territory that it might reach, the American film could expect to find again as it did in the First World War eager publics, employed and with buying power.

A war of any considerable duration would, too, most likely largely interrupt and set back the now rising indigenous picture arts of many lands, tending thus to continue, or renew, the practical monopoly of production which the last war delivered to Fort Lee and Hollywood just as the feature picture became established.

But never again will the pattern of those years be completely re-traced, for then the motion picture worked its way to a larger destiny up through the masses and all but unrecognized in its significance by statesmen, governments, politicians and economists. True, there were the beginnings of film propaganda then—"Tanks on the Ancre", "The Fighting Germans", "Heroic Serbia", "Pershing's Answer" and "America's Bridge of Ships",—but the screen was silent then. Now it has found its voice, language, and with that lost a deal of its liberty behind walls of nationalism.

It seems that it has been the acquisition of language, the capacity to plead and argue, entreat and shout, to play fast and loose with bluff and weasel words, that has made the motion picture seem the more important to politics and statecraft and more recently as much of a concern to the manipulators of ideologies as the printed word.

This must inevitably have consequences to the motion picture of entertainment, most certainly in international traffic.

WE have already seen conspicuous effort on the part of Hollywood to address itself much more directly to the homeland audiences while dictators and wars have been subtracting areas of what was once the "world market."

The process is likely to continue.

And, for a demonstration of what comes after war, if afforded in Spain, where the clash of arms has just ceased. In the news pages of this issue of Motion Picture Herald will be found declaration from official sources that Spain, while barring the film products of no nation, insists that henceforth it is to weigh the cultural rather than the commercial aspects of its picture intercourse with other lands—and the while designing a program of development of a Spanish screen industry, addressed incidentally at leadership in the art for all Spanish speaking lands.

There are likely to be as many programs like that as there are nations when again the world has come to one of its periods of equilibrium.

To the American showman all this means importantly at the moment is that he is likely to find himself Hollywood's favorite customer to a degree he has never enjoyed before.

This Week

Flickering Lights

As Europe continued its war preparations this week, newsreels and radio networks operated on a 24-hour basis, and newsreel companies speeded their efforts to insure coverage of any situation likely to arise, although uncertainty prevailed as to just what restrictions would be placed upon them.

France imposed censorship on motion pictures and radio and England made known regulations governing the reopening of theatres which would be closed by war, as film executives returned in increasing numbers from abroad.

French and British production are virtually at a standstill.

Continental offices of film companies, as well as theatres in Paris and London and production centers in those areas were crippled by the loss of man-power due to mobilization. Distribution was also hard hit by the lack of transportation facilities, with trucks and busses commandeered for troop movements and the evacuation of civilians.

The story starts on page 15.

Universal Drive

The increased revenue, estimated at better than $1,000,000, accruing to Universal as a result of the exhibitor-sponsored testimonial drive, will be used by the company for increased production values in the pictures set for delivery during the three month drive period of August, September and October.

The company reported this week that its income during the past four weeks, which mark the first month of the drive, averaged $75,000 weekly over normal. In addition to the emergency budget of $200,000 set up last week to insure prompt delivery of the last two pictures on the drive release schedule, Universal will increase the production budgets of "The Tower of London" by $300,000; "Destry Rides Again," "Green Hell," and "The Invisible Man Returns" by $200,000 each.

In addition, a minimum budget of $100,000 has been set aside for trade paper advertising and consumer promotion campaigns.

New Product

As the 1938-39 motion picture year comes to a close ten motion picture companies have released to the exhibitor 454 pictures, including westerns, and will release within a short time eleven more pictures for the same product year. Three of the eleven pictures to come will be westerns, two from Monogram and one from Republic.

Hays Sees Roosevelt

Speculation as to whether Will H. Hays talked about the Government's motion picture suits during a brief conference he had at the White House Monday with President Roosevelt was set at rest by the latter the following day when he said there was no talk of that situation.

With a laconic "No," the President disposed of the matter when he was asked, during a press conference, whether Mr. Hays had talked about the monopoly situation. He did not reveal what actually was discussed.

Coming into Washington at a time when the capital was concentrating on the European situation, the film chief escaped observation both as he entered and left the Executive Mansion, where he was closeted with the President for about ten minutes.

In some quarters the guess was hazarded that Mr. Hays wished to ask Mr. Roosevelt to intercede for the industry with the Department of Justice; in others, that he called merely to assure the President that the film industry was ready to give full support to the Government in the event of a European war. The latter group pointed out that motion pictures and radio would be exceedingly important media for the maintenance of neutrality in the event of hostilities abroad—that they could do much to show the people the black side of war and the desirability of remaining aloof.—FRANCIS L. BURT, Washington correspondent.

That Code

With Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold's body blow to the proposed code of fair trade practices less than two weeks old, the patient rallied strongly this week, as Columbia came out with plans for meeting exhibitors independently on trade problems. Other distributors were uncertain as to their plans on the subject; feeling that they might be accused of acting "in concert."

Trust suits matters continued reasonably quiet; with United Artists asking for a dismissal of the Government's New York case, and RKO asking the courts for a dismissal of a suit against it in Kentucky.

Story on page 26.

Soviet Film Replaced

The anti-Nazi film, "Professor Mamlock," has been withdrawn from the Russian Pavilion and replaced with "Lenin in 1917." Officials at the Pavilion refused to confirm the report that the withdrawal of the film was in any way connected with the recent Russo-German non-aggression pact, but, they insisted, that it was just a routine change of program. "Mamlock" has been on exhibition at the Pavilion since early August.

New Revenue

Under newly created royalty departments, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for "The Wizard of Oz" and Selznick-International's "Gone With the Wind," and Paramount, for the Fleischer cartoon, "Gulliver's Travels," are tapping new sources of film exploitation formerly untouched on a large scale save by Walt Disney, through the Kay Kamen organization.

A total of $660,000 is expected from the three films in royalties accruing from products licensed to make use of the film's name or characters. To date, 145 licenses have been granted.

The story, and a list of licensees, is on page 18.

Equity

The basic agreement between Actors' Equity and the League of New York Theatres under which it was provided that Equity would not seek more favorable working conditions if the stage producers made "an honest effort" to enforce the ticket code, was scheduled to be extended for 60 days after its expiration on September 1st.

The Board of Governors of the League of New York Theatres was to act on the request by Equity for a continuation, at a meeting Wednesday in New York.

Crisis Extended

With, apparently, only one man—Ralph Whitehead—as the issue, and this issue apparently unresolvable, negotiations between the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, and the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, were broken off on Tuesday, in New York, three hours after they had begun. Mr. Whitehead is the executive secretary of the American Federation of Actors. His union was expelled for mismanagement, from the Four A's, and shortly afterward received a charter from the Alliance, the move precipitating the threat of war from the Four A's. George E. Browne, president of the Alliance, told the AAAA men at the conference that he intended to stand by Mr. Whitehead, and Mr. Whitehead's union. And he was also represented by Four A's spokesmen as having intimated his desire to control all actors through Mr. Whitehead's union. The entertainment unions war, if it comes, is expected to begin on Monday, with the scheduled opening of "Leave It To Me," in New York. Sophie Tucker, president of the AFA, may appear, despite her suspension from Actors' Equity. This may bring a strike by Equity cast members; and that in turn may bring retaliation by the stagehands, in support of Miss Tucker. The fight may spread from there; but in what manner, and how far, was at mid-week only a matter of speculation—and worry.

Monogram Profits

Monogram Picture Corporation's profit for the first six months of this year, ending June 30th, is expected by Wall Street authorities to amount to $42,000, the amount exceeding normal expectations, it was reported this week.

At a meeting of the board of directors held Monday a revised slate of directors was selected for action by the stockholders; the annual stockholders' meeting being scheduled for October 5th.

The two changes in the board were the replacement of Leon Fromkess, comptroller, by Steve Broidy, Boston franchise holder, and of William Rosenblatt by his partner in the law firm of Rosenblatt and Jaffe. Mr. Jaffe is replacing Mr. Rosenblatt due to the pressure of business. Other directors include W. Ray Johnston, president; Henry Briggs, president of Pathe; Thomas Loach, vice-president of Pathe; Scott Dunlap, vice-president in charge of production for the company; Norton Ritchey, foreign manager, Trem Carr and Joseph Sisto.

Grand National

It was a rosy future that Earl W. Hammons, president of Grand National Pictures, contemplated this week, in his New York offices. The company is virtually free from its financial worries, he said; shortly forthcoming will be a $400,000 loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and another of $1,000,000 from Felt and Company, Wall Street house. Grand National, Mr. Hammons said, will pay off its old debts, now amounting to about $260,000; build a strong sales force; finance better grade independent producers, and begin immediate distribution on the first three of its scheduled 36 features and 18 westerns. The company will have a full line, Mr. Hammons pointed out; some of the features being expected in color; and shorts and colored cartoons being contemplated.

His plans are on page 40.

Argentine Treaty

The United States intends to negotiate a reciprocal trade treaty with Argentina as a move to put American commerce with that republic on a footing of equality with that of European competitors, Sumner Welles, Acting Secretary of State, said this week.

The motion picture industry has until October 4th to submit recommendations on possible changes in the tariff laws. The industry's only interest will be on tariff on American films shipped to Argentina as films do not appear on the list of products on which the United States will consider granting concessions to Argentina.

Construction Upturn

Contracts for theatre construction awarded in July pushed the level for the first seven months of this year over the corresponding record for 1938. The total valuation of contracts awarded for new or alteration work in the theatre field in July was $2,278,000, in the 37 states east of the Rocky Mountains, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation. In 1938 the July total was $1,555,000.

In addition to July, May was also ahead of last year, the comparative figures being $3,383,000 in 1939 and $1,514,000 in 1938. So far May has been the best month for new building.

At the close of the seven month period, the 1939 contract level was at $13,916,000. The corresponding 1938 valuation was $13,641,000. The Dodge summary reveals that the number of projects and their total floor area has paralleled the contract valuation rise. A total of 474 projects were recorded in the seven months, consisting of 1,749,000 square feet of floor space. For the same period in 1938, 472 projects including 1,725,000 square feet had been contracted for.

Dodge Reports emphasized the significance of the July increase by pointing out that after a general lag behind last year, a gain can be regarded as encouraging.

Eastern Labor Aims

George Meany, president of the New York State Federation of Labor, this week said he has decided to put the entire pressure of his organization behind a drive to "compel" film companies to produce "at least 10 per cent" of their product in New York. This is in line with a resolution introduced by Sol Scappa, head of the Studio Mechanics Union, Local 52, which was adopted at the recent Federation convention. Mr. Meany plans to start the campaign after Labor Day.

Contracts have already been signed involving approximately $2,500,00 for production at Eastern Service Studios and indications are that another $2,500,000 will be consummated before the end of the year.

RCA Appointment

J. Francis Harris has been appointed, by RCA Communications, Inc., vice-president in charge of Japan, Manchukuo and China. Mr. Harris has been manager in Tokyo for several years and is now on his way to Japan after a brief visit to this country. He will make his headquarters in Tokyo, but the Shanghai office, hitherto independent, will be placed under his supervision.

The party was given for the delegates by Reginald Armour, European executive for the company, at his estate near Paris. The host is kneeling front and center.

BACK TO THE MINES, right and below. With the laurels of Hollywood on her juvenescent head, Gloria Jean, new found Universal star, is welcomed home to Scranton, Pa., for the premiere of her first vehicle, "The Under-Pup." Initiated by publicity men, the homecoming and premiere was carried to a spontaneous and roaring climax by thousands of the child star's fellow citizens who swamped the railroad station, swarmed through the streets and jammed the Comerford Strand to see her in person and preview her first picture. The final touch that awed the 100 newspaper and magazine critics invited by Universal to the premiere was the declaration of a holiday strike by the miners. The pictorial pattern at right is part of the crowd of 10,000 children who attended the Gloria Jean festivities.

INDUSTRY HIT HEAVILY IN EUROPE; NEWSREELS COMPLETE WAR PLANS

Production Halted in England and France; Censorship in Paris; Distributors, Exhibitors Lose Staffs in Mobilizations

While Europe, this week, continued its frantic preparations for war, the effects of those preparations continued to be felt in America and on the motion picture and general entertainment fields.

The newsreels, uncertain of their status in a Europe at war, made such preparations as they could, here and abroad, for the continuance of their services; and Paramount put out a "special" on the European situation made from film flown over the Atlantic and distributed to theatres the next day.

Censorship Established

The French Government established a censorship of motion pictures and radio broadcasts, and England made known regulations affecting the reopenings of theatres after their first period of closing in war time.

Film executives and stars abroad returned in increasing numbers as the situation became ever more serious.

Theatre business in England and France was 'way off, with even more serious affects to follow any "blackouts."

Production has been halted both in London and Paris.

Australia has placed a ban on all money going out of the country.

Distribution offices on the Continent are hard pressed for transportation of films, with virtually all trucks, busses and other vehicles commandeered to transport troops and fleeing residents. Too, their actual operations were placed in serious state due to the sharp inroads made by mobilization orders.

Theatres likewise were suffering from loss of man power.

The radio networks operated on a 24 hour schedule, with the Columbia Broadcasting System having presented 70 programs emanating from Europe in the time from last Monday through this Monday and the National Broadcasting Company presenting broadcasts by 46 foreign commentators from 16 cities.

Uncertainty as to the censorship restrictions, as to whether or not they will be permitted to send men from this country to replace those conscripted in the event of war, and even as to whether the warring Governments would permit newsreel coverage harassed heads of the five newsreel companies this week.

Alternate Offices Prepared

However, certain plans in preparation for "eventualities" are being carried through by the companies, as the week's newsreels devoted the majority of their footage to the tense European situation.

Russell Muth, European director of Fox Movietone News, arriving in New York Monday on the "Normandie," confirmed the carrying through of plans discussed by Truman Talley, producer of the newsreel, Movietone News' plans for war are typical, as described by Mr. Talley. He said:

"Movietone is ready with alternate offices for every one of its production centers. By this I mean we can move out of our present quarters anywhere and continue to carry on securing news and making prints for distribution. This is not a hit and miss proposition. We have signed and sealed contracts with those commanding facilities that would be comparatively safe in a war torn world. In addition, we have our own alternate offices that offer more security than those in the heart of cities subject to air raids. Rest assured, we are prepared, come wrack, come ruin! We'll get the news unless Europe sinks beneath sea level.

"One of our first moves after our newsreel convention in Paris was to subdivide the Old World into six sections, each with its own staff under a competent and trustworthy supervisor.

"Section one is the British Isles under the direction of General Manager Sir Gordon Craig and Editor Gerald Sanger, with a staff of sixty in this territory.

"Section two we call the Scandinavian-Baltic group and in charge of coverage here we have Supervisor William Murray, trained veteran of General Manager Edmund Reek's American newsreel force. With a staff of six Murray covers Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuanian and Poland. The explosive Polish Corridor and Danzig are in this territory and Murray has lately covered himself with glory by his reports on activities there. Movietone News has scored world wide beats on several crucial incidents in these European 'hot spots' as the result of Murray's enterprise and daring.

"Our third section takes in the greater Third Reich, Hungary, Rumania, Bulgaria and Greece. Herr Robert Hartmann, editor of Fox Tonende Wochenschau, our German newsreel, supervises the coverage of this vast expanse of territory. In doing so he directs a staff of seventy. Movietone News carries on in Germany exactly as it does anywhere else, without sacrificing a whit of its independence as an unbiased recorder of events. In fact, during my visit to Berlin we were assurred by a high Reich official that, come what may, Movietone News will not be denied the privilege of fulfiling its traditional role as screen reporter.

"In our fourth subdivision we have France, Belgium, The Netherlands and part of Switzerland. Coverage of this highly important territory is directed by Supervisor Frederic Fesneau, one of the oldest, in point of service, employees on our European newsreel staff. A staff of fifty is necessary to do justice in a newsreel sense to this small but fruitful news area.

Madrid Office Reopened

"Our Paris office also houses our Continental Home Office presided over by European Director Russell Muth and his assistant, Arthur De Titta, formerly our Washington, D. C., Supervisor. It is the duty of Muth and De Titta to co-ordinate the entire group of territories, keep them producing and from working at cross purposes.

"Spain and Spanish Morocco make up section five in our new scheme of things. It was my pleasant duty while in Europe to re-open our Madrid office, closed during the Civil War. Luis Diaz Amado, Continental and South American journalist of international reputation, is in charge of this territory and when I left Madrid he already had a staff of ten working in picturizing the immense recovery program inaugurated by Generalissimo Franco.

"Although we come to our sixth territory last in this resume it should be understood that this in nowise is its position of importance. In fact the Mediterranean section ranks with any of the above territories in every way, including as it does Italy, Yugoslavia, Albania, Libya, Tripoli, Egypt and Turkey. Ettore Villani is Supervisor of our enterprises in this Mediterranean section. He has a staff of eight to assist him."

Over $100,000 in New Equipment

Mr. Talley said that while in Europe he saw the final phases of his modernization project take shape and that from a mechanical viewpoint the British and Continental offices and mobile units are now "as perfect as human brains and ingenuity can make them." Over $100,000 was expended on the Continent in this re-equipping move, with $50,000 more spent by British Movietone News. This $50,000 does not include the outlay for the new English newsreel Home Office in Soho Square. While Mr. Talley was in London British Movietone News had rounded out a year in the new building, the most modern newsreel plant in the Old World. The money went entirely into new cars, cameras, lenses and other necessary picture making accessories. Four specially built motor cars were added to the British Movietone fleet. In addition to top decks for high shots, there is room inside for a camera set up and portholes so that pictures can be made from any of the four sides of the car, with even a special adjustable rack for getting worm's eye-views. They are also equipped with radios to keep in touch with news broadcasts, most popular British programs. And should newspapers suspend publication in an emergency these mobile units can range anywhere and still be in touch with things, he added.

Mr. Talley said that Sidney Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, had allowed another entirely new appropriation to re-establish the Madrid office and has given Mr. Amado a free hand to bring this office up to the efficiency of the other production centers of Movietone News.

While in the French capital Mr. Talley also conferred with members of the Daladier cabinet and established an understanding regarding French operations in the face of war.

Universal Using Foreign Staffs

Feeling, in the event of war, that the best coverage will result from the work of native cameramen behind either front, Universal Newsreel will not attempt to use men from the United States unless unforseen opportunities arise. Through affiliates in England, France, Poland, Holland, Italy and Germany, the company will have more than 40 cameramen at its disposal.

Protective equipment has already been flown to staff cameramen in Poland and other central European countries. Included are gas masks, a new type of bullet proof vest, helmets and iron

FRENCH GOVERNMENT BARS CODE MESSAGES

Western Union, Wednesday, advised its clients in New York, including all motion picture companies, that the French Government has prohibited code and cipher language in all cablegrams to and from France, Algiers, Syria and Madagascar, and that messages in plain language will be subject to censorship.

rations. Large supplies of film have already been placed in strategic positions.

Films from all camermen will be rushed to the United States by clipper planes, showing in theatres in this country, the newsreel reports, within two days after leaving Europe.

The matter of censorship, the editors feel, is the "unknown element." If and when Germany moves on Poland, they say, a delay and censorship are expected from the German side, but there is hope for comparative freedom from Polish and French authorities.

Pointed out by RKO Pathe is the problem of the conscription of foreign cameramen, which happened a year ago, before Munich. Although their men have not as yet been among the groups which have been mobilized, Pathe has already selected and forewarned men in this country who may be sent as replacement.

Handling coverage in conjunction with Pathe is Pathe Cinema in Switzerland, France and Italy and Pathe Gazette in London. In the event that foreign cameramen were not allowed in countries abroad, Press Filmeé, the French Government organization, would handle coverage, as would UFA in Germany.

Paramount News and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's News of the Day point out the uncertainties surrounding the situation as it stood this week. The former brought out a special this week which included more than 1,300 feet of film. The pictures were flown across the Atlantic aboard the Imperial Airways flying boat "Cabot," landed at Montreal and re-shipped to New York by American Airlines. Released on Monday, the special war issue supplanted the regular mid-week issue.

Shown are the emergency defense preparations of Britain, France and Poland; the arrival of foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in Berlin after the signing of the Russo-German pact; the first pictures of Chancellor Hitler's private plane, called by the newsreel "a German version of the new Douglas DC-4"; the emergency session of Parliament; the mobilization of French reservists; the fortification of the suburbs of London; the itinerary of the emergency evacuation of children; the Nazis taking over the free city of Danzig, and the hasty leave-takings of Americans from Paris.

News of the Day has assigned Ariel Varges, who has been in Ethiopia and Spain, to Paris in the emergency. Although they had been in China and Spain, cameramen may not be allowed to attach themselves to armies if the crisis should result in war, it is felt. In this case, the armies may have their own newsreel men, and use their film for propaganda purposes.

French Control Communications

The official journal of the French Government, on Monday, established censorship of motion pictures and radio broadcasts. Jean Giradoux, French dramatist recently appointed propaganda chief, has been placed at the head of the censorship bureau, which is being established at the Hotel Continental, near the Place Vendome.

Article one of the decree said: "Dating from August 28th, 1939, printed matter, cartoons or written matter of all kinds destined for publication, texts of all radio broadcasts and film projections will be submitted to the preventive control of the General Information Service, which will have the right to forbid their publication, transmission or projection."

Article two said: "Exportation of all undeveloped photograph and moving picture films is forbidden."

Article three said, in part: "Developed cinema films may not be exported outside metropolitan territory without the visa of the chief of the Information Service or his delegate."

Regulations governing the opening, lighting and staffing of places of entertainment, the safety of their audiences and the training of their staffs were issued Monday in London by the British Home Office for operation in the event of emergency. Reopening permits will be subject to local authorities and police in special areas, film houses are required to provide facilities for their audiences to reach a bomb cellar, and the training, at the theatre's expense, of the whole staff in first aid and anti-gas treatment.

Reopenings, after the first period, in which all British houses would be compelled to close, for an unspecified period, would start in the less vulnerable areas and allowed on a basis of safety.

The newsreels have already arranged for printing to be done outside of the metropolis, while most major distributors are ready at an instant's notice to transfer their business outside London to stations already prepared, if need be. Major film organizations all have air raid precautions machinery ready to function, with their staffs fully trained and sectionally divided among firemen, nurses, decontamination squads and Air Raid Precautions wardens.

Staffs Mobilized

With theatre business having fallen far below normal, curtailment of staffs by mobilization practically brought future production plans to a standstill. Drilling and other precautionary measures, both in Paris and London, took its toll in theatre attendance as well as in the men engaged in production, distribution and exhibition. In addition, the requisition of trucks and busses in both France and Germany has made film delivery a serious problem.

The war crisis brought many a cable to film stars who were abroad, urging their return home. Among those on the Normandie, which reached New York Monday after a "black out" at sea which caused passengers to believe that war had already been declared, were: Sonja Henie, Harry Cohn, Columbia president; J. A. McConville, Columbia foreign manager; J. J. Milstein, Edward Small eastern representative; Norman Krasna, Lee Shubert, Victor Orsatti, George Raft, James Stewart, Josef von Sternberg, Constance Bennett, Roland Young, C. C. Pettijohn, of the Hays office and Russell Muth, foreign director of Fox Movietone News.

Tyrone Power and his wife, Annabella, are scheduled to arrive in New York Wednesday morning aboard the Dixie Clipper.

Planning to leave the continent this week are Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Warner, Lili Damita and Zorina. Now in England are Robert Montgomery and Richard Thorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Warner, Merle Oberon, Donald Crisp, David Rose, Dan Carroll, H. J. Yates and Gene Autry.

Also abroad are Norma Shearer, Bop Hope, Helen Hayes, Charles Boyer, Madeleine Carroll. Billie Burke and Gloria Stuart.

Arriving on the Aquitania Tuesday were Mr. and Mrs. James Durbin, parents of Deanna Durbin, while Thursday brought Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Mona Barrie and Edna Best back from Europe on the "Nieuw Amsterdam"; and Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson and Mrs. Elmer Rice, wife of the playwright arrived the same day on the "Washington."

Seventy Programs Listed

Seventy European originations have been effected by CBS in the current crisis, from August 19th up to and including August 28th, as follows —34 from London; 20 from Paris; 14 from Berlin; two from Warsaw; two from the Vatican, and one each from Budapest and Tokyo.

Speakers included His Holiness, Pope Pius XII; Premier Edouard Daladier of France; Lord Halifax, Foreign Minister of Great Britain; Lord Snell, Opposition Leader in the House of Lords; Sir Archibald Sinclair, English Liberal Party Leader; William Stone, authority on Foreign Affairs; Hugh Baillie, president of the United Press Association; Emil Lengyel, lecturer and expert on The Balkans—also author of a forthcoming book entitled "The Danube"; Dematree Bess, Saturday Evening Post writer; Richard Mowrer, Chicago Daily News, and Melvin Whiteleather, of the Associated Press.

Members of Columbia's European staff participating in these broadcasts were Edward R. Murrow, director, in London; William L. Shirer in Berlin; Thomas B. Grandin and Eric Sevareid in Paris; W. R. Wills in Tokyo, and H. V. Kaltenborn, CBS news analyst.

Elmer Davis, veteran author and correspondent, analyzed these European broadcasts from New York. He also served as a focal point for the four and five-way telephone interviews picked up between New York, Washington and the European capitals.

Public Figures on Programs

The National Broadcasting Company's coverage of the European situation has included broadcasts by 46 foreign commentators from 16 cities. In addition, there were exclusive broadcasts by King Leopold of Belgium and Queen Geraldine of Albania; as well as broadcasts by Winston Churchill, former first lord of the British admiralty; Pierre Flandin, former premier of France; Anthony Eden, former British foreign secretary, and Edouard Herriot, former premier of France.

Other outstanding NBC broadcasts included a statement of the Polish position by Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish Ambassador to the United States, a report on reactions in Moscow, by John Gunther, given from London, and an explanation of the Russo-German alliance, secretary of the Communist Party in America.

The Associated Press, International News Service and United Press, plus several American and foreign newspapers, cooperated by permitting their correspondents to broadcast.

As the crisis reached its height NBC and its staff went on a 24-hour schedule to provide its listeners with up to the minute developments.

VITAL STATISTICS REFLECT NO FEAR

Overseas events affected no whit the vital statistics of the studio sector where, at weekend, 42 pictures were before the cameras, a gain of 4 over the preceding weekend mark.

Pictures started are "The Man from Montreal," "The Galloping Kid" and "Green Hell," Universal; "Gambling on the High Seas," Warner; "Campus Wives," Paramount; "Reno," RKO-Radio; and "Kansas Terrors," Republic.

Sent to cutting rooms were MGM's "Another Thin Man," Columbia's "The Main Trailers" and Monogram's "Murder in the Big House."

TEN COMPANIES DELIVER 454 FILMS FOR 1938-39; ELEVEN MORE TO COME

Season Will Show but 28 Less Than Total Promised; 454 Delivered to September 1st; Five Have Finished Lineup

Ten motion picture companies announced the delivery of from 485 to 493 feature pictures, including westerns, for the year 1938-39. Up to September 1, 1939, 454 pictures have been delivered with eleven still to come, making the total delivery 465 or 20 to 28 pictures short of the announced figure. Three of the eleven pictures to be released after September 1st, will be westerns.

Talent Rosters Full

Just previous to the opening of the 1938-39 motion picture season fifteen Hollywood producers had under contract 615 players, 293 writers and 129 directors to appear in or produce the 485 to 493 pictures the companies had announced. Of this figure a few score top-notch players, writers and directors had not signed contracts but preferred the status of the freelancer to a contract.

Paramount had under contract, as the 1938-39 season opened, the largest number of players of any studio with 107 stars and feature players followed closely by Twentieth Century-Fox with 101 stars and feature players. Fox also had at that time the greatest number of contract writers, 64 in all. Both Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Twentieth Century-Fox each had signed 20 directors of the 129 under contract in Hollywood.

Of the 615 players under contract to the 15 producers, 329, or 54 per cent were men and 286, representing 46 per cent were women. As the season advanced new players, writers and directors were placed under contract.

Columbia announced in May, 1938 that it would deliver to the exhibitor for the 1938-39 season a total of 56 feature pictures including sixteen westerns. To date they have delivered 49 pictures, 15 of which are westerns. "Golden Boy" will be released within the next few days bringing their total deliveries for the season to 50 pictures or six less than the number promised prior to opening of the product year.

For the same product season Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer announced the production of from 44 to 52 feature pictures. As the season came to a close they had delivered 52.

At the sixth annual convention in Cincinnati in May 1938, Monogram stated they would deliver twenty-six features and sixteen westerns, a total of forty-two pictures. By November of the same year Monogram's president, W. Ray Johnston, stated that the company was ahead of its production schedule by one full month. As the 1938-39 product season rapidly winds up Monogram has delivered 28 features and 14 westerns with two features and two westerns to be released after September 1st. An increase of four over the announced number.

Paramount held its sales convention in Washington at the Sherman Hotel in April 1938. Twenty-seven home office, district and division executives attended the conclave and it was said at that time that 58 features would be given the exhibitor for that motion picture year. Up to September of 1939 Paramount had completed its yearly release with 59 features, one more than the announced number.

A total of $7,500,000 was budgeted for Republic's 1938-39 product of which a total of 55 features and four serials were to be produced. Of the 55 pictures, 22 features and 23 westerns have been delivered and one western, starring Gene Autry, will be released soon. Republic will deliver nine pictures less than its originally announced figure.

RKO Exceeds Promise

RKO Radio announced the delivery of 48 features. To date they have delivered 45 and they will release four more after September 1st. This is one picture more than they had announced would be released for the season.

A program of 52 pictures was to be prepared for 1938-39 release by Twentieth Century-Fox. As the season came to a close 57 had been released to the exhibitor for that period, five more than was first declared by the company.

At the company's annual sales convention at the Waldorf Astoria in New York in June of 1938, it was declared by United Artists that it would deliver 30 features to be made by six producers—Samuel Goldwyn, Alexander Korda, David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger, Edward Small, and Hal Roach. When their production season ended, United Artists had delivered only 15 pictures, one-half the number they had announced.

To date Universal has delivered 39 of the 40 pictures for their 1938-39 motion picture year. One picture will be released after September 1st, to bring the figure up to the total they had announced.

At the Baker Hotel in Dallas, Texas, in May of 1938, Warner Brothers, in conjunction with First National, promised 50 for the 1938-39 season. A short time previous to that they had announced they would have for the 38-39 season a total of 60 pictures. The reduction of pictures to be produced by Warner's did not, however, reduce their budget.

There are still to come two features and two westerns from Monogram, four features by RKO Radio, one western, a Gene Autry picture, from Republic, one feature from Universal and one feature from Columbia.

Warners To Start 25

Warner Brothers is rushing preparations on 25 "top-budget" pictures which will go into work during the next six months. A new schedule has just been completed following conferences between Jack L. Warner and Hal B. Wallis.

Productions and players assigned to them so far are as follows:

METRO AND PARAMOUNT LICENSING MANUFACTURERS, EXPECT $600,000

New Departments Handle Licensing on "Wizard of Oz", "Gulliver's Travels", "Gone with the Wind"; 145 Licenses

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, through its "Wizard of Oz" and David Oliver Selznick's "Gone With the Wind," which it will release, and Paramount, through its Fleischer-produced cartoon, "Gulliver's Travels," are now actively engaging in the licensing of rights to the titles and characters in those films, with both companies having created departments to handle the work done on such a large scale by the Kay Kamen organization for Walt Disney's cartoon films.

Special Departments Set Up

To protect themselves as copyright owners as well as to further popularize the individual picture through merchandising tie-ups, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has created a royalty department under the supervision of Howard Dietz, advertising and publicity head of the company, while Paramount's department, of which Harry Royster is in charge, is under the direction of Lou Diamond, head of the short subjects department. Both are innovations in the history of the respective companies.

With 44 licenses already granted, and a total of between 50 and 75 expected, Paramount's contracts range from $2,500 down in advance royalties, with a minimum of $200,000 expected to accrue from the licensing agreements on "Gulliver's Travels," and merchandise generally planned to be on the market by the beginning of next week. The film is planned for a Christmas week release. In addition to the licensing arrangements made for the picture, celluloids and backgrounds will also be sold, as they have been for the Disney pictures. The film has an advertising budget of approximately $250,000.

Paramount-Fleischer Plans

Paramount plans to release one Fleischer color cartoon a year, with licensing arrangements handled as they have been on "Gulliver's Travels."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer reports advance royalties of $19,500 from its licensees on "Wizard of Oz," with 51 accounts to date. The total from the film's licensing arrangements, which were started later than is ordinarily the case, is expected to reach $116,000.

"Gone with the Wind" now has close to 50 licensees, with advances of $34,325. Over 75 accounts, to bring in nearly $250,000 in revenue, are expected by MGM on the Selznick picture.

While created on an international scale for the first time in film history by the Kay Kamen-Walt Disney offices, motion picture merchandising tie-ups were made as early as 1917 by Charlie Chaplin through Ivan Kahn, with the National Candy Company and other commercial firms of the day. Shortly thereafter, Mary Pickford effected a tie-up with Pompeiian Face Cream.

FLEISCHER PLANS SECOND FEATURE

Max Fleischer, who is currently producing "Gulliver's Travels," feature color cartoon, for Paramount release, is making plans for a second full length cartoon feature, although no story has yet been selected. "Gulliver's Travels" is the second full length cartoon feature to be made, the first being Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Disney's second cartoon feature, "Pinocchio," will be released about the same time as "Gulliver."

10 Producers Make 454 of '38-'39 List

Gloria Dickson, Ronald Reagan and Alan Hale.

We Shall Meet Again, co-starring Bette Davis and George Brent.

British Production Promised

Meanwhile from London comes word that Harry Warner has promised large scale pictures at the Teddington Studio, where Warner British product is produced. The larger films will be made more or less on an experimental basis, the executive said, but he would indicate no numerical program.

The company at the moment is considering a new treatment for "Disraeli," with special reference to the Suez Canal and the position of contemporary England. Warner indicated that he hoped to persuade Claude Rains to play the title role, perhaps with Edmund Goulding as director. Alternatively, the company may make a film on the life of Baron Reuter, and also is considering a picture on the life of Cunard.

Mr. Warner frankly referred to the losses on previous films made at Teddington, but expressed satisfaction with the current output, which is ready for exhibition. He has booked passage on the Queen Mary, which sails from England on Wednesday and is due in New York September 4, conditions permitting.

Monogram Plans

Monogram will release three productions during September. Two are now in the cutting room: "Mutiny in the Big House," starring Charles Bickford and Barton MacLane; and "Sky Patrol," one of the Tailspin Tommy series. The third is "Crashing Thru," first of the "Renfrew" productions which Monogram is releasing.

Set for the cameras during September are: "His Father's Son" co-starring John Carroll and Martin Spellman; "Overland Mail," Jack Randall outdoor drama, scheduled to start September 12th, "Roll, Wagons, Roll," Tex Ritter musical western, set for September 28th; "Mr. Wong at Headquarters," one of the James Lee Wong series with Boris Karloff starring.

"Scouts of the Air" (tentative title) is now in production with John Trent, Marjorie Reynolds and Milburn Stone.

SPAIN AN OPEN NEUTRAL MARKET SAYS FILM CHIEF IN NEW YORK

Head of Motion Picture Service Says Laws Governing Film Imports Will Not Favor Any Single Foreign Source

The status of the motion picture in Spain and the policies which are to govern the operations of the industry there were this week stated and elucidated for the first time, by Manuel García Viñolas, official in charge of screen affairs for the Spanish government. He is in New York to see the World's Fair.

It is the official observation that the American picture distributors are handicapping their effort at recovery of the Spanish market by insistence on offering old pictures, shelved through the period of the civil war.

Declaration is made that Spain is to be an open market, with no discrimination between producers or nations.

Government In Control

Two separate Government departments at present exercise control over the film industry in Spain.

The Ministry of Industry and Commerce regulates from Bilboa all import and export activities, as well as domestic production. The Ministry of the Interior, in Burgos, deals with censorship and trade policies through the Nation Motion Picture Service, of which Señor García Viñolas is the head. It is expected however, that upon his return to Spain these two departments will be merged into one, under the direction of the National Motion Picture Service, whose authority, for reasons of State, is now paramount in the country.

Although several tentative proposals have been submitted by the Film Board to the Government, no law has as yet been promulgated regulating imports and exports of film, according to Señor García Viñolas. Furthermore, he adds, Spain has not entered, and does not intend entering, into agreements with foreign producers which may favor one source of material over others.

"During the three years of the Civil War, European pictures replaced those from Hollywood—which American producers were reluctant to send to Spain—so that, although my Government is completely impartial in its treatment of motion picture problems, it will be an up-hill struggle for the United States to replace European producers," he said.

Old Pictures Pushed

This situation is further complicated—the marked preference of the Spanish public for American pictures notwithstanding—by the fact that the American distributors who are already operating in Spain, are trying to book old pictures. In his opinion, this point becomes important because Spanish distributors, exhibitors and public alike are quite familiar with release schedules elsewhere and want new pictures. This attitude on the part of the American producers has provoked bitter complaints, he observed.

Señor García Viñolas, who was one of the first Spaniards to be elevated by Generalissimo Franco to the rank of Commander of the newly-created Order to the Yoke and the Arrows, highest national decoration, is of the opinion that the Spanish Government has been extremely lenient with the American motion picture industry in the face of its disaffection for the Nationalist causé.

Even those American producers who, "deliberately went out of their way to capitalize on the tragedy of a people for the sake of catering to cheap sensationalism without regard for the justice of Franco's cause," have been treated with fairness and consideration, he said.

MANUEL GARCIA VINOLAS

The Government, according to the head of the National Motion Picture Service, fully realizes the international role of the motion picture as a means of creating friendship and goodwill among the nations of the world, and is anxious to avail itself of such a powerful vehicle.

"Cultural Ties" Factor

That is why the present plans of the Burgos Administration call for a liberal code regulating the imports and exports of films. Rather than economic considerations, however, cultural ties will be borne in mind in drawing agreements with foreign producers, and the Spanish Government will see to it, without actually acting as a censor, that those pictures made in Spain reflect Spanish life truly in order that they enhance the prestige of the country abroad.

Concerning currency exchange, which is "blocked," Señor García Viñolas said this policy of the Government is due to the need of creating funds for its purchases of materials abroad, and it does not mean that the Administration will adopt a discriminatory attitude towards certain countries. All producers applying to send films into Spain will be granted permits, although the Government would prefer to deal with representative bodies in each producing country rather than with individuals. The State censorship will limit itself to judging the moral value of the productions. Political subjects, whether pro- or anti-Franco, will be strictly banned.

Production Started

Domestic production has already started in Spain. In Madrid and Barcelona some ten features are now being completed, and it is hoped that the pre-war figure of 60 pictures annually will be reached just as soon as the country returns to normalcy. The only foreign country producing pictures in Spain at present is France. It is hoped, however, that American as well as European producers will avail themselves of the facilities which the Spanish industry is ready to offer them in order to produce in that country.

Señor García Viñolas, who plans to leave for Spain next week, feels that the American motion picture has a great potential market in his country; and he also feels that owing to its racial and cultural influence in Latin America, Spain will prove a deciding factor affecting the expansion of American motion picture interests in all Spanish-speaking countries.

American Distributors Arrange for Imports at Once

A dispatch from Barcelona says that American producers and distributors operating in Spain are preparing to comply with the proposed regulations to import films at once.

Universal, for instance, has shown its willingness to accept the proposed regulations by purchasing a Spanish-made production, "La Hermosa Beatriz" ("Beautiful Beatrix").

RKO is advertising for Spanish technicians and talent to start local production immediately, while Lacy W. Kastner, Continental sales manager for United Artists, at present visiting Spain, says that his company is ready to purchase and also to produce Spanish pictures, since United Artists is urgently in need of Spanish language material.

Campaign Raises 'Oz' Chicago Gross

"The Wizard of Oz," now at the United Artists theatre in Chicago, is headed for a first week's gross over the $20,000 mark, which is big business. Average is $14,000.

Backed by one of the most elaborate local exploitation campaigns since "Snow White," the film has received tremendous advertising. Tieups in all of the Loop department stores and many neighborhood shops were made to coincide with the opening. Marshall Field, Mandel Brothers and other stores ran advertising tied in with the film.

Wndow displays by the dozen were arranged and set up in many shops. Books, toys, sheet music and many other articles were tied in with the film showing. These articles were in one way or another connected with the characters in the film.

The advertising space bought prior to the opening was about average. The major part of the campaign on the film locally was through exploitation.

Reports from theatre officials show that about 60% of the attendance was adult. This was considerably higher than expected by the circuit executives who thought that children would be the largest part of the audience. Night business was excellent and matinees were nearly record-breaking. The opening day found a line ranging from a block to a block and a half long waiting for seats all during the morning and afternoon.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, Inc., the permanent national organization, which supplanted the Warm Springs, Ga., Foundation as the principal beneficiary of the annual drives, has received a gift of $50,000 from the Will Rogers Memorial Commission, which distributed a like sum among 25 chapters of the foundation in 25 cities for local use.

INDEPENDENT CODE ACTION SOUGHT; WEST COAST CHARGES FILED BY U. S.

Kuykendall Calls Warner Move "Very Encouraging"; Other Distributors Now Considering Adoption of Code Features

This week, reports on trade practices were heard from three fronts: William Rodgers, chairman of the distributors' trade practice committee, promised a definite announcement relative to the code and commercialized preview and move-over situation problems by September 8th; Warner Brothers, through Gradwell Sears, sales manager, stated that it would aid exhibitors in ironing out clearance problems in which it is concerned, and Columbia indicated that it would include in its new season license agreements several of the code provisions.

In addition, many of the majors are understood to be considering the same type of action, although it is felt in some distributor quarters that this, too, might be interpreted as action "in concert" by the Department of Justice, which declared the code illegal two weeks ago.

Mr. Rodgers' announcement was made known by Albert Galston, president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California, following a conference held on the coast, and will be in time for the annual conference of the exhibitor organization.

Exhibitors Interested

Exhibitors are starting to express favorable reactions to the Warner idea, Edward L. Kuykendall, for the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America starting off with a statement that it "is very encouraging." While the Warner code does not cover all the angles MPTOA feels should prevail, Mr. Kuykendall said "it is a definite step forward in bringing about a happier relationship between distribution and exhibition. Mr. Sears showed the courage of his convictions in making this announcement without the entangling restraint of the code.

The ITOA of New York on Wednesday passed a resolution urging other distributors to incorporate code provisions in their policies.

Disclosure that Warners would work to solve exhibitors' clearance problems came late Friday when Max A. Cohen, president of New York Allied, advised members of his organization by special bulletin that "Grad Sears has assured your president that he will favor conciliation on clearance problems where Warner Brothers is concerned and will step in actively to iron out problems relating to clearance in this territory.

Sees Chance to Prove Self-Reliance

"Conciliation now offers the exhibitor of this state a marvelous opportunity to accomplish progress even though, for the present, the matter of the code is delayed," Mr. Cohen continued. "Under the foregoing proposed method of operation, there is no doubt but that many of the other distributors will fall in line, and let's try and make it a point to show the rest of the country that exhibitors in New York state can and do settle their problems without the necessity of forced regulation."

Mr. Sears is reported to have said that the same practice would be open to all territories; and, while not wanting to become involved in a political scheme of conciliation, that he would not refuse to attempt to make adjustments where he believed an exhibitor had a just complaint on unfair clearance.

While other major distributors are weighing plans for incorporating salient features of the code in their new season license agreements, no decisions have as yet been reached to do so by any of the other distributors, one reason for which is said to be the fear, on the part of the distributors, that the Department of Justice might draw the inference that the companies were acting in concert.

It was indicated that Columbia has decided to revise its new season sales policy by including in its license agreements several clauses designed to achieve some of the objectives of the proposed trade practice code. These have not been finally determined and may not be ready for announcement to the trade for some time.

Neil F. Agnew, Paramount vice-president and distribution chief, declined to state whether Paramount contemplated any action affecting its sales policy and license agreement, and stemming from the proposed code of fair trade prac-

Universal officials said the matter has been under consideration for several days but no decision has been reached.

"I don't know what we will do or whether we will do anything more than we already are doing," one Universal executive said. "For several years past Universal has not had a score charge, the company does not force shorts or newsreels, it has granted a cancellation privilege and welcomes discussions of any grievances arising from its contracts with customers. If our sales policy can be further liberalized I am sure we will do it."

No statements were forthcoming from either 20th Century-Fox or M-G-M due to the absence from the city of Herman Wobber and William F. Rodgers, sales heads of the companies.

RKO, indications are, will make some move to salvage some of the features of the defunct code for its customers by including them in sales contracts.

There is no indication that United Artists'

'DAILY MIRROR' ASKS FOR ALL SHORTS

The New York Daily Mirror, one of America's largest circulated tabloid newspapers, last week observed that theatres should occasionally show all-short-subject programs "and win both a handsome profit and the hearty approbation of paying customers."

"A new revenue-producing use for the short subject" was the description given in Motion Picture Herald last week, page 69, for a demonstration by the Interstate circuit of Texas of an all-short-subject show at one of its Dallas neighborhood theatres, the Melrose, where the experiment drew more than triple the average Thursday business for the house.

In unique manner, Interstate conducts a special short subject department, conducted by Mrs. Besa Short, who for years has been concentrating on the development of the short as an integral part of the circuit's programs.

Arnold Accuses Circuit and Distributors of Violating 1930 Consent Decree; Court Action Climaxes Long Investigation

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

The Department of Justice this week initiated the long-anticipated West Coast anti-trust case, announcing Wednesday night that it had instituted criminal contempt proceedings based on activities alleged to be in violation of the 1930 consent decree.

Filed in federal court for the southern district of California, the proceedings were directed against Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation, Fox West Coast Agency Corporation, Paramount, RKO Radio, RKO Distributing Corporation, Universal Film Exchanges, Warner Brothers, Vitagraph, United Artists and 54 individual officers and employees of the several corporations.

Arnold Gives Reasons

In announcing its action the Department issued one of its now famous "statements of grounds for action," explaining that an equity suit was instituted by the Department in 1930 against Fox West Coast Theatres and certain distributors, alleging a conspiracy to restrain and monopolize trade in motion pictures.

"That suit," Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, said in the statement, "charged that these distributors were granting preferences to Fox West Coast Theatres over its competitors, the independent exhibitors. These preferences included the right to select and contract for pictures before the independent exhibitors; excluding independent exhibitors from exhibiting pictures first run or in competition with Fox West Coast Theatres; and adopting and enforcing zoning and clearance schedules which granted Fox West Coast Theatres arbitrary and unreasonable protection and clearance over independent exhibitors. The defendants consented to the entry of a decree, in 1930, enjoining the continuance of this conspiracy.

"During the past several years," the statement continued, "the department has received numerous complaints that the parties named in the decree were violating its provisions. As a result of these complaints a comprehensive field investigation was launched. In the course of the investigation considerable evidence has been developed indicating that seven major distributors have given to Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation prior rights to negotiate for and to exhibit pictures released by them; that Fox West Coast Theatres obtains such pictures on more favorable terms than independent exhibitors and is not required to purchase all pictures released: that Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation demands and receives adherence to zoning and clearance schedules in favor of its theatres and to the discrimination of independent theatres; and that such practices have resulted in the monopolization by Fox West Coast Theatres of first run and other early run theatres to virtually every desirable location in southern California.

"If the evidence to be presented to the court establishes that the decree has been violated," Mr. Arnold concluded, "the proceedings will serve not only to punish the defendants for disobeying the court's order, but also to recreate a situation in which independent exhibitors may compete on equal terms with Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation."

United Artists Files Answer

Other film anti-trust suit matters this week principally concerned United Artists asking the Federal Courts for the dismissal of the Government's New York case, and RKO asking for dismissal of a suit pending against it in Kentucky.

United Artists filed answer Monday in the U. S. District Court to the Government's anti-trust suit against the majors, in which it asked for a dismissal in behalf of itself, James Roosevelt, Harry D. Buckley, Arthur W. Kelly, Harry J. Muller, Dennis F. O'Brien, Edward C. Raftery, Emanuel Silverstone and Theodore Caruso, United Artists officers and directors.

The answer, last to be filed by a major company, disclaimed knowledge or information concerning over 100 allegations of the complaint covering, to a large extent, the history of the industry, and Government charges of monopolistic practices in the production and exhibition field. United Artists also denied knowledge of Government contentions that the majors and circuit theatre owners resorted to coercive methods in acquiring theatre properties from independents.

In addition, parts of the complaint which had charged harsh and coercive selling practices, and all allegations which had generally claimed monopoly in the industry, were denied completely. In respect to selling methods, the answer conceded that United Artists "acting separately and independently" made some contracts with exhibitors in which it reserved the right to designate play dates, provide for clearance, prohibit the showing of pictures as part of a double bill, impose a score charge, and provide for minimum admission charges.

United Artists also, on occasion, made advertising allowances, reduced film rentals where, in the opinion of United Artists such reductions were warranted, and made agreements for a move-over where, in its opinion, it would mean more revenue, the answer stated.

RKO Asks Dismissal

Federal Judge Samuel Mandelbaum has authorized the Irving Trust Company, as trustee of RKO, to retain William Marshall Bullitt of Louisville as attorney to apply to the U. S. District Court in Kentucky for dismissal of the suit for $75,000 treble damages filed there in July by Harry Schwartz and George Myers, operating as the New Theatre. RKO will ask for a dismissal on the grounds that the court has no jurisdiction of it in Kentucky.

Federal Attorneys Prepare Briefs

With the defendants in the Federal Government's anti-trust suit against various theatre chains and film distributing companies already heard from, federal attorneys this week could turn their attention to the preparation of briefs outlining their side of the case at Oklahoma City. The chains already have filed their briefs supporting their motions for a bill of particulars and more definite allegations from the Government. When the motions were first argued at Oklahoma City in July, Judge Edgar S. Vaught allowed the film firms to August 20th to file such briefs and allowed the government 15 days beyond August 20th to file briefs attacking these motions.

In the preparation of the statement of the government's case, Charles E. Dierker, federal district attorney, will be aided by Seymour Simon and Robert L. Wright, special assistants from the attorney general's office in Washington.

The government claims that the chains, the Griffith Amusement Co., the Consolidated Theatres, Inc., R. E. Griffith Theatres, Inc., and the Westex Theatres, Inc., and 10 major distributing agencies of the principal film producers, have combined in illegal restraint of trade.

Columbia Invites Exhibitors to Talk Over Mutual Problems

Columbia Pictures Corporation will set out to promote a closer relationship between the company and exhibitors through a series of conferences designed to bring the theatre operator's viewpoint into production policy, it was announced Wednesday.

First of the conferences took place Wednesday morning at the home office where several exhibitors discussed production and exhibition probelms with Harry Cohn, president; Jack Cohn, vice-president, and Abe Montague, general sales manager.

The exhibitors attending were Izzy Rappaport, Hippodrome theatre, Baltimore; Charles Heyman, Lafayette theatre, Buffalo; Si Fabian, Fabian Theatres, New York; Harry Arthur, St. Louis Theatres, and David Chatkin, Monarch Theatres.

"The conference will bring to Columbia first-hand views, from an exhibitor's angle, of what audiences want in screen entertainment."

Columbia plans to hold several similar sessions, inaugurating a new idea in producer-exhibitor relationship for Columbia.

MPTOA Backs Individual 'Codes'

sales policy will undergo any change because of the discarding of the code and the trend toward individual sales policy revisions by companies. A United Artists' spokesman said the company believes its contracts already make every concession to the exhibitor that it can possibly afford, and that the new situation does not alter the company's view in any respect. However, no official statement was issued because of the absence in Hollywood of Murray Silverstone, company head.

United Artists took no part in the code negotiations of the past 14 months.

Back of the apparent hesitancy of individual companies in making their decisions is believed to be the fear of further prosecution by the U. S. Attorney General's office. Several were outspoken in asserting that they would incorporate every practicable feature of the code in their license agreements if it were not for the fact that the Department of Justice would be certain to draw the inferences that the distributors were acting in concert.

Even if the concessions granted would differ in individual company contracts, some similarities would be inescapable and sufficient, in all likelihood, to earn Department of Justice inferences, it was said.

"There are only a certain number of evils in the business," one official put it, "and the remedies for them are all pretty much alike. Therefore, even though the distribution companies act separately to correct them, it is unavoidable that they will reach similar conclusions. We can only guess what the Government will infer from this."

To Continue Study

The plans of the Department of Commerce to aid the film industry in solving its problems have not been affected by the Justice Department's rejection of the proposed Code of Fair Trade Practices, Department officials have said.

"We have not heard anything from the distributors and are proceeding with business as usual," one Department official said. However, no further meetings have as yet been set with either distributors or exhibitors.

The Department made clear that it had not looked upon the Code as the only possible method of solving the industry's problems, but rather as one of a number of expedients which might be developed to better relations among the various groups. Officials are continuing with their study of the factual material which has been compiled as the basis for further discussions with the various interests in the industry.

Canada To Shelve Film Board

The proposed National Film Board in the Dominion has been shelved, it is understood, with no definite action having been taken because of the uncertainty of the European situation and because of the early prospects of Federal elections in Canada unless war intervenes.

The proposed board has proved to be a highly controversial subject, both before and since the passing of the enabling act by Parliament, and it is said that Government members are averse to the putting through of the plan, with its appointments, just prior to a general election.

In the meantime, the Canadian Government Motion Picture Bureau, which was established more than 20 years ago, continues to take care of the official film requirements.

Independents Want Representation

An opportunity to have some say in "setting up a governing body, if there is to be one, selecting our own representatives and setting up a program," is cited as one of the chief purposes in the Dominion-wide convention of independent theatre owners to be held in Toronto September 7th, by J. O. Scott, chairman of the central committee of the Anti-Protection League. Mr. Scott says that "We recognize clearance but not protection."

Ticket Agencies to Buy Collectively

The Associated Theatre Ticket Agencies, organization of the smaller Broadway ticket brokers, this week announced their intention of making ticket purchases collectively in an effort to oust the three major brokers from control. Committees will be sent out of town to catch previews and will make recommendations for block purchases.

Since many of the smaller brokers have requirements for only a few tickets for each show, the present move will consolidate their strength and may actually put them in a position of dominance. Gustave A. Gerber, ATTA attorney, said that the organization would refuse to consent to an extension of the present ticket code because its request for revisions had not been answered. Actors Equity council this week recommended that the code be extended for 60 days pending study of amendments.

Newly elected officers of the ATTA are Thomas Naughton, president; A. K. Lemmon, vice-president; William Deutsch, treasurer; Louis Schonceit, secretary, and Philip Furst, sergeant-at-arms.

"VOICE OF HOLLYWOOD LIBERALISM" CALLS ATTORNEY GENERAL MURPHY

Cabinet Member To Award Scroll for Hollywood New Dealers' Choice of Picture Expressing "Democratic Ideals"

by WILLIAM R. WEAVER
Hollywood Editor

When U. S. Attorney General Frank Murphy broadcasts nationally from the Victor Hugo cafe in Hollywood on September 7th his presentation of an illuminated scroll to the producer of the film which "shall be judged to have made the most valuable contribution to the democratic ideal," the Motion Picture Democratic Committee shall have achieved national recognition as "the voice of Hollywood political liberalism."

The quote is from the MPDC's enrollment literature. So is this one: "If Franklin D. Roosevelt favors his country with a third sacrifice in its interests, he will have no more devoted and dedicated fans than the celebrities and rank-and-file of the MPDC. A New Deal triumph in 1940 will be in some small measure a triumph of Hollywood—a Hollywood reborn in the hearts of its heroes."

The producer who accepts the scroll from the Attorney General will be getting it because he made one of the following pictures:

"The Spirit of Culver" (Universal)
"Man of Conquest" (Republic)
"One Third of a Nation" (Paramount)
"Made for Each Other" (Selznick)
"Confessions of a Nazi Spy" (Warner)
"Juarez" (Warner)
"Young Mr. Lincoln" (20th Century-Fox)
"Story of Alexander Graham Bell" (20th Century-Fox)
"Blockade" (Wanger)
"You Can't Take It With You" (Columbia)

These are the films entered in the competition by the 8 studios which responded to a general invitation. Each was invited to nominate two. RKO-Radio and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, among the majors did not respond.

Balloting Chiefly by Unions

Balloting on these films was conducted on July 15th at the Roosevelt Hotel in Hollywood by "representatives of those professions and crafts which engage in the making of pictures." This turned out to consist principally of guilds and unions, although invitation was also extended to the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California and the Association of Motion Picture Producers. Among the organizations invited to send delegates to the voting were the Screen Actors Guild, Screen Directors Guild, Screen Writers Guild, American Society of Cinematographers, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Artists Managers Guild, Makeup Artists, Studio Technicians, Sound Technicians, Studio Photographers and Screen Playwrights. The Association of Motion Picture Producers and the Screen Playwrights did not participate.

Ballots were turned over to the Charles Goldring company, certified public accountants, to be opened at the presentation ceremonies.

The Idea Has a History

Established in June of 1938 over a dinner table by Dashiell Hammett, Miriam Hopkins, Melvyn Douglas and Philip Dunne for the immediate purpose of helping Democratic candidate Culbert L. Olson defeat Republican encumbent Frank F. Merriam for the governorship of California, which he did, the roots of the idea go six years deeper into state and community history. The diners had been reminiscing about the "firm request" made of them in 1932 to donate a day's salary to the Merriam campaign fund for the purpose of defeating the then front-page Upton Sinclair whose "End Poverty in California" platform was giving California a case of jitters comparable to the current "Ham and Eggs" chills-and-fever. It was agreed by those present that they didn't like the six years of Merriam so well either and that it was up to them to do something about it. Thus the MPDC was born.

Quick into the fight, Douglas and his associates, joined speedily by Fredric March, Franchot Tone, Gale Sondergaard, Donald Ogden Stewart, Milt Gross, Dorothy Parker, John Ford, Frank Tuttle, Elliot Nugent, John Cromwell, Gloria Stewart, Lillian Hellman and others, spoke before clubs, unions and liberal groups up and down the state. They took to the radio and they wrote pieces. They produced a 20-minute film, "California Speaks," starring their endorsed candidates, and got it exhibited in lodge halls and auditoria, not including the commercial cinema. The state Democratic Committee bore most of the cost of the production.

The voters elected Olson Governor.

With the Olson matter attended to, the MPDC turned its attention to its homesite and joined forces with organizations which disapproved of the way Mayor Frank Shaw, Republican, was running Los Angeles. This involved supporting the New Deal Republican Judge Fletcher Bowron. Support was given. A recall election unseated Shaw. Bowron moved into office, but the councilmen were still there. A special election was in the offing and the MPDC went to work on that matter also. Mayor Bowron, who recently appointed the screen writer and former collector of the port, Alfred Cohn, to a mayoral cabinet post, is running Los Angeles now.

Partisanship—with a Difference

Self-described as "non-partisan in that it is affiliated with no political party, yet sharply partisan on the personalities and issues of our time," the MPDC declares it "respects and supports President Roosevelt, Governor Olson and Mayor Bowron" and goes on to declare that "it repudiates Jack Garner and the Dies Committee, Merriam and the Associated Farmers." Further, it "cheers such truly democratic symptoms as the Wagner Act, the Good Neighbor Policy, the Lafollette Civil Liberties investigation (and) the administration housing program."

Spokesmen for the organization are completely frank about their objectives. They are not talking, yet, about the third-term matter, save in their enrollment text, which makes their position clear. They will not talk until the President talks. But they are looking squarely at 1940 and planning for it.

"Based upon a careful weighing of social currents," they say, "the MPDC has concluded that 1940 is the critical year of modern American life. In this next 12 months will be decided the future of a generation. 1940 will reveal whether there will be a terrible and catastrophic world war, or indefinite peace; whether there will be a continuation of the New Deal and an extension of social benefits or a dark victory for greed and selfish minority control. . . . The MPDC aims to unite the entire film industry into a muscular arm for its own defense, the defense of Roosevelt and the New Deal, which by helping to raise the living standards of America has aided so richly the living standards of Hollywood."

The MPDC has about 1,800 members. A general membership costs $3 the year, a sustaining membership $15, and a patron membership may be had for $50. There is another course of revenue, a pledge, available to all members, by signing which one agrees to pay $5 a month to the MPDC until the national elections in 1940, so that it may continue its fight for the preservation and extension of democracy."

Dashiell Hammett, writer of "The Thin Man," is chairman of the MPDC. He's in New York now. Philip Dunne, vice-chairman, carries on in his absence. Miriam Hopkins is second vice-chairman, John Ford third, Maurice Murphy is secretary and Harold Buchman treasurer. Melvyn Douglas, generally regarded as spark-plugging the organization since its formation, will be chairman at the banquet, introducing the attorney general to the ladies and gentlemen present (Darryl Zanuck has reserved 40 seats) and the radio audience.

NAZIS HEAR MARTIAL MUSIC—NO NEWS

Martial music, consisting of the pre-1914 marches of the old Imperial German Army, was substituted without explanation for the regular program of news broadcasts last Friday night by station DJQ, the combined Greater Germany broadcasting transmitter at Zeesen, near Berlin.

At 6:30 New York time, the regular news broadcast was cut off and the music substituted. At 7:37 New York time, opera music was played.

Italy, meanwhile, continues with a 24-hour schedule on its three giant short-wave stations.

Showman Elmer Rhoden gave it everything from every angle:

(1) Smash ads not only two days in advance but also two days following opening, with big holdover ads playing up Linda Darnell.

(2) Intensive poster campaign including twenty-five illuminated 24-sheets, thirty 1-sheets . . . and 50 midget cards in hotels.

(3) Sneak preview two days before opening secured great advance story in Kansas City Star with big Linda Darnell photo. Heavy publicity in all other papers.

(4) Telephone girl in theatre lobby, talking as if women's hotel operator, got faked calls amplified by loud speaker. Calls played up dialogue and situations in picture, drew constant crowds.

(5) Small envelopes, with outside copy "For Women Only," contained 10 small cards with Elsa Maxwell sayings, drawings of models and clinch showing Linda Darnell. Thousands of these distributed to office girls, store clerks, residential sections, put into parked cars. Other envelopes, imprinted with "No Men Allowed in Hotel for Women, New York," also containing the cards, were used as payroll envelopes.

(6) Radio was not overlooked. Special plugs were arranged on three local stations.

Showman Morris Mechanic of the New Theatre decided "the picture is a natural ...Linda Darnell a potential real boxoffice attraction," and got busy!

(1) Dominated all amusement pages with smash ads in addition to Cosmopolitan campaign. Big-space holdover ads, too.

(2) Went after the local angle for big art and story breaks on Baltimore girl in cast (photos compared her then and now). Got full-page editorial and other big publicity.

(3) Arranged a newspaper contest for best HOTEL FOR WOMEN reader-review using art he specified. Went over to outstanding response.

(4) Hit all other promotion angles including wide use of heralds, special lobby, radio plugs over local stations, etc.

Stagehands' Union and Four A's Break Off Negotiations; Crisis Seen as Threat of Amusement Field Tieup

The long feared war between the actors' and stagehands' unions—one which may tie up the entire entertainment industry, and which all factors have been attempting to stave off, even while they threaten to bring it on—at mid-week appeared imminent, as negotiations, in New York, on Tuesday, between representatives of the Associated Actors and Artists of America and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, were broken off.

As in the European bedlam, observers were setting up "time-tables" and the start of the union war was expected next Monday. It is on that day that Vinton Freedley, producer, is scheduled to reopen his "Leave It to Me" at the Imperial Theatre, in New York, with Sophie Tucker in the cast, despite her suspension by Actors' Equity. The Equity members of the cast are expected to strike, if she does appear, and the stagehands are expected to strike, if she does not. From there, the struggle may extend to the coast, to theatres, to projecting rooms, to the rest of the stage, the radio, the night clubs, to all forms of entertainment.

Negotiations Abandoned

As late as Tuesday morning, it had appeared that the Four A's, parent actors' union, might reach an agreement with the Alliance, in the dispute which started when the Alliance issued a charter to the American Federation of Actors, expelled by the Four A's, and thus roused the parent actors' group to a defense of their jurisdiction against what they termed an attempt by the stagehands to "control" them.

A mass meeting of 4-A members will be held Sunday evening at the Hotel Astor, New York, and a similar meeting will be held at the same time on the coast of 4-A members there.

Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the Screen Actors' Guild, and Paul Dulzell, executive secretary of the Actors' Equity—both groups being major factors in the Four A's—met at the Park Central Hotel, New York, on Tuesday, with George E. Browne, IATSE head.

This report was read to them by Ralph Morgan, guild president; Mr. Thomson, and Lawrence Beilenson, guild attorney. The conference on the coast was held last Thursday with the IATSE, under the sponsorship of the American Federation of Labor, under whose control both international unions are.

It was said that a basis for agreement had been reached then by the Four A's with Frank Stickling and John Gatelee, international Alliance officers; but that the basis was subject to Mr. Browne's approval.

After the conferences, the three guild officials flew East with their report.

The break-up of the negotiations with Mr. Browne—which were shrouded with secrecy—was immediately followed by a declaration by Four A's officials that they had proposed peace; and that, this being rejected, "the war was on." They then issued an outline of the peace proposals which, they said, they had submitted to Mr. Browne. These were:

1. That the IATSE withdraw from interference with actors' affairs.
2. That the variety field should be administered by a non-partisan committee of 10 for 90 days.
3. That a fair election be held by the performers in the variety field.

"Mr. Browne made it clear to us," the Four A's statement said, "that his intention is to reduce the actors to a vassal state."

Impasse Reached

The issues on this Tuesday apparently remained the same: the Four A's still standing for the revocation by Mr. Browne of the charter he granted to the actors' federation, and for the ousting of Ralph Whitehead, the federation's executive secretary.

Mr. Whitehead, even more so than the AFA president, Sophie Tucker, remained, at mid-week, almost the sole issue preventing peace on the entertainment labor front.

It was Mr. Whitehead's administration that circumstantially, brought about the present situation.

Early this year, after rumors of mismanagement of the AFA, Mr. Whitehead called for an investigation of his regime. This came, but he was not cleared; he was indicted, and ordered to stand trial on July 10th, along with other officers of the federation; and the charges most serious were those alleging his misuse of the monies for personal and general union use.

Miss Tucker and Mr. Whitehead walked out of the trial; whereupon it proceeded, with the finding that the AFA regime was guilty; and then the union was expelled from the Four A's. A substitute union was set up, the American Guild of Variety Artists.

After a week in which its status was doubtful, the AFA received a charter from Mr. Browne's Alliance; and this impelled the threat of a strike by the Four A's, and, most especially by the Screen Actors' Guild.

The dispute was taken to the meeting of the American Federation of Labor's executive council, in Atlantic City; and a proposal was made by the council that the Four A's reinstate the actors' federation, along with Miss Tucker and Mr. Whitehead; that Mr. Browne withdraw his charter to the actors' federation; and that a new election of officers for the federation be held within 90 days.

The compromise solution was rejected by the Four A's, Mr. Whitehead being the issue; the AAAA did not want him, in any union activity.

"PASS BROKERS" ON BROADWAY

What is said to be a flourishing Broadway business, that of selling passes to legitimate stage plays, has been discovered by the League of New York Theatres, and the league is taking steps to end it.

The "pass brokers" obtain passes in the names of newspapermen, from managers and from storekeepers who display theatrical advertising, and resell them at reduced prices. The league has uncovered evidence that some managers are working with the "brokers".

Government Body May Rule by November 1 on 'Coercion' Issue; September 21 Date for Vote on Bargaining Agent

Coast unions continued this week to gain ground on a dozen fronts, fronts sometimes interlocking and revealing the larger significance of the squabbles—moves pointing toward complete union control, eventually, of the motion picture industry. As apparent highlights, there appear this week the following developments:

That National Labor Relations Board, in Washington, after hearing a report from its Hollywood offices on the testimony during the past two weeks on charges that the producers "coerced" writers in violation of the Wagner Labor Act, might render decision by November 1st.

That the NLRB will hold the election to determine the bargaining agent for Hollywood crafts workers about September 21st. This will virtually eliminate one of two contending groups, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, and the United Studio Technicians' Guild; the former an affiliate of the American Federation of Labor, and the latter reputedly receiving support from the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

That the IATSE would rejoin the "basic" agreement which the studios have with the four other big international motion picture workers' groups; and that its rejoining awaited the NLRB election.

That the Screen Publicists' Guild has approved the five year contract with the producers, for a closed shop, minimum $100 salary for senior workers, and other items.

Say Blacklist Threatened

In the NLRB-writers' hearing, writers such as Morrie Ryskind, Francis Faragoh, Charles Brackett, Wells Root, Stephen Morehouse Avery and others, testified that the producers had threatened a "blacklist" of writers, if they should affiliate with the Authors' League of America, a move which, they said, the producers feared would result in a monopoly of writing sources by the two unions.

Among the numerous producers who had also been cross examined was Charles Rogers, formerly vice-prexy of Universal.

Alexander Wilson, Jr., attorney for the NLRB, closed his side of the case last Friday before Trial Examiner J. Fitzpatrick.

Much of the testimony which detailed the writers' side of the case dealt with the unsuccessful negotiations between representatives of the producers and the writers, with the producers understood to be holding out for long term contracts, and the writers opposing this because they felt economic conditions changed during long term contracts, leaving them at a disadvantage.

It was also brought out during the testimony, which occupied most of last week, that the Screen Playwrights, Inc., formerly a rival of the Screen Writers' Guild, had never had a majority of film writers as members. This testimony was contributed by William Conselman, a member of the organization.

The Screen Writers' Guild case before the NLRB is the result of the breakdown in negotiations with the producers, which began early this year, but which were halted after the disagreement over long term contracts, and also over the ownership by writers of material written by them during layoffs.

The Guild has already been recognized, over the Screen Playwrights, as the bargaining agent for Hollywood writers.

In the NLRB election to determine the bargaining agent for Hollywood studio crafts workers, it is expected that the election will be held before September 21st. The election is the result of the vigorous campaign waged by the United Studio Technicians, which has the backing of C.I.O. unions, and which has claimed jurisdiction and a majority of the membership of the estimated 12,000 studio crafts workers, now under the domination of the IATSE.

This union waged a campaign with circulars to the public and telegrams to people of prominence in the film industry and the government, with the result that the labor board is impressed enough to agree to an election.

IATSE Expects to Win Cut

The IATSE has consented to the election, confident of victory, and the labor board's home offices in Washington, D. C., last week gave their assent to the election.

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox and head of the Producers Association, and also head of its labor negotiating committee, last week guaranteed a fair election. Said he:

"It is the hope of the producers that the election will lead to a solution of the present dispute regarding the rights of representation between the contending groups."

The United Studio Technicians, in its membership, is said to have many of the Technicians' Local 37, which fought a bitter court battle with the IATSE during the past year. The whole C.I.O. manoeuver has been described as opportunist; taking advantage of the disruption of the united front which the IATSE has heretofore presented, and making use of the dissident elements.

The meeting in Newark, New Jersey, this week of producers' representatives and those from the "Big Four" of the unions, resulted only in an agreement to meet again. But it is understood that the meeting will be held after the NLRB Hollywood election for studio crafts workers; and that, after that the IATSE will join the meeting, as one of the "Big Five," because the IATSE has already signed a pact with the producers embodying most of the "basic agreement" provisions, an indication it intends to rejoin the agreement.

Basic Agreement Still in Effect

The Alliance withdrawal from the basic agreement came last year, only after local unions had demanded autonomy. Now, after long drawn out squabbles in court and elsewhere, with its Studio Technicians' Local 37, the IATSE is ready to return, with its many local unions, to the fold. The "basic agreement" in contract has expired, and is now subject to renewal; but it remains in effect anyway, until renewal, as the result of a clause providing that, whether the contract expires or not, its provisions remain in effect.

The IATSE five year contract with the producers, signed two weeks ago, and embodying the basic agreement provisions, is expected to culminate in a ten per cent increase in wages, after, as noted, the NLRB holds its elections to determine the proper studio workers' bargaining agent.

In the Screen Publicists' pact with the producers, the provisions are not only for a minimum salary of $100 for senior workers, but also for $50 weekly for junior workers during the first year, these to receive $50 for the second year and $60 for the third year.

There are other details; but, this week, these were being worked out.

In Vancouver, British Columbia, theatre owners have protested to the government against regulations requiring them to employ two-men-in-booth. The Attorney General this week suggested a round-table conference for owners and projectionists.

Radio Actors Ask For "One Big Union"; Back Four A's In Fight

The American Federation of Radio Actors held its annual convention in Chicago this week and last and, as in most conventions, certain suggestions of action came forth, by vote of the membership. "One big union" of all actors, long hoped for, was recommended; the action of the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, in suspending the American Federation of Actors and its condemnation of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees for giving the suspended union a charter was upheld; and the AFRA reelected Eddie Cantor as president.

Lawrence Tibbett, president of the American Guild of Musical Artists, was re-elected a vice-president and George Heller a treasurer.

Members were advised that the total membership is now approximately 8,600.

Other subjects discussed were sickness and unemployment benefits, Federal relief, transcription problems, annual reports.

Internal fighting still persisted this week among those members of the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers Union who want affiliation with the IATSE and those protesting against such an alliance. It was rumored this week in New York that Mr. Browne of the Alliance had already granted a charter, but this was denied by the TMAT board.

In Chicago, officials of the Operators Union have announced they will ask for a 20 per cent wage increase in the new contract to be negotiated September 1st.

The Federal Theatre Project will be revived "without any isms", if the American National Theatre Society has its way. The society met this week in New York and started a drive for $1,000,000, with $150,000 claimed to have been pledged already.

IA and Actors End Sessions, Face War

The dispute went back to the AFL executive council, to William Green, labor federation president, and to Matthew Woll, who had been the head of the council's mediation committee. Mr. Green and Mr .Woll had apparently worked out a modification of the compromise, eliminating Mr. Whitehead, but this, in turn, was rejected by the AFL council, which insisted the Four A's take the original compromise.

There have been, since then, various maneuvers and rumors, but the situation, essentially, revolves about Mr. Whitehead, and also Mr. Browne. Mr. Whitehead's resignation, as suggested by "neutral" observers of the theatre or Mr. Browne's withdrawal of the charter he gave to Mr. Whitehead's union, are the two obvious and immediate solutions.

The Four A's could accept Mr. Whitehead; but, like European dictators, having declared, by speech, by pamphlet, by press release, that they never would accept the man they found guilty of maladministration and treason and everything else in the actors' lexicon for evil-doing, they cannot retreat.

Hollywood Talks

The conferences last week in Hollywood were between Screen Actors' Guild representatives and international officers of the Alliance. Also present were AFL executives. The meetings were unusual for being so far from the seat of all the verbal maneuverings, which has been New York; but logical in that they were held in the probable theatre of war, Hollywood; for, if the Alliance proves unwilling to withdraw its so-called attempt to dominate actors, the Four A's will strike, and notably in Hollywood, where 6,000 members of the Screen Actors' Guild would make work impossible for the estimated 12,000 studio IATSE members.

One by-product of the conflict has been the suspension of Sophie Tucker by Actors' Equity; and it is this suspension which may create the "blow-off," the long feared strike which will tie up the whole entertainment world.

For Miss Tucker was to appear in Vinton Freedley's "Leave It to Me," September 4th.

Now that she cannot, by Equity edict, appear —(she was suspended by Equity for "treason" to her union and profession)—Miss Tucker has become the cause for which Mr. Browne's stagehands can demonstrate their support of their newly acquired union. Alliance stagehands can walk out in protest, in all the legitimate theatres of the country; they can walk out in Hollywood, too. But even if they walk out of the legitimate theatres only, they may bring the trouble to Hollywood; for the Screen Actors may support Equity in the legitimate theatre, and punish the IATSE by striking in Hollywood.

Obviously, the angles are numerous. The salient and dangerous factor appeared this week to be the assurance of support which Miss Tucker has had from Mr. Browne and from James Brennan, vice-president of the Alliance, who, at a New York convention two weeks ago, of 55 local Alliance unions, declared that if Miss Tucker was unable to appear in the show, the stagehands would walk out.

Mobilization Begun

Both sides this week were mobilizing. The Four A's has already received pledges of support from its components; and, especially, financial support. It will publish a weekly newspaper for its 30,000 members, who up to now had been kept informed by bulletin.

The IATSE appeared to be united; though, in the early stages of the crisis, it appeared that division of sentiment existed among West Coast IATSE affiliates.

The actors' federation appeared to have funds; and this week moved into larger quarters in New York.

The actors themselves, in "variety" categories, were said this week to be paying dues to the American Guild of Variety Artists, the Four A's union, and to the AFA; a procedure which ordinarily would call for suspension, but which, in this instance, is being excused by Mr. Whitehead for the AFA, and Miss Maida Reade for the AGVA, to increase membership.

Film Critics Form National Organization To "Elevate Standards" of Film Reviewing

A national organization of motion-picture critics and editors was formed and temporary officers were chosen in New York over the weekend by 100 out-of-town reviewers who are in town as guests of Universal Pictures. Universal took them to Scranton, Pa., last Thursday to preview its musical, "Under-pup," with Gloria Jean, the new child "find."

Designated as the Newspaper Film Critics of America, it seeks to include all editors and reviewers in its membership, to hold annual conventions and distribute its own awards for the "best" pictures of the screen year. Its purpose, it was said, is to "elevate standards of criticism and comment on movies, cooperate toward the advancement of the film department as an important factor in the American press and cooperate in the betterment of the film industry."

Harry Martin of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal was chosen temporary chairman and Buck Herzog of the Milwaukee Sentinel temporary secretary-treasurer. Serving with them on the planning committee are Keith Wilson of the Omaha World-Herald and Merle Potter of the Minneapolis Tribune and Northwest correspondent of MOTION PICTURE HERALD who did much of the pioneering in interesting the critics in the idea. Permanent officers will be elected at a meeting to be held in February. The committee has been instructed to submit drafts of a constitution and by-laws at that time.

When MOTION PICTURE HERALD disclosed the existence of the plan on July 29th, it was explained that the organization would be in no way a union or "guild" but that its basic intention would be to impress not only the publishers but also the public with the significance and importance of film reviewing service. It is the first national group of its kind; there is a local film critics organization in New York, also an organization of play reviewers.

The idea was born out of those many junkets recently conducted for the press to Dodge City, Kansas, for the opening of the Warner picture of that name, to Omaha for the Paramount picture of "Union Pacific" and elsewhere for other productions, several of the more representative ladies and gentlemen who write about pictures for the press deciding that these periodical assemblages around the country were causing them to acquire helpful contacts, knowledge of the workings of their clan, and other things besides forcing them to acquire a spare shirt, a toothbrush and a sound stomach ready for any emergency in galloping away to serve the cinema.

Sitting around the pullmans and club cars, some of the critics came to the conclusion that they should form some sort of a working organization. At Des Moines, the other week, Dorothy Deer of the Chicago American, Mr. Wilson, Barney Oldfield of the Nebraska State Journal, Mr. Herzog, Mr. Potter and others were diverting themselves at the expense of RKO and the opening of its "Career" when the subject again arose, taking concrete form when Mr. Potter was deputized to select a group of critics around the country for the beginning.

Besides the aforementioned reasons, the critics would also work to have the critic carry greater weight, compel greater attention from the producers in Hollywood, and, importantly, increase the respect of their editors and publishers for the motion picture departments of newspapers. The motion picture industry itself has down through the years exerted strong effort to improve its position in the news and feature columns of the nation's papers. Despite a pronounced trend toward increasing the amount of advertising space it uses in the newspapers—increasing 50 per cent in the past few years—newspaper publishers have been steadily hitting the industry by increasing lineage rates.

Book Simplifies Theatre Chores

"Theatre Management Record and Annual Tax Register," a practical and simplified method of theatre bookkeeping, compiled by Theodore J. Sullivan and published by the Quigley Publishing Company, is designed for the use of managers or bookkeepers of theatres seating up to 1,000.

Bound in heavy Dupont Fabkote, 13 by 10 inches in size, the book serves not only to provide the operating facts and figures of a theatre business, but also as a tax record.

Important features of the book are the following:

A film clearance chart which eliminates the necessity of a calendar in determining clearance periods; an insurance record; an equipment purchase record; a fixed expense apportionment sheet designed so that its information "feeds into" the profit and loss sheet for each week; an income page to contain all information about ticket numbers, prices, cash received, taxes and running times; a payroll and bank record sheet; a summary sheet; contract record sheets, and a holiday and important date record.

One of the most important features is a simplification of the week's record so that once the book is opened the complete week's record is in view.

Republic Renews Cuban Deal

Morris Goodman, vice-president in charge of foreign sales for Republic, this week said he had extended for another year the distribution deal with Tropical Films of Havana, Cuba, for the company's entire 1938-'39 program of features and westerns, and four serials, "The Lone Ranger Rides Again," "Daredevils of the Red Circle," "Dick Tracy's G-Men" and "Zorro's Fighting Legion."

Alliance Announces Distribution

Budd Rogers, vice-president and general manager of Alliance Films, has announced that the 1939-40 Alliance program of features and short subjects will be distributed through the Cincinnati, Cleveland and Indianapolis offices of Big Feature Rights Exchanges, Inc.

Warner-National Theatres in Deal; Increase Rentals

The Warner-National Theatres breach has been healed; a product deal having been lined up for all but about 45 of the circuit's 450 theatres, the 45 being independent situations sold by Warners during its controversy with National Theatres over merchandising policies. The independent deals are for one year, and are with theatres scattered in the midwest and on the coast.

Frankly admitting that they have increased film rentals for the new year, Warner Brothers on Tuesday declared that, despite this, they have closed 78 per cent of their circuit new season product deals already.

Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager, listed the following major circuits as among those lined up for the new year:

Mullins and Pinanski, Comerford Theatres, R-K-O, Schine Theatres, Shea-Publix, in Buffalo; Famous Players Canadian, Maine and New Hampshire Circuit; Loew's theatres in New York City; Wilmer and Vincent, Gibraltar Enterprises in Colorado, Interstate in Texas, Balaban and Katz, Fox-West Coast, Red Wood Theatres in California, Consolidated Amusement in Honolulu, Warner Brothers Theatres, Frisina Amusement, Thalheimer Theatres in Richmond, Manos Theatres in Western Pennsylvania, Robb and Rowley in Texas, Blumenfeld Circuit in California, Sterling Chain in Seattle, Fourth Ave. Amusement in Louisville, and Libson Theatres.

Ahead of Last Year

The 78 per cent of circuit deals consummated compare with 63 per cent closed for the same period last season.

"Higher film rentals than ever before, are being charged in order to meet the increase in studio production costs," said the announcement.

Aided by an early selling start (Warners began its new season activities immediately following its sales convention in March), Warners say they were able to close hundreds of circuit deals for 1939-40 merchandise by April 1st.

"Hundreds of new contracts have been received over the weekend for home office approval, with only a few deals remaining to be signed before we will have attained our maximum possibilities of exhibition accounts," said Mr. Sears.

"We start our new season on September 1st with 377 simultaneous playdates on 'The Old Maid,' initial release on the 1939-40 schedule," he added.

Einfeld Returns to Coast

Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity for Warner Brothers, left Tuesday for the coast after conferences with G. L. Sears, Carl Lesserman and Mort Blumenstock in New York.

While in New York he set up merchandising plans for "On Your Toes," "Dust Be My Destiny," "A Child Is Born," "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex," "The Roaring Twenties" and "We Are Not Alone."

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

LOOKING OVER THESE BROADLANDS the other day, from the 3,500-mile width of the east-west coasts to the 1,600-mile depth of the north-south boundaries, we came across some old favorite theatre booking spots—the Goodwater theatre at Goodwater, Alabama, and the Chloride, at Chloride, Arizona; the Big Horn, at Grey Bull and the Star at Guernsey, both in Wyoming's cow country. And the theatres at Mazomaniac, Oconomowoc, Peshtigo, Tomahawk and Wauwautosa, in the old Indian lands of Wisconsin.

Then there's Steamboat Shrimp, Colorado; Okahumpka, Alabama; Thonotosassa, Florida; Eucheeanna, Florida; Chagrin Falls, Ohio; Bald Knob, Arkansas, and Flathead, Montana; Love, Oklahoma and Loving, Texas; Pretty Prairie, Kansas and Kit Karson—of Ol' Kit Karson, in Colorado.

Quite pertinent to today's headlines are the theatre-towns of War and Welch, in West Virginia. Also Gassaway, in the same state.

The theatre town of Snowflake, in Arizona, reminds of Walt Disney, and that of Tombstone, in the same state, of Walter Wanger's "Send Another Coffin," coming up.

MGM's Adrian, who married Janet Gaynor only the other day, can look to the theatre town of Adrian in Minnesota.

The Neptune theatre at Wachapreague, in Virginia, is another booker's delight.

What is your favorite spot, your favorite booking, town, or what have you?

Loew press agent Oscar Doob has been talking so much about "The Wizard of Oz" that he now signs his name OZcar Doob.

THE Nazi magazine, Movement, in Berlin, says that there is a Nazi way for a crowd to indicate its collective opinion that a show is inferior. The discussion of etiquette arose became some Nazi leaders concluded German students were applauding in a non-Nazi manner. The students traditionally indicate approval by stamping their feet to achieve a thunderous roll of sound.

They indicate displeasure by scraping their shoes across the floor making a swishing sound like a thousand hisses rolled into one. But this manner of indicating approval or displeasure is "anonymous," the Nazi leaders complained, pointing out that the feet move under the chairs where no one can see them, so that the person making the noise escapes personal responsibility for it.

"How different where the sign for pleasure is handclapping and the indication of disapproval is lusty shouting of 'pfui!'" the magazine states. "That is honest, a public declaration of one's opinion. One must ask whether anonymity in this matter is worthy of students.

"If we want to be political soldiers, if we want to be honorable National Socialists, we must tear away the veil of anonymity. We want to assume responsibility for our opinions in a manner that all may see."

And after they're seen, bango! biffo!

Now R. M. Stephenson, U. S. Commercial Attache at Berlin, reports to Washington that Germany has decided to produce animated cartoons, and in color, and that their first animation will be based on a fairy-tale.

GRAND NATIONAL SETS DISTRIBUTION PLANS

Government and Wall Street Loans to Provide $1,400,000 Financing for New Season

Grand National soon will be able to start distributing the first of its scheduled 36 features, build up a new sales force, finance independent production of a "higher type," and become a new distribution factor, according to E. W. Hammons, president.

Loan To Be Advanced

Mr. Hammons noted that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation would, within one week or so, advance the company $400,000; and that, three days after this loan, Felt and Company, New York financiers, would advance approximately $1,000,000.

The original agreement for new financing had been for Grand National to give the Felt Company certain securities; the new arrangement is for these securities to go to the RFC; that has been the only reason for delay, he noted.

Directors of the company last week voted to carry through the refinancing plans, which call first, for the payment of a $210,000 Hollywood studio lien, and a debt of $50,000 to Lloyd Wright, a trustee; secondly, for expenditure of about $140,000 for working capital.

This money represents the RFC loan. The Felt Company money will be used for financing of GN, and the partial financing of independent producers.

"We can get these independent producers working more quickly than we could ourselves," Mr. Hammons explained. "At the present time, our plans call for 36 features and 18 westerns. Some of the features will be in color. There will also be eight colored cartoons and some short subjects.

Three Pictures Ready

"I expect three new pictures to be distributed shortly, but I am sorry I cannot tell their names. I will say, however, that they are completed," Mr. Hammons continued.

"I am glad," he added, "that we don't have to worry about money now. We can go ahead and work. We hope to create a very strong selling organization that will inspire and attract good independent producers; so that they will release through us. We feel that there is no place at the present time to which a high class independent producer can go—except to us; and we propose to make ourselves worthy of that position and trust. We are leaving the doors wide open for these men."

Mr. Hammons noted that the company's 29 exchanges were functioning; GN's product was being distributed regularly; it was a matter, he intimated, not of expansion, nor of making the GN name known to exhibitors, for, he added, that is already known well, but a matter of implementing the GN sales force themselves, and infusing them with "crackerjacks."

Pictorial Films, 1650 Broadway, N. Y., has acquired exclusive world 16 mm. distribution rights to "Fury and the Woman" and "What Price Vengeance."

JUDELL OFFERING FREE BOOKINGS

Producers Distributing Corporation, headed by Ben Judell, is offering free bookings on the initial release of "The Sagebrush Family" group, entitled "The Sagebrush Family Trails West," to theatres not currently booking westerns or outdoor pictures. Mr. Judell said this week that franchise holders are being swamped with applications for the free booking offer.

"The Sagebrush Family" group of eight will be produced at the Prescott, Arizona, studios, as will the eight each of the Tim McCoy westerns and "The Tales of Billy the Kid," featuring George Houston. Bobby Clark, the junior cowboy champion, will be featured in the "Sagebrush" group.

Commission Voted In Delaware for Blue Law Study

The Delaware General Assembly adjourned sine die early Tuesday after an all-night session that ended with the Senate's adoption of the House concurrent resolution, setting up a nine-member commission to study the need of revising the Sunday blue laws with recommendations to the 1941 legislature, and with the appointment of a commission.

The Senate adopted the resolution shortly after midnight by a vote of nine to seven with one not voting, and selected Rev. Ralph L. Minker of Wilmington, superintendent of the Ferris Industrial School, as the ninth member. The House later concurred in selecting Mr. Minker.

Each branch of the legislature later adopted separate resolutions, each naming four members to the commission. The Senate named Senators George R. Clark, Harold W. T. Purnell, Benjamin F. Simmons and Paul P. Pinard, father of the Sunday bill which was vetoed by Governor Richard McMullen. The house selected Representatives Henry C. Canby, George W. Rhoades, Edward Knight and John L. Barr.

The fact that all eight members of the commission are Republicans brought considerable criticism from the Democrats.

Attorney General James R. Morford, who last week delivered an ultimatum to the governor and the legislature that unless immediate action was taken toward the blue laws his office would enforce them as they stand, has requested the heads of the state police and the Wilmington Police Department to list the names and addresses of Sabbath law violators on the next two weekends to be submitted to his office. Whether or not arrests would follow was not stated.

Other Legislation

The first application of the new Owens law, passed by the New York legislature this year, resulted in a victory for Sunday motion pictures when the voters of Salem, N. Y., turned out to pass the measure, the result of a petition, by 260-104 count.

The Owens law, sponsored by Assemblyman James E. Owens of Westchester County after a similar bill which reached the order of passage in the Assembly had been withdrawn due to opposition of the clergy, permits 20 per cent of the eligible voters in any township to present a petition to the Board of Trustees for a special election.

A set of rules governing operation of sound trucks have been incorporated in a new ordinance passed by the Kansas City council. Sound trucks cannot operate in the downtown business district, on boulevards, by schools or hospitals, or on Sundays or holidays, nor between 7 p. m. and 8 a. m. Neither can they be used for "announcing or discussing any religious, political or other controversial matter."

In Wisconsin, threats of possible theatre taxes appeared somewhat mitigated as the result of Senate action indicating it favored diversion of $7,500,000 of highway funds for the next biennium in order to balance the state budget.

Diversion of highway funds was recommended by exhibitor leaders at past hearings as a means of forestalling admission and occupational theatre taxes.

BRITISH TRADE PREPARES PROTEST ON "NON-FLAMMABLE" CONTROL

Report of Films Advisory Committee Arouses Exhibitors; Move for Control of Free Shows in Halls Is Demanded

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Though a comprehensive graph of reaction is not yet practicable in this lingering vacation period, it is nevertheless obvious to close students of the trade scene that there is widespread dissatisfaction with the Home Office attitude to the non-flammable free film show, and that the forthcoming Autumn may well see this dissatisfaction develop into open revolt.

Exhibitors to Protest

The absence from the Advisory Committee's recommendations, already reported in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, of thorough safety precautions, the shirking of a definition of "non-flam" film, the refusal to consider censorship, and the complete indifference to the trade's demand for control, have provoked widespread discontent in exhibitor circles. The Home Office Advisory Committee, by their unwillingness to recommend control, have, it is felt, done nothing to help contest the increasing menace of the free show. Even at this stage it is possible to forecast that the CEA General Council will make the Report one of the primary subjects of discussion at the September meeting. It is likely that exhibitors will demand a reconsideration of the Committee's findings before they translate them into legislative regulations.

Already the Surrey County Council, interpreting the Report as supporting their view that slow burning film comes within the provisos of the 1909 Act, are laying plans for applying control, probably in the region of censorship. This, however, would be local control.

The Amateur Cinematographers Association, fearful of a restriction of their liberty of operation, talk ominously of a test case.

The Sub-Standard Association, whose manufacturer representatives are, of course, directly mollified by the Report's kindly reference to educational films, ask a fair deal from the rest of the trade, deride as "absurd" the suggestion that box office receipts are hurt by free shows on "non-flam" film, demand to be left alone to get on with their job.

Meanwhile, from Whitehall itself comes an indication of what might be termed domestic dissatisfaction with the Advisory Committee's findings. At Burnley the regulations for showing films in a school, passed as satisfactory by the Home Office, have been adjudged insufficient and inadequate by another Whitehall department—the Board of Education!

Exhibitors and the trade at large are, naturally, no less lacking in enthusiasm than the educators for the practical furtherance of the educational film and its distribution in schools. This attitude intensifies rather than weakens their discontent with the Committee for contributing nothing towards countering the dangers, both human and commercial, arising from the wholesale and unrestricted distribution of non-commercial films.

Non-theatrical Shows Increase

Of recent years, and more intensely of recent months, the presentation of free film shows containing not only advertising and sponsored films, but purely entertainment productions, in public house saloons, hotels, church halls and elsewhere, all over the country, in rural areas and industrial centres, has increased to an alarming degree. These shows are not subject to the safety requirements imposed on exhibitors, nor to the normal trade stipulations regarding censorship. The Advisory Committee's Report suggests nothing to change the situation to any appreciable degree.

It is legally possible for almost anyone to hire a hall, be it modern parish hall, or ancient dilapidated barn, 1939 swimming bath or 1554 tavern, and show films there on a "non-flam" base without any but the slightest safety stipulations, and no requirements regarding censorship.

Keen as is the competitive factor at present, exhibitors are alive to its steady growth, fearful that unless firm steps are taken to control it they may be faced in the near future with a real menace.

The Advisory Committee's Report is judged to have shirked the issue of "non-flam" film by ignoring its existence. The Committee discuss only the film stock which they term "slow burning," virtually dodge the problem by ignoring the term "non-flam," are judged to have complicated matters by not even considering or offering a definition.

Authority to Be Defined

The publication of the Committee's Report and the Home Office consultation thereon with local authorities, will not then probably be the last word. Already the Home Office is seeking evidence from local authorities before publishing a special leaflet of guidance on the precautions to be adopted when "non-flam" shows are given. These precautions, already recorded in these columns, do nothing much beyond flirting with the question of fire prevention and panic. They will, however, be a definition of local authority's powers in controlling such shows. Paradoxically, as the Act stands at present, and as interpreted by the Committee, local authorities have no power to enforce these regulations, can only use their own judgment in securing the collaboration of the organizers of such screenings. As already stated in the Report, some authorities believe that under the Act, they have powers to apply it to slow burning film shows.

The County Councils Association, representative of the many municipal bodies administering the 1909 Act, will, in October, examine and discuss the Report. In view of the fact that in 1935 its Parliamentary Committee agreed in favor of statutory powers to allow licensing authorities to control "non-flam" shows, its findings will be awaited with interest by the trade.

TIME SUBJECT ON AVERAGE FARMER

Licking County, Ohio, has been selected by The March of Time as the locale for a subject on the average American farmer. The subject will point out that American farm youths of today are staying at home and not migrating to industrial centers as heretofore. Jack Glenn, formerly a Texas newspaperman, is directing the cameramen. The subject will be given a premiere at Licking, the county seat, in October.

British Production To Continue, War Or No War, Cohn

Harry Cohn, the other brother in the Cohn partnership that runs Columbia pictures, came back from Europe on Monday, aboard the Normandie, with some decided opinions, and with the belief that the ride he experienced on the boat (in the week of war scare, the boat ran without lights) was something to remember, but not to experience again.

Says Production Will Continue

The war fever was rife in Europe, certainly, he admitted; but Mr. Cohn insisted that Columbia British production would proceed, war or not.

He denied that most of the personnel of the studios had been conscripted, declared that the government had issued no instructions to change place of production, to cease production, or to modify it, and asserted:

"Irving Asher is starting a picture next week, and most of the actors who were engaged will be there."

A new contract will probably be signed with Mr. Asher, Mr. Cohn said, and Columbia will make a picture in England with Cary Grant, and Wesley Ruggles (directing) on a budget the size of those used by MGM for its British pictures, Mr. Cohn stated.

The Asher contract is subject to discussions Mr. Cohn will have at the New York home offices, but is certain, inasmuch as Mr. Cohn's statement was that, "we are very satisfied with Mr. Asher."

Mr. Cohn noted that the Asher picture to start next week will be his fourth, and that two more were scheduled. Asked whether the new contract with Mr. Asher will specify more pictures than the present six, Mr. Cohn refused to say yes or no.

French Situation Different

The French situation? Mr. Cohn saw it as equally satisfactory, and apparently not too much affected by the war scare; though it will be affected, he admitted, by actual war.

He noted that Julien Duvivier had just completed "La Charette Fantoine," that it was a good picture, and cheaply made—more gotten for the money, he intimated, than could be gotten in Hollywood.

But the schedule of French production?—that Mr. Cohn shrugged away with the remark:

"Boy, we can't tell a thing until we hear those cannons roaring, or hear that they won't."

While in France, he tried to sign a contract with Sascha Guitry; but it was "no go," Mr. Cohn said. Mr. Guitry, a versatile man, wanting to act, direct, write, and produce the picture.

Would "Chopin," a forthcoming Columbia picture here, be made by Frank Capra? To this, Mr. Cohn replied that it depended on Capra's signing with Columbia; and that, if he did, he "likely" would direct the picture.

Mr. Cohn expected, on this Monday, to go to the coast "soon."

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Rowlands Recipe

On the day after Christmas, says Richard Rowland this hot August afternoon in his air-conditioned studio bungalow, cameras will start recording the story of "Miss Bishop," first of two Rowland productions to be released by United Artists on its 1939-40 schedule. That dating seems to allow a right smart piece of time for writers already deep into it to complete a satisfactory script of a story their employer has had as clearly in mind as his home 'phone number for six years, but the start of shooting is acutely contingent upon that happy state of affairs nevertheless.

No camera has ever been turned upon a Rowland production until everything it needed to have done to it, story-wise, had been done to it on paper.

The "Miss Bishop" on which Rowland's writers are at work was a favorite story property of his mind's eye six years ago. He has wanted to produce "Miss Bishop" and another picture for six years and that is why his United Artists commitment is for two pictures. If he knew of a third story he liked as well, it would be for three. He thinks there's no use in making pictures just to be making pictures, says too many producers do that, at heavy cost to the industry's gross.

Rowland tells you the story of "Miss Bishop." He tells it two ways, both good. One is the way it will be told if December 26th dawns upon a certain state of world conditions, the other as it will be told if upon another. War has nothing to do with the matter. Picture trends have. "Miss Bishop," told either way, is already written in Rowland's mind.

One of the Rowland documentations of his belief that the story's the thing pertains to his "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse." Anybody can tell you, now, that this was one of the top stories of cinema history. But his associates didn't believe him then. A communication from one of them on the subject, a name magic in the industry, still sends up sparks when withdrawn from its envelope. The expert who penned it was wrong, $4,500,000 worth.

Out of another envelope comes another communication signed by another great man, one of the admittedly great minds of then and now. This one flames like Inferno in Technicolor—still. The subject of the communication is "Cavalcade." This great mind was wrong only $3,500,000 worth.

These are top cases—"The Four Horsemen" is third and "Cavalcade" seventh among the money-earning pictures of cinema history—but the Rowland documentation continues. Six stories in one First National season made ranking stars of 10 unknown players. There's an equivalent Fox record. (There is also, to complete the documentation, some data disastrous in its relevancy to the "pick-up-a-story-somewhere-but-don't-pay-more-than-$500-for-it" school of production thought.)

One of the Rowland documentations is incomplete as yet, and painful, but convincing. The producer paid $1,000 for an option to buy a story for $12,000. He had faith in it, but this time his associates managed to keep him from going through with the deal before his option lapsed. The story was "Mutiny on the Bounty," final returns on which are not yet in.

Better stake out a date for "Miss Bishop."

Name News

Edna Best, British stage star, will play the wife and mother in RKO-Radio's "Swiss Family Robinson."

Joe Yule, Mickey Rooney's father, makes his MGM contract debut as a stagehand in "Fast and Furious." (He played a bit in "Idiot's Delight.")

Nigel Bruce has signed to play a top role in David O. Selznick's "Intermezzo," final title of which will be, following a poll on the question conducted by radio and elsewize in the interests of publicity, "Intermezzo."

Ann Sheridan's next for Warner Brothers will be "Dangerous Curves."

Lon Chaney, Jr., has an important spot on Hal Roach's "Of Mice and Men," the John Steinbeck play.

Wendell Niles of the airlanes becomes an actor in Warners' "State Cop."

Wesley Ruggles will put Columbia's "Arizona" into production next week with Jean Arthur in the stellar niche.

Sidney Toler has signed an exclusive long term contract to go right on playing Charlie Chan in the 20th Century-Fox series—so you can stop worrying about another switch in that series.

Jean Cagney, sister of James and William, makes her screen debut in Paramount's "Campus Wives."

Edgar Kennedy has finished a character stint in Universal's "Listen Kids" and gone fishing.

Helen Gilbert, the studio cellist who stopped traffic by her first screen performance, in "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," has signed a long-term M-G-M contract.

Members of the Jones Family in the 20th Century-Fox series have incorporated as The Jones Family, Inc., so that Jed Prouty, president, can sign testimonial contracts (endorsing this and that for advertisers) for the whole family.

Virginia Weidler and Gene Reynolds, two of MGM's more talented juveniles, will be seen together in "Looking After Sandy."

George Raft has been sent in to bat for James Cagney in Warners' "Invisible Stripes" due to need of Cagney in "The Fighting 69th." Humphrey Bogart and Jane Bryan will stay in the Raft picture.

Pat O'Brien will contribute one of his staccatto performances to Walter Wanger's "Send Another Coffin," an upcoming United Artists release.

Bonita Granville has a new MGM contract.

Wallace Ford is slated to go to England to direct "The Pickwick Papers" for Walter Futter.

Michael Hogan, who came to Hollywood to write the screen play of "Nurse Edith Cavell," took care of a similar chore on "Intermezzo" while here and moved on to Warners to do "Villa on the Hill," will do "Disraeli" instead for that studio.

June Storey, Gene Autry's leading lady in Republic pictures, has been lent to Universal for a Deanna Durbin picture.

Gilbert Roland has been signed by Warners for "Gambling on the High Seas," which was "Floating Trouble" and, under any title, stems from the news interest in the recently estopped S. S. Rex palace of chance.

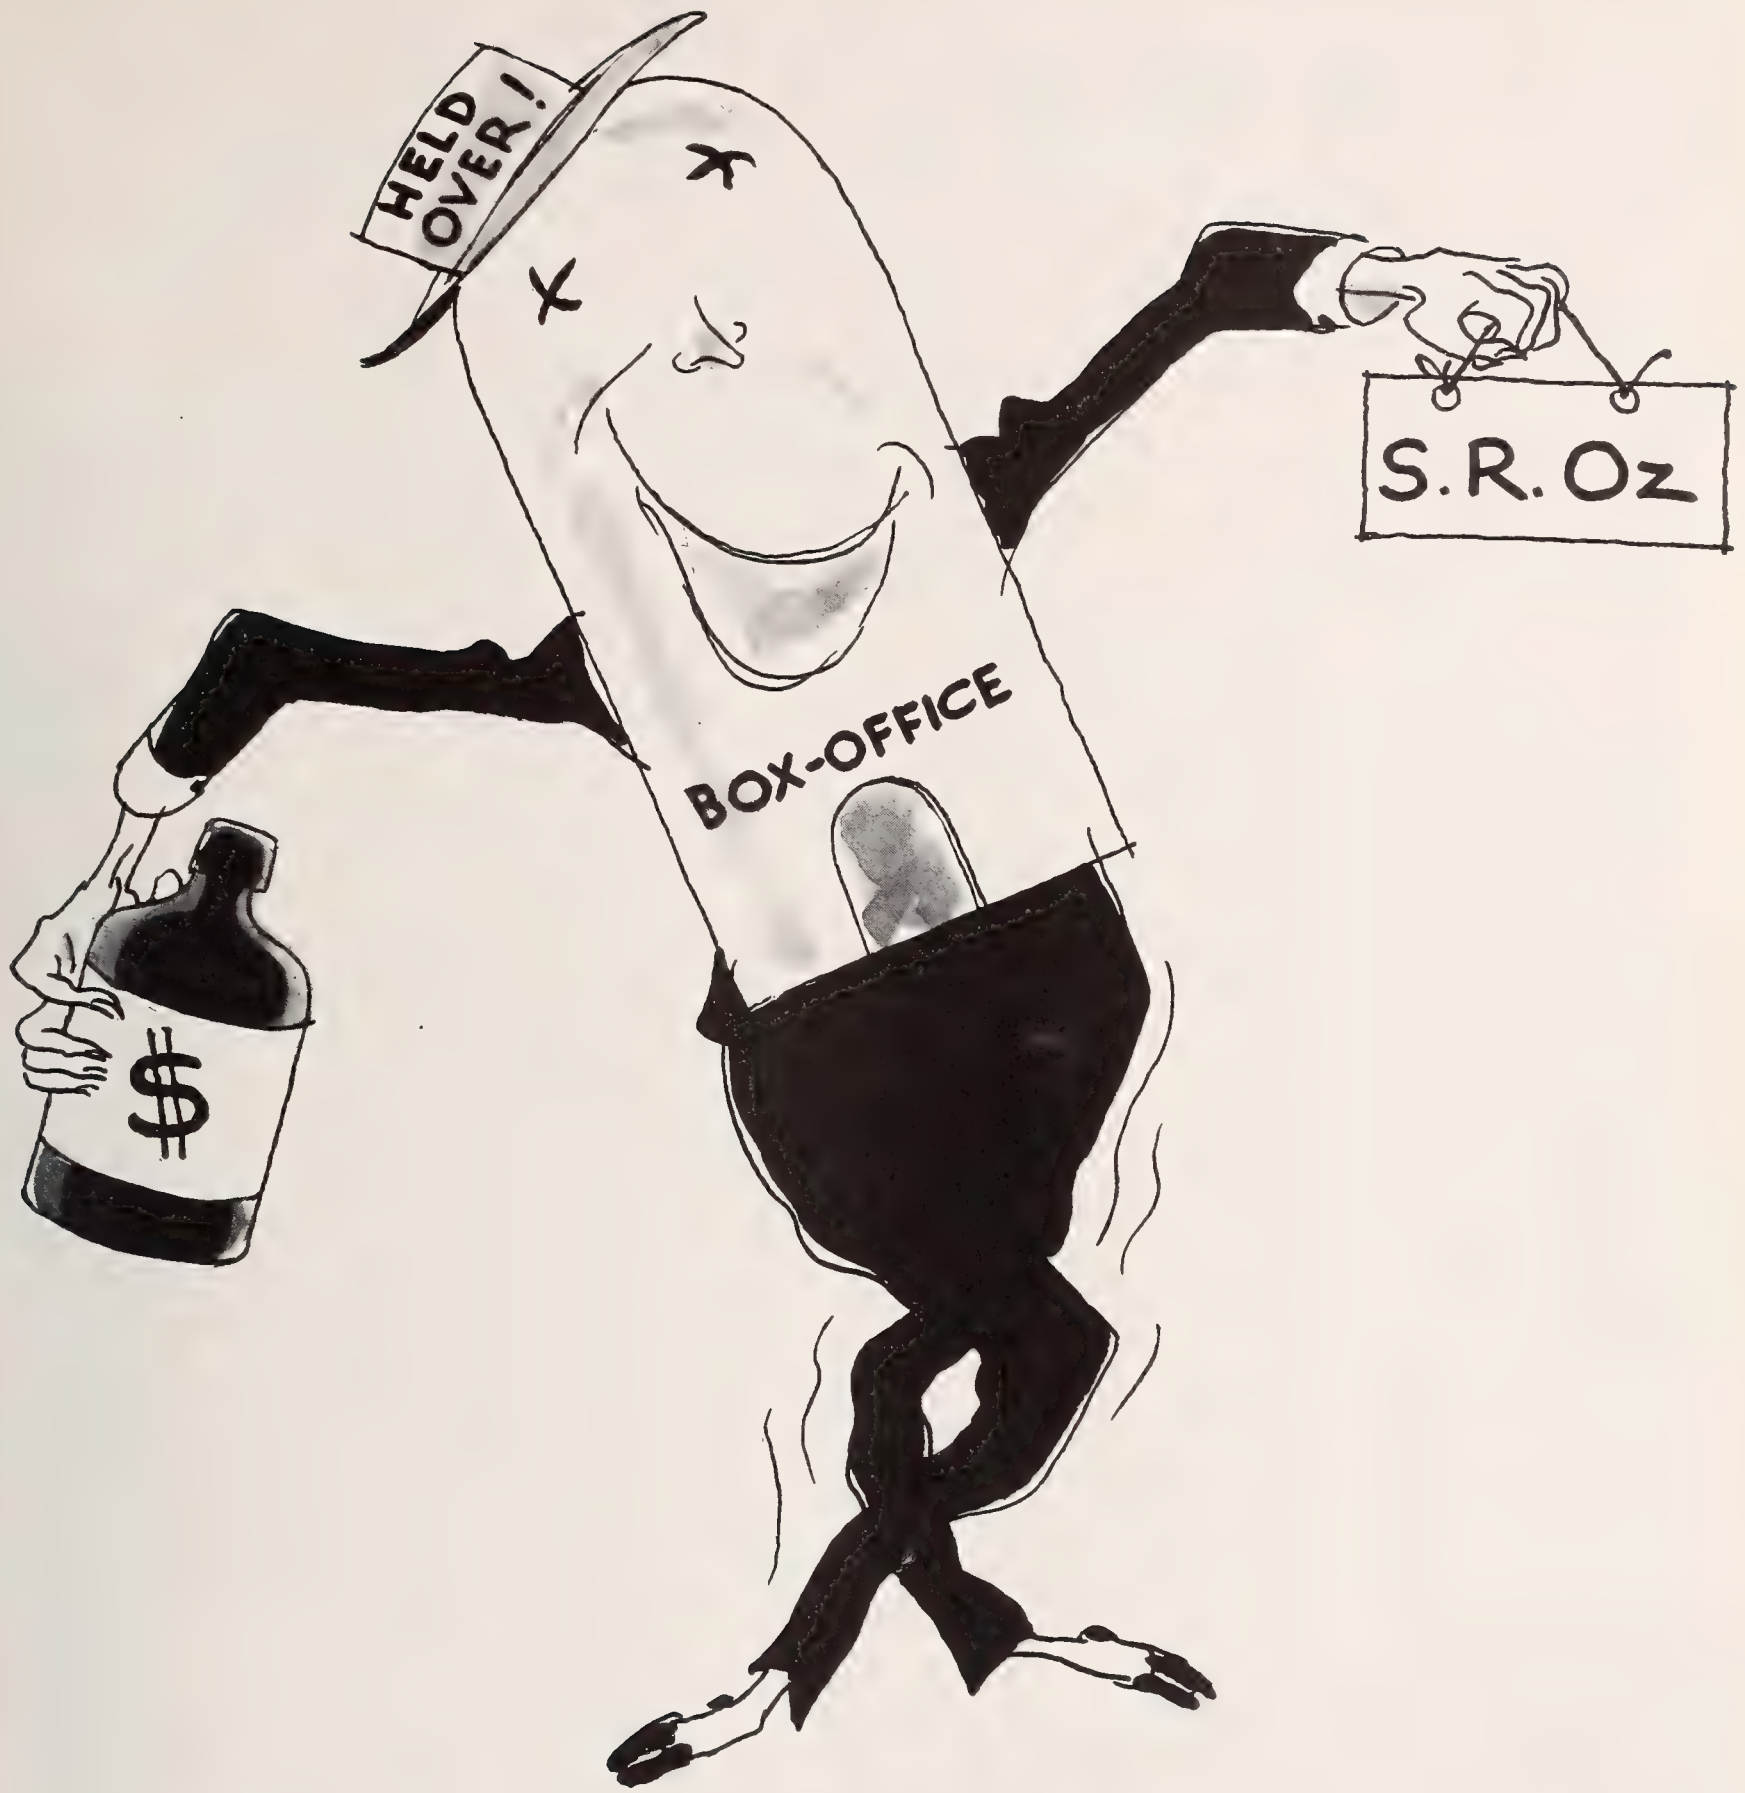
William Frawley and Charlie Ruggles are to share the comedy responsibilities in "The Farmer's Daughter," the Martha Raye Paramount film.

John Payne, Gloria Dickson and Ronald Reagan are to headline "Sabotage in the Air," a Warner melodrama.

Boris Morros, former Paramount musical director and now United Artists producer, will teach a cinematography class in the Los Angeles college on the side this season.

Victor Schertzinger has checked in at the Paramount studio and will direct as his first film the next Bing Crosby number, "Road to Singapore."

Edward G. Robinson will play Tony Pastor in Warners' "The Life of Tony Pastor."



Gail Patrick, Anita Louise and Laura Hope Crews are to be seen with Richard Dix in "Reno," which Bob Sick will produce for RKO-Radio.

Film's Own Story

Trade showings for "Hollywood Cavalcade," Twentieth Century-Fox color production dealing with the history of motion pictures, will be held at exchange centers on September 29. Invitations for these showings will be sent to representative exhibitors, newspaper critics and others in each territory.

Special publicity material will be available for exhibitors and the screenings will be given advance publicity in each key city by Charles E. McCarthy's department in the eastern territory and by Harry Brand's staff on the west coast.

Columbia has signed Del Lord to a new one-year contract to produce and direct 13 two-reel productions. His first assignment is an Andy Clyde comedy scheduled to go before the cameras Monday.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public.

The Women

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

All-Feminine Comedy-Drama

To Mr. Terry Ramsaye, Editor, Motion Picture Herald—

Your California correspondent regrets to report that he has found it quite impossible to compose an orderly and adequate Showman's Review of "The Women" for your publication. You see, every time he tries to be orderly about it he discovers he's not covering the subject adequately, and every time he sets out to cover the subject adequately he finds himself using most disorderly figures and fashions of speech. Such as "tough spot," used here as describing uncouthly your correspondent's predicament, but useful also for defining the plight in which, he thinks, the showman who has to buck "The Women" with some other motion picture is going to find himself. "The Women" is, I think, the hottest box office attraction of 1939 up to and as of above date.

"The Women" is a self-selling, gate-building morsel spiced to the palate of any and all comers of any and all sexes except the juvenile, who wouldn't understand it anyway and might as well be kept away so there'll be more seats to sell at the adult figure. It's as full of showmanship as it is of women and that's capacity. Mortgages were made for pictures like this to lift.

"The Women" is as sharply a departure from that thing you call norm as "Grand Hotel" or "Dinner at Eight" was, neither of which it resembles otherwise. The cast is composed exclusively of women—and what women! And what those women do! And say! Say——

Rosalind Russell invites all the women in the world to sue her for damages to their mass reputation and revels in the doing. Joan Crawford dares all the shopgirls on earth to like her again after what she does to them here and makes a classic job of it. Mary Boland takes a dialogue beating no actress could love but bears up under same. Paulette Goddard defies gold-diggers and wives, in tandem, to ever come and see her again, making of the chore her best film effort thus far. So it goes, throughout that long cast listed down there in the fine print, but not so for Norma Shearer, which is another paragraph.

Miss Shearer is the good woman of the lot, target of all the bad women, victim of their malice and, finally, malicious in reprisal. This was no bargain role, even for a Shearer, but this turns out to be just what the doctor should have ordered for the lady right now. She scoops up the pass from center, ducks more tacklers than Notre Dame's got and drop-kicks goal from every yard-line in enemy territory. She is, of course, the one among the many women of the cast that the women in the audience who can't stand to identify themselves with any of the others will pick out as their proto-type. That ought to make everybody happy about the whole thing.

It is no secret to showmen that the studio was up against plenty of problems when it got down to the serious business of filming this rowdy, bawdy stage play in terms a mass audience could assimilate and the Production Code Authority could write okay on. It should be glad news to showmen that producer Hunt Stromberg, in giving Anita Loos and Jane Murfin the script job, attended to that matter beyond possible complaint. They took out the four-letter words but they left in the spark. They didn't kill the points, and they added some. Some of the smirk went by the board but the wit is still there. It's a better picture than it was a play. For directing the mad jumble of it all so adroitly that it's a coherent story without ceasing to be a mad jumble, George Cukor rates the gratitude of everybody in the picture and everybody who'll see it, which means, probably, everybody.

Speaking of coherence, as I was up there in that other paragraph, I seem to have run out of same quite a way back. I knew that was going to happen. That's why I coudn't write an orderly and adequate showman's review of the picture. It's not a subject to be orderly about. It's not an orderly picture. Quite the contrary. But it's adequate, plus. Maybe it'll die standing up. I predict nothing. But if it does, with that string of names in an all-feminine cast playing the hottest plot in years with the finest technical facilities available in Hollywood, somebody'd better get out a new and revised edition of the book of the show business.

Stop, Look and Love

(20th Century-Fox)

Family Comedy

They could as well have called this "William Frawley Goes to Town", because that salty veteran of a thousand dumb-detective castings does just that in it, and not as a flat-foot but as a male head of as fit a film family as the customers are accustomed to ask for. Other members of this family are Minna Gombell as the too talkative wife, Cora Sue Collins as the minor daughter, Jay Ward as the son, Jean Rogers as the grown daughter in the market for marriage and Robert Kellard as (at picture end) the son-in-law who supplies it. The cast is as well balanced as a balloon on a seal's nose and so's the story, one of those romantic little things decked out with incidental humour that keeps the chuckles coming.

Directed by Otto Brower for executive producer Sol Wurtzel, the film flows as smoothly as life in a middle class home, which is to say un-smoothly, and leaves the impression that there must be more to tell the customers about this family. "The Family Upstairs," by Harry Delf, is the story from which Harold Tarshis and Sada Cowan derived the screen play, bringing the family not only downstairs but down to the ground in solid, earthly entertainment.

(Republic)

Air Adventure

Starring Phil Reagan, the singing cop from New York, and with Jean Parker, Col. Roscoe Turner, Robert Armstrong, Noah Beery, Jr., and Harlan Riggs in supporting roles, Republic's "Flight at Midnight" is an adventure film of modern aviation.

Phil Reagan portrays the arrogant and egotistical air-mail pilot and Noah Beery, Jr., is his assistant and constant companion. Robert Armstrong plays the government airport inspector and Col. Roscoe Turner and Harlan Riggs are the airport executives. Jean Parker handles the female lead.

The Civil Aeronautics Authority sends "Jim Brennan" to Norwalk Airport, run by "Pop Hussey," to see that high-tension wires surrounding the flying field are placed underground. The airport, in financial difficulties, cannot raise the necessary money. "Spinne Magee" is grounded by "Jim" for reckless flying. "Spinner" starts his own flying school and through a legal loophole disrupts the commercial schedule of the field.

The plot reaches its climax when "Spinner" prevents a transport plane, bearing visiting officials, from crashing by tearing down the wires with his own plane. Funds for placing the wires underground are made available and "Spinner" is a hero.

Death of a Champion

(Paramount)

Murder Mystery

The criminal apprehended in the closing scenes of this film murders two men, a woman and a dog before that point is reached, but the killings and the finding out about who's guilty-and-why are treated as background incidents for comedy performances by Lynne Overman and Donald O'Connor. Setting of the picture—in and around a dog show—and the ways and means of solving the mystery are unusual, but no great melodramatic tension is attained.

Associate producer on the film was William H. Wright, and direction is by Robert Florey. Stuart Palmer and Cortland Fitzsimmons prepared the screen play, which is from a story by Frank Gruber. As reading matter, it may have been more coherent and convincing than it is as a picture. The Overman and O'Connor performances are the film's principal bids for interest.

Coast Guard

(Columbia)

Maritime Melodrama

Any showman with screen sense can figure out the design for the framework of this stereotyped salty saga if given the following table of contents. Two boys, at the moment employed as coast guard service men, desire the same fair lass. With the customary logic peculiar to her gender, the young lady chooses the Beau Brummel of the barracks for better or worse and for a while it looks as if she is to get the last named result. The girl, who becomes fed up on the daily ritual of keeping the evening meal warm for her tardy spouse's return, walks out on him to return to her granddaddy. Now comes the picture's big punch moments. The unsuccessful male in the combination is lost in the arctic snows. What does the girl do when faced with such a situation? Of course, she runs right back to her hubby and persuades him to fly to his rival's rescue.

The storm sequences, wherein the coastal marines do their daily maritime good deed, are passably exciting, if the spectator is indulgent enough to overlook the patently "tank" and miniature look of the setup. The finale's snow snatch is effected too patly and without enough suspense for the spectator to become excited over the proceedings.

The mid-afternoon audience, mostly on the male margin, at the Globe theatre, lower price main stem house, was mute in its reaction to the "Rover Boys" rescue work.—JOSEPH F. COUGHLIN.

Discoveries

(Grand National)

Radio Musical

Carroll Levis is Britain's equivalent to America's Major Bowes. For some time past his "Discoveries" has been a popular feature of Britain's radio. His first film appearance has been built to exploit that popularity, and in so doing immediately commands for itself a considerable public.

As a production effort it is obviously not made on a multiple quota budget, and as a directorial effort it is often as unpolished as the performances of its "discoveries." Since its aim is at a readymade public, it may be assumed that the radio-fan-cum-picture-patron will overlook the finer points in his or her readiness to satisfy a natural curiosity about Mr. Levis, and an interest in his brand of entertainment.

Levis plays himself, with a touch of idealism about the role, that of a talent scout pestered by would-be stars, who is sung to at the barber's shop, whose waiter plays tricks with his poultry, and who finds girl crooners under his bed anxious for an intimate audition. Throughout the film these potential stars of radio and vaudeville dance, imitate Laurel and Hardy, make noises like motorbicycles and chant old Scottish ballads—with variable results. Nor does the script disdain a concession to sentiment by weaving in a story of a Scottish mill girl who wants an audition, but is run over trying to save a child. Nor does the concession to sentiment stand in the way of concession to the romantic—Mr. Levis rushes to hospital with an eight piece band and gives her an audition in the hospital ward!

Seen at a Cambridge Theatre preview the film was received not unsympathetically, registered laughter at odd moments and was accorded some applause at its conclusion. — AUBREY FLANAGAN.

What Would You Do Chums?

(British National-Anglo American)

Low Life Cameo

A direct effort is made in this to recreate the BBC's "Mr. Walker," of "Band Wagon" fame, the "Junk Man Philosopher" who week by week "wants to know"—"what would you do, chums?" The throaty Cockney radio character actor here adopts for screen purposes the personality and make-up which have, so belatedly in a talented career, endeared him to some twenty million radio listeners. The production, a characteristic John Baxter effort, is sympathetic and has occasional flashes of plebeian realism, but it is the endearing personality of the benignly throaty Mr. Walker which is likely to pull them in.

The Junk Man's philosophising herein concerns a girl living in the same tenements as he, and who falls in love with a flashy youngster, a distributor of counterfeit money and consort of the pin table promoters. On her he lavishes his lumbering affections, trying to persuade her that she is backing the wrong horse. The "What would you do?" element is saved to the last, when Syd refuses to help the gangster by telling the Judge a very easy lie, preferring to send him to gaol and save the girl from marital mishap. It all brings out the genial rough-diamond personality created by Walker, and results in a character to which the fans will be endeared.

An all trade audience at the Cambridge Theatre preview showed obvious appreciation of the film not only of the Cockneyisms and low life atmosphere, but of the Junk Man's homespun philosophising. It was generally agreed by exhibitors and others that the picture had readymade box office elements in its exploitation of the angle of radio reputation.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

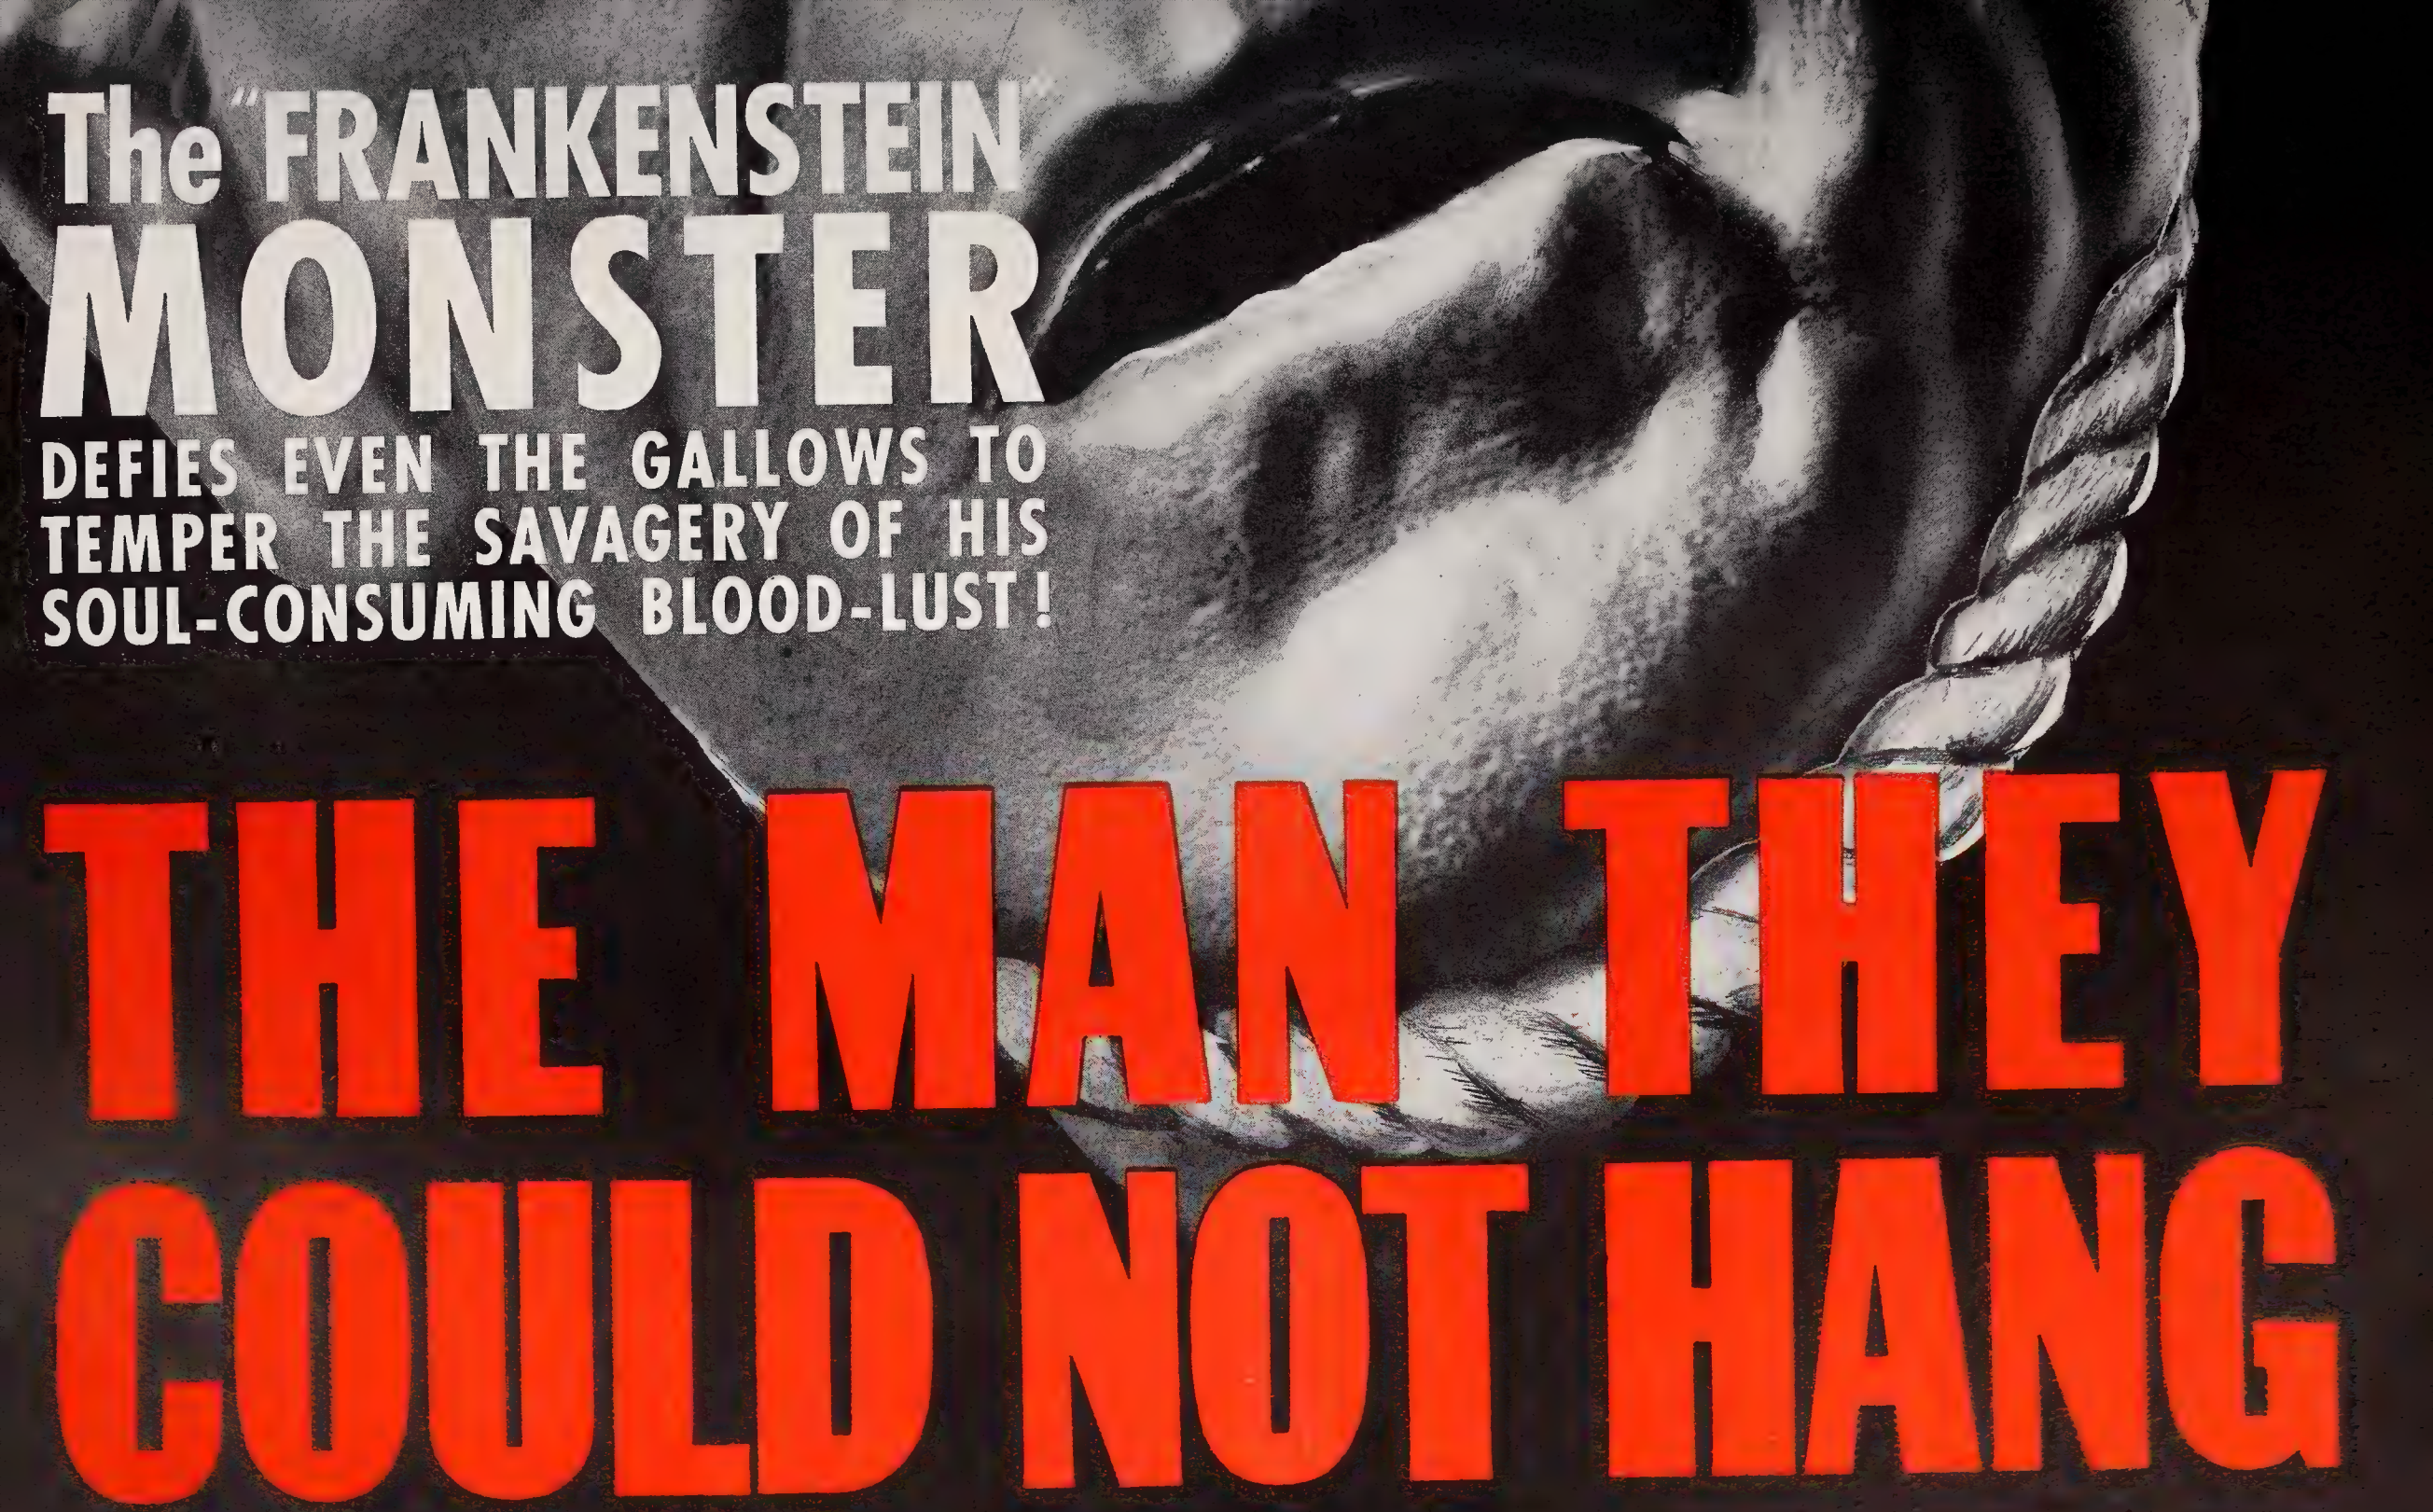
Los Enredos de Papa

(Papa's Misadventures)

(Miguel Zacarias)

Modern Mexican Comedy

A new slant on the lighter aspects of Mexico today is given by this smooth and sparkling comedy written, directed and produced by Miguel Zacarias, a practiced scenarist but a comparatively new producer. There is no folklore in the story, a manifestation of the trend away from the outdoor adventure that has been rather overdone in Mexico pictures. There is plenty of amusement; but it is not of the good, clean fun kind. Indeed, this one is subtlely spicy. The whole picture, including its sharp points, is of such universal appeal and humanness that it could be put over well with English titles.



The neat, fast moving tale concerns what happens when Chato (Pug Nose) Ortin, one of the best of Mexican comedians, goes to town to make merry use of the considerable coin of his home spun wife, Sara Garcia, owner of a prosperous ranch, and gets tangled up with his gay student son, Julian Soler, and Victoria Blanco, Mexico City revue artiste.

The acting is of a high order. The best work

Young Man's Fancy

(CAPAD-ABFD)

Victorian Romance

There may be a suggestion of escapism in this Victorian pastiche, trailing its bustles and bric-a-bric across the grim preoccupations of the day, drowning the rumble of distant cannon in the lusty music-hall ballads of the last century. It comes conveniently at a moment when Victorian vogues and traditions are, significantly, fashionable.

The background against which Stevenson has laid his fairy tale is the mid-Victorian London of naughty noblemen and lusty music halls, and the Paris of the Franco-Prussian War. Fanciful and frail as is his Cinderella romance, his picture has a slick period touch and his sense of detail, whether in drawing room deportment or Dundreary whiskers, is much of the picture's entertainment value.

The Cinderella of the story, a young woman who is shot from a gun every night in a London music hall, goes to Paris with a nobleman's son, to help him kill a loveless marriage. They are caught in the Siege of Paris, caught, too, in the toils of an inevitable love. Back in London, however, his Ducal mother plots and all but succeeds in ending the romance, until the wily old father counterplots and reunites Cinderella with her fairy Duke.

It is insubstantial stuff, treated in a fanciful vein, with Cinderella interpreted by the petite Anna Lee. Seymour Hicks' genially rakish old nobleman is a stereotyped conception, but Hicks is amusing enough. Billy Bennett, in an all too scant role as Miss Lee's military impresario, is a Victorian W. C. Fields with an English accent. Martita Hunt as the starchy Duchess, Felix Aylmer and Morton Selten in pompous English roles, Aimos as the acquisitive tramp, are some of the artists who help give the mossaic touches of personal interest.

Shown to a trade audience at the Cambridge Theatre, the film was accepted without any apparent discomfort. Laughter was reserved in the main for Hicks' genial mountebankery.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

I Killed the Count

(Grafton—Grand National)

Murder Mystery

For the British market this early presentation on Grand National's British program has a ready-made box office appeal, for its star, Syd Walker, has already mustered considerable radio fame by his "Mr. Walker Wants to Know" features. Fans who have hitherto been in ignorance of Mr. Walker's 20 years' allegiance to stage and screen should by this time, with new fame and popularity achieved, leap readily to the chance of seeing him in a picture built to exploit his beefy Cockney inquisitiveness. For the wider market "I Killed the Count," made in a pocket studio on unspectacular but polished lines, has the appeal of a neatly devised, well developed, murder mystery with a narrative twist and a great deal of quiet character comedy.

Though ostensibly a "whodunnit?" the film transpires rather to be a "whodidnotdoit?" for no less than four people confess to have murdered Count Mattoni, each of them with a plausible motive. As Inspector Davidson of Scotland Yard, called to the job on the day he is retiring to devote himself to his poultry, Walker pieces together his clues, only to find he has too many murderers—three of them were would-be's. It is conventional enough in its piecing together of evidence and counterevidence, but it has a great deal of wit in its treatment and the laughs are as frequent as, if more credible than, the thrills. Walker's personality registers unusually well, though there seems not much reason for his Hendon College foil, adequately handled by Terence de Marney. All the action unfolds in the block of flats where the murder has been committed, but Zelnik has given the film movement enough to prevent any impression of stuffiness.

Seen in a West End house, with a popular clientele, the film was obviously enjoyed from start to finish and provoked much laughter in the right places, if a little in the wrong places. Interest in Walker was undisguised.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

A Grafton Production. Distributed by Grand National. Produced by I. Goldsmith. Directed by Fred Zelnik. From the play by Alec Coppel. Adaptation, Laurence Huntington. Cameraman, Bryan Langley. Film editor, Sam Simmonds. Art director, James Carter. Running time, when seen in London, 89 minutes. Adult audience classification.

The Phantom Creeps

(Universal)

Serial

Bela Lugosi, Robert Kent, Dorothy Arnold and Regis Toomey are cast in the feature roles of the latest Universal serial. It is produced on the fantastic side, but is an absorbing work. Lugosi portrays a scientist who creates a chemical element capable of inducing suspended animation to whole armies. He also has discovered a means by which he can appear and disappear at will. A former colleague, realizing the danger of such elements in the hands of an enemy, notifies the Military Intelligence department. Robert Kent is a captain in the department, Regis Toomey his assistant. The two are sent to the scientific laboratory to prevent him from selling his secrets to a foreign power. The scientist escapes, and the hunt provides many exciting adventures. Dorothy Arnold portrays the newspaper reporter who has stumbled onto the case.—Running time, 21 minutes per chapter.

Overland with Kit Carson

(Columbia)

Serial

This has the requisites of a good serial: hard riding, much shooting and fighting, action almost every minute, an adequate love interest. As a hero, Bill Elliott, who plays Kit Carson, is tall, good looking, toothily pleasant. Iris Meredith, the heroine, will please, but does not obtrude too much into the action of the story, which will be good news to the children and adolescents. The first episode, seen in a New York projection room, details the efforts of a band of "Black Raiders" to prevent settlemen of the wilderness west of the Mississippi. With Indian aid, they rob, murder. Their leader is "Pegleg," who thinks the "empire" will be his, if the settlers can be scared away. But Kit Carson and Lieutenant Brent, of the United States Army, are detailed to end the depredations. They save a wagon train from annihilation by avalanche, as the first episode ends. —running time, first episode, 28 minutes.

Three Minute Fuse

(Vitaphone)

Floyd Gibbons' "True Adventure"

Another thrill punch from the Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" shockers is this tension tickler about a building of a well and a three minute dynamite fuse. The story is simple and plausible and carries in its finale an amount of high grade excitement that will have any gathering clutching the edges of the seat in vicarious and nervous participation. An Oklahoma farmer is building a well and meets a bed of rock, which he decides to blast. An ordinary three minute rope fuse is ignited. The signal is given to raise the workman but in the course of hoisting the man the rope breaks and he falls unconscious to the bottom of the pit. In the meantime the fuse is steadily and ominously growing smaller. The companions of the worker effect a contact with the limp body of the man and drag him to safety in the slimmest nick of time. So gripping is the melodrama that the spectator does not feel that the three minute fuse is a bit prolonged in causing the explosion.—Running time, 11 minutes.

The Birth of Icebergs

Father Hubbard Alaskan Adventure

In this first in a series of short travelogues depicting the scientific studies of the "Glacier Priest," Father Hubbard, in the Alaskan ice fields, is studied the genesis of icebergs, exploding the popular contention that falling ice is the start of the bergs. According to the Jesuit explorer's pictorial record, the reason is the breaking off of the berg from the bottom of the mass as a result of pressure of tons of ice above and the subsequent rise of the iceberg to the position of being one-seventh above the water and six-sevenths submerged. This conclusion is substantiated by the camera work. The accompanying lecture is done easily, entertainingly and thrillingly by Father Hubbard and his quizzer, Lowell Thomas.—Running time, 11 minutes.

James Roosevelt Accepts Bid to Survey Studios

James Roosevelt, vice-president of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., has accepted with reservations the invitation of the Association of Motion Picture Producers to study problems confronting Hollywood producers, including inter-studio relationships.

Invitation from Schenck

The invitation came from Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Producers Association, who, in announcing the issuing of the invitation, said: "Such a study, it is believed, will further the common aim of the entire industry. Samuel Goldwyn, with whose studios Mr. Roosevelt is associated as vice-president, has graciously assented to place the services of his associate at our disposal for the purposes of this survey.

"In inviting Mr. Roosevelt to make this study I wish to emphasize for both myself and the producers that this action has reference solely to local problems and has no relation or bearing on any problems affecting certain producers and the Federal Government."

Mr. Roosevelt accepted the invitation with the following understanding: 1. that the study would not involve a commitment to make specific recommendations unless such recommendations seemed advisable to Mr. Roosevelt.

2. That it was understood by the Producers Association that Mr. Roosevelt was free to contact any and all members of the industry during the course of the studies.

3. That no stipulation of secrecy should be attached to the investigation or its results.

Mr. Roosevelt stressed to Mr. Schenck that he fully realized the vastness of the problems involved and hoped it would be understood that due to Mr. Roosevelt's unfamiliarity with many aspects of the industry, such a study will require a considerable period of time.

To Head Producers Group?

The announced assignment of James Roosevelt is being interpreted in Hollywood as an initial step in the direction of establishing Roosevelt in the position of head of the producers' association.

While no official word on the subject has been thus far made available it is acknowledged by persons in a position to know that the Roosevelt assignment to conduct a survey of studio conditions and inter-studio relations is a grooming operation intended eventually to lead to his retirement from the Goldwyn organization and his appointment as chief executive of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Hollywood.

The executive work of the association has long been in the hands of Fred Beetson as secretary-treasurer. The presidency of the association has been largely a chairmanship position, occupied by a leading production executive. The present incumbent is Joseph M. Schenck who, two years ago, succeeded Louis B. Mayer, who had been president for seven years.

On various occasions there has been an agitation among association members for a so-called working executive who would devote his whole time to administration of the affairs of the association. It is now understood that interest has become centered on young Roosevelt for this position and that he will proceed there after completing the preliminary survey work.

California Analyzes Wages, Employment In The Studios

Motion picture industry employees receive an average income more than twice that of employees in other California industries, it is shown in a study made by that state's Department of Employment and embodied in a booklet entitled "Careers". The motion picture industry statistics are provided by J. Russell Franks, assistant statistician of the department.

In noting the high income of the studio workers, compared with other types, Mr. Franks points out, first, that the state's employers' payroll during 1938 was $1,997,300,000, and that the payroll of the industry was $144,663,000, or approximately 7.2 per cent of the state total; but that the industry employed only 3.3 per cent of the total working in all state industries.

Mr. Franks notes that the monthly wages in the industry during 1938 averaged $12,500,000 and that during December these reached $15,323,000. Christmas bonuses were assigned as the reason for the December increase.

That there is a "marked" decrease of employment during July, August and September in the motion pictures is also noted, and it is explained as:

" . . . probably due, for the most part, to the concurrent reduction by the motion picture companies of operations during this period. Some of it may be due to a slight reduction in theatre employment during the summer months. It is well known that motion picture companies at times reach a peak in their production schedules concurrently."

No Lottery Found In Mansfield Case

A decision considered of importance to Ohio exhibitors because of the precedent involved was handed down by Marian Ward, city solicitor in Mansfield, in his refusal to issue an affidavit against Grattan Johnson, manager of Warner's Madison, for violation of the Ohio lottery law in operation of Bank Night, as requested by Police Chief Meade K. Bates, whose request was predicated on the first award to a patron holding a paid admission ticket. Arrests have continuously been threatened since the game was recently inaugurated.

Gambling Attacked

"In reading cases involving lotteries and schemes of chance it is apparent that the purpose of the law and consequently the duty of this office is to prosecute types of gambling and lotteries involving moral turpitude and the lure of gambling to the extent that men's wages are fleeced, families deprived of food, clothing and shelter, and not to prosecute gift awards operated solely for the purpose of promoting business, was the written opinion of the city solicitor.

"Three elements must be present to constitute a violation of the state lottery law. These are a prize, an award and a consideration. The first two elements were definitely present, but there is nothing in the report to indicate that money was paid, or an amount added to the admission price to participate in the game, or constitute a fund from which a prize would be given," the report continued.

In commenting on the decision, and declaring that no further steps would be taken, Chief Bates said: "It was the duty of the police department to place the matter before the city solicitor who represents the city in all legal matters and who prosecutes cases. All we can do is abide by his decision. There will be no effort on the part of the police department to interfere with Bank Night in any theatre as long as it is conducted as it has been in the past."

The Ohio, a sister house, has more recently inaugurated Bank Night, and Sol Bernstein, manager of the independent Ritz, announced that his house now will conduct the game. The Park, an independent unit, has been featuring Pay-Off Night, which in all essentials is similar to Bank Night.

Other Developments

All drawings in theatres, games of chance, including Bingo, and other forms of gambling have been banned by the Sussex County, N. J., prosecutor. Similar bans were put into effect in recent months by the prosecutors in Passaic, Bergen and Morris counties, all situated in the northern part of New Jersey.

An injunction restraining city officials in Chicago from stopping "Dr. I. Q.," radio show at the Chicago theatre, has been upheld by Daniel Cavelli, master-in-chancery. City officials apparently have dropped the suit as they did not file answers when due. The National Broadcasting Company on Monday started broadcasting of "Dr. I. Q." from the stage of the Stanley theatre in Pittsburgh.

Hearing on the petition of Charles W. Trampe, head of Film Service, Inc., Milwaukee, for an injunction to restrain Bingo in Bahn Frei Hall, has been set for September 11th by Daniel W. Sullivan, circuit judge.

Edward Goldstein, owner of the Bank Night franchise for New York and New Jersey, has won a verdict by the supreme court of New Jersey, enforcing a Bank Night contract against the Barclay Amusement Corporation, owner of the Ramsey at Ramsey, N. J.

Star Yiddishe Bande

The Yiddishe Bande, Polish-Jewish art troupe, who made their American debut on Broadway last season, will be starred in "Kol Nidre," a new Yiddish feature picture which is now being produced and directed by Joseph Seiden at the Cinema studios at Palisades, N. J.

Plan Pastor Film

Warner Brothers have announced plans to make a film of the life of Tony Pastor.

Oklahoma Allied Sets Convention

The organizing board of Allied Theatre Owners of Oklahoma has made arrangements for the first annual convention of the organization September 26th and 27th at the Biltmore Hotel in Oklahoma City, according to Orville Von Gulker, chairman.

Discussion will center around legislation, monopoly practices and the problem of the small independent exhibitor. The convention delegates are expected to take action on a buying pool for Oklahoma independents and on a constitution for Allied in Oklahoma. The organization is under the laws of the state of Oklahoma.

R. J. Hiehle, president of the Independent Theatre Owners of West Virginia, has announced that the annual convention of the organization which was originally scheduled for only one day, September 26th, has been extended several days due to the number of matters of importance to be discussed and voted upon at the convention.

Election of officers will be one of the features of the meeting of this new Allied unit. Irving Daniel Davis, chairman of the convention committee, is preparing an elaborate program for the entertainment of all who attend, and exhibitors have been invited to bring their wives as well as any other guests.

Survey of Sales Policies

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania has instituted another survey of product to determine the actual sales policies of the various film distributing organizations and when an accurate analysis has been completed it will be available for its members at the Pittsburgh headquarters.

M. A. Rosenberg, president, and Fred J. Herrington, secretary, have issued a bulletin requesting exhibitors to attend an important meeting to be held early this month in preparation for the MPTO's annual convention in October by which time they expect to have the trade survey completed.

Kansas-Missouri Group To Hold Series of Meetings

A series of regional meetings for independent exhibitors is planned for September by the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association, according to Frank Cassill, St. Joseph, Mo., president.

Purpose of the meetings will be to discuss the problem of trade practices, and, if possible, to work out some plan of campaign that will result in adoption by the industry of practices more satisfactory to exhibitors than the present. Turning down of the code by the U. S. Justice Department has left the situation in a state of uncertainty. Exhibitors feel that some course of action should be outlined, Mr. Cassill said.

There will be six meetings in Kansas, four in Western Missouri, with dates and places to be set shortly.

Levy Leaves MPTOA

The resignation of Edward G. Levy of New Haven as general counsel of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association has been announced by Ed Kuykendall, president. Mr. Levy was recently convicted of conspiring to defraud the city of Waterbury, Conn.

Baburao Patel, president of the Film Journalists' Association of India, arrived in New York on the Normandie Monday. Mr. Patel, who is also a member of the Central Board of Governors of the Indian Motion Picture Congress and editor of Filmindia, is making a five month tour of the leading motion picture studios of the world to study conditions and methods of work. He has already visited France, Germany and England and represented India at the International Film Journalists' Conference in Brussels.

National Decency Legion Classifies Nine Films

Of nine pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its current listing, five were approved for general patronage. The list follows:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Conspiracy," "Death of a Champion," "Jones Family in Quick Millions," "Oklahoma Terror," "Smuggled Cargo." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Fifth Avenue Girl," "Golden Boy." Class B, Objectionable in part: "I Demand Payment," "The Man They Could Not Hang."

Forest Service Subject

Emerson Yorke, independent short subject producer, will produce "Big Game in Alaska," short subject, for the United States Forest Service.

Urges "A" Films For Argentina

American distributors must eliminate the "B" or at least the "C" product from the Argentine market and export only their big pictures if they want to hold that territory and particularly the second run theatres, Clemente Lococo, Buenos Aires circuit operator, said this week in New York.

Mr. Lococo said that Argentine films constitute real competition to Hollywood pictures, although their production is greatly limited in quantity. He said the Argentine studios are making progress in improving quality of their output.

In addition to the heavy play time given to domestic films in the Argentine interior, neighborhood houses in the large cities are increasing their bookings on Spanish language pictures, he said.

The Argentine studios will produce 50 features this season and plan to boost the figure to 60 in 1939-'40. Mr. Lococo, who operates 13 theatres, is a joint managing director of the EFA studio in Buenos Aires. This company plans to make eight features this year.

Mr. Lococo also visited Hollywood and while there signed Tito Guizar, Mexican player who has been under contract to Paramount, to star for EFA. Guizar has invested a substantial sum in the company and will be an executive, acting as associate producer. He will leave Hollywood in February to make two films for the Argentine company.

The South American exhibitor signed Hollywood studio technicians and purchased equipment in New York for EFA. He sails Friday on the Uruguay for Buenos Aires.

Lorenzen Granted Patent; Callaghan to Market It

A patent has been allowed to Robert Lorenzen, which claims cover natural color in television. That is, the primary colors in combination with a cathode ray will reproduce upon the screen the televised pictures in natural colors.

George H. Callaghan, joint owner with Mr. Lorenzen, will market the patent.

Long-Term Lease

Quimby Theatres, Fort Wayne, Ind., has taken a long-term lease on the Paramount theatre there. It will be operated as a first run house along with the Emboyd and the Palace and the Jefferson and Riley as second run. The theatre will be opened under the changed policy around the middle of September.

Plan South American Visit

Following completion of their current feature comedy "The Flying Deuces," which Boris Morros is producing for RKO Radio, Laurel and Hardy plan a series of personal appearance tours followed by a visit to South America. According to Laurel, an Argentine producer wants the comedy team to make a picture with Spanish dialogue.

In Which Is Told a Tale of Magic

The traveler, weary with the look of the world, after many years of wandering in the lands over the sea, had returned to the tribal home. His garb was shabby, his eyes bright.

"I have seen many wonders among the infidels," he declared before the night campfires.

The tribe was unmoved. "What wonder have you seen we know not of?" sneered the Magician, as with rapid hands he caused elephants to disappear, dross to turn to gold, water to wine.

"Tell me, Magician," queried the wanderer: "If the Great Presence in his infinite wisdom blessed our Chieftain with a son, how quickly would the glad tidings be known in every far corner of the kingdom?"

The Magician thought but for a moment. "With our royal racing camels, fleet as the winds, but weeks would elapse before His Majesty's subjects all would come bearing gifts."

The traveler smiled. "I have seen a magic, my brothers, whereby one who was nothing at the sun's setting became favored in the eyes of millions in every corner of the land before the next dawning."

Disbelief crowded the night. Derision smote the ears of the speaker. "By the beard of the Prophet," the Magician shouted, "the lad is touched by the moon. He speaks of camels with wings." The tribe howled in glee.

The wanderer sat patiently. When laughter died, he told this strange tale:

In the far-off land of Scranton, in the high mountains of the Poconos, lived a girl-child, fair of face and form, who sang for the sick, danced for the weary. Known first only to friends and family, her talents soon became famed far beyond the border. In due time, summoned to the fabulous paradise of Hollywood, the child bid fond farewells and went her way.

For many moons she sang and danced, her image limned on magic film, her golden voice captured for posterity. Word soon seeped forth that here was something. Prophets stormed her door. Only guarded replies were made.

A prophet is without honor only in his own country, but not in Hollywood, my brothers. And thus to the Chieftain of Scranton was made known the girl would return to her native land to celebrate the great tidings. Then went the clarion call to the hills, the mines, the pastures. Then came legions to pay the girl homage.

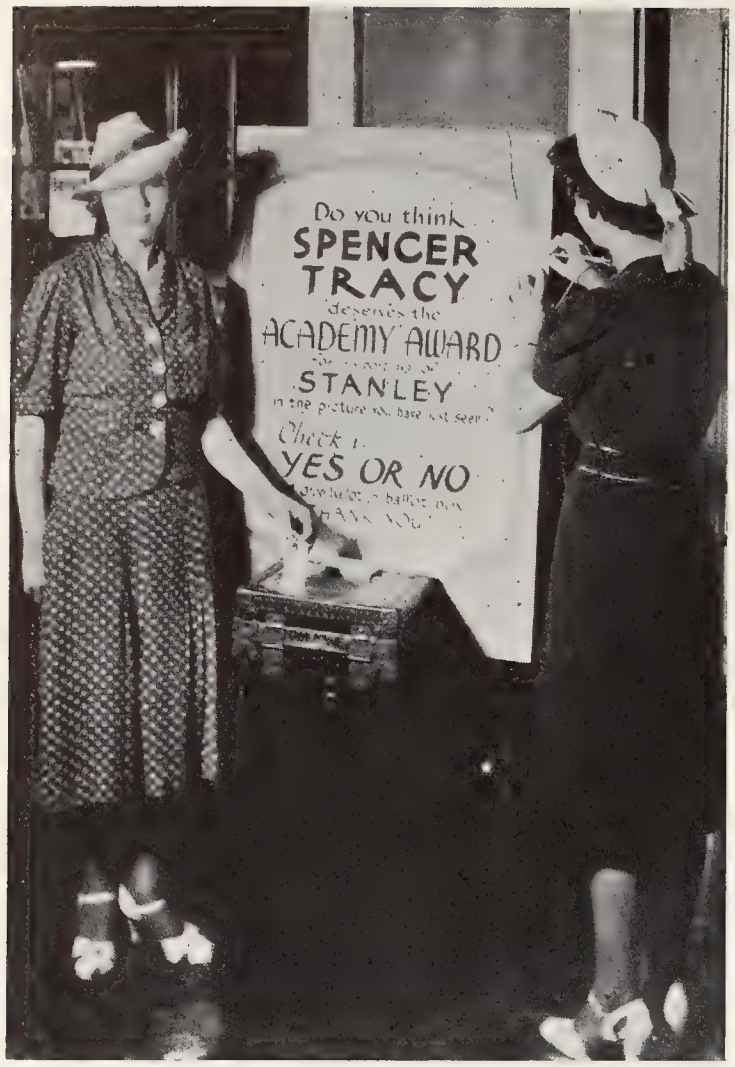
From the canyons of Manhattan to the farthest reach of the land, messages were tapped out bidding the prophets to gather. By giant bird through the skies, by iron camel train they came. Processions held forth until the night. All was feasting and rejoicing.

Then from magic boxes were brought forth the image, the golden voice. The multitudes gazed, listened, were pleased. Praise filled the civic scrolls. The prophets tapped words—thousands and thousands of words that boomed through the valleys and forests, that rode the mountains to all parts of the kingdom. By dawning, every distant place in the land knew of the girl, waited the coming of her image and song.

The wanderer finished. He faced the listening throngs hushed with the unfolding of such magic from the skies.

Silence was broken by the raucous mirth of the Magician. "A likely tale," he snorted, as again his graceful fingers brought forth elephants where there were none, gold from dross and wine from water.

But now none paid him heed. They crowded about the wanderer. "By what name is known this magic?" they urged.



"Motion picture publicity," was the simple answer.

That's a cute trick described by Art Wartha on his recent visit here. On a large wallboard prominently placed in his office, Wartha pins tear sheets of current merchant tie-ups where they can immediately be seen by other store owners who drop in to visit with the Round Tabler. More times than not, according to Art, a tie-in hanging in the balance or one suggested by the visiting merchant is put over then and there.

Round Table In Pictures

Placed in the lobby of the Lyceum Theatre in Duluth, Minn., by Manager George Irwin was a ballot box used during run of "Stanley and Livingstone". On top was copy reading: "Do you think that Spencer Tracy deserves the Academy Award for his portrayal of Stanley in the picture you have just seen?" Patrons were provided with ballot slips with the same copy asking them to register their vote.

Created by Manager Harold B. Lyon and publicity director, Lionel Wasson, was the tombstone stunt erected in front of the Capitol Theatre in Burlington, Iowa, for "Frontier Marshal". Lionel reports the gag as most effective and creating plenty of word-of-mouth comment.

Locating a missionary who had lived in Africa for years who was the owner of a very good collection of authentic specimens, J. S. Thomason, Ritz, McPherson, Kan., promoted him for use of material which was used as illustrated above for his date on "Tarzan Finds a Son".

Growing more popular among theatremen for promotional purposes is the new Bantam car. Reproduced at right may be seen how Milt Harris, director of publicity for Loew's Cleveland Theatres, street ballyed his "Man in the Iron Mask" date at Loew's State. Car, appropriately bannered, was driven about town by man wearing a mask and was also ridden into the Poultry Congress then in session locally. Holding the flagpole, center, is United Artists' exploiteer, Ed Fisher, who aided Harris on the date.

Shown at left is part of the attractive lobby display conceived by Manager Maurice K. Gable of the Boyd Theatre in Philadelphia for "The Wizard of Oz". The display was erected in the lobby four weeks in advance of playdate. As part of the campaign, the four midgets who appeared in the picture, along with the costumes which the studio furnished, were used in a ballyhoo in which they toured the entire city of Philadelphia ahead of run of picture.

Novel and inexpensive are the attention-compelling fronts used by H. A. Doman of the Harris-DuBois Theatre in DuBois, Pa. Theatreman passes the idea along to readers who have a Carrara or other type glass front. Doman promotes the local paint store for sufficient wallpaper to cover his front. This is put on right over the glass by use of ordinary powder wallpaper paste. Then his artist, Stan J. Sekula, whom Doman credits with the idea, goes to work adding his lettering, etc. Theatreman says, to remove these fronts, merely wet the paper with a hose, let it soak a few moments and then peel off.

LOEW POLI DIVISION SET FOR NEW SEASON

Motor Caravan Tied in with Crosley Autos; Governors Endorse Elaborate Campaign

Even more pretentious than past performances will be the new season movie activities of the Loew Poli New England circuit of theatres comprised of fourteen houses in Worcester, Springfield, Hartford, Meriden, Waterbury, New Haven and Bridgeport, Harry F. Shaw, division manager and Lou Brown, division publicity chief, have just announced.

HARRY F. SHAW

This year, to officially open the 1939-1940 season, the activities will form a motor caravan, officially known as the "Loew Poli Movie Hit Parade-Crosley Motor Cavalcade."

Cars Driven by College Girls

Through a promotion with the Crosley Company, arrangements have been made to use ten of the new cars, specially constructed and painted pastel shades, which will form the main body of the caravan. Each car will be driven by a college girl recruited from one of the Connecticut colleges, snappily attired in abbreviated costumes of collegiate swing outfits, designed to attract the eye. In addition each car will be bannered with pennants both front and back.

The magnitude of this year's event is greater than previous ventures. This year the caravan will officially start off in Boston, where the Governor of Massachusetts will fire the starting gun. A tour of Boston will be made, in which Loew's State and Orpheum will participate. From Boston the cavalcade will move to Worcester for a similar celebration and then to Providence where Eddie McBride, manager of Loew's State will arrange a one day celebration. From Providence the caravan will move to Springfield and then through Connecticut. Activities in Boston are being handled by H. M. Addison, division manager and Joe DiPesa, publicity representative.

Caravan Disbands at Fair

By far the most outstanding incident of this year's event is the fact that after the caravan leaves Bridgeport, it will journey into New York and to the World's Fair and will be disbanded at the Crosley exhibit there, following a celebration in which Grover Whalen and Crosley officials will participate.

The caravan will get under way in Boston on Thursday, September 7th. It will be seen in Worcester on September 8th; Providence, September 9th; Springfield, September 11th; Hartford, September 12th; Meriden and Waterbury, September 13th; New Haven, September 14th; Bridgeport, September 15th and the World's Fair on September 16th.

In every town to be visited, local managers are completing plans for parades with numerous bands and in which they will feature their current and coming attractions on banners. Local merchants have been asked to cooperate by putting in floats, decorating their windows and using cooperative ads. The mayors of the various towns, as well as the Governors of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut will sign a special scroll congratulating the theatres on their civic activities and honoring the golden jubilee of motion pictures. Theatres will be gaily decorated and a holiday atmosphere will prevail in each town. Special escorts of state and city police will travel with the caravan.

Managers participating in the activities of various towns include Matt Saunders, Morris Rosenthal and Harry Rose of Bridgeport; Bob Russell, Sam Bandamo and Bill Elder of New Haven; Ed Fitzpatrick of Waterbury; Joe Samartano of Meriden; Jack Simons and Lou Cohen of Hartford; George Freeman of Springfield; Monk Maloney, Joe Amstead and Bob Portle of Worcester; Howard Burkhardt and Fred Greenway of Boston; Eddie McBride of Providence, and Elliott Kronish of the Loew Poli office.

Novel Contest Lands Floyd Full Co-op Page

Asking readers of the Daily Argus-Leader, Sioux Falls, S. D., to name the five who came back in the thriller "Five Came Back," Manager Joe Floyd of the Hollywood Theatre won the house a full co-op page. Four hundred persons entered. Reproduced photos of the leading characters were spotted in the various advertisements. One was headed "They All Come Back," copy of a local printing company.

Floyd hooked up with a radio station. Five names were selected from the Sioux Falls telephone directory each day and announced in the evening over the air, these being admitted free. All parties who came to the theatre in groups of five were admitted for four admissions.

Daughters Contest Staged On "My Darling Daughter"

A contest directed at local daughters was planted recently in local paper by Harry Salisbury, as his advance on "Yes, My Darling Daughter" at the Time Theatre, in Rochester, Minn. Open to girls between the ages of 18 and 25, a complete list of questions was run in the cooperating newspaper, including queries on ambitions, interests, attitudes toward a movie career, etc., etc.

Contestants were also asked to write 100 words on a problem a mother and daughter face in the picture, provided they saw it, if not then they could write something on "Should a daughter marry against the wishes of a mother?" Contest ran for a week with paper coming through with stories and art work ahead and during run.

Town Celebrates Boy Scout Return and Bill Bows In

Recently prominent in the nation's headlines, Donn Fendler, the Boy Scout rescued by the good folk of Millinocket, after eight days of wandering in the Maine woods, passed up the state-wide celebration in his honor to personally thank the community for finding him. The announcement of Fendler's return made just a day ahead of his appearance gave Bill Johnson, of the Opera House in that spot an opportunity to take over the celebration and roll up his biggest single day's summer grosses, instead of being lost in the shuffle during the festivities.

Secures Newsreel Shots

When the news broke, Johnson burned up the wires to get the Paramount newsreel shots of the rescue for the big day. After plenty of booking and other headaches it was accomplished, and with only a few hours to work, Bill went to town. First, he had printed the first and only life-time pass to the Opera House and arranged for the First Selectman to present it at the official reception. Then, the Round Tabler had flyers printed and distributed announcing the newsreel showings. Welcome banners, out front and screen notices were also run.

For the parade of welcome, the Opera House was the only spot in town decorated for the occasion due, of course, to Bill's fast work, as was the giant street welcome banner arranged by the committee and made possible by the theatreman's cooperation. The flash, later displayed over the stage during the official reception, at the request of the Scout's father, was autographed by every resident of Millinocket and presented to the lost boy as a permanent souvenir. Invited to be the first signer, Bill passed up the honor in favor of the Mayor but offered the use of his lobby for the official autographing which went on for a number of days.

Official Party Attends Show

As directly concerns the theatre's grosses, Johnson had the entire official party over to see the newsreel shots, their first opportunity to do so since he was playing the release some two weeks ahead of date. This made for capacity attendance and also for every showing during the day. Much goodwill was engendered.

Cardboard Thermometers Help Fitzpatrick on "Andy Hardy"

Made up by Manager Ed Fitzpatrick at the Poli Theatre in Waterbury, Conn., were several giant cardboard thermometers with copy reading "'Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever' and his temperature soars higher than the mercury." Cut of Mickey was included with copy below on cast, playdates, etc. These novelties were planted prominently at local beaches, amateur fight stadium and spots wherever crowds congregated.

Big-League Short Secured by Baker On Baseball Tieup

Produced under the supervision of Lew Fonseca, former big league star, and now head of the American League Professional Baseball Club, there is available to juvenile organizations a baseball reel called "The First Century of Baseball," the cost underwritten by Fisher Body Corporation. Showings are restricted to only those situations where the reel is screened free of any admission charges and thus it was quite an accomplishment for Manager R. J. Baker of Schine's Dixie, in Rochester, to obtain the film for showing at his theatre.

Baker was successful in getting Oliver French, manager of the Rochester Red Wings to cooperate in running Knothole Gang Day in the 10 local Schine theatres on a Saturday when the Red Wings were out of town. French also gave each of the theatres four official baseball bats, four official league baseballs, regulation Knothole uniforms and gloves, all autographed by the stars of the Red Wings, as well as plugging the event over the air and giving announcements over the public address system while at the local stadium. A local pop manufacturer was contacted to provide free drinks for the kids. Planted in front of his theatre by Baker was an old fashioned fence with knot holes, on which was a message addressed to the kids, plugging the reel and scene stills from the picture.

Baker says aside from the fact that the film can be secured gratis, the idea can be worked in any town that has a baseball club, either professional or amateur.

Jacobson Gets Merchants To Sponsor Kiddie Picnic

Sponsored by local merchants, several thousand programs were distributed among kids by Eddie Jacobson of the Rainbo Theatre, in Detroit, informing them that the first 300 attending a Saturday matinee would receive a free invitation to a picnic to be held at nearby isle. Arrangements were made with local cab company to furnish transportation. The first stop was at the City Hall, where Mayor Reading gave a safety talk to the children, after which they proceeded to the picnic. Cabs which were properly bannered were escorted by police department safety car and two motorcycle officers.

At the island, kids received promoted candy and ice cream, in addition to prizes which were awarded in connection with various games.

Smith's Stencilled Footprints

Small stencilled footprints preceded by a giant one were planted in the lobby of the Paramount Theatre, in Hot Springs, Ark., by Clyde Smith for "Gracie Allen Murder Case." All prints pointed toward the inner lobby, larger footprint carried copy on the title and playdates, while the small ones simply bore the imprint of a question mark.

NEW AWARDS RECORD

With the sensational total of 45 Fortnight Appointments for 44 entries, a record number of honors in the Preliminaries of the Quigley Awards is established. The Third Fortnight of the Third Quarter thus marks a new high for the 1939 Competitions. There now remain four further Fortnight periods before the Quarter ending.

While the Awards now point to the halfway point in the Third Quarter, the race for the annual honors is still wide open. Newcomers to the Competitions have time enough to roll up an impressive total before the end of the year, else they are left far behind by theatremen who have been consistent winners since the beginning.

Albertson Ties Old Songs To "Castles" Engagement

With a local resident having a hobby of collecting old songs, Jack Albertson, at the Indiana, Indiana Harbor, for "The Castles," promoted him on the idea of displaying his hobby in conjunction with the showing of the picture. Jack then sold town's largest furniture store on a stunt whereby they agreed to display the songs together with two large cutouts of Astaire and Rogers in their best window week in advance of playdates. Cooperating newspaper ran stories on the tieup with due credits to the picture.

Lightman Reports Recent Activities

On all stop lights within a radius of 25 miles of the Paramount Theatre, in Jackson, Tenn., Manager M. A. Lightman, Jr., hung signs reading: "Don't run red light, 'Only Angels Have Wings'"; signs were also planted at all dangerous street crossings. Window tieups were numerous, in which miniature displays of airplanes, helmets, and other paraphernalia were featured. Model airplane contests were planted in cooperating newspaper, bumper strips were used week in advance, as were cards on backs of all cars, and for his marquee, Lightman hung model airplanes. On "Tarzan Finds a Son," the theatreman covered his entire front with dense foliage to resemble jungle, 24-sheet was mounted on roof of marquee and circus heralds were distributed. For his street bally, Lightman promoted a truck on which Tarzan, his son and a "native" beat a tom-tom as the entourage covered the town.

Grott's Unique "Angels" Lobby

Promoted through the courtesy of the Cunard White Star Line was a 10 foot high and eight foot wide model of the Queen Mary which was used as a lobby display by Harold Grott at the Met Theatre, in Baltimore, in connection with "Only Angels Have Wings." Inside the ship were five 50-watt bulbs, which made every detail stand out, down to the smallest port hole. At the top of the display were the title letters and at the bottom, "Your dollars are your wings that will take you to the land of your dreams," etc.

Single Bill Plan Stressed in Drive to Launch Season

by CHARLES SCHLAIFER

Ad Head, United Artists, San Francisco

We recently introduced our "New Season" and it was so successful that I thought perhaps readers might be interested in what we did.

First of all, our opposition lowered their prices, what with our being the only single feature house in town we really had to do a job of selling. You will note from the newspaper advertising that we handled it in the following manner: No mention was made of the difference in price. We only sold the fact that we were opening our new season and listed the pictures to prove it. Secondly, that this first picture was a "Great Beginning To Our Greatest Season of Hits."

We inferred that every one wanted single features by using the lines, "Entertainment As You Like It, With Pictures So Big We Present Single Features Exclusively." And by using another line which proved our most successful one and which we have incorporated into our sig cuts, "Everyone Knows Big Pictures Always Play Single Bill."

We listed in our ads along with the above several of the coming attractions, then we sold this campaign in newspaper ads, specially written stories, a very comprehensive radio campaign and through our screen and lobby.

Advertising Trailer Applauded

Incidentally, I had a genuine thrill when for the first time in the many years I have been in the picture business I heard and saw an advertising trailer applauded. (Copy to left.) We received so many comments and compliments from our patrons. The copy does not illustrate the special backgrounds and effects we used on our trailer but it all worked to build it up to a really great climax. Our first picture, "Man In The Iron Mask", did a really terrific business and then we came back with "They Shall Have Music" to the biggest opening we have had in more than a year and a half.

The quick success of this plan should help to prove what Mr. Herman Cohen, who owns this theatre, and I feel, that single features are and can be successful. This is in addition, as I mentioned above, to the higher prices charged by the other motion picture theatres here. Our evening price is still 55 cents against 40 cents.

McWhorter Promotes Programs

To celebrate the fourth anniversary of the Warner Beverly Theatre, in Chicago, Assistant Manager Jerry McWhorter went out and promoted five pages of advertising for the special souvenir program gotten out for the occasion. Entirely solicited by Jerry, the merchants' ad paid entire cost of printing and distribution. Front cover of book carried cut of the theatre, inside spread featured photos of Zone Manager James E. Coston, and Ted Turrell, manager of the Beverly.

The appeal of this department's ad page layouts comes from the fact that displays used are exclusively those forwarded by theatremen. All ads are eligible for publication providing creators detail the various "reasons-why" behind the advertisements in question.

(No. 3) Special ads for the double date on "Women" and "Marshal" at Loew's Poli, Hartford, from Lou Brown, zone ad head, emphasized benday decoration for the former and white-on-black to sell the action of the latter. Size: 85 lines on 3 col.

(No. 4) Institutional copy pointed with reverse slugs was the successful motif employed by Manager Joe Clements to announce his new double feature policy at the Egyptian, Sioux Falls, So. Dak. Example illustrated, 110 lines on 1 col., created comment, says Joe.

(No. 5) The opening gun in the campaign to inaugurate the new season policy of single features at the United Artists, San Francisco, as detailed on this page by ad head, Charley Schlaifer. Body of space plugged coming shows as well. Size: 173 lines on 5 col.

(No. 6) In addition to explaining to his public just what constituted a "sleeper" for the benefit of "Man to Remember", State, Sandwich, Ill., Manager George Rice added a panel of guarantee-copy for the return date. The 125 lines on 1 col. packed a lot of selling.

(No. 7) A World's Fair background was aimed for in the art for this reverse on "Clouds Over Europe" at the Colonial, Allentown, Pa., created by Nick Todorov, assistant. Copy was topped by a bit of remember-selling for the two leads. Size: 130 lines on 3 col.

Lampe Engages in Street Ballys As Advance on "Bachelor Mother"

Street ballys were the order of the day so far as Gus Lampe's campaign on "Bachelor Mother" at Keith's, in Syracuse, was concerned. Two donkeys on a truck were driven about town, banners on each reading: "If I miss the picture, you know what I am" and "You'll get a bigger kick than I can offer when you see," etc. Seven perambulators were wheeled through the streets, each carriage with one word and the entire aggregation spelling out "See 'Bachelor Mother' now playing at Keith's Theatre." Peep-hole barrel was planted on main street with sign reading "You'll have a barrel of fun when you see." Dog house was set up in front of five and ten advising all that they would be in the dog house if they didn't go to Keith's. And through tieup arranged with local diaper service, theatre was supplied with 2,500 baby talk booklets which were sniped with picture and playdate copy.

Newspaper tiein included a sour puss contest, classified ad asking for the grouchiest people in town to attend the show as guests of the management if they could keep a straight face during the picture. Second contest was in the nature of a cartoon strip run in paper, with entrants asked to give original titles.

Rose Puts Pressure Behind Fletcher Personal Appearance

For the personal appearance of Tex Fletcher at Loew's Poli, Globe, in Bridgeport, Conn., Harry Rose used a special lobby display consisting of the original costume worn by Tex in "Six Gun Rhythm," which had played the theatre a few weeks previous, with a background of pennants which carried the photo of the star, title, playdates, etc. An automatic phonograph was also used playing Tex records.

To tie in with the American Legion Convention then in progress, Tex visited the Kiwanis luncheon on his opening day where he was guest of the Legion heads. Stage announcements were made two weeks in advance, entire staff wore imprinted sashes, Fletcher sundaes were featured at chain druggist and 35-piece boys' band in full costume paraded main streets to theatre where they met the star and played a half-hour concert.

Staff Present at Waukegan Premiere Aid in Exploiting Local "Man" Date

Capitalizing on the fact that three members of the service staff of the Paramount Theatre, in Kankakee, Ill., had worked on the Waukegan world premiere of "Man About Town," City Manager William T. Langdon, for that picture's opening, printed up 3,000 cards carrying cuts of these lads and their personal endorsement of the picture. Since the young men are all localites, Langdon arranged for them to personally distribute the cards in business district and to patrons attending theatre. Day ahead of opening, newspaper came through with good sized story on the theatre page using photos of the boys with their endorsements.

Promoted from local florists were bachelor buttons, attached to which were small tags with the following copy: "You are a 'Man About Town,' compliments of Blank Florist, see," etc. Attractive girl carrying tray of these flowers stood at busy street corners and put them in the lapels of men passing by. Climax of campaign was stationing young man on chair in front of theatre day ahead, carrying large black umbrella with copy to the effect that he was waiting for the boxoffice to open.

SAMARTANO FEATURES LOCAL "SWING NIGHTS"

As a follow-up on his recent Jitterbug Jamborees on the stage of the Loew Poli Palace, in Meriden, Conn., Manager Joe Samartano is now holding what he chooses to call his weekly "Swing Night".

Besides local bands, these nights will also feature entertainers local or otherwise and three cash prizes are awarded weekly to the singers, dancers and instrumentalists who participate. To sell the special entertainment, Samartano planted stories in the local newspapers and distributed tinted mimeographed heralds with art work inviting one and all with talent to enter the contest.

Hollister Invites Scouts To See "Scouts to Rescue"

On the serial, "Scouts to the Rescue," C. L. Hollister, at the Babcock, Wellsville, N. Y., arranged with the Scout Master to hold a screening for the boys on the morning of the opening episode. Advance advertising consisted of trailer on screen, week in advance, one-sheet frame on sidewalk and announcements from the stage at the kid shows. Included in the theatre ad were the names of various patrons, and to those discovering their names, guest tickets were awarded.

Howes Gives "No Limit" Trophy At Leading Salisbury Track

With Salisbury, England having its own motorcycle grass track at which meetings are held monthly with estimated crowds of 5,000 attending, Manager G. A. Howes at the Picture House ran a special race for the George Formby "No Limit" cup as advance publicity on that picture. Motor club cooperated by announcing the theatre race on all their bills, programmes and over the public address system at the track, in addition to special streamers which were prominently displayed.

Promoted from the club was a cycle which was displayed in the lobby together with the cup to be presented to winner. Military Police were also tied up, permitting the planting of signs at their recruiting stations reading "There is 'No Limit' to the possibilities if you join," etc. etc.

Letter to Stone from Governor Used by Grundy for "Spring Fever"

As his advance on "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever," Melvin Grundy at the Rivoli, in Muncie, Indiana, contacted his local newspaper to run a story on the fact that the governor of the state, as well as local mayor, had signed a letter to Lewis Stone in an attempt to bring the picture to Indiana. Letter was photostated, blown up and displayed in lobby week ahead along with a register which patrons were asked to sign, as a reminder that the picture would start soon. Grundy reports thousands of signers.

Through tieup effected with five and ten, chain featured a Hardy sundae; big window display consisting of cutouts and stills and counter displays were also used throughout the stores. For his street bally, clown on street distributed straw flowers to ladies and carried on chatter about the picture cast and play dates.

Grimes Brings Invalided Localite To Theatre in Ambulance to See Show

Much goodwill and newspaper publicity was garnered by Ken Grimes of the Warner Theatre, in Erie, Pa., when he arranged for a localite to be brought to the theatre in an ambulance to witness showing of "Man About Town." Man in question has been newspaper material for the past 25 years, because of some unusual malady with which he is affected. For week ahead, papers came through with stories and art work of the man arriving at the theatre with his attendants, in all of which publicity, the theatre and picture were prominently mentioned.

Girl Distributes Candy Kisses from "Maisie" for Millspaugh

An attention-getter was the attractive young lady who walked up and down the busiest streets of Muncie, Ind., day in advance of Manager Frank A. Millspaugh's "Maisie" opening at the Strand Theatre. Girl distributed 10,000 candy kisses which were promoted from five and ten. As she handed out each confection she said "Have a kiss from Maisie", same was printed on tray containing the candies. Kisses were wrapped in small heralds containing plug for picture and store. In addition, store plugged the tiein on their counters and window displays.

Manuel Ties Local Playgrounds To "Tarzan" Athletic Contest

Six of the playgrounds of Delaware, Ohio, each ran a series of contests to determine their entry for Johnny Manuel's "Tarzan Finds a Son" contest in connection with that picture's opening at the Strand Theatre. Twenty boys competed in each playground in all kinds of athletic contests. Eliminations were held, with three entrants from each group landing in the finals. The winner was acclaimed "Son of Tarzan" for Delaware in addition to being given the title, he was awarded with promoted prizes and guest tickets. Local dailies covered the contest from start to finish with due picture and theatre mention.

Columbia

ADVENTURE IN SAHARA: Paul Kelly, Lorna Gray—Very good action picture and can be really sold in larger locations. Played June 2-3.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

BLIND ALLEY: Chester Morris, Ralph Bellamy, Ann Dvorak, Joan Perry, Rose Stradner—Very interesting. Don't pass it up but be sure to stress the psychiatry angle. It's different. Played July 28-29.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

BLIND ALLEY: Chester Morris, Ralph Bellamy, Ann Dvorak, Rose Stradner, Joan Perry—If your patrons like heavy pictures with a sordid story, here is one right up your alley. The picture is outstanding in the acting of these two, Morris, Bellamy. A very good picture but not for small towns as there is no action or comedy. Running time, 71 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

FLIGHT TO FAME: Charles Farrell, Jacqueline Wells—Very low gross on this one but comment received was favorable with few exceptions. The portable ray machine was superior to the stationary one; very ingenious. Played May 30-—June 1.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

I AM THE LAW: Edward G. Robinson, Wendy Barrie, Otto Kruger, Barbara O'Neil—This is a good production but played it late, and, therefore did not do very well. Moves along rapidly with Edward G. Robinson giving a capable performance.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

IN EARLY ARIZONA: Bill Elliott—Dear Columbia, Bill Elliott hit the spot. Let's have more of him. Running time, 55 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

LADY AND THE MOB, THE: Fay Bainter, Ida Lupino, Lee Bowman—Amusingly different. Failed to get this one across for some reason. Played June 20-21.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

LADY AND THE MOB, THE: Fay Bainter, Ida Lupino, Lee Bowman, Henry Armetta—A very good program picture that had plenty of laughs and action throughout. Direction is capable and our patrons seemed to enjoy this one.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

LONE STAR PIONEERS: Bill Elliott, Dorothy Gulliver—This series is not popular here. The acting is forced and the action seems to lag. Much room for improvement.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

MISSING DAUGHTERS: Richard Arlen, Marian Marsh, Rochelle Hudson—Arlen is new to our patrons but was well received. The picture should be seen by all girls who are intent on making their own way around. Played August 8-10.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MY SON IS A CRIMINAL: Alan Baxter, Jacqueline Wells—Very good. The father vs. son angle was deeply stirring. Played June 6-8.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

NORTH OF SHANGHAI: Betty Furness, James Craig—This is a timely subject which had too many newsreel shots. Just a filler.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Richard Barthelmess, Thomas Mitchell—A truly wonderful picture. Not as stupendous as we were expecting but we might have been inflated a bit too much. Played July 25-27.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Richard Barthelmess, Thomas Mitchell—Played to fair business but, perhaps, it was because I played it too late.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

SPOILERS OF THE RANGE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—Another good western with Starrett and the Sons of the Pioneers. Their music is excellent. The plot and the picture is just fair but the music pulls it out of the humdrum class. Running time, 58 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TEXAS STAMPEDE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—This series from Columbia can be rated as good western film fare. The singing of the Sons of the Pioneers is good and the direction the same. Will be liked by kids and adults alike.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

THUNDERING WEST, THE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—Good western. Sons of the Pioneers help this series along very much. Seemed to give good satisfaction. Running time, 56 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

First National

CONFESSIONS OF A NAZI SPY: Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer, Paul Lukas—We didn't break any records with this picture because we have a lot of Germans in this community but the picture did average or better and was well liked by most of the patrons. It is worth a play-date but not on your best time.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CONFESSIONS OF A NAZI SPY: Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer, Paul Lukas—This was a dud at the box office. Satisfied those who came. Tied up with "The Gorilla". Plenty good combination. Running time, 101 minutes. Played Aug. 20-21.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

CONFESSIONS OF A NAZI SPY: Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer, Paul Lukas—I heard this picture would not draw so I played it two for one. Drew fairly well but did not please. Played Aug. 15.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DARK VICTORY: Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald—Here is a wonderful picture that did only fair at our box office. Our patrons have never been eager to lay it on the line to see this star, but the fans who like her are faithful enough and we have to satisfy them some way. It is worth a date and on your best time and the price is right.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DARK VICTORY: Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald—A masterpiece of its kind. Bette Davis wonderful; when it comes to acting, Bette has them all cheated. Running time, 106 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

EACH DAWN I DIE: Cames Cagney, George Raft, Jane Bryan, George Bancroft—George Raft turns out a great performance in this one and, although the picture itself played to good business, I didn't need a wheelbarrow to take home the profits. Played August 10-12.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

KID FROM KOKOMO, THE: Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, May Robson—Morris in another "Kid Galahad" role. An entertaining and pleasing picture throughout and satisfied the customers. Average Sunday business. Running time, 92 minutes. Played August 20-21.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

KID FROM KOKOMO, THE: Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, May Robson—A programmer that rates a good playdate. It seemed to have a lot of everything that my patrons like in a picture. May Robson is a grand old trouper and really steals the show. There is action in the prize ring and fun outside which goes to show that they can make them good enough when they have time.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SWEEPSTAKE WINNER: Marie Wilson, Johnnie Davis, Allen Jenkins—It has its moments of hilarity and does well enough as the other half of a double bill or bargain night offering.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SWEEPSTAKES WINNER: Marie Wilson, Johnnie Davis, Allen Jenkins—Pretty good program picture. Running time, 67 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

YES, MY DARLING DAUGHTER: Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Fay Bainter, May Robson, Roland Young—We didn't break any house records with this picture, but it pleased an average mid-week crowd. Worth a playdate if you can buy it at program prices. Not a special and it won't do that kind of business.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Helen Gilbert—Grand show and clicks all the way. For any house in any spot. Running time, 85 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Helen Gilbert—The best of the Hardys and worth all the time you can give it. Again it is clearly demonstrated why MGM is the "No. 1" company in the business for without fuss or fanfare Miss Helen Gilbert is made a star in just one picture. Watch this girl as she is tops. If any other company had such a star, she would be exploited to the ends of the earth but not MGM. They let the public make their stars and we were asked by a great many patrons "who is the little school teacher?" Do not muff this great picture as it is absolutely tops. Running time, 85 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BRIDAL SUITE: Robert Young, Annabella, Walter Connolly, Billie Burke—Bridal "Sour" would suit it much better. That goes double for the box office.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

BRIDAL SUITE: Robert Young, Annabella, Walter Connolly, Billie Burke—Did usual bargain night business with no complaints so guess they were satisfied. Played it one night only.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore—Another good example to the moguls that you don't have to spend a million dollars to make entertainment. Running time, 86 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore—We do very well with this series. They draw and Metro has a price on them that will allow you to eat something besides soup. Worth a playdate on your best time and will please.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore—Would call this a good average "B" picture. It did a bit better than average at the box office and seemed to give satisfaction to the patrons. Running time, 86 minutes. Played August 11-12.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Colo. Farming community patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer

Garson—An excellent picture but just a trifle too heavy for small towns. For those who like their drama heavy with a decided English accent, you could not find a better picture. For those who don't like such, stay away from it. This picture has built up for us after the opening day and is doing better than average the second day. What it will do the last day is problematical. Running time, 114 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—A slow moving, uninteresting B feature filled with unreasonable, never happened school situations. No action, no comedy. Pleased very few if any. Running time, 113 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

HARDY'S RIDE HIGH, THE: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—About our best bet and they all do above average business. Metro seems able to get enough entertainment in their pictures to please and draw, which is a lot better than many other producers can do. Maybe when the horse racing season ends, they'll start making something worthwhile.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HARDYS RIDE HIGH, THE: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Went over considerably better than average pictures but not as well as either of the former pictures in this series. Without a doubt, at least one more of these will do a better than average business at our box office. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 13-14.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

HARDYS RIDE HIGH, THE: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Definitely a box office attraction. Rooney tops as usual, as is the entire down-to-earth Hardy family. Notice the picture magazines accuse Rooney of "mugging'. Let him mug; he pays the film rental. 1000% vote here for the Hardy pictures. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 13-14.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

HARDYS RIDE HIGH, THE: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—This series is a small town natural and should be very popular in the cities as well. It has everything and, while Mickey may be slipping in popularity because of his antics, he still draws a lot of laughs here. Let's put a big word in for Ann Rutherford, too. She is entitled to a big opportunity. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 13-14.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

HONOLULU: Eleanor Powell, Robert Young, George Burns and Gracie Allen—Very good picture that should please all. Running time, 80 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

HONOLULU: Eleanor Powell, Robert Young, George Burns and Gracie Allen—This picture drew extra business and was very well liked. Picture little misleading as there is not near the hula dancing the title would make you believe there is. Running time, 83 minutes. Played August 18-20.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

ICE FOLLIES OF 1939: Original Ice Follies Cast, Joan Crawford, James Stewart, Lew Ayres—Good show that didn't make film rental. They don't go for Crawford any more. Running time, 84 minutes. —C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

ICE FOLLIES OF 1939: Original Ice Follies Cast, Joan Crawford, James Stewart, Lew Ayres—Ice skating very good, rest fair. Joan Crawford was O.K. yesterday but today is another story. Running time, 82 minues. Played August 11-13.—Otto W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

IT'S A WONDERFUL WORLD: James Stewart, Claudette Colbert—We ran it hot but didn't finish in the black. Pretty good picture but not what Metro would have you think. Buy it right if you play it or lay off.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

KID FROM TEXAS, THE: Dennis O'Keefe, Florence Rice—Our patrons liked this outdoor action picture and we did average business with it on our week-end double bill. Would be swell for a bargain night offering but not big enough for your best spot.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MAISIE: Robert Young, Ann Sothern—I wish all of the producers would take a look at this one. I didn't notice any big names in the cast; there wasn't a fortune spent in making it but here is one of the best pictures of the year from a purely entertainment point of view and it is worth a date on your best time. A little bit of everything mixed up into a picture that will make you rave.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY: Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, Franchot Tone—Burdened myself with too much additional rentals but came out on top due to a swell reception. Lots of people evidently saw it again. A wonderful picture, superbly played by all. Played July 2-5.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Lionel Barrymore, Bobs Watson, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel—This picture will cause more comment than anything you'll run and they will argue about it but will not do average business. A kind of a "Topper" or "Outward Bound" that keeps them wondering and hard to follow unless you see the start of it. Can be passed without much loss.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SAN FRANCISCO (reissue): Clark Gable, Jeanette MacDonald, Spencer Tracy, Jack Holt—Sure rattled the bushes on this one. Never knew we had so many Friday-Saturday patrons. Had a pleasant dream instead of the usual nightmare. Played August 18-19. —Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

6,000 ENEMIES: Walter Pidgeon, Rita Johnson—About all we've been getting lately is prison stuff and this is no exception but is a pretty good picture with a good cast. Worth a bargain night date and will please that kind of patron.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SOCIETY LAWYER: Walter Pidgeon, Virginia Bruce, Leo Carrillo—Very poor draw for a picture with a good story and very capable cast. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 2-3.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

TARZAN FINDS A SON: Johnny Weismuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Sheffield—It's the same old story, not enough seats for Tarzan. Pretty much the same with the exception of the son, who really did a swell job of acting and how my patrons go for these. Paid up a lot of overdue bills and made the first decent profit of the summer. Play it and don't forget to put out plenty of paper; the picture will back you in all ways.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

TELL NO TALES: Melvyn Douglas, Louise Platt —One of those little "B" pictures that packed a lot of entertainment that really pleased on a bargain night. Better than some of the big specials that cost a lot of dough. Play it and give your bargain seekers a treat.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WITHIN THE LAW: Ruth Hussey, Paul Kelly —Another picture that means nothing at the box office. Running time, 65 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

Monogram

LITTLE PAL (reissue): Mickey Rooney, Ralph Bellamy, Karen Morley—Pretty good. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

AMBUSH: Gladys Swarthout, Lloyd Nolan—If it's a gangster picture, Paramount's in town. Running time, 61 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

GRAND JURY'S SECRETS: John Howard, Gail Patrick—Good picture. Running time, 64 minutes.— P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

I'M FROM MISSOURI: Bob Burns, Gladys George —Did not care very much for this one. Rather slow and missed fire. Audience thought the same.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

KING OF CHINATOWN: Akim Tamiroff, Anna May Wong—Leave this one in the can. It did not please here and will not please anywhere. Nothing to it but six reels of film. Running time, 55 minutes. Played August 11-12.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

LADY'S FROM KENTUCKY: George Raft, Ellen Drew, Hugh Herbert, Zasu Pitts—Very good program picture which gave wonderful satisfaction. Had more favorable comments on this one than on any of the bigger pictures I've played. Lots of thrills, comedy and drama. Good anywhere, anytime. Running time, 76 minutes. Played August 13-15.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

MIDNIGHT: Claudette Colbert, Don Ameche, Francis Lederer, John Barrymore, Mary Astor—You're right, Mr. Jackson, it's a good show but it's one of the very few. Running time, 94 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

NEVER SAY DIE: Martha Raye, Bob Hope—Very good comedy which seemed to satisfy a fair sized audience. Lots of good laughs. Play it; they'll like it. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 9-10.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

SOME LIKE IT HOT: Shirley Ross, Bob Hope, Gene Krupa and His Orchestra, Una Merkel—Very good light entertainment. Did fair business. Running time, 65 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

UNION PACIFIC: Barbara Stanwyck, Joe McCrea, Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman—Here is the best of the epics but lack of color and lateness in releasing cost plenty in grosses. If you can buy this picture at a fair rental, run it because there is still an audience who haven't seen it. If we can get a date on this picture, will run again and do better than most of the later releases. —Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Republic

BLUE MONTANA SKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—Autry is losing a bit of his popularity. This production is just fair. If not for Smiley Burnette, could not say very much for it. Nevertheless, it's a fair horse opera with trimmings. —Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

BLUE MONTANA SKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—Good old Gene, in spite of the heat, they still came out to see you. A real good western.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

DESERT PATROL: Bob Steele, Marian Weldon— Accepted this as a substitute for another picture. Fair picture, fair business but print in bad shape. Played August 18-19.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

FRONTIER PONY EXPRESS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart—This series featuring Rogers started off pretty well, but it seems that they are getting into a rut and something should be done about lifting them.— Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

HOME ON THE PRAIRIE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—My first Autry but it surely won't be my last. Best week-end business in months. More power to you, Gene, keep up the good work. I can't wait till I play your next one. Running time, 57 minutes. Played August 11-12.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

HOME ON THE PRAIRIE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—We don't seem able to sell this Autry in a big way but our regulars like him and when we satisfy our week-end patrons, that means they will be back more often when they get some cash. Our Friday and Saturday business is definitely off because our farmers are broke and don't come to the show.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

IN EARLY ARIZONA: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Shirley Deane—Dear Gene, this is a good western, but you're getting too modern. Thanks for the photograph, Smiley. Running time, 57 minutes.— C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN FROM MUSIC MOUNTAIN: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Carol Hughes—Good entertainment but only for double bills. What a good producer could do with this star if he was in feature length productions. My patrons enjoy the singing of this star, also the orchestra; the little lady playing the bells was a big hit but not enough of her playing to suit my crowd. Running time, six reels. Played August 10.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN OF CONQUEST: Richard Dix, Edward Ellis, Gail Patrick, Joan Fontaine—A splendid production coming from Republic. Business not what we expected and audience reaction was fair.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

MYSTERIOUS MISS X.: Michael Whalen, Chick Chandler, Mary Hart. Another programmer from Republic. This picture can be used just as a filler in, nothing more. Republic is way off in the allocations.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

WOMAN DOCTOR: Frieda Inescort, Henry Wilcoxon, Claire Dodd, Sybil Jason—A fair program picture that certainly did not deserve the classification that Republic put it in. Audience reaction fair but business way off.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BACHELOR MOTHER: Ginger Rogers, David Niven, Charles Coburn—Grand, grand show. An All-American picture that everyone will love. The best picture ever produced by RKO. Running time, 82 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

BACHELOR MOTHER: Ginger Rogers, David Niven, Charles Coburn—The femmes flocked in on this one and patronage from the fair sex was more than generous. Did very well on it and had to hold over. Miss Rogers and the rest of the cast deliver everything that the audiences expected from them.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

WAY DOWN SOUTH: Bobby Breen, Sally Blane,

Alan Mowbray—No one liked this and I didn't blame them. And you won't like it, I don't believe. Running time, 63 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ARIZONA WILDCAT: Jane Withers, Leo Carrillo, Pauline Moore, Henry Wilcoxon—The customers went for this in a big way. Above average at box office. Running time, 69 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

BOY FRIEND: Jane Withers, Richard Bond, Arleen Whalen—We did the best business on this picture that we have ever done on Jane Withers, but ran it on a bargain night and think that accounts for it. A good show with a lot of comedy and fast action that had them wore out at the finish. Play it and get that satisfied feeling when you know they're being entertained.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

EVERYBODY'S BABY: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington—This series serves as good program film fare. They constantly satisfy and the audience reaction is good.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

EVERYBODY'S BABY: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington—Our patrons have never fallen for this family and while Fox thinks they are plenty hot, we just can't see it. Usually they are good enough to fill in on a double bill but maybe we should put them on bargain night. Not good enough for Sunday.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

GORILLA, THE: Ritz Brothers, Anita Louise, Patsy Kelly, Bela Lugosi—Slapstick that was just what the Ritz boys excel in. Plenty of belly laughs. Pleased our customers. Running time, 66 minutes. Played August 20-21.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, THE: Richard Greene, Basil Rathbone, Wendy Barrie, Nigel Bruce—The only reason the cowboy from Wahoo made this one was for trading purposes and that is just what you should do with it. Trade it for a cartoon and let them keep the cartoon. You can't understand it and you can't see it, so leave it alone.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, THE: Richard Greene, Basil Rathbone, Wendy Barrie, Nigel Bruce—Here is a good picture with all the thrills you can expect but it did the smallest business under favorable weather conditions since last May. Didn't seem to have what it took to get them in. Maybe our people are not acquainted with Sherlock Holmes. Running time, 80 minutes. Played August 11-12.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

INSIDE STORY: Michael Whalen, Jean Rogers—Good little program picture for Bargain Night. My crowd liked it. Running time, 61 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU: Stuart Erwin, Gloria Stuart—One of Fox's better "B" pictures that pleased an average week-end audience. Play it and be convinced that occasionally the producers do make one that didn't cost a million but was full of entertainment.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LITTLE PRINCESS, THE: Shirley Temple, Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Arthur Treacher—A good Shirley Temple but by no means one of her best. Reaction fair.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

RETURN OF THE CISCO KID, THE: Warner Baxter, Lynn Bari, Henry Hull, Cesar Romero—There was something wrong with this picture. Maybe it was the title or the dialect, but we tried it on a week-end on a single bill and did the worst business of the summer and Fox poured it on by allocating it up among pictures that should get money. It is worth western prices and no more; any cowboy will beat it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

ROSE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Al Jolson—We did average business on this musical and our patrons enjoyed it for a change. One of those percentage things that paid off for Ross Federal and Fox donated to the cause. Weren't satisfied with their cut but if you buy this right, play it. Much better than a lot of their pictures.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

STORY OF ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL, THE: Don Ameche, Henry Fonda, Loretta Young—A really grand picture that did not seem to have any box office appeal. I cannot understand why this reaction seems to prevail for all that saw it enjoyed it immensely.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

THANKS FOR EVERYTHING: Adolphe Menjou, Jack Oakie, Jack Haley, Arleen Whelan, Tony Martin—Very pleasing little picture. Running time, 79 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

WIFE, HUSBAND AND FRIEND: Warner Baxter, Loretta Young, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes—

> The HERALD is certainly the 'Showman's Bible'.—M. VIMINITZ, Manager, Roxy Theatre, Watrous, Sask., Canada.

A great cast was really wasted on this picture. Expected much more but was disappointed.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

WIFE, HUSBAND AND FRIEND: Warner Baxter, Loretta Young, Binnie Barnes, Cesar Romero—The picture didn't do average business on our best days and my patrons didn't lavish any praise on the merits of the production. Allocated much too high for any chance of profit. Very easy to pass and it will never be missed. You can use this date for some thing that will net a profit; this one won't.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WINNER TAKE ALL: Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Henry Armetta, Slim Summerville—A delightful little program picture that entertained our patrons. This is just a programmer but it's a good one!—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

WINNER TAKE ALL: Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Henry Armetta—Here was just a repeater of the dual string which satisfied all who came but no one came. Armetta had a swell role and the fans liked Martin also. Running time, 62 minutes. Played August 9-10.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

WINNER TAKE ALL: Tony Martin, Gloria Stuart, Slim Summerville, Henry Armetta—Enough action for the other half of your double bill and not priced high enough to hurt. Play it on your off night.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

YOUNG MR. LINCOLN: Henry Fonda, Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver, Arleen Whelan—This was a very good picture that did only a fair Sunday business and I don't know why people won't buy this kind of product because it has everything that goes to make entertainment. We gave it a good date and a good plug but couldn't get them in to see it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

United Artists

CAPTAIN FURY: Brian Aherne, Victor McLaglen, June Lang, Paul Lukas—Played to good business. A great picture for the action fans.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

FOUR FEATHERS: John Clements, June Duprez, Ralph Richardson, C. Aubrey Smith—Another paralyzing blow from England to the false prestige of our own Hollywood. Saying that this picture broke the house record without the necessity of undue exploitation is putting it mildly. I held over and am repeating it again in two weeks. This film is a striking example of how great a picture can be when it is devoid of the usual Hollywood hokum. With the embellishment of color at its best this film captures the beauty of the Nile and the Sudan and it was a great pleasure to note that this picture did not have to resort to the usual type of trick and process photography which nowadays is so common in every picture. With every member of the cast doing a great job on a great story, I believe myself correct in predicting that this will be one of the year's greatest films. Played August 6-7.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

MADE FOR EACH OTHER: Carole Lombard, James Stewart, Charles Coburn, Lucille Watson—Good picture, good acting and directing. Running time, 94 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MAN IN THE IRON MASK, THE: Louis Hayward, Joan Bennett, Warren William, Joseph Schildkraut, Alan Hale—Did very well on this in spite of the fact that this picture had some stock shots which have been in a dozen other pictures of its type. Hayward turns in a topnotch performance and is ably assisted by Joan Bennett and Warren William. Played August 3-5.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

PRISON WITHOUT BARS: Corinne Luchaire, Edna Best—Interesting. English pictures just don't go over with us. Running time, 80 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

STAGECOACH: Claire Trevor, John Wayne, George Bancroft, Andy Devine, Thomas Mitchell, Louise Plat—We didn't break any records with this picture on our best change but the faithful saw a pretty good picture and were satisfied.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Frederic March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly—A very funny picture that seemed to satisfy the audience that came. Very poor drawing power.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

WINTER CARNIVAL: Ann Sheridan, Richard Carlson, Helen Parrish, Robert Armstrong—The needle, Rastus. The grand picture to sleep on. But you may have bad dreams. Running time, 90 minutes. —W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

WUTHERING HEIGHTS: Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier, David Niven, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Flora Robson—This picture has had enough kind words said of it by newspaper and magazine reviewers that we had a good house for one night on it but it is my opinion that about 75% of our patrons felt that they ought to have their money back. Our patrons do not care how artistic a picture is or how much it costs to produce. They want to be entertained and this sort of a picture does not satisfy them. Running time, 104 minutes. Played August 6-7.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

ZENOBIA: Oliver Hardy, Harry Langdon, Billie Burke, Alice Brady, James Ellison, June Lang, Jean Parker—The kids went for this in a big way but there is almost too much "screwy" hokum in it to please serious minded adults. It should probably be double featured to get it by satisfactorily. Running time, 73 minutes. Played August 4-5.—Dr. G. A. Van Fradenburg, Valley Theatre, Manassa, Col. Farming community patronage.

ZENOBIA: Oliver Hardy, Harry Langdon, Alice Brady, Billie Burke, James Elllison, June Lang, Jean Parker—Good comedy full of laughs. Something different. Running time, 73 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

Universal

CODE OF THE STREETS: Frankie Thomas, Harry Carey, "Little Tough Guys"—Entertaining picture. Harry Carey draws well here, being remembered since old western days. Please, Lord, (via Universal) give us another "Trader Horn." Played August 1-3.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

EAST SIDE OF HEAVEN: Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy—Well received and brought a few people that were never in our house before or since. Bing's radio popularity sells the picture. Played July 11-13.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

EX CHAMP: Victor McLaglen, Tom Brown, Nan Grey, Constance Moore—A fair melodrama that drew less than average for us at the box office. A picture that men will like but will not go over with the women. Running time, 72 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

I STOLE A MILLION: George Raft, Claire Trevor, Dick Foran, Henry Armetta, Victor Jory—A good picture with a good cast but didn't draw as well as it should have in spite of the great performance which Raft and Miss Trevor turned out. Played July 27-29.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

MY MAN GODFREY (reissue): Carole Lombard, William Powell, Gail Patrick, Alice Brady; OLD DARK HOUSE (reissue): Boris Karloff, Charles Laughton, Melvyn Douglas, Gloria Stuart—Did pretty well considering we played it on Preview Sunday-Monday, hard days being dark house for this town as we can't make the grade with preview Sunday-Monday days. Two programs is our policy. Played July 16-17.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

PHANTOM STAGE: Bob Baker, Marjorie Reynolds—Seemed to satisfy the western fans. Played June 16-17.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

SPIRIT OF CULVER: Jackie Cooper, Freddie Bartholomew, Andy Devine, Henry Hull, Jackie Moran—Grossed less than "Newsboys Home." Pleased the Cooper fans. Played June 27-29.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

THREE SMART GIRLS GROW UP: Deanna Durbin, Nan Grey, Helen Parrish, Robert Cummings, Charles Winninger, William Lundigan—This picture did all we expected it would do. Very entertaining. Played June 13-15.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

UNEXPECTED FATHER: Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy—A sure sleeper, this will lend itself to great exploitation for it delivers the goods in a down to earth story with the entire cast showing championship form. Sandy, of course, steals the show, even from a scene snatcher like Auer. Played July 23-24.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

WHEN TOMORROW COMES: Charles Boyer, Irene Dunne, Barbara O'Neil—Most of us exhibitors in playing a Stahl picture take it for granted that we should do good business on Mr. Stahl's pictures, so much so that we are not surprised to have had to hang out the SRO sign. To those exhibitors who may face stiff opposition, throw this picture against anything you may be opposed with. Boyer and Dunne come through as usual with a stellar performance, ably supported by Barbara O'Neil who steals the picture in spite of the limited footage given her and the masterful way in which she interprets a rather difficult role will be a contributing factor to the box office potentiality of this picture.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

YOU CAN'T CHEAT AN HONEST MAN: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," W. C. Fields—We have read adverse reports on this picture but couldn't believe these stars could fail. But this did very ordinary business for us.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

DEVIL'S ISLAND: Boris Karloff, Nedda Harrigan—Did real well on a week-end double bill. A bit gruesome but it takes some red-blooded action to satisfy our chewers and spitters that infest the place on Friday and Saturday nights.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Swell picture and satisfied audience but business way off of what it should have been. Will please most any audience. Liked here better than "Union Pacific" but did not have "U. P.'s" drawing power. Running time, 104 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Very good and did standout business. Am a bit late in reporting on this but feel justified in recommending it to anyone who has not yet dated it. Will try to get a re-run on it and know that this picture will do better than some of their punks. Was out to the preview and saw plenty of people who were interested in the movies.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY: Pat O'Brien, John Payne, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page—Plenty of action in this one. A little heavy in spots but did okay business on it. Played August 9.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. General patronage.

JUAREZ: Bette Davis, Paul Muni, Brian Aherne, John Garfield, Claude Rains—A lavish and so-called colossal production with outstanding characterizations by Muni, Davis and Brian Aherne. With all its bigness, it's definitely not for small towns. Business poor. Running time, 127 minutes. Played August 16-17.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

KID FROM KOKOMO, THE: Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, May Robson—A very good comedy with May Robson supported by a weak cast consisting of Pat O'Brien, Wayne Morris, Joan Blondell. Plenty of action but a picture that will not draw any extra business. Robson is the whole show. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Dick Powell, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page, Ronald Reagan, Helen Broderick—Just put sleeping cots in your auditorium and when your audience wakes up, assure them that they haven't missed a thing, except the most boring picture that our audience ever sat through and that "my friends" is their reaction unanimously, almost. If there is any credit due anyone, it is not Powell and it is not Sheridan. It is a little lady by the name of Broderick.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

OKLAHOMA KID, THE: James Cagney, Rosemary Lane, Humphrey Bogart—Just up our alley for a small town; best business this year. Play it in any small community and for once get out of the depression. Lots of action and good entertainment. Running time, 84 minutes. Played August 17. —A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

THEY MADE ME A CRIMINAL: John Garfield, Ann Sheridan, "Dead End Kids," Claude Rains—The box office said "no." 'Nuf said. Running time, 90 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

TORCHY RUNS FOR MAYOR: Glenda Farrell, Barton MacLane—Very good picture for Saturday double bill. Running time, 58 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

A-DUCKING THEY DID GO: Three Stooges—They can't get enough of these Stooge comedies. Plenty good like all others in this series. Running time, 17 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

BERMUDA-ISLE OF PARADISE: Columbia Tours—Interesting pictorial subject.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

BIG TOWN COMMUTERS: Columbia Tours—Considered just fair.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

COMMUNITY SING: No. 5, Third Series—A nice job of photography. The singing was okay but it seems that the photographer tried to steal the show.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town patronage.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL: Washington Parade, No. 3—Very fine!—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

KNOW YOUR HISTORY: No. 1—Might prove to be interesting series.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

KRAZY'S BEAR TALE: Krazy Kat Cartoons—Can O. K. this one. A few complained that the story varied which was what it obviously intended to do.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

KRAZY'S SHOE SHOP: Krazy Kat Cartoons—Lacked human interest. Purely mechanical. Reminded us of a musical and we don't like musicals. —Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MONTMARTE MADNESS: Harry Stockwell—Leave this one in the can. Audience reaction was terrible. Running time, 10 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

MUTINY ON THE BODY: Broadway Comedies—The poorest comedy we ever had from Columbia. This is something unusual for them. Pass this one up.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

NIGHT AT THE TROC: Music Hall Vanities—O. K. for the jitterbugs, or to put spice into a sordid program.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

SCRAPPY'S SIDESHOW: Scrappy Cartoons—Good for the kids and that is all. Just average. Running time, six minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 7—Well received as they always are.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS: No. 8, Series 18—Very good skating interest.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

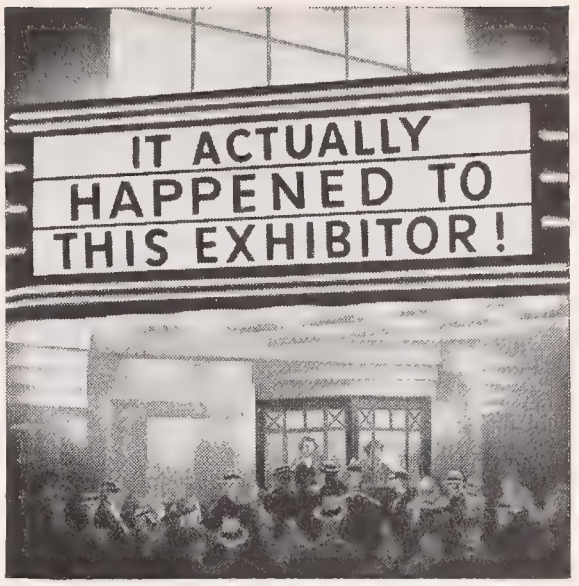
TERMITES OF 1938: Broadway Comedies—Brothers, believe us when we tell you this is a comedy that your mother-in-law would enjoy. Play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

TROUBLE FINDS ANDY CLYDE: Andy Clyde—When good comedies are made, Columbia makes them. This one is excellent. Plenty of laughs for the crowd. Running time, 17 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WE WANT OUR MUMMY: Three Stooges—Rather funny, but the ending came rather abruptly.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

WORM'S EYE VIEW, A: Scrappy Cartoons—A good cartoon.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

YES, WE HAVE NO BONZANA: Three Stooges—The best Stooge we have run this season. Give it extra billing. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.



Educational

NATURE'S SONGSTERS: Treasure Chest—No entertainment value. Have yet to get a reel from this company of any value. Prints terrible at all times.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MGM

ART GALLERY: Cartoons—Pretty good cartoon in color.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

TRUE STORIES FROM ALTEC FILES

O. A. KAFER
Manager,
Masonic Theatre,
New Bern, N. C.

Sound, Acoustics, "Periscope," Aid Oldest U. S. House

NEW BERN, NORTH CAROLINA—"With the exception of three years during the civil war, our theatre, the oldest in America, has been in continuous operation since 1812," said O. A. Kafer, manager of the Masonic Theatre here. "We also have one of the oldest sound equipments in use.

"The new Altec modification plan, applied to our sound system in the last few months, has brought about a very noticeable improvement in the high and low frequencies, and we notice a new clarity in both music and voice.

"When we remodeled our auditorium recently, our Altec inspector, M. F. Harrod, gave us invaluable assistance, in planning the proper acoustical treatment, lighting effects and wiring changes.

"Also, the observation port holes in the projection room are only 30 inches from the floor. Harrod designed a periscope consisting of a system of mirrors, which permits a full view of the screen at standing height for our projectionists."

Without obligation to yourself, the Altec inspector in your vicinity will gladly explain how the quality of sound reproduction from the equipment now in your theatre can be improved.

BEAR THAT COULDN'T SLEEP, THE: Cartoons—Very good cartoon in colors.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CULINARY CARVING: Pete Smith Specialties—Very interesting and instructive subject.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

FOLLOW THE ARROW: Pete Smith Specialties—Stepped back a ways for this one. A most remarkable exhibition of archery skill but seeing is believing.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

GREENER HILLS, THE: MGM Miniatures—Too far fetched for us. Just average. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GREENER HILLS, THE: MGM Miniatures—Very interesting short on the guy who's always dissatisfied with his lot.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

HELP WANTED: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—A "Crime Doesn't Pay" that deals with crooked employment agencies and their racket. Worth a date because these always please our patrons and your patrons are no different.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kanstas. Small town patronage.

HOW TO EAT: Robert Benchley—Entertaining.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla Small town patronage.

HOW TO SUBLET: Robert Benchley—Not so hot, especially for patronage like we have here.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

PICTURESQUE UDAIPUR: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Average travel talk.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

PRESTO CHANGO: Merrie Melodies—Not so hot. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RADIO HAMS: Pete Smith Specialties—The amateur radio operators and how they have helped in emergencies. Play it.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SINGAPORE AND JAHORE: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—FitzPatrick has yet to make a poor travel talk and the color sets these off to the enjoyment of our patrons.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WANTED: NO MASTER: Cartoons—Just a cartoon that fills in running time.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Paramount

ALADDIN AND HIS WONDERFUL LAMP: Popeye the Sailor Special—Swell. Boy, they really went for this one. Drew better than the feature. Play it by all means. Running time, 22 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

BARNYARD BRAT: Color Classics—Fair cartoon. Have seen them much better. Running time, seven minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

CIRCUS CO-ED: Paragraphics—Very good novelty reel of training circus riders. They'll like this one. Running time, 10 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

FAREWELL VIENNA: Paragraphics — Disappointed our patrons. Strictly for those interested in heavy overtures. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

RKO Radio

ARCADE VARIETIES: Lillian Roth—Very good musical reel with a wealth of good talent. Pleased very well. Best in this series so far. Running time, 11 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

FOX HUNT: Walt Disney Cartoons—This one is O. K. Old but still plenty funny. Running time, seven minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, THE: No. 9—A credit to the industry. For young and old alike, both educational and entertaining. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, THE: No. 10—Extra good. On the South.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, THE: No. 10—Properly exploited O. K. in larger towns. Definitely not here. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, THE: No. 11: War, Peace and Propaganda—Audience reaction very poor to this one. Skip it. Running time, 19 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira Iowa. General patronage.

READIN', RITIN' AND RHYTHM: Nu-Atlas Productions—Nothing outstanding here. Not even a good musical. Running time, one reel.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

STYLES AND SMILES: Nu-Atlas Productions—Just a fair reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

AFRICA SQUAWKS: Terry-Toons—Kids liked it but that's about all. Poor cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

GANDY THE GOOSE IN THE FRAME UP: Terry-Toons—Just a filler cartoon as are most of them.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

GOOD NEIGHBORS: Magic Carpet Series—Swell travelogue beautifully photographed.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

GOOD NEIGHBORS: Magic Carpet Series—Excellent travel reel with swell photography. Give this your best time. Running time, 11 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

HUNTING DOGS: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Good reel for dog lovers. Get your hunters interested and they will come out to see this one. Very good.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

PRIZE GUEST, THE: Terry-Toons—Average cartoon. It's different. Running time, seven minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

SAND HOGS: Adventures of the Newsreel Cameraman—Entertaining one reeler.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Universal

GOING PLACES: No. 62—Not so interesting as some, but it passes O. K.—Elmer A. Slaybough, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MARCH OF FREEDOM: Special—If you got the same deal that I did, you will have to play it; if not, play it anyhow. It's your American duty and privilege to do so.—Elmer A. Slaybough, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MARCH OF FREEDOM: Special—100% propaganda and the public hates to pay to see propaganda as much as the exhibitor hates to pay to run it. If you don't play it, you will not have missed anything. Running time, 20 minutes.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

ONE ARMED BANDIT: Lentz Cartunes—A real reel. A neat ending.—Elmer A. Slaybough, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

STRANGER THAN FICTION: No. 62—Here is a "Stranger Than Fiction" that is really good. Do not be afraid of this one, as it is better than average. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

CHICKEN JITTERS: Looney Tunes—One of the best of the black and white cartoons this season.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CHICKEN JITTERS: Looney Tunes—Excellent. Everyone liked it. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CLYDE LUCAS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Very fine short.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

CLYDE McCOY AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—A Nice band act. No different than all the others. Running time, one reel.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

DETOURING AMERICA: Merrie Melodies—Warners had something here but muffed it. As a result, it is only fair. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GADGETEERS: Vitaphone Varieties—No entertainment value and the sound on the print terrible. Why have to pay for them to produce such bunk? Running time, one reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

HUMAN BOMB, THE: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Most of these Floyd Gibbons "True Adventures" are very good and our patrons like them. Can use on any spot.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

JOHNNY SMITH AND POKER HUNTAS: Merrie Melodies—Good cartoon in color.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LINCOLN IN THE WHITE HOUSE: Historical Technicolor Featurettes—Swell featurette that will certainly please any audience and should be run by every theatre owner regardless of location.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LIVES IN PERIL: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Very good with plenty of suspense. Does extra business when advertised. Running time, 11 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre. Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MERLE KENDRICKS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Good band reel. Enjoyed by my patrons. Running time, one reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

OLD GLORY: Merrie Melodies—Pleasing to the eye but not much comedy.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

OLD GLORY: Merrie Melodies—One of the best cartoons in its class. While not intended to be funny, it is timely. Very good for patriotic holidays. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

POLAR PALS: Looney Tunes—A fair cartoon. Running time, seven minutes.—A Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

RITA RIO AND HER ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—She can't dance, she can't sing, and why put Miss Rio in pictures is beyond me. Just fair. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

ROBBIN' GOOD: Vitaphone Varieties—Interesting reel exposing gambling tricks.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

WARDROBE GIRL: Lester Allen, Ginger Manners—A fair Brevity, but Allen was given second place to Miss Manners, who is not so hot. We have seen Lester Allen on the stage and know what he can do. Give him full swat once and we will have a Brevity worth showing. Running time, 17 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YOU'RE NEXT TO CLOSING: Cross and Dunn—Just no talent nor appeal. Shelve it. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SERIALS

Republic

DAREDEVILS OF THE RED CIRCLE (Episode 1): Herman Brix, Charles Quigley—This new serial is starting off good.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Releasing New Film

Imperial Pictures will release "The Dictators Lullaby," in September with a first run on Broadway scheduled. Frank P. Donovan wrote and directed the picture which features Johnny Dale, Libby Blair and a large cast. The photography was the work of Billy Bitzer, early D. W. Griffith cameraman.

New Monogram Managers

Monogram has appointed Wm. M. Duggan, Jr., to succeed F. Howard Butler as manager of the San Francisco exchange and Walter Wessling in place of Cecil Farnes in Portland, Ore. Mr. Wessling had been branch manager for GB in Portland and Seattle for five years.

Small Signs Buchanan

Edward Small Productions, Inc., has appointed Buchanan and Company, Inc., New York, to handle the advertising on the forthcoming Edward Small production, the title of which will be announced shortly.

Projectionists Set For World's Fair

Joseph Basson, president of IATSE Local 306, New York, reports that "Projectionist Day," New York World's Fair, September 7th, at the Little theatre, Special Events Building, has received the approval of a large number of I. A. locals throughout the United States and Canada. In addition to those who will be present on this occasion, a large delegation is due in New York.

Among those who will address the meeting or be present as guests are: President George E. Browne of the IATSE; U. S. Commissioner General Edward J. Flynn; N. Golden, U. S. Department of Commerce; Earle Hines, president of International Projector Corporation; also from Internation Projector Corporation; Herbert Griffin, vice-president, and E. L. Worfolk, comptroller, and A. E. Meyer, general sales manager. Also: A. J. Palmer, Dr. A. N. Goldsmith; E. A. Williford, president of the SMPE.; F. H. Richardson; J. J. Finn; Walter E. Green, president of National Theatre Supply, and James Frank and Will Smith of the New York branch of National Theatre Supply.

Making arrangements for "Projectionist Day" are H. Oppenheimer and L. Kaufman, Local 244; Harry Rubin, director of projection for Paramount Pictures; Frank Cahill, Warners; Charles Horstman, RKO and Charles Muller, Radio City Music Hall; Joe Basson, president of Local 306; Thad Barrows and Jimmy Burke of Local 182, Boston; Victor Wellman of Cleveland Local 160; Arthur Martens and Dick Hayes of Local 650, Westchester County; Frank Cummings, W. Nagengast and J. Engle of Long Island Local 640; G. Edwards; O. Kafka; C. Eichhorn and P. A. McGuire.

The purpose is to give recognition to the projectionist as a citizen and technician who has made a contribution to the success of the motion picture.

Addresses and motion pictures which will be shown will historically cover the industry during the past forty years. Also present will be William Reed, who was the first "operator" of whom there is any authentic record.

Improve Altec System

Altec Service Corporation has announced that as a result of new developments in Altec's system of laboratory and field life tests, vacuum tubes supplied for theatre sound systems by the company will receive a ten-fold increase in life guarantee. Western Electric tubes previously guaranteed for 100 hours' service will now receive six months' unconditional guarantee. The large 50-watt size, now carrying a full guarantee of 100 hours' service, will be subject to an extended prorated guarantee on any tubes which fail within 1,000 hours.

An attempt on the part of Columbus, Ohio, exhibitors to organize a booking combine has been abandoned for the time being, it is reported. Virgil Jackson was head of the proposed organization.

The fall convention of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers will be held October 16-19 at the Hotel Pensylvania in New York.

Resuming the Bluebook School

Based on the new Second Revision of the Sixth Edition of F. H. Richardson's Bluebook of Projection, the Bluebook School, conducted in the HERALD for many years by Mr. Richardson, is resumed with the first question of the series, submitted below. The method will represent some departure from past practice, however; projectionists are asked to submit answers, as formerly, but the answer ultimately published often will be that of Mr. Richardson himself, or of other specialists in projection and sound, rather than an answer submitted by a projectionist "student". This, it is felt, will serve the real purpose of the "school", which is to encourage and assist in study, and at the same time facilitate preparation of effective answers.

The first question is as follows:

QUESTION NO. 1: What is feedback? Reverse feedback? Interelectrode capacitance? Oscillation?

Answers will begin to appear as soon as several questions have been submitted.

Republic Sells 1940 Product to Griffith

Griffith Amusement Company's 42 towns in Oklahoma and 35 in Texas have bought Republic Pictures' entire 1939-40 product, one of the largest deals closed this year by the distributor.

William Underwood, Texas franchise holder; Sol Davis, Oklahoma franchise holder, and Clair Hilgers, southern district manager, represented Republic, and Horace Halls the Griffith circuit.

Broadcasters Seek Free Music Market

Ed Kirby, director of public relations for the National Association of Broadcasters, said this week that the NAB is "not necessarily trying to put the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers out of business, but we are trying to establish a free market from which we can purchase our music." The statement followed a NAB subcommittee meeting in New York.

The Broadcasters are meeting September 15th to determine what might be done to develop other and less expensive sources of musical material. Neville Miller, president of the association, charges that $4,000,000 a year, paid by broadcasters, is "too stiff" a price to pay ASCAP for its music rights.

The meeting this week considered tentative plans submitted by Sidney Kaye and Stuart Sprague, attorneys who were retained to draft proposals to be submitted to the September 15th meeting in Chicago.

Regardless of concessions which ASCAP may make, the NAB will continue its efforts for new sources, Mr. Kirby said. The committee will have further meetings to formulate a definite program.

The judiciary committee of the Alabama State Senate last week gave a favorable report to the Stakely bill aimed at the asserted song monopoly of ASCAP. The bill was urged by Alabama radio stations, many hotels and other businesses which the committee was told have suffered heavily because of charges for broadcasting and for orchestra playing of ASCAP songs.

The Stakely measure would require the society to pay a three per cent annual state gross receipts tax and would prevent the society from charging broadcasters and others a flat fee of from $500 to $1,000 a year, plus five per cent of the gross revenues of any company playing the copyrighted music.

Dionne Newsreel Causes Dispute

A dispute between the guardians of the Dionne Quintuplets and the Newspaper Enterprise Association, Cleveland, involving the picture rights for the girls, has been referred to Judge J. A. S. Plouffe for hearing at North Bay, Toronto, this month.

The NEA has refused to pay further amounts under a $20,000 a year contract because newsreels and still cameramen took pictures of the Quintuplets when they met the King and Queen at Toronto. The cameramen were said to have been members of the newsreel pool covering the royal tour under the jurisdiction of the Canadian Government. The NEA claims the exclusive privilege and claims the contract has been broken.

Twentieth Century-Fox holds the exclusive right to make feature length pictures in which the Dionne girls appear and this contract is said to have one more year to run with the unexpired privilege of two more feature productions.

Pacific Files Answer

Pacific National Theatres, Inc., has filed an answer in the New Castle County court of chancery, Wilmington, Del., to the bill for the appointment of a receiver under Section 43 of the General Corporation Law, brought on July 7th by Margaret M. Stevens and W. Ernest Choate, the complainants. The company denies the inability to carry on business and asks the court that complainants take nothing by reason of their bill of complaint, and that respondents be granted its costs and disbursements incurred in defending this action, and such further relief the court deems proper.

Warner Brothers this week obtained from Samuel Mandelbaum, federal judge, in New York a one week extension of time to answer the $5,000,000 suit of Fritz Kuhn, which charges libel in "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

Thomas Noonan, New York supreme court justice, this week denied the application of Leo Manton and Eleanore Ninor, known as Ninor and Manton, for an order directing Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., and Vitaphone Corporation to appear for an examination before trial. Ninor and Manton seek $25,000 damages, injunction and accounting against Warners and Vitaphone charging illegal use of the title "Si, Si, Senorita" in a short subject.

Thomas Noonan, New York supreme court justice, this week directed Darryl F. Zanuck to submit to examination before trial in Los Angeles in connection with the suit of Robert E. Sherwood and The Playwrights Producing Company, Inc., against Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation. Plaintiffs must pay costs of the examination under the order. The suit charges unfair competition with the Sherwood play "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" in the film "Young Mr. Lincoln."

Seeks New Trial In Patent Suit

An application was filed on Friday in the United States district court in New York by Virgil C. Crites for a new trial before a different judge of his suit against Warner Brothers Pictures, United Research Corporation, Radtke Patents Corporation and Albert A. Radtke. On July 7th Mortimer W. Byers, federal judge, dismissed the suit, which charged infringement of a patent called "method and means for optically reproducing sound," after a two weeks' hearing. The application will be heard Tuesday.

Deny Libel Charges

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., has filed an answer in the U. S. district court in New York denying generally the complaint of Katherine Moog and demanding a trial by jury. Miss Moog is plaintiff in a suit for $75,000 damages against Warners, charging libel in the picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy."

Alperson Details Ordered

Edward L. Alperson this week was directed by Samuel Mandelbaum, federal judge, to file a bill of particulars in his suit for $135,000 damages and 10,500 shares of Grand National stock charging breach of an employment contract. Grand National Pictures, Inc., Educational Pictures, Inc., and Earle W. Hammons are named defendants in the suit.

OBITUARIES

Sidney C. Howard, Playwright, Dead

Sidney Cole Howard, playwright, was killed at his summer home at Tyringham, Mass., August 23rd, when a tractor he was cranking in a garage started up and crushed him to death. He was 48 years old.

Mr. Howard had put in a morning of work on a new play based on Carl Van Doren's "Benjamin Franklin" and, as was his custom, was going to seek relaxation in physical work on his 700-acre estate. The chore he had set for himself was harrowing a 28-acre field which he had recently bought to extend his property.

Mr. Howard was one of the country's major playwrights and film scenarists and a leading force in the contemporary theatre. He won the Pulitzer Prize in 1925 for his play, "They Knew What They Wanted."

He and four other leading American playwrights banded together in what is known as the Playwrights Company, and he, alone of the five, had no offering on Broadway. The company planned to open the season with Mr. Howard's "Madam, Will You Walk?" which he described as "a cock-eyed version of the Faust legend." The other members of the company were Robert E. Sherwood, Elmer Rice, Maxwell Anderson and S. N. Behrman.

Most of his obituary notices in the press called attention to his criticism of Hollywood for a lack of standards and taste. Although a critic of the industry, Mr. Howard wrote many screen plays including the much discussed "Gone With the Wind," from Margaret Mitchell's novel. Other screen plays of his included "Dodsworth" and "Arrowsmith," adaptations of Sinclair Lewis' novels. He also wrote the screen versions of his plays, "The Silver Cord" and "Christopher Bean."

Mr. Howard's widow, Leopoldine Blaine Damrosch, is the daughter of Walter Damrosch.

Mark Vance Dies

Mark Vance, theatrical newspaperman, died August 22nd at Saranac, N. Y., after a long illness. Mr. Vance at various times was editor of Show World, editor of NVA News, and a member of the staff of Variety.

Floyd Tomes, United Artists representative in San Antonio, died there August 21st of an internal hemorrhage.

Alliance Extended to Canada

Budd Rogers, vice-president and general manager of Alliance Films Corporation, has extended his distribution territory to include the Dominion of Canada and the Maritime Provinces.

United Detroit Theatres is dropping the price of children's admissions on all 17 houses. At the Michigan and Palms-State, first runs, the admission drops from 25 to 15 cents, while at the second runs, it drops from 15 to 10 cents.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com.-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com.-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

WAR and SCREEN

THIS week the American motion picture sat with furrowed brow facing a world at war, considering the status of an industry grown to world dominion now turned back upon itself, confronted with the problems of an international institution in a market which is narrowing in toward national boundaries.

Reactions were as many and diverse as typical of this sensitive, whimsical business of the motion picture, ever equally spectacular in its darings and in its conspicuous, tremulous conservatisms and indecisions.

Opinions of the outlook varied from foreboding of woe to anticipations of a new burst of prosperity in a market of publics seeking escape from the stress of war.

First reactions were adverse. Wall Street bought up on industrials of what it deemed "war baby" promise, and sold down on amusement stocks anticipating loss of at least half of the revenues for film overseas. Also chiefs of the motion picture industry in New York went into solemn conclave to talk of devices for living within the income of a shrinking market, discussing, most tentatively, moves ranging from sharply reduced production budgets for Hollywood to horizontal payroll cuts across the industry, including alike production and distribution machinery.

The mood of the pessimists was accentuated somewhat by the fact that the anticipated restrictive effect of war was superimposed upon the already long evident trends of influence manifest through the recent months, and years, of preparation for war in wide European areas. The war seemed to them a push on a rolling ball.

ADDITIONALLY, the stresses of the period found unmistakable but somewhat indirect expression in fanning strifes entirely within the American industry, with the pressures tending to strain thin spots in alleged bonds of approximate unity. But that is another story, probably of many chapters to come.

The optimists—and most of them of abundant prior experience of motion picture operation through the days of the First World War—pointed back to the prosperity of the screen in the strife-torn world of 1914-1918.

That was the period in which the Allies bought abundantly of the output of Fort Lee and Hollywood, when the American film industry became the world industry. In that period Famous Players - Lasky and its Paramount rose to dominance. Adolph Zukor became the overlord. Dramatic, picturesque Lewis J. Selznick drove from the management of World Films into spectacular magnate status under his own flag. The persistent muddle-genius of Carl Laemmle made Universal a world success. The Brothers Warner, less conspicuously, started carving a niche that was to grow into a castle. As a single, if special but indicative specimen case, it may be observed that the Allies in the spring of 1916 paid a million cash dollars to access of the two-reel product of one single comedian, Charles Chaplin. William Fox, in the period, built an independent domain which was destined to write its story in major millions.

THE "Million Dollar Mystery", made by the Thanhouser studios at New Rochelle, was in its eighth episode when Germany marched into Belgium, and went romping through its fifteen installments to a final profit of 700 per cent. "Cabiria", famous spectacle picture from Italy, and the last, was flaming in trade attention under the ministrations of Harry Raver. Pathe News had a daily release, and Warners were offering "Across the Border", which was in "three thundering parts", and announcing immediately "The Battling British".

Chemically the world had been dependent on the German dye trust and speculation in hydroquinone and metol, important in film development, started at once. Jules Brulatour's Paragon Laboratories in Fort Lee were said to be seeking a corner on the American supply of metol. Today America is chemically independent.

Officers and employees of the French invasion of the American field, Eclair, Pathe and Gaumont, were being called to the colors and sailing for la Patrie. That was the last of French production influence in America. With the war of 1914 came substantial surrender of the world to the American motion picture.

THIS week's tidings from Hollywood and reports upon its plans for production, recorded in the news pages of this issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, indicate that the confusion of impact of war has passed almost as swiftly as it came, and that the production organizations are leveling off immediately on a program of meeting the changed market outlook with output geared to the prospects.

Meanwhile, as the weekend neared, New York began to take a calmer view and lay plans for doing business—regardless. Just as Hollywood began to concentrate on programs of making pictures for the home market, New York began to look a bit more intensively at the selling of that market.

Thursday's message to Hollywood from New York urged acceptance of the obvious necessities of the day as occasion for a long desired revision of production costs to figures consistent with the state of the world map.

There will continue to be customers—and pictures for them to look at.

ARDENT student of the arts of the screen, Mr. B. A. Aughinbaugh, director of visual education for the state of Ohio, reports on an examination of the dictionary revealing that 90 percent of the nouns of our language are visual, verbal pictorializations, while only about 5 percent pertain to sound. The eyes, it seems, have it.

This Week

Thunder of Guns

As sinister war machines moved toward raging catclysm in Europe last week the film industry withstood the first shocks of conflict and settled back to take stock, plan for operation as usual for the duration, and seek out whatever bright spots the situation might offer. Late in the week the picture was varied. Light and dark facets listed below are detailed in the stories in this issue.

Most immediate and obvious was the fact that the beginning of hostilities had choked off the market in England and France, last large market remaining in Europe. Hope was held out that theatres ordered closed might reopen, at least in England where trade officials petitioned the Government for permission to resume, estimating a loss of $4,500,000 weekly. Production, of course, was suspended. There were 17,010 theatres, 192 production companies and 124 distributing companies in the war area. A general story on Europe and the war starts on page 15 and on pages 32 and 33 are pictures of executives of American companies in the war areas.

A survey of the Hollywood studios showed a full inventory, the fortuitous result of the building of a backlog of product with the threat of an industry strike in mind, a threat since removed. At the start of the war 82 pictures, an unprecedented total, were ready for release; 41 were in various stages of shooting or cutting, and 22 were scheduled to start within two weeks. Hollywood's preparedness and the reaction of executives through which, incidentally, ran predictions that the industrial upturn in this country will have a happy effect on box office receipts, are detailed on page 18.

In tune with the times 43 features on war subjects are available or in production. See page 23.

In Canada, pledged to support the Crown in the war against Germany, distribution and exhibition executives were cheerful. They foresaw a dull period of about two months followed by substantial increases in attendance and revenue. By-line stories from the Dominion are on page 31.

Newsreel companies were still uncertain as to what restrictions would govern their coverage of the hostilities but it was expected that strict censorship now in force would be continued. See page 25.

Buying Pool

The buying pool plan for independent exhibitors, which was temporarily tabled in the Spring, will be revived at the convention of the Allied Theatre Owners of Oklahoma in Oklahoma City, September 26-27, according to Orville Von Gulker, head of the Allied organization.

Test in Illinois

Two test cases filed in Illinois courts in recent days may have vital effect on the status of the Sandquist bill to regulate the length of motion picture programs in the state, vetoed by Governor Henry Horner last month. Both cases challenge the validity of a veto announced more than ten days after submission of a bill to the state executive. The circumstances apply in the case of the Sandquist measure which was designed to eliminate double features by limiting programs to a definite time.

The test cases and their probable effect on the motion picture measure are described on page 52.

Jubilee Plans

Headquarters of the Golden Jubilee committee in the New York offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America announce that 213 circuits and scores of individual owners in every section of the country have reported plans for extensive campaigns in observance of the 50th anniversary date, October 1st to 7th. Since the first announcement the observance has received favorable editorial and news story notice in 80 newspapers.

Progress of the observance is reported on page 56.

ASCAP

Wednesday saw the defeat of the bill attempting to restrict the operations of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers in the state of Alabama. Passed last week by the Senate, the House ways and means committee defeated the measure by a vote of five to three. The legislature adjourns Saturday, so the bill, at week's end, has practically no chance of being revived. Supported by radio stations and hotels, the measure would have required the Society to abandon its licence fee of five per cent of the music users' income in favor of payment on a "per use" basis, with composers and publishers being required to fix the amount of the fee on each composition.

Louis Frohlich of the law firm of Schwartz and Frohlich, counsel for ASCAP, will go to Lincoln, Nebraska, next week to prepare for trial of the Society's action testing the constitutionality of that state's anti-ASCAP law. Trial is scheduled for federal court at Lincoln on September 18th.

That Code

The code of fair trade practices continued, this week, as expected, in the recumbent position in which the industry has found it since the blow it received at the hands of Mr. Thurman Arnold of the U. S. Department of Justice recently. Officially, it is remaining "in status quo," according to William F. Rodgers, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer general sales manager and chairman of the distributors' code committee. Mr. Rodgers said that he "had nothing new to report," and would be obliged to so advise the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California at its convention on Friday, despite the fact that when in California recently, Mr. Rodgers had told Alfred Galston, president of the California ITO group, that he would have a statement for the group at its meeting Friday advising them of the code situation.

Mr. Rodgers conferred on Wednesday and Friday with Ed Kuykendall, MPTOA president, at the former's New York office. Mr. Kuykendall, in addition to discussing the status of the code since the Department of Justice declared it, too, a violation of the law because it perpetuated existing practices is making efforts to induce individual distribution companies to put basic trade practice concessions into effect.

"There are certain ordinary trade practices which every company can safely make a part of its film selling policy, and the MPTOA will insist that this be done," Mr. Kuykendall said.

Trade problems of the industry were the subject of several exhibitor meetings this week, as reported on page 44.

Munich Settlement

The raucous war involving talent guilds and unions and plain old line unionism as represented by the projectionists and stagehands in the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees was ended abruptly this week in a Munich settlement reached only a few hours before a strike call was to have been issued which threatened to engulf the entire amusement industry in strife. Under the agreement, arranged, it was reported, in great part by William Bioff, who returned to active union life after a year's retirement, the IATSE revoked the charter which it had granted to the American Federation of Actors when that group was ordered dissolved by the parent Actors' union, the Four A's; Ralph Whitehead, head of the Federation and storm center of the entire dispute, was abandoned to his own devices, and Sophie Tucker, who had defended Mr. Whitehead vigorously, was reinstated.

Announcement of the agreement and the story of its arrangement are in the article on page 61, followed by a resume of the dispute.

The Associated Actors and Artistes of America on Thursday designated the executive secretaries of its six major branches as a committee to work out plans for a "one big union" setup. The move which had been considered on and off for several years is apparently a reply to recent criticism from the executive council of the American Federation of Labor.

The committee consists of Paul Dullzell, Actors Equity; Kenneth Thomson, Screen Actors Guild; Ruth Richmond, Chorus Equity; Emily Holt, American Federation of Radio Artists; Leo Fisher, American Guild of Musical Artistes, and Maida Reade, of the American Guild of Variety Artists.

Columbia Election

Stockholders of Columbia Pictures will hold their annual meeting at the company's New York home offices on September 20th. There will also be a meeting of voting trust certificate holders Harry Cohn, Jack Cohn, and A. H. Giannini. Scheduled as business for the stockholders will be election of seven directors for the coming year; three year contract extensions for Harry and Jack Cohn; approval of the issuance to Samuel J. Briskin of an additional option for 2,500 shares of common stock; approval of the company's absorption of Columbia Pictures Corporation, Ltd., of California, and Columbia Pictures Distributing Corporation, a Delaware concern.

Columbia showed a net profit of $2,000 for the 52 weeks ended July 1st, after provision for federal and other taxes. This compares with a net profit of $183,392 for the comparable 52 week period last year.

Questionnaire

The Department of Justice, pursuing its preliminary tactics in its suit in equity in New York against major producers and distributors this week asked the court to order the defendants to submit answers in full to a questionnaire which, if authorized, would be the granddaddy of all questionnaires. A total of 68 main and 89 subquestions are submitted covering every conceivable phase of corporate organization, production, pooling and lending of talent and production assets, distribution, exhibition and the defendants' histories. The answers, gathered together in one place, would constitute the greatest survey of motion picture company organization and business secrets ever assembled.

The nature of the questions is discussed on page 55.

One More

The list of 40 odd anti-trust suits at present pending against circuits and major distributors in various sections of the country was increased this week with the addition of one filed in Dallas by L. L. Dunbar against the Texas Interstate circuit. Rapid moves were indicated in the criminal contempt action brought by the Department of Justice against Fox West Coast and distributors when the district court at Los Angeles fixed October 16th as the preliminary hearing date.

News of these and other anti-trust actions is on page 54.

UA Resigns

United Artists Corporation last Thursday forwarded its resignation to the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

On Tuesday morning, first and exclusive disclosure of the fact was published by Motion Picture Daily, which indicated that the procedure was a consequence of differences between United Artists and Balaban and Katz Corporation, Illinois theatre circuit, over product bargaining. B&K is Paramount's largest theatre partner.

On Thursday, while another New York trade daily was publishing a denial from the Hays office of United Artists' resignation, a spokesman in Hollywood said to William R. Weaver, Hollywood editor of Motion Picture Herald, that "the affair is a price issue between UA and B&K which could be ironed out."

"Voice" Muted

The Motion Picture Democratic Committee did not achieve national recognition as "the voice of Hollywood political liberalism" Thursday evening, as expected, because United States Attorney General Frank Murphy, who had been called to Hollywood by the Committee to award a scroll to the producer making "the most valuable contribution to the democratic ideal," begged off, temporarily, "due to the war situation." He set September 18 as the tentative date.

Hollywood Probe

The impaneling of a special grand jury to hear evidence on motion picture cases within two weeks was announced Thursday by Charles Carr, assistant U. S. attorney general, studying income tax and labor racketeering charges in Hollywood. William Bioff, former IATSE official, has been notified, Mr. Carr said, to hold himself in readiness for a subpoena to go before the grand jury. Attorney General Frank Murphy will be present to address the jury on the film cases. When Mr. Murphy was last in Hollywood he presented evidence to the grand jury resulting in a mail fraud indictment.

The scope of the investigation is described in a story on page 61.

Answers Kuhn

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., on Tuesday in federal court in New York answered the $5,000,000 libel suit brought by Fritz Kuhn, head of the German-American Bund, by conceding that "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" was based upon the activities of the bund and stating that they would prove that scenes of spying and perversive activity portrayed there are true.

Hollywood does a Biography

"Hollywood Cavalcade" attends to the social side of the business with portrayals of premieres, parties and the testimonal dinner above at which Mack Sennett is proposing a toast.

Below. Glamour, in the feminine gender, is introduced with the bathing beauties, and comedy with the Keystone cops, right.

The movies make the acquaintance of the muse of comedy and pie-throwing becomes a symbol of screen comedy. Above, the situation leads up to a custard barrage and, right, the after-effect.

NOSTALGIC reminiscence, common to those of humble origin who have struggled and fought their way to success in the fierce competition of the world, has motivated various efforts to tell the story of the screen on the screen. It has its latest expression in a feature-length production by Darryl Zanuck for Twentieth Century-Fox in which is told the story of the motion picture's rise from an amusement enterprise conceived "across the tracks" to a giant art-industry comparable with other modern businesses from a product not more substantial than a shadow and as intangible as the fame it engenders.

"Hollywood Cavalcade" traces the industry through its lusty, brawling youth, following the thread of a story spun from the distilled essentials of all Hollywood stories. The trials and successes, hopes and disappointments of the director and actress who are its protagonists are a generalized picture of a hundred careers, many of which now are legend, many of which are still in the making. In the unfolding, the history of motion picture production is told, not through an excursion to the movies' attic relics but through re-creations of the classic episodes of screen history, portrayals of how they were conceived and made.

Thus in the telling is shown the evolution of screen comedy through the Keystone cops and the pie-throwing episodes which have become symbols of its earliest manifestations. Similarly the first and immediately successful experiments with glamour, in the feminine gender, are shown. Authenticity is lent by the presence of Mack Sennett whose name is welded to the tradition of these symbols. The autobiography continues through the production emphasis on the fast-moving adventures known universally then and now as westerns, and the profligate trend toward lavish spectacle. It concludes with the achievement by the screen of a voice, a point symbolized by Al Jolson re-enacting his singing of the "Kol Nidre". The whole is filmed in color with black and white inserts where necessary to preserve the atmosphere of the periods re-created.

The parallel technical evolution is recorded by the inclusion in the cast of a cameraman whose share in the hero's triumphs is given proper value, below.

Important points in motion picture history were marked by emphasis in turn on ridin' and shootin' melodrama, above, and lavish spectacle, below.

The bit player next to Stuart Erwin cannot but be identified as impersonating Cecil B. DeMille, a name looming as large in film history as any of the fictional characters portrayed.

"Cavalcade" concludes its history with the coming of sound, marked by the scene, below, in which Al Jolson repeats his singing of the "Kol Nidre."

WAR HALTS HOLLYWOOD'S LAST BIG EUROPEAN MART

But Executives See Widened Market in Latin America; Newsreels, Radio and Press Closely Censored Overseas

The film industry virtually the world over turned this week from the first flush of excitement attending the mobilization and first casualities of Europe's armies in the second "World War," to the stark realization of their possible effects on the creative and economic structure of the motion picture.

Production, distribution and exhibition in the warring nations of England-France-Poland and their German adversary were at a standstill, with it anyone's guess as to when they might move again.

As late as Wednesday dispatches said a few theatres were still operating in Warsaw.

With the warring countries unavailable as customers for Hollywood's product, even if only temporarily, not a single large country in Europe is open for U. S. motion pictures: Russian has not bought our films for years; Germany was practically closed when Adolf Hitler took over, extending his influences filmwise and all ways to Austria and Czechoslovakia; Italy witnessed the withdrawal of U. S. majors last New Year's; Spain is still to be reopened following its Civil War.

$4,500,000 Called Weekly Loss

Estimating the weekly loss to the industry through accumulating overheads to be $4,500,000, a joint British trade deputation representing the Kinematograph Renters' Society and the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association on Wednesday asked the British Home Office to consider the reopening of motion picture houses in England.

The deputation claimed that film entertainment was a public service, and that motion picture houses were safer than many other places in which the public was now assembling.

"All cinemas closed by Government decree, but the chief constable in each city has been empowered to reopen some or all cinemas in his district according to the experience gained in the vulnerability of air raids. This in my opinion means that districts far away from the large centers will be permitted to reopen shortly, but to a limited degree and with the possibility of restricted screening hours and of a restriction of the number open in each district. . . ."

All of this caused the motion picture industry of both Broadway and Hollywood Boulevard to "face the war," mindful that the countries now engaged represent an estimated 30 per cent of the world revenue of American distributors, and about 60 per cent of their foreign revenue.

With a rapidity equaling only that which plunged Europe into conflict last week, the motion picture and the radio, like press and cable transmitters, were abruptly engulfed in a maze of censorship and other restrictions, from England across to France and into Germany and Poland, down to Spain and across to Canada, on to Australia and New Zealand, even to our own Capital, where Washington concluded that propaganda films from abroad and others now here, or to be made, might be barred under the new neutrality proclamation. Radio broadcasts will not be interfered with—unless and until they strike at one of the belligerents, again coming under the aims of neutrality, announced the President's secretariat.

Outstanding this week in the attempt to conduct a normal motion picture business on these shores was the inability of the managements of both major distributors and their newsreel affiliates to obtain from the war shores news of the status of their own operations and personnel.

Stock Tendency Upward

On Tuesday, the first day of stock exchange business after the long Labor Day holiday, and the day on which hostilities had actually begun, film stocks dropped, probably in anticipation of a loss of revenue from abroad, and in large contrast to the gains made by other issues, notably the "war babies."

However, film stocks and bonds showed mixed gains and losses Wednesday with the general tendency upward. A number of the securities regained the losses suffered on Tuesday. The gains continued Thursday.

There was some talk in New York quarters of foreign film executives that the war might bring a revision of England's Quota Act, favorable to the U. S., in view of the undeterminate cessation of British production. There is said to be, however, quite a supply of product from all sides now reposing in the vaults of London's renters.

Many in the U. S. remember that it was as a result of the last war that Hollywood attained world domination of the screen, due to the worldwide warring nations giving attention almost solely to guns and gunnery and related subjects.

Money Restrictions Feared

One of the more serious anticipated effects of the present conflict is restriction on the transfer of earned funds by U. S. companies to this country from the war zone. The British Consular Office in New York said Wednesday that it had not been informed of any such orders as yet. It will be remembered that the majors' suffered heavily from monetary transfer restrictions in the Spanish Civil War and in the Sino-Japanese undeclared war.

Limited Activity

However, despite the menace of Nazi bombing, nightly blackouts and depleted staffs, British production is showing signs of limited activity.

The Denham Studios, now housing the London Stock Exchange executives, also is the scene of the final production touches on Alexander Korda's "The Thief of Bagdad" and work on a semi-official Royal Air Force production.

Gainsborough Pictures, Gaumont British subsidiary, continues work on "The Band Wagon" at Shepherd's Bush Studio, and Michael Balcon is making "David Goliath" at Ealing. With Mario Zampi reshooting war sequences of "Live and Let Live," David Rose, head of Paramount production in England, promises continuation of production for Paramount.

Studios at Walton-on-Thames, Elstree and Highbury either are continuing or planning to continue shooting.

Information from Paris concerning production and distribution has been scarce since the outbreak, but from London's Wardour Street came word that the staffs of studios and distributors were heavily depleted, and that virtually all of the windows of those establishments stood behind sandbags.

The major studios there already have arranged to transfer their heaquarters outside the possible bombing areas. Some offices already are operating from beyond London.

Pinewood Studio already has been taken over by Lloyds and certain other studios are scheduled for Government requisition. The Cinematograph Exhibitors Association will move its headquarters to Reading and the K.R.S. to Slough.

Columbia plans to move to Tunbridge Wells, Pathe and Associated British Pictures Corporation to Welwyn, United Artists to Gerrards Cross, Gaumont British to Devonshire, etc.

Film distribution will be centralized through a Kinematograph Renters' Society clearing house at Willesden on the outskirts of London.

No complete emergency trade policy or program has been formulated as yet and there is some criticism current concerning the lack of organization and the widespread distribution to various houses.

Trade showings of films present a potential problem, with a possible need for revision of details of the Films Act.

Elsewhere in this issue, MOTION PICTURE HERALD reports on Hollywood facing the war; identifies U. S. distribution chiefs in the war zone; lists some 43 war or related features now available or in production for U. S. screens; discloses the nature of the strict censorship of motion pictures and radio in many places; gives the reactionss of the war on nearby Canada; lists the production, distribution and exhibition structure of each of the countries in the war zone, and discloses Washington observations on the possible effect of the U. S. neutrality law on propaganda films in this country, among other war-film subjects.

Morris Goodman, Republic's vice-president in charge of foreign sales, and Ben Y. Cammack, assistant general foreign sales manager for RKO, hold the opinion that, although while

"WILL HOLLYWOOD STOP SENDING FILMS ABROAD?"

Closing of theatres in England and France, a temporary condition during the first days of war scare, according to cables from both London and Paris, has brought up the question in New York and Hollywood as to the extent of business later in the war zone for Hollywood films following this first curtailment.

Walter J. Hutchinson, foreign sales chief for Twentieth Century-Fox, in an interview conducted for one of the industry's short wave institutional broadcasts to Latin America, this week set at rest some of the speculation by citing the continuance of exhibitions during the Spanish Civil War and presently in the Sino-Japanese War, although showings were interrupted for a time in a particular locality by military operations.

EXPECT THEATRES TO REOPEN

maybe not in the immediate future, the war is bound to have a favorable reaction on the playing time of American pictures in Latin America, when present stocks of French and other foreign pictures are depleted.

Mr. Goodman, who recently conducted a survey of Latin America, feels that the competition of French pictures had become acute in those territories, particularly in the larger cities, despite efforts of the American producers to appeal to their Southern neighbors by means of special story treatment and casting notwithstanding. Accordingly, he is of the opinion that the European War should afford an opportunity for the American industry to cultivate that field further, provided more attention is paid to the requirements of the market insofar as stories and casts are concerned.

Independents in Stalemate

Another anticipated development from the new war is the stalemate of the dozens of independent distributors who handle European pictures for domestic and export consumption from New York.

The equipment manufacturers, on the other hand, are highly optimistic. It is no secret in U. S. equipment quarters that German products, due mainly to trade agreements with Latin America, have been enjoying widespread business in South America. Now it is felt that Germany will be unable to carry out its sound and projector commitments.

While foreign sales executives of the motion picture companies, in New York this week, affected an optimism over U. S. film prospects abroad, based upon the wars in China and Spain, when many continued to patronize theatres, they will have to contend with difficulties in expedition, transportation, and insurance of films to the warring countries.

The immediately imposed censorship in Poland, France, Great Britain, Germany and elsewhere has hampered the foreign departments of the U. S. companies in doing business.

Sees Exchange Restrictions

At RKO on Tuesday, it was said the home office had received no word from its foreign representatives since last Saturday; at that time, a cable from London stated that RKO's London headquarters had been transferred to Borehamwood. It was said that foreign sales chief Phil Reisman, on board ship from Buenos Aires to New York (expected to arrive in New York on September 18th) was attempting to communicate directly with RKO's offices in the affected countries.

Walter J. Hutchinson, foreign distribution manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, expected no complete cessation of business in Europe, but saw exchange rates and restrictions as the chief difficulties to be expected.

Monogram's foreign sales chief, Norton Richey, on Tuesday, knew only that Monogram's prints in France, had been moved to "somewhere outside of Paris."

He saw closing of theatres in France and Great Britain as "a blow to us, and to all the companies"; but he also saw their reopening soon, "because theatres are necessary to morale."

Prints of the company's "Wolf Call" and "Rose of the Rio Grande" were en route to Poland this week, Mr. Richey said, adding that he did not know what had happened to them.

The company's Paris office will remain open, Mr. Richey insisted. Its manager is a Swiss, over 40 and married; and its assistant manager is a Russian; so the two are not expected to be called for military service.

An increase in South American business was foreseen also by Mr. Richey, a view concurred in by other foreign sales executives, all for identical reasons: "French production will stop, if it hasn't already—and they are our biggest competitors in South America. I don't believe any of the European countries at war can carry on with production—their studios are too good targets for air raiders."

Arthur Kelly, of United Artists, said that shipments were not being held up by his company, and that theatres eventually will try to open in Europe, their closings being merely temporary. United Artists, he noted, has an interest in the Odeon circuit of Great Britain; and one of its chief producers, Alexander Korda, is in that country.

At MGM this week, it was stated that the Little Change in Trade Relations with Japan as Result of Nazi-Russian Pact

Recent events in Japan, precipitated by the Russo-German non-aggression pact which left Nippon out in the cold and brought about the formation of a new government, are seen in Washington as having little effect upon our trade relations with that country, in the immediate future at least.

Some time will elapse before the U. S. Administration will consider the negotiation of a reciprocal trade agreement with Japan, at best. At less than best, there will be no change whatever in the Administration's attitude that Japan, having discriminated against American commerce, having interfered with it also in China and having subsidized exports to this country, is not entitled to either preferential treatment or any benefits which might be derived from trade agreements with other countries.

The United States has never had a trade agreement with Japan, in the sense of the reciprocal treaties which have been negotiated with a number of other countries. It did have a commercial treaty, which was denounced.

It might be pointed out that President Roosevelt also made similar moves against Germany, depriving that country of the benefits of the reciprocal trade agreements and refusing to negotiate such a treaty with the Nazi government.

Officials in Washington, naturally, are not discussing the Japanese situation very freely. Diplomatic matters, actually, are talked about only when the government of the talker has something to gain thereby. In the present state of the world, officials are more close-lipped than ever—as a matter of fact, they are not at this moment interested in trade agreements, but are concentrating their thoughts and energies to keeping this nation aloof from a war-mad Europe.

At the same time, a mere change of government in Japan will have no effect in changing the Washington attitude on trade relations. Japanese governments have changed before, but not necessarily for the better, so far as their attitude toward the United States is concerned.

But the new course which Japan must map out for herself in world affairs may eventually bring about a closer cooperation with the United States, England and France, who for months have borne the brunt of her hatred for the white race.

American, British and French trade in China has been demoralized, their investments imperiled and their property destroyed by the Japanese in the course of their undeclared war. German property, trade and investments did not suffer, because Japan was a party to the anti-comintern pact to which Germany, Italy and Hungary also were parties.

Japan looked to Germany for support, first, in her rape of China and, then, in a struggle with Russia for domination of Asia. Germany signed a pact with Russia, and Japan was not only left out on a very weak limb, but faced the certainty that, if Russia aided Germany in Hitler's war for control of Europe, Germany certainly would aid Russia against the "Yellow Peril" of Asia.

So, it is expected, one of the first efforts of the new Japanese government will be to woo the three countries it has been slapping around. It can safely be said that Japan will not ask for a trade agreement with the United States until our resentment over her treatment of our nationals, the stripping of our women for searching, the destruction of American plants and the coldly considered campaign against all things American, English or French, has been abated.

It is too early to talk about trade pacts, officials in Washington believe, for Japan does not need trade concessions nearly as badly as she needs a friend. And, today, Japan has not a friend in the world.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENTS HAMPERED

company stood to lose 60 per cent of its foreign revenues, and 24 per cent of its entire world gross, if all the four warring groups remained closed to its films.

London Offices Transferred

On Tuesday, it was said that the company's last word from abroad had been on last Thursday from England. This was that the London headquarters had been transferred to Rickmansworth.

Metro has only one theatre in Great Britain, the new Empire in Leicester Square, London. It also has a two story office building, in Paris.

In the offices of Arthur Loew, head of the company's foreign organization, the company's viewpoint on the conflict was expressed thus:

"We think that, at the start, there will be a slight diminution of business, but, after that, we think of the future with optimism. This is based upon our experience with the wars in Spain and China, where strangely enough, there was a great rise in attendance at movies in large cities. The reasons for this rise seem to be the many soldiers on leave, the large amount of money in circulation, and, above all, the desire of the people to forget. The theatre is valuable to a government that desires to keep up morale."

Money Transfer Question

At Columbia Pictures, Joseph McConville, foreign distribution chief, who returned last week from Europe, expressed uncertainty over the status abroad.

"No one knows whether money will come out of Europe, or not," he said. "If it should happen that the money will be permitted transfer, business will be very good, in spite of the war, because the war doesn't mean the theatres will remain closed. However," he added, "the chances are that revenue will be cut off. We did a lot of very good business in Spain during that war; but it didn't do much for us; we couldn't get any money out."

Mr. McConville estimated that the four warring groups gave 25 per cent of the company's total revenue; and 50 per cent of the company's foreign grosses.

Called to Arms

Many of Columbia's personnel in England have been called for military service, Mr. McConville said, but he also felt certain that the offices would carry on.

The London offices had been transferred to Wardhurst Castle, about 50 miles from the city, the Columbia foreign manager said, and noted that it was a place he had picked himself, before leaving for America.

In Paris, the Columbia offices are remaining open under the Continental supervisor Alex Stein. A Paris ordinance had required the transfer of prints to a point outside of Paris, he noted.

Columbia's Continental sales manager, Nick Perry, is carrying on from Stockholm.

Mr. McConville explained that the disposition of affairs in Europe was in the hands of Columbia's European men, and, in the lack of information there wasn't much that the home office could do. He said, on Tuesday, that no word had been received from England, France, or Poland. H. Wundheiler is the franchise holder in Warsaw; and Mr. McConville did not know what his plans were.

Production Realignment Doubted

No realignment of production, because of the European war, is expected at Twentieth Century-Fox, Herman Wobber, the company's distribution chief, said this week.

"We have already sold, and are selling, a program to exhibitors that will not be changed in any respect," Mr. Wobber said, and added that U. S. business was good, new records were being set, and the only difficulties his company, and others, might expect immediately from the war situation were those encountered in obtaining British players. He concluded:

"Naturally, all companies are watching the European situation with the gravest concern, but at this time it is virtually impossible for any one to reach a long range opinion as to its effect."

Censorship in Britain

From England, the report is that the reopening of British studios, if and when, will be attended by rigid censorship, and the making of pictures only for propaganda. Alexander Korda, United Artists' producer, is reported conferring with British officials on the making of "patriotic" subjects.

When theatres in England reopen, it will be only at certain hours, by Government and local stipulation, under certain lighting and other restrictions, and only in certain locations.

The American newsreels, employing the nationals of the countries served, have had to send outside reinforcements to their crews in Britain and France.

American companies were shipping film to France and Great Britain up through last Saturday—and, according to sales executives, will at least attempt to do so throughout the conflict. American boats, of course, are preferred as carriers.

Australian Money Control

Regulations gazetted this week in Australia give the Treasurer control of all overseas exchange transactions in order to insure the conservation of exchange for "legitimate purposes only," according to a cable from the Australian Department of Commerce received Tuesday by the Australian Trade Commission in New York.

Control is vested in the Commonwealth Bank and trading banks have been appointed as agents in this connection.

The regulations provide for the prohibition of the export of money except through the above channels, and for such transactions to be at prescribed rates of exchange.

Stars and Executives Speed Homeward

Scores of film stars and studio and home office executives were among the thousands of Americans speeding homeward this week from the war zone, and a large number were still stranded at the piers—even as the first large group of American "refugees" were being rescued from the sinking of the British steamer Athenia, in which more than 100 were lost.

Among those arriving this week, by Clipper and steamer were Harry M. Warner and his wife, Tyrone Power, Annabella, Norma Shearer, Grace Moore, Douglas Fairbanks, Sr., and Mrs. Fairbanks, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hope, Madeleine Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, Helen Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Yates and Gene Autry.

When the torpedoed Athenia went down among those rescued were Nikola Lubitsch, 10 months old daughter of film director Ernst Lubitsch, and the little girl's governess.

Among those who arrived from abroad last week were Sonja Henie, Harry Cohn, J. A. McConville, J. J. Milstein, Edward Small, Norman Krasna, Lee Shubert, Victor Orsatti, George Raft, Russell Muth, James Stewart, Josef von Sternberg, Constance Bennett, Roland Young, C. C. Pettijohn, Charles Boyer and Gloria Stuart.

WILL SEEK TRADE IN LATIN AMERICA

The United States is looking towards Latin America wondering what trade could be diverted to this country from European countries now engaged in war. A Department of Commerce spokesman said this week that experts here and abroad would try to determine what commodities were most affected by the war, and what European orders for merchandise from Latin America would be canceled. He added that officials were considering a suggestion that they call a general conference of leading business organizations to consider the problem.

England and France, next to the United States, were the major dealers in Latin America last year. German barter agreements have been a source of concern in Washington in recent years.

In 1938 the United States exported $504,000,000 worth of merchandise to 20 leading Latin American republics and imported $554,000,000 from the same countries.

SOUND FILMS CHEER GERMANS AT FRONT

The Germans are using portable sound pictures to bolster the morale of their soldiers in Poland, Louis Lochner, Associated Press correspondent, reported on Wednesday from "somewhere in Poland."

Mr. Lochner, the only American newsman allowed with the German front line troops, reported the use by them of portably printed newspapers, copies of which are bought by soldiers in "trade": loaves of bread and cigarets.

SHAW CALLS THEATRE CLOSINGS "STUPID"

George Bernard Shaw in a letter to The London Times protests against the British Government order closing all theatres. He calls the decision "a master stroke of unimaginative stupidity." Mr. Shaw wants to know how the government proposes to amuse the soldiers on leave and keep hundreds of thousands of evacuated children out of mischief and traffic dangers.

CAMERAS SHOOT HOLLYWOOD INTO COMPLETE PRODUCT PREPAREDNESS

More and More Executives Say Industrial Boom Will Increase Theatre Receipts to Help Offset the Foreign Closings

by WILLIAM R. WEAVER
in Hollywood

Any similarity between Hollywood's remarkable state of preparedness for the war and a result of intuition, foresight or inside information is, as the phrase goes, purely coincidental. Studios had been feverishly piling up a backlog of completed pictures in preparation for quite another kind of war, the local variety waged with strikes, now fortuitously averted by intervention of William Bioff, IATSE minister without portfolio. (See page 54.) This backlog numbered 82 pictures, inclusive of most of the highly-budgeted features on the 1939-40 schedules, on the Sunday morning when England's Neville Chamberlain came to the end of his appeasement policy.

41 More Shooting

With 41 additional pictures in various stages of shooting and 22 more slated to start within the fortnight, not even the most pessimistic among the producers woh went into secret session with their cabinets on Tuesday morning could work up a state of tingling suspense regarding the effect of overseas hostilities on the exhibitor's supply of product, quantitively or qualitatively, as of the next six to nine months. The optimistic, who by Wednesday night had won most of their gloomier confreres over to their point of view, argue that with reasonable caution on the cost side there need be no important deviation from charted course this side of this time next year, by which time steps can have been taken.

Pessimists and optimists alike agreed, unanimously but not for quotation, that retrenchment is mandatory in view of a thus far unpredictable curtailment of foreign distribution. Opposed to this, however, and gaining supporters steadily as the week wore on, was the contention, bulwarked by Wall Street's interpretation of the economic prospect, that an industrial boom in this country will increase box office receipts in such degree as partially to neutralize the effect of foreign theatre closings. Brought forward quickly, too, was the argument that British and French governments shortly would arrange for the opening of theatres under conditions enabling their populations to partake in safety of cinema entertainment regarded as essential to national morale. That production in those countries is impracticable under wartime circumstances, necessitating reliance upon American films, is accepted in Hollywood as self-evident.

Two producers to whom an outbreak of war in Europe is not a new experience broke the otherwise solid front of executive reticence on Wednesday.

Says Box Office Always Rises

Richard Rowland said, "It calls for tightening our belt, but there's no cause for panic. It may mean loss of 50% of the foreign revenue, which was about 25% of the total gross. On the other hand, Spain, which was closed, is opening up, and receipts in this country are bound to go up in whatever wave of prosperity we experience. Box office receipts always go up in wartime. The situation may result in cutting out some of the costly mistakes made at the top and in cutting down costs of some of the million dollar pictures that ought not to cost that much anyway. And it may give some new talent a break.

Hal Roach announced that there will be no deviation of any kind from his announced production schedule, either as to pictures made, casts or budgets. His "Captain Caution," early reported as about to be abandoned, will be made as announced.

Certain anticipated developments didn't develop.

No New Regulations

Joseph I. Breen, Production Code Administrator, said on Wednesday no new regulations governing subject matter or manner of presentation have been proposed, inside or outside the industry, and that no word on the matter had been received or was expected from Washington.

Tom Bailey, chief of National Screen Service in Hollywood, which makes trailers for American and British use and United Artists trailers for France, said no cancellations or curtailments have been ordered.

Central Casting Bureau said no players registered there had checked out for military service abroad.

Charles Chaplin reaffirmed that his feature comedy, "The Dictators," subject of much speculation before the outbreak of war and more since, would go before the cameras this weekend.

S. Charles Einfeld, Warner director of advertising and publicity, said new conditions would not bring about curtailment of his company's extensive national advertising campaign. He voiced the same opinion held by others.

Talent agents, in line to feel direct effects of talent salary adjustments, declined to discuss potentialities.

Act to Maintain Wages

Contrariwise, the executive board of International Photographers Local 659 addressed a letter to William Bioff, former personal representative of the IATSE president, George Browne, and lately spotlighted as mediator in the AAAA's about-face adjustment of its differences with that organization, requesting him to represent the local in negotiations with producers. A Local 659 spokesman said the other IATSE locals are expected to make duplicate requests. The move is interpreted locally as the first step toward forestalling possible producer proposals to adjust wage scales downward.

Product announcements directly due to the outbreak of war have been few.

Samuel Goldwyn, who halted production of "Raffles" on Saturday, because his star, David Niven, was going to war, and resumed on Thursday when it turned out he wasn't, has announced "Blackout over Europe," the first film to be inspired by the conflict. Jo Swerling has been assigned to write the story, which will be about air raids over an unidentified European metropolis, and James Basevi, who achieved the earthquake in "San Francisco," and the hurricane in "Hurricane," will handle the special effects depicting devastation.

Substitute Maugham's "Outpost"

Warner Brothers has abandoned "The Sea Hawk," for which a tank stage was in expensive construction, and substituted the more timely titled "Outpost," by W. Somerset Maugham, as a vehicle for adventurous Errol Flynn, who will not be going to war either.

Twentieth Century-Fox has shelved "Uncensored," formerly titled "Scotland Yard," and will substitute a story as yet unchosen. It is understood, although unconfirmed officially, that "Johnny Apollo," a scheduled Tyrone Power vehicle, also may be abandoned.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has completed all its big pictures scheduled for release between now and February, and is required to go ahead immediately on its less costly features only. Mentioned as in executive discussion and possibly slated for postponement is the company's expensively geared "Quo Vadis" and two other high budgeted films. MGM also started to reduce studio personnel.

Paramount's Status Similar

Paramount is in similar position with regard to its upper bracket committments. "Rulers of the Sea," and other heavy negative cost projects have been completed and are awaiting release. A parallel circumstance prevails at RKO-Radio, where "Hunchback of Notre Dame" is nearing completion, and the always prepared Warner studio has 27 finished pictures in its vaults. In line with established Warner policy, however, some of the films announced for future production may give way to subjects of more timely and topical character, the studio affirms. It was decided to rush two high budgeted films and nine comedies.

Columbia's Harry Cohn arrived in town on Monday and went into session with his staff on plans for such elaborate announced projects as "Tree of Liberty," "Arizona" and "His Girl Friday." At press time no statement as to whether these would be proceeded with as planned or tempered with economy was obtainable.

David O. Selznick started production of "Rebecca," an expensive venture, and said his studio would proceed along the lines previously drawn.

Monogram's Scott Dunlap said previously announced increase of budgets for certain named films would be maintained, possibly expanded.

Republic operations were unchanged pending arrival next week of Herbert Yates, company head, for conferences.

HOW HOLLYWOOD STANDS ON PRODUCT

The status of representative Hollywood studios with respect to product at outbreak of war last weekend was as follows:

Columbia had five pictures completed, three shooting and two ready for the camera. Goldwyn had one ready for preview and one shooting. MGM had four awaiting preview and five on the stages. Monogram had one ready for release and five ready to start. Paramount had nineteen completed films in its vaults, nine on its stages and two in preparation. RKO-Radio had three films ready for release, five shooting and two slated for immediate start. Republic had three in hand, one shooting and four in preparation.

FOR WARNER BROS. 1939-40 SEASON

1. We announced on March 14, 1939 that we would release 48 feature pictures, 104 short subjects and 48 trailers. We also stated that "Quality is not a Passing Fashion". Our production performance since this date and the pictures finished and available for release justify that statement and announcement.

2. An exhibitor who licenses all feature motion pictures offered shall have the right, if he be not in default, to eliminate proportionately, among the several price brackets, 20% of the total number of features licensed, if the average of the license fees for all features shall not exceed $100., and 10% if such average is in excess of $100.

3. We confirm our policy of long standing of allowing an exhibitor to eliminate any feature which may be locally offensive on moral, religious or racial grounds.

4. We expect all top bracket pictures to be played on preferred playing time.

5. We will license a run, designated by us of our features in any situation to any exhibitor of good reputation as a theatre operator and customer, whose theatre is in good condition and who operates under a policy which will not substantially reduce our revenue from any other run, provided such exhibitor and we can agree upon the number of features to be licensed, and other terms and conditions.

6. We confirm our policy of long standing and our intent to continue to license our pictures to our regular customers who prove to be satisfactory.

7. No exhibitor will be required to license short subjects, trailers or reissues as a condition of licensing features.

...erring charge will be made in connection with the licensing of any of our feature pictures.

...problems of our customers, and for the mutual benefit of our customers ... a number of test exhibitions of pictures in order fairly to ... and we will allocate features to particular price ... thereof, to first run exhibitors in those ... of the availability of each

43 WAR OR RELATED SUBJECTS NOW AVAILABLE OR ARE IN PRODUCTION

Features and Shorts Rushed by Studios to Supplement Reissues and Product Released in the Past Season

Forty-three war or related subjects are now available or are in production, from majors and independents of Hollywood, alert to popular interest in topical events.

The United States government has approved MGM's "Thunder Afloat," which tells a story of how Yankee fishing smack and tug boat men frustrated a German U-boat invasion of the Atlantic Seaboard in the last big war. As newspapers were screaming the latest European war developments, MGM received from the U. S. Navy Department official approval of "Thunder Afloat." It is planned to rush the picture into distribution at once. Simultaneously cooperation was indicated for 20th Century-Fox's forthcoming "20,000 Men a Year." The substance of this story is the development of an American military aviation reserve by the training of young men in colleges.

Others Ready for Distribution

Other pictures ready for distribution which have war backgrounds are Paramount's "Disputed Passage," the setting of which is the China-Japanese conflict; its "The Television Spy," a tale of international intrigue for the possession of military secrets, and the Goldwyn picture, "The Real Glory," which concerns warlike events ensuing after the Philippine Insurrection. Meanwhile other war pictures are being charted for production while work continues on several more.

For weeks Charlie Chaplin has been working on "The Dictators," the story of which satirizes the modern totalitarian rulers. More directly to the point, Ben Judell has announced that "Hitler, The Beast of Berlin" will be the most expensive feature of the current season of the newly formed Producers Distributing Corporation.

With the exception of Columbia and Universal, every other major organization has plans for war stories. Winfield Sheehan's first production for MGM will be "Florian," and though the background action pertains to the 1914-1918 war, the locale is Austria and the point of the story turns on the experiences of the horse and man in war time. MGM also will make a new version of the famous war story, "Journey's End" and, with "Balalaika" practically finished, there is a distinct possibility that "I Had A Comrade," theme of which deals with happenings inside Nazi Germany, will be set for quick production.

Paramount Considers Two More

Supplementing its two completed productions, Paramount is reconsidering the production of "Air Raid" and "Navy Nurse," themes of which are identified by the titles. Both stories have been in possession of the studio for some time awaiting an appropriate time for production.

This week 20th Century-Fox started "20,000 Men a Year," the story of which was inspired by President Roosevelt's plea for young Americans to learn flying in the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. Also 20th will proceed with the production of "Fr. Duffy of the Fighting 69th" while Warner Brothers remains firm in its determination to make "The Fighting 69th." The subject matter of both concerns the chaplain of the famous New York regiment during the World War.

As recently as this week in a national magazine Walter Wanger reaffirmed his intention to produce a picture based on Vincent Sheean's novel, "Personal History," a great deal of which concerns the author's experiences and observations connected with the late Spanish revolution.

Six Warner Stories

Warner Brothers has six stories including "The Fighting 69th," on its current production program. Two of these, "Underground" and "The Bishop Who Walked With God," have their locales in and deal with events that are momentarily significant in Germany. The first named will deal with anti-Nazi activities in Germany, while the second has to do with the career of the submarine commander, Martin Niemoller, who became a clergyman after the war and subsequently was sent to a concentration camp for his anti-Nazi preachments. Two of the pictures have war aviation backgrounds with "Eyes of the Army" making use of how planes, blimps and balloons are operated in scouting and combat operations, and "Sabotage In The Air," telling a story of how the nation's safety is menaced during war time. The sixth contemplated production, "Stuff of Heroes" will tell a story of the doughboy in the trenches and on the fighting line.

While this survey was made on September 1st, it is reasonable to expect that other companies will announce additional pictures inspired by current events.

Past Season Subjects

During the past season, as the motion picture companies realized the deep interest the public were taking in international affairs, such pictures as Warner's "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," Columbia's "Clouds Over Europe," MGM's "Idiot's Delight," United Artists' "Blockade," Paramount's "Beau Geste," RKO's "Conspiracy" and many others were readied for release. In each of these pictures war, espionage, sabotage and general spy activities have been the main theme or an important factor that was woven through the plot.

Short subjects, too, have been utilized to re-

Capital Sees Possible Barring of Propaganda Pictures by Neutrality

President Roosevelt's neutrality proclamation, effective at 1:36 P. M. (E.S.T.), Tuesday, is seen in Washington as possibly raising barriers against the entry into this country of propaganda films from abroad, which may be bolstered by definite orders as the Administration announces its plans to make neutrality effective.

At the same time, the President's call on September 3rd for neutrality of action by the citizens of the United States is seen as a tacit ban on the showing of such pictures, and this, too, may later be provided for by definite ruling.

For many months, Administration agencies have been at work formulating policies to be adopted in the event of war in Europe. Assured that such a war would come, sooner or later, Government officials sought to develop a program which would minimize the dislocation of the normal routine of industry, agriculture, finance and shipping—a program which might readily be developed into a war economy in the case of emergency.

In preparing for the state of neutrality in which the country now finds itself, these officials were forced, for the first time, to give consideration to radio, developed since the World War, and to foreign propaganda films in the production of which many countries have engaged in the past few years.

Just what definite action will be taken with respect to motion pictures has not yet been disclosed. Undoubtedly, there will be a sharp tightening up of the regulations concerning the inclusion of Army and Navy material; Army posts and forts, Naval bases and shore establishments will probably become forbidden ground for motion picture cameras. But that there will be any interference with regular production schedules at the present time is highly doubtful.

Under the application of the President's neutrality policy, it is probable that production of Charles Chaplin's planned "The Dictator" might be undesirable; the showing of foreign films from warring countries may be banned, and the exhibition of American-produced war pictures, such as "All Quiet on the Western Front", might be affected.

But State Department officials refuse to comment on individual cases under present circumstances where the orders amplifying the neutrality proclamation are still under consideration. The film situation, they point out, is only one of a number involved in the general question and will be dealt with at the proper time.

However, they hold that the motion picture industry and everyone else in the country are aware of the Administration's policy and can readily decide what is proper and what is not for furtherance of that policy.

veal to the theatre audiences the impending dangers to democracy that dictatorship affords. In the Crime Does Not Pay series MGM released "While America Sleeps" a twenty-one minute subject of the practice of espionage in an airplane factory. March of Time, producers of current event subjects, have produced such films as "Inside the Maginot Line," "Uncle Sam the Good Neighbor," "The Refugee—Today and Tomorrow," "Background for War: The Mediterranean," "Japan: Master of the Orient," and "War, Peace and Propaganda" along with others that deal with the current international crisis.

March of Time Subject

Said by RKO to be "The first complete and authentic motion picture story of the U. S. Air Corps," America's new independent arm of national defense now being built up at a cost of more than $300,0000,000, is presented in the latest March of Time entitled "Soldiers With Wings."

Filmed with the full cooperation of the Air Corps, it gives a pictorial answer to the national question of the importance of an Air Corps in the United States.

March of Time cameramen spent weeks at each of the Army's 11 major air bases throughout the United States.

The subject illustrates the influence of rapidly growing air fleets in Europe, and shows how the United States Army's "Soldiers With Wings" are being recruited and trained today.

For purposes of this analysis, omission was purposely made of such socalled "war propaganda" films as "Spain in Flames," "Spanish Earth," "The Four-Hundred Million" and others used for political purposes in connection with the Sino-Japanese war and the Spanish Civil War.

Universal Reissues

Universal will lead the field in releasing the first group of war-film reissues with plans being made to re-distribute "All Quiet on the Western Front" and "The Road Back." RKO has had on its re-issue list for some time "The Lost Patrol" and "The Lost Squadron" both dealing with war, the first, a story of three Foreign Legion members who become separated from their battalion and the second a war story of American and German combat planes during the World War. Other companies have not as yet made plans for the reissuing of any pictures but with the continent of Europe again the arena for hostilities motion picture companies will probably delve into their vaults for films showing the horrors of war and dangers of espionage.

War Films Available

Following is a list of most of the war or related subjects now available, by reissue, current or recent release, or in production or contemplated:

"Clouds over Europe": An Irving Asher Production made in England and distributed by Columbia. Released June 20, 1939. A story concerning sabotage to English airplanes by a foreign government.

"Confessions of a Nazi Spy": Produced and distributed by Warner Bros. Released, May 6, 1939. Concerning Nazi spy activities in the United States.

"Double Crime on the Maginot Line": A Tower production. Released in the United States during the spring. The picture deals with the famed Maginot line of France.

"Heroes of the Marne": A Spectrum Picture. Released in the United States, April 22, 1939. A presentation of a story of a bourgeois family of France during the World War.

BRITISH, FRENCH SET IMPORT CURBS

Motion picture film or camera or projector equipments were not barred in the restrictions set up Tuesday by the British and French on imports into the respective countries. They may, however, require import licenses.

The United Kingdom made effective an import control system upon a wide range of products, which, while not mentioning motion pictures or picture equipment, did specify prints and photographs, some of which is sent abroad by major distributors for reproduction for films to be released.

The French, however, have subjected all imports into France to a license system.

Film companies, like uses, transporting gold or currency in enemy ships, are warned that Britain has ruled both as contraband and subject to seizure. Little, if any monies is believed to be transported by U. S. companies in the ships of Germany, although some of the U. S. majors still operate in that country.

Majors in New York at press time were awaiting word as to what, if any, money export restrictions will be set by England or France. The majors suffered from such restrictions in the recent Spanish War.

"Hitler—The Beast of Berlin": PDC's production concerning the activities of Adolph Hitler and the Nazi regime. To be released October 15, 1939.

"Hostages": Produced in Paris by Chronos Film and distributed by Nero Films. Released in April, 1939. A story of German refugees in Paris.

"Idiot's Delight": Produced and distributed by MGM. Released January 27, 1939. Concerning a group of stranded variety artists in a worn torn country.

"Blockade": Produced by Walter Wanger and distributed by United Artists. Released June 17, 1938. A story of the recent Spanish war.

International Spies

"Lone Wolf Spy Hunt": Produced and distributed by Columbia, Released January 27, 1939. A story of international spies and government secrets.

"Magnificent Fraud": Produced and distributed by Paramount. Released July 21, 1939. A story of a dictator in a South American country.

"Navy Secrets": Produced and distributed by Monogram. Released February 8, 1939. A spy story concerning the navy.

"Nurse Edith Cavell": An RKO Radio Picture, to be released November 3, 1939. Life of a war nurse.

"Panama Patrol": Produced by Fine Arts and distributed by Grand National. Released May 20, 1939. Concerning Orientel spy activities and their designs on the Panama Canal.

"They Made Her a Spy": An RKO Radio picture released April 14, 1939. A story of the Military Intelligence Department in Washington, D. C.

"The Dictators": Being produced by Charlie Chaplin for distribution by United Artists. A satire on dictatorship.

"Beau Geste": Produced and distributed by Paramount. To be released September 15, 1939. Dealing with the French Foreign Legion.

"Grand Illusion": Distributed by World pictures. A story of the French and German armies in the World War.

"Four Feathers": Produced by Alexander Korda and Distributed by United Artists. Released, August 4, 1939.

"Battalion of Death": To be produced and distributed by Paramount.

"Thunder Afloat": Being rushed through production by MGM. Concerning the Yankee fishing fleet and tugboat captains who held off the invading enemy submarines during the World War.

"Disputed Passage": A Paramount picture still in production dealing with the China-Japanese conflict.

"Television Spy": A Paramount picture concerning an international spy plot.

"The Real Glory": Sam Goldwyn's latest picture for United Artists dealing with the Phillipine insurrection.

"Florian": MGM's latest picture with a World War setting in Austria.

"Journey's End": To be remade by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

"Balalaika": Another in MGM's product concerning war that is still in production.

"I Had a Comrade": An MGM picture dealing with activities inside Nazi Germany.

"Air Raid": A Paramount picture with a war background.

"Navy Nurse": A Paramount picture soon to go into production, dealing with the life of a nurse in wartime.

On Aviation Training

"20,000 Men a Year": A 20th Century-Fox picture to go into production. Concerning miltary flying instruction for young Americans.

"Fr. Duffy of the Fighting 69th": Soon to be produced by 20th Century-Fox. A story of the Chaplain of the 69th Regiment during the World War.

"The Fighting 69th": To be produced by Warner Brothers. A war story of New York's own regiment.

"Personal History": To be produced by Warner Brothers.

"Underground": A new Warner Bros., picture soon to go into production concerning activities inside Nazi Germany.

"The Bishop Who Walked With God": A Warner picture about to go into production concerning the persecution of Cardinal Niemoeller by the Nazi regime.

"Eyes of the Army": Warner Bros., are planning to put this picture into production soon. It concerns aviation during war-time.

"Sabotage in the Air": A Warner Bros., picture that will soon start production telling the story of how a nation's safety is menaced by air-bombardments.

"Stuff of Heroes": A Warner Bros., picture about to go into production concerning the doughboys in the trenches during the war.

"The Warning": An Alliance three-reel production revealing the dangers of air raid bombardments on large cities.

"Blackout Over Europe": Sam Goldwyn production for United Artists release.

"The Tanganyika Exploit": Twentieth Century-Fox.

"The Ramparts We Watch": First March of Time feature.

"U-Boat 29," Columbia. Release date, September 30th.

NEWSREELS AWAIT WAR RESTRICTIONS; STRICT CENSORSHIP IN MANY PLACES

Increasingly Severe Regulations Awaited in Film News Coverage; Limitations Stiffen under U. S. Neutrality Act

Uncertainty as to the specific restrictions on newsreel coverage of the European war continued through this week, although "more and more severe restrictions" are expected.

Three of the five newsreels, in Wednesday's issues, were exclusively on the war.

Subject to Censorship

All footage remained completely subject to censorship on the part of the country in which it was taken, while all five newsreel companies continued to make use of the transatlantic "Clipper" plane service for transportation of their "war" lavenders to New York, both English and American planes being used.

Details of the newsreels' completed mobilization plans were reported last week, on page 15.

The radio networks, Tuesday night, went off the 24-hour schedule on which they had been operating during the beginning of the war's outbreak.

Censorship restrictions on newsreels, radio and press, the lack of knowledge as to whether the newsreels will be permitted to "shoot" actual war-front scenes, and under what conditions and restrictions, remained outstanding problems facing the newsreel managements in New York this week.

Uncertain of Restrictions

Indicative of the uncertainty of the newsreels' position this week is the fact that three of the five companies, in answer to queries, added that they themselves would welcome information on censorship restrictions.

Paramount News continued to send querying cables abroad (the cables themselves subject to censorship), but this week brought still no definite word as to the extent of the restrictions. In France, there was to have been a supervision by the Government, and a pooling of film on the part of all companies, but no verification had been received here.

Universal reported that all footage is "completely subject to censorship," while RKO Pathe expects no clarification of the existing situation for a week or two.

MGM News of the Day pointed out that its men, like the others, still are not attached to any of the actual armies, but, in common with the other newsreels, have been, for the most part, devoting their efforts of filming the frantic preparations and evacuations.

Fox Movietone reported that severe restrictions are expected on the part of the four major powers at war.

All five companies, this week, used the transatlantic plane service provided in the twice-weekly service of Pan American Airlines and the once a week service of Imperial Airways. Thus, screenings were held in New York some 50 hours after the films left Europe. Besides the effects of censorship, another factor slowing the transportation of the newsreels is that the Clipper planes are now using Lisbon and Foynes, Ireland, as European bases.

No Floodlights on Piers

As America invoked the socalled Neutrality Act, Tuesday, this country's regulations affecting the newsreels stiffened. No floodlights, usually part of the regular equipment of the newsreel cameraman, were permitted on the New York piers as incoming liners, led by the Queen Mary which docked Monday with 2,331 passengers, continued to bring in crowds of refugees from the war.

Additionally, no close-ups were permitted of the U. S. Army's new mechanized "cavalry brigade," now at the New York World's Fair after its participation in the Plattsburg "war games," held recently. Also, no filming of U. S. Navy bases or Army posts were permitted.

However, there have been no other restrictions, to date, on the shipping of supplies for newsreel purposes from this country to Europe.

The National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting System and the Mutual Broadcasting System went off the 24-hour schedules they had maintained and returned to their normal closing time of 2 A. M. on Tuesday night.

Five major reasons prompted the move: The huge expense involved in continuous coverage of the news; the "dearth of unbiased news;" the fear that commercial accounts, sponsoring programs, would resent the continuous dislocation and interruption of their programs; the sustained drain on the vitality of the staff members under the continual pressure, and the possibility of a public reaction against the stream of news reports. The extra time had cost the New York stations between $3,000 and $5,000 apiece each night, it is reported.

In addition, there will not be any pick-ups from Europe scheduled in advance. The increase on the propaganda content of the news broadcast from European sources had been criticized in many quarters, although admittedly unavoidable in most cases.

Three Types of Coverage

The networks had covered the European situation in three separate methods: using the three newspaper wire services, Associated Press, United Press and International News Service; these admittedly being the "backbone" of radio coverage; the using of foreign correspondents, such as John Gunther, Pierre Van Paassen and Wallace Deuel, and the recording of short wave news broadcasts.

The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, also on Tuesday, advised its New York offices that it had returned to normal programming operations, with occasional broadcasts of war news of importance.

Last weekend saw a military guard placed around the network's units, while it is expected that all shortwave radio licenses would be revoked. All material is now open to the censorship of the BBC before going out on the air.

Germany has issued a decree providing the death penalty for the broadcasting of "false reports" by foreign radio stations.

The Nazis have forbidden their nationals to listen to foreign radio stations.

NO U. S. RADIO CENSORSHIP

While broadcasting will be closely watched, lest by favoring one side in the second "World War" it abridges the spirit of neutrality, no censorship of radio is planned by the President in carrying out his program to maintain American neutrality in the European war, it was declared Wednesday by White House Secretary Stephen Early.

"No restrictions will be placed on broadcasting unless they become necessary," Mr. Early said

Dozen Nations Establish Rigid Control over Newsreel Filming, Broadcasting and Newspaper Communications

Censorship of newsreel filming, radio broadcasting, newspapers and cable transmissions as imposed with the declaration of war late last week in England, France, Germany and Poland, spread this week over wide areas, in North America and Spain, and even into the Far East in Australia and New Zealand.

The British on Tuesday effected full censorship in Australia and New Zealand.

Censorship has been established in Switzerland and in French Morocco, where the same conditions apply as in France, also in Palestine.

Code Messages Barred

In many cases, the restrictions will apply for the time being to the sending and receiving of cable messages, effecting motion picture companies as others. Codes in messages are strictly prohibited, as in England, France and Germany.

The motion picture business, again, like others, are effected by the cutting of telephone service in Europe and between the Continent and United Kingdom.

Canada on Saturday clamped down an ironclad censorship over all forms of news dissemination, radio, motion pictures, mail, telephone and telegraph.

Spain, to protect its neutrality, invoked censorship.

Films Must Be Submitted

Censorship has been established to and from Portugal, according to a report received from Western Union in New York Thursday.

Completing organization of censorship in London, governing reporters and newsreel cameramen, the Government on Monday established headquarters in a special building, where stories and films must be submitted.

The machinery for the censorship of all films, for home showing and export, was outlined in new regulations issued by the government.

The system will be voluntary for films to be exhibited in England, with the British Board of Film Censors operating the censorship machinery. The compulsory censorship will be reserved for use only if the present system is found to be an insufficient safeguard.

All films for export, including sound track, records and the like will be subject to compulsory censorship. The BBFC will issue an additional security censorship certificate carrying the approval of the Ministry of Information.

Newfoundland's government has established censorship.

Spence Pierce, manager of the Midwest theatre in Oklahoma City, Okla., said this week he had dropped the "Midwest Variety Hour" which has been presented each week for the last two months.

Projectionists In Limelight for Day At World's Fair

The projectionist had his day, Thursday, at the New York World's Fair. It was "Projectionists' Day," and some 300 New York projectionists, film union leaders, trade paper editors, and technicians crowded into the little theatre of the Hall of Special Events, on the Fair grounds, for the occasion. The gist of the tributes was that the recognition of the projectionist as an "unsung hero," had been delayed too long. It was the projectionist, they all agreed, upon whom the success of the whole billion dollar industry depended, in finality.

Perfection Norm, Says Ramsaye

As Terry Ramsaye, one of the guest speakers, remarked:

"It has always been an indirect, if not too fully appreciated, compliment to the projectionist, that perfect projection is taken as the norm."

Among other guest speakers were Nathan Golden, chief of the Motion Picture Division of the United States Department of Commerce; E. A. Williford, president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers; Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, a past president of the SMPE; F. H. Richardson, a writer on projection for the Motion Picture Herald and Better Theatres, and author of projection textbooks; and Joseph Basson, president of the New York IATSE proectionists' Local 306. Mr. Basson introduced the speakers.

Mr. Ramsaye described the job of the projectionist as a "hot spot of the industry—or, you might say, the 'needle's eye' of this business."

The vast equipment and the billion dollars of investment in the industry were of no use, if the picture on the screen was faulty, Mr. Ramsaye emphasized, and likened the projectionist to a "lighthouse keeper."

"Yes," he said, "it is appropriate that the limelight should now turn on the projectionist, inasmuch as he's been standing behind it for about 30 years."

Dr. Goldsmith urged projectionists not to worry about their future, feeling sure, he said, that they would be able to keep pace with all developments, however startling.

SMPE Cooperation Reaffirmed

Mr. Willford, speaking for the SMPE, offered the projectionists the continued cooperation of the Society, and praised them for keeping abreast of technical problems.

Mr. Richardson, noting that because records were not kept in early projection days, it was hard to describe mechanisms of those days, nevertheless depicted a few of his memory; then traced the development of the projection machine into the present precision instrument.

He introduced William Reed, "the oldest living projectionist," who started with Thomas A. Edison, at the inception of motion pictures.

Representatives spoke for George Browne, president of the IATSE, and for Edward J. Flynn, United States Commissioner General to the World's Fair.

The ceremonies concluded with a screening of March of Time's "The Movies March On!"

In charge of the arrangements were P. A. McGuire, of International Projector Company, G. C. Edwards, O. Kafka and C. F. Eichborn.

BROADWAY THEATRES DARK 20 YEARS AGO

Twenty years ago last weekend—that weekend during which hostilities between actors' and stagehands' unions threatened to darken Broadway and the nation's theatres — Broadway's playhouses were in fact darkened. On August 29th, 1919, the 1,132 actors, stagehands, and chorus folk of the Hippodrome theatre, in New York, struck, marking the 21st theatre to be closed during an actors' strike.

Atlas RKO Offer Ends; SEC Joins Case; Stirn Loses

Developments in the RKO reorganization proceedings this week were three-fold. The limit for acceptance of the Atlas Corporations offer to underwrite $1,500,000 of new RKO common stock at $4 per share has expired and has not been extended, Atlas spokesmen said. The Securities and Exchange Commission became a party to the reorganization and the U. S. circuit court of appeals denied an application of Ernest W. Stirn, stockholder, for an opportunity to reargue the decision of the circuit court, made on July 18th, which upheld the confirmation of the plan for reorganization by William Bondy, federal judge.

It was pointed out that the Atlas offer was contingent upon its acceptance by the federal court and the company on or before August 29th, and that when it was not accepted on that date the offer automatically expired. Atlas, it was learned, has given no formal notification of its present position in the matter to the federal court, the company, the RKO reorganization trustee or other interested parties.

Presumably, the indefinite status of the underwriting will delay completion of the RKO reorganization unless future developments both in Europe and here justify reestablishment of the offer within a reasonable length of time.

The entrance of the SEC as a party to the reorganization indicates another protracted delay in RKO's emergence under Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act. It was explained that at the request of Judge Bondy the Commission filed a notice of its appearance in the proceedings on August 14th.

In his application Mr. Stirn has asked the appeals court for a rehearing, claiming that the court was in error in ruling that he had delayed too long in appealing from a number of Judge Bondy's decisions. Mr. Stirn charged that proponents of the plan were directly responsible for any delay caused. The court gave no opinion in denying the application.

The board of directors of Loew's, Inc., on Wednesday declared a regular dividend of 50 cents per share on the corporation's common stock, payable to stockholders of record September 13th, on September 30th.

of Berlin" as outstanding among his announced 60 Producers Pictures Corporation productions, declared, "As far as I can foresee, the European situation will not have a detrimental effect on our production. In fact, in some instances, it may even prove beneficial. In the case of 'Hitler—the Beast of Berlin,' which we announced for release October 22nd, we have moved this up to October 8th and are preparing to start active production on it at once."

Dr. A. H. Gianinni, banking authority, on Thursday said, "The immediate effect will be to make banks proceed cautiously with financing now in negotiation. The ultimate attitude will be influenced primarily by overseas decision as to whether theatres are to remain closed. Another vital factor will be regulations governing the flow of money from Europe. Naturally, any invasion of the territory depended upon for grosses will seriously affect banking calculations. Likewise, important will be the exchange rate for the pound sterling."

Few Going Overseas

Most surprising among the immediate developments of the European situation—unofficial Hollywood even finds it ironically amusing—is the abrupt disclosure that all those heroes the fan press and columnists have been listing as ready to join the colors at a moment's notice aren't going to join, for several interesting reasons. Some, including a number of romantic leading men, are too old to make the 18-to-41 classification. Others are not so sound of wind and limb as they appear to be in their heroic activities before the camera. Some are too burdened down with dependencies and some, believe it or not, are just not going. A final and conclusive reason is a set of laws about enlistment of recruits for foreign armies on American soil. And still another is the pronouncement of local British Consul Gilbert Holliday to the effect that Britain's need just now is not for soldiers.

David Niven is the single British officer in Hollywood subject to call, and present laws prevent his being taken. Richard Greene, John Loder are the other two actors on whom the British army has direct claim. Among those who might be called to the colors some time, if developments and legislation were to make it practicable to call them, are James Stephenson, Laurence Olivier, Wilfred Lawson, Victor McLaglen, Cecil Hardwicke, Charles Laughton, Brian Aherne, Raymond Massey, Walter Pidgeon, Ian Hunter, Nigel Bruce, Cary Grant, Errol Flynn, Alan Mowbray and Donald Crisp. However, members of the British Equity Association in Hollywood have received wartime instructions from that organization. By arrangement with Hollywood's Screen Actors Guild, a registration for British actors has been set up in Hollywood.

Blumberg Reports on "U"

Nate Blumberg, president of Universal in Chicago Thursday on his way to New York, said his company planned no retrenchment as a result of the war situation. "We will make all 60 pictures we promised," he said, adding that "30 of the 60 have been completed or are nearly so."

Mr. Blumberg believes the picture business will resume a more normal keel.

He said there was considerable retrenchment talk in Hollywood when he left but that Universal would not have to undergo stringent changes.

CANADA BUSINESS OFF, BUT UPTURN IS EXPECTED; CENSORSHIP AFFECTED

Part of Sharp Decline Already Recouped; Hollywood Expected to Offset Reduced British and French Product

by COLIN R. HAWORTH
in Montreal

Despite the war members of the motion picture industry in Canada are surprisingly cheerful about the prospect of business. Exhibition and distribution executives interviewed by this reporter united in the opinion that "things will be much like they were in the last war."

Expect Pickup after Brief Slump

Practically unanimously they look forward to a bad spell for the first two months, with business picking up gradually afterwards. "In 1914," it was said by Arthur Hirsh, president of Consolidated Theatres, "we were hit very badly at first. The first 60 days business fell off tremendously, then as the country as a whole settled down mentally to the fact that we were at war, the need for entertainment again began to make itself felt."

This time again, trade members concurred, there will probably be a marked drop in business within the first few weeks.

One general effect of the war, it was felt, will be a tightening up of the censorship of newsreels and films, radio and press. To a certain extent this has already been felt, for Paramount's "Beau Geste" was recalled after being passed by censors, to have a few alterations made. Apparently the French government, through its local consul, wished it made quite clear that the real Foreign Legion was entirely dissimilar to the film variety.

Considerable censorship, too, is expected in the handling of newsreels. Now being shown here four days after they are filmed, these reels may undergo a slightly longer delay if the Canadian government decides to impose a national censorship upon them. Deletions or alterations to make the films presentable to the Canadian public will probably be made as they were in the last war.

Film Board Named

It is pointed out, however, that the Ottawa government the other day finally appointed the members of the National Film Board, created some time ago by act of parliament.

Consisting of six members, three government men and three others, the board is comprised of: James G. Parmelee, deputy minister of trade and commerce; Col. V. I. Smart, deputy minister of transport; R. S. Hamer, general executive assistant, Department of Agriculture; Professor Walter Murray, former head of University of Sasketchewan; Charles G. Cowan, Ottawa business man, and Edmond Turcotte, French-speaking journalist from Montreal.

With this board now appointed and lacking only the selection of a government film commissioner, which post it is deemed probable will be filled by Captain Frank Badgley, present director of the Government Film Bureau, propaganda films could be turned out for distribution throughout Canada and the United States.

One of the board's first tasks will be the organization of a centralized distribution center for government work. That done, it may turn to the production of propaganda films either with the present government equipment and staff or with the aid of commercial film companies.

Early in the World War Canada initiated film work, becoming the first government to make such a move.

Censorship over Radio

The government's hand has already been felt wielding censorship on radio. From Ottawa it was announced that the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation had ordered strict surveillance of all news and commentary broadcasts of foreign origin, most of these "foreign" programs being received from the United States. It was first ordered that private stations in Canada receiving such broadcasts from the United States should notify the CBC which speakers were scheduled to talk and what they were to say. With the situation changing every few minutes none could prophesy what the news commentators would say so it was ordered all such programs from the United States had to be piped to their private station destinations in Canada, through CBC's studios in Toronto. With this ruling now in effect CBC controls all radio news entering Canada on long wave. On several occasions lately American commentators, either speaking from New York or from overseas, have been cut off when on the verge of statements considered likely to be unacceptable here. Short wave, however has not been hindered and programs are being received as usual. One night this week excellent reception was had in Montreal, of a program in English originating in Germany, and blaming the outbreak of hostilities on Great Britain. The program added that the British had themselves sunk the Athenia in order to lay the onus of responsibility on Germany. The program was received in Montreal with considerable amusement.

Exhibitors expected a drop in availability of British films and of French pictures too. Though there is said to be a large surplus of French product being held for release it is not believed they will last long at the local consumption rate of over 100 a year. In Montreal alone several theartes show nothing but French pictures.

One house manager predicted that in Hollywood, "with the entire European market cut off, there will be a drop in the production of A pictures, and the same turnout of B films."

25% Attendance Drop Is Reduced to 10%

by ALLISTER GROSART
in Toronto

Theatre attendance across Canada has declined seriously but the fall-off is now being reduced. At first the attendance fell 25 per cent, but now that the period of uncertainty is over the decrease has been reduced to 10 per cent.

Distribution machinery has not been affected. There is an expected curtailment, however, in French-made and British-made films.

A chief censor has been appointed—Walter Thompson, press agent of the Canadian National Railways—but to date the action has not brought any drastic restrictions. They may be expected, however, as actual war-scene newsreel coverage arrives in Canada. Undoubtedly the newsreels already will have been gone over by the British censors.

The outbreak of the war did not cause cancellation of the Dominion-wide conference of independent theatre owners, held at the King Edward hotel in Toronto this weekend under the auspices of the Anti-Protection League.

No Film Shortage Is Anticipated: Fitzgibbons

J. J. Fitzgibbons, director of theatre operations of Famous Players Canadian, in a telephone report from Toronto to MOTION PICTURE HERALD in New York Wednesday, said that no shortage of film is anticipated in Canada, and that American product will be sufficient to take care of the needs of Canadian theatres.

Mr. Fitzgibbons, however, does anticipate an immediate drop in the number of British and French pictures available. It was pointed out that other companies, which go in more heavily for French product, will feel this more than will Famous-Canadian.

Anna Neagle, in a recent interview in Toronto, said that she understood that all studios in England would be taken over by the Government, making it unlikely that there will be many new English films available in Canada.

It was not anticipated that any propaganda films would be made in Canada.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

The news from British studios detailed below lists the activities underway last week before war was declared. Since that time word has been received here that all production has sharply curtailed. Late reports indicated that at the Denham Studios, where the London Stock Exchange executives were housed, final production touches were proceeding on Korda's "The Thief of Bagdad." Gainsborough continued work on "The Band Wagon" at Shepherds Bush and Michael Balcon with "David Goliath."

Underground

Production staff and stars have now left daylight on "The Stars Look Down" at the Twickenham Studios, and have gone below ground where scenes are being shot at the coal face of what is supposed to be an English mine. Here the disaster, which is the climax of the picture, occurs.

Over 50 tons of coal have been delivered to the studios to provide special dressing for the scenes, and the plaster department has collaborated to build coal up into a realistic resemblance of the galleries and scenes of a characteristic British pit.

Standing in the studio grounds is a set representing mine cages and ramps of the Sleesdale Mine, faithfully reconstructed from measurements taken at one of the Cumberland pits. Electric hauling gear has been installed to raise and lower cages from ground level—into the empty water tank—with its cargo of dead and half drowned men.

Pit ponies brought from Cumberland have been having a holiday in the studio, filling in their time now and again by appearing before the cameras.

Elsewhere in the studio a set of miners' cottages, replicas of houses in Great Clifton near Workington, still stand and are used to match up with actual shots taken on location.

Largest Outdoor Set

Britain's record location is currently being used at Denham for exteriors on "The Thief of Baghdad." Previous largest Denham location, City Square, built on 650,000 feet of concrete, was used for "Things to Come." "The Thief of Baghdad" set covers nearly half as much again. Baghdad Bridge, scene of a procession in the film, is 300 yards long.

The procession, which forms a spectacular sequence in the film with 400 extras taking part in it, included native archers, followed by native riders, barefooted Indian musicians playing native instruments, giant Negroes carrying a howdah with a cheetah in it, dozens of donkeys carrying gilded cages of parrots, horses with girls in decorative panniers, and one pink elephant.

Three Technicolor cameras with full crews were used to film the set.

Around the Baghdad set, too, is the Sultan's Palace with its deep blue minarets and domes, and gates sixty-eight feet high lacquered in gold.

American director, Harry Lachman, returns to England, where he made his first picture, to direct Will Fyffe in a Twentieth Century production, "They Came by Night". With him and the Scotch comedian in the picture is Phyllis Calvert, leading lady.

Melting Pot

A cosmopolitan cast which includes an Indian, a Frenchman, a Spaniard, a Swede, two Italians, two Russians, two Americans, a Jap and sixty-two Britishers, is the unusual make-up of "Traitor Spy," the John Argyle production presently being filmed for Pathe at Welwyn.

The film is a topical story of foreign spy activity in Britain and is being directed by Walter Summers.

Heading the cast is American Bruce Cabot, who has come to Britain to play the part of Healey, young weak-willed Britisher who becomes a traitor to his country by selling information to Britain's enemies.

Marta La Barr, Tamara Desni, Edward Lexy and Romilly Lunge are other prominent members of the cast.

The producers claim that "Traitor Spy" is "Britain's equivalent of America's 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy,'" with a story that shows how ordinary men and women, shop assistants, street hawkers and domestic servants are often in the pay of secret agents.

Compact Set

A set designed on the honeycomb principle and permitting easy and immediate camera setups in a comparatively small studio, is to the credit of art director Holmes Paul, working on the Dan Birt production "The Girl Who Forgot" (formerly "The Young Person in Pink"). In limited studio space Paul has, by his careful arrangement, built sets representing the interior and exterior of a West End mews, with converted garages and an entire apartment, the home, in the film, of Enid Stamp Taylor. Even a Lagonda in the garage, is included.

Veidt Signs

A contract to make one picture annually over a period of several years has been signed by Conrad Veidt with Irving Asher Productions, Ltd.

The first of the Irving Asher productions starring Veidt has already been tentatively titled "The Modern Pimpernel." It has an unusual theme and concerns a millionaire who has an obsession of "man's inhumanity to man," and who spends his life trying to right the wrongs he finds throughout the world.

Asher is bent upon starring Veidt in other roles than the somewhat sinister characters and spy portrayals with which he has been associated of late. "The Modern Pimpernel" gives him the role of a romantic adventurer.

Veidt is now a naturalized British subject.

Britain's new Militia is the inspiration for "The Boys of the New Brigade," a British Consolidated film to take the floor at Elstree. Directing the picture will be Maurice Elvey, director of "Sons of the Sea". The new film will, as with the Naval subject, be made in Dufaycolor.

Production Tip-toes

Contemplating a "Der Tag" of its own last weekend with a long-talked-about actor strike which did not eventuate, Hollywood, nevertheless started nine and finished ten pictures as the month of August closed.

Columbia started two, "The Incredible Mrs. Williams," in which Joan Blondell and Melvyn Douglas will be reteamed, and "Blondie Brings Up Baby," a series picture.

MGM launched "Broadway Melody of 1940," wherein Fred Astaire will return to the studio in company with Eleanor Powell and George Murphy.

Samuel Goldwyn started "Raffles," in which David Niven and Olivia de Havilland will be featured. (Work was suspended next day due to war prospects.)

Don Ameche, Al Jolson and Andrea Leeds began work on "Swanee River," 20th Century-Fox, while Randolph Scott, Margaret Lindsay, Mary Healy and Kane Richmond started "20,000 Men a Year."

Republic's new work is "Abraham Lincoln Boggs," which will co-feature Edward Ellis and Anita Louise, and Walter Wanger's crew of Pat O'Brien, Ruth Terry, Broderick Crawford and Edward Arnold turned their attentions to "Send Another Coffin."

Republic's three finished pictures are "Headline News," "The Arizona Kid" and "Kansas Terror." MGM checked "Balalaika" off the active list and RKO-Radio removed two from its shooting schedule, "Marshal of Mesa City" and "Sued for Libel." Twentieth Century-Fox finished a pair, "Drums Along the Mohawk" and a Jones Family number, "Too Busy to Work." "Scandal Sheet" wound up at Columbia and "Listen Kids" was marked done by Universal.

Name News

William Morrow and Edmund Beloin, writers for Jack Benny, started work at Paramount on the comedian's forthcoming "Buck Benny Rides Again." Director Mark Sandrich will start production about October 15th.

Barrett Kiesling, MGM's traveling press representative, returned to the studio after five months of contacting newspaper editors in all parts of the United States and Canada. During his tour Mr. Kiesling visited more than 80 key cities.

C. B. DE MILLE'S 66TH PRODUCTION

Cecil B. DeMille came out of the mists of the Pacific, listened to a story, ordered it rewritten, reprovisioned his 106*-foot Gloucester schooner,* Seaward, and sailed toward the horizon again to await the rewriting.

The story he came back to listen to was the first rough draft of "Northwest Mounted Police" which is to be his 66th production. He heard the tale from his writers, Alan LeMay, Commander Frank Wead, U.S.N. retired, Jesse Lasky, Jr., and Jeanie MacPherson, edited it and, after a series of conferences, ordered a series of revisions.

Completing a month's vacation in Hawaii, Lewis Stone, accompanied by his wife, arrived home and was slated to begin work in "Judge Hardy and Son" immediately. George B. Seitz resumes directing the Hardy Family series with this picture.

Jackie Coogan has accepted $126,000 as his share of what remains of what he estimates to be $4,000,000 from the days when he was a star in silent films. His mother received a similar amount.

Officers Elected

Sol Lesser this week in Hollywood was elected president of Ernst Lubitsch Productions, Inc. Ernst Lubitsch was elected vice-president and secretary and Louis Lurie, treasurer. Dr. A. H. Giannini has been added to the board of directors. Mr. Lubitsch will produce and direct his own pictures under the new setup, and release through United Artists. He joins Sol Lesser early in January after he completes "Shot Around the Corner" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr. Lesser arrived in New York on Friday from the coast for a vacation and conferences with Thornton Wilder, whose play, "Our Town," will be produced by Mr. Lesser. He will also motor through New England to select sites for backgrounds in the filming of the picture.

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Milt Harris, director of publicity for Loew's Theatres in Cleveland, picked the right time to get into the used-stamp business. He now has a part interest in a stamp insured for $50,000, although it cost only $3.50.

The $50,000 insurance policy is the largest ever issued on a single stamp, Mr. Harris said.

"I don't know much about stamp-collecting," he explains, "but my sister and her husband in Brooklyn, N. Y., are experts and make their living as stamp dealers. A short time ago, they asked me to lend them money to make some purchases at stamp auctions or to become their partner in the purchases.

"I became a partner in the deals and for $3.50 my sister bought this particularly valuable stamp. It is a United States variety two-cent 'Black Jack' of 1862 with a 'Z' grill. As I understand it, this 'Z' grill is rare enough but the one on this stamp has an extra row of pyramids which makes it exceptional.

"My sister and brother-in-law bid on the stamp because it looked like a good clean specimen of a stamp they were familiar with. It wasn't until after they purchased it as an ordinary stamp that they discovered what they had."

The pyramids or grills referred to by Mr. Harris were used by the government to break the fiber of the paper so that the cancellation ink would soak through and make it impossible to clean the stamp again.

Ray Johnston's Monogram Pictures has an actor in Hollywood named Milburn Stone, who is quite ambitious. The other day, playing his part in a new "Tailspin Tommy" picture, the director shouted "Action!" and told Stone to jump into 50 feet of water in Santa Monica Bay. He jumped, but couldn't swim a stroke, and the next 20 minutes were spent fishing actor Stone out of the water and pumping the Bay out of him.

Darryl Zanuck, head man for Twentieth Century-Fox at Movietone City, in California, has sent Edwin Bloom, writer, to Pikevile, Kentucky, to obtain material for a scenario from John Marvin Yost, vice president and head cashier at the First National Bank there, who pursues the unique practice of loaning money to young people unable to afford higher educations. The only security required is honesty. Nor can they spend the money on gold-fish swallowing.

An audience at Keith's, in Cincinnati, witnessed a bit of realism not on the program, but which nevertheless furnished an example of perfect timing.

At precisely the moment the picture director's platform fell in a sequence of "Quiet Please," the house curtain and fittings crashed to the stage, with a vortex of dust rising from the debris and a lot of noise.

The engineers of Electrical Research Products beg leave to digress for a moment from their regular business of making sound reproducers for theatres to announce that they have developed a gadget to detect flaws in running machinery. The gay old birds call it a "tin ear."

BLOND, CURVACEOUS MAE WEST of the stage and screen, is all for moral rearmament. Yes, sir, she says its philosophy has been a great help to her, and she thinks it would be valuable also to her current picture partner, W. C. Fields, she told Dr. Frank N. Buchman, leader of the moral rearmament movement.

Miss West and Dr. Buchman had quite a tete-a-tete in her apartment. She was attired in a pink negligee.

"It is a wonderful work," Miss West said of the MRA crusade. "I owe my success to the fact that I have been practicing that philosophy in recent years.

"Early in my career, before I discovered the importance of correct thinking and correct consideration for others, it was a hard and bitter struggle to get ahead."

As they posed for photographs together, Dr. Buchman remarked he was somewhat an amateur at "this sort of thing" (meaning the posing).

But Mae drawled: "You're doing fine, Doc."

Miss West and Fields are to be starred together soon in a picture for Universal (free advt.).

"Have you met Bill Fields yet?" she asked Dr. Buchman.

"No, but I'd love to meet him."

"This (MRA) is just what Bill needs," Mae exclaimed. "By all means meet Bill and tell him all about moral rearmament. And please get him before we start this picture. I want him to be full of it."

The average life of a star in Hollywood is two years, five months, and three days. The average male star lasts two years, five months, and eighteen days; whereas the average female star lives in that position only two years, four months, and fourteen days.

There is only one star in films today who was a star 20 years ago, reports The Commentator magazine, and that is John Barrymore. Others who have managed pretty long careers are Wallace Beery, Richard Dix, Harold Lloyd, and Jack Holt. The female star of longest standing is Norma Shearer.

The children, however, have had their heroes for many years. George O'Brien has starred in horse operas since 1921; Ken Maynard began back in 1924; Hoot Gibson in 1921; and Buck Jones reached stellar heights in 1920.

And, of course, there is that group of pathetic "used-to-be's" whom you see every once in a while in bit roles. If you look around—and look fast—in almost any picture you will see the bygone stars here and there, filling in.

A lady telephoning the theatre to find out what feature was being shown, was informed that it was "Dark Victory."

"I'm tired of seeing Joe Louis on the screen," came the reply, as she banged the telephone receiver.

Remarking on the state-of-the-nation, motion picturewise, one old Broadway film philosopher observed the other cocktail hour that, "One should never allow their little enemies to become big ones."

An old man, looking every day of 75, of French-Canadian descent, visited J. A. Tanney, in his Sales on Sound theatre equipment offices, in New York, the other day, to place an order for equipping his son's theatre up in the wilds of Newfoundland.

The old man certainly didn't look the part, for he was ragged and unkempt, and carried an old battered suitcase, which had seen far better days. He left the case in Mr. Tanney's place and spent the afternoon selecting the items needed, signed the order, and promised to return the next day and make payment. There was some doubt that he would return, what with his appearance being in his disfavor.

On the way out, he was reminded that he was leaving his suitcase behind, but he said, "Just never mind, I'll leave it here overnight."

Next day, bright and early, the old man returned and when told the amount of his bill was some $900, he took his old, decrepit suitcase and from it counted out $900 in Canadian money from a big roll.

It seemed that the aged Canadian was not so dumb after all. Being afraid of pickpockets on his first visit to the Big City, he conceived the idea of putting his money in the battered luggage, feeling that a smart city slicker would never stoop to stealing what looked like such trash.

Warner Brothers' George Raft, just back from Europe, probably doesn't know that the Chicago police were looking for him a few weeks ago and the reason was this: When "Each Dawn I Die" came to the Loop, the Warner ballyhooers sent sandwich men into the streets, bearing photos of Mr. Raft and Mr. Cagney with the caption, "WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE." The next morning Mr. Raft passed through Chicago on his way to the Normandie here. On his way through the hotel lobby, a South Bend (Ind.) visitor caught a glimpse of him and called the cops. The Chicago gendarmerie was innocent of the Warner stunt, so a cordon of officers was thrown around the hotel and an armed detachment entered in search of their man.

The motion picture business has been chortling of late about all of the wonderful inventions and scientific advances which it has made as it approaches its Golden Jubilee, citing the inventions that have gone into the motion picture during its 50 years, starting with Edison's Kinetoscope, back in 1889. Only the other day Will Hays came out with a statement boasting of the technical progress of the motion picture. But we can't seem to find any mention of all of these wonderful things down at the Inventors Exposition in New York, where as many as 500 different inventions are on display, from virtually every state in the union, and embracing virtually every item imaginable.

There is, for instance, a tearless onion-peeler, a wingless airplane and a dunking doughnut with the handle baked in. There's a transparent bung that reveals the contents of a beer keg to save that drop in the spirits of man when the tap fails unexpectedly. Also displayed is a leatherette brief case that should appeal to tired film salesman. Unfolded, it can be used as a sort of camp stool for watching parades.

ALLIED TAKES UP TRADE PROBLEMS; CANADIAN OWNERS IN MASS MEETING

Eastern Regional Gathering Follows New Jersey Session at Atlantic City; ITOA Asks for the Adoption of Code

The first large exhibitor gathering to turn attention to the problems of distribution and exhibition since Thurman Wesley Arnold, assistant United States attorney general, virtually killed the majors' trade practice program, Eastern Allied this week met at Atlantic City, N. J., and examined plans to eliminate double features, by voluntary agreement among the state's showmen.

Would Advance Neely Bill

Delegates from New England, New Jersey, East Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia convened in Atlantic City Thursday, listened to a financial report, and discussed plans to further the adoption by Congress of the Neely anti-block booking bill and the future trend of film rental prices due to the European war.

Colonel H. A. Cole, National Allied's chief excutive, urged a united front in the battle against the monopoly which he said exists in the industry. He made clear the Government position and pointed out that the law suits were directed at monopoly in exhibition but not in production or distribution. He declared that the Neely Bill was the only hope for release predicting its passage by Congress at its next session if it is taken out of committee.

The membership in closed session made a production survey among its members to determine the trend in the buying of 1939-'40 contracts.

H. M. Richey, RKO exhibitor contact, made public for the first time a statement from RKO defining its policy towards exhibitors. He said that RKO would, if exhibitors desired it, incorporate arbitration provisions in its new contracts.

Mr. Richey said that the European war could not in any way affect the quality of production of RKO pictures, and that in the event the European war necessitated the lowering of budgets in production, a smaller number of pictures would be made while retaining the quality.

A nominating committee was appointed by President George Gold to present a slate of officers at the membership meeting Friday for the annual election of officers. A banquet was held Thursday night.

The meeting opened on Wednesday, with the convention of Allied Theatres of New Jersey, and on Friday 200 exhibitors, exchangemen and others from the East were to attend the Eighth Annual Eastern regional conference of National Allied.

Cole Warns of Monopoly Problem

Colonel Henry Albert Cole, president of the Allied States Association, told the 80 state delegates that his experience had taught him regarding double features, that "the public will always accept a banquet at the price of a ham sandwich—when the banquet is offered."

He warned, however, that there were "more important problems," such as the necessity for breaking up the "monopoly of exhibition."

Sidney Samuelson, president of Allied of Eastern Pennsylvania and a national director, agreed with the Colonel. He also reviewed the wartime situation facing the motion picture industry.

In side remarks Colonel Cole reiterated his and Allied's stand for the "right to buy," divorcement of theatres by all majors and the breaking of the "monopoly" held by both major and independent circuits.

Speakers invited to the convention included Governor Harry Moore of New Jersey, Mr. Cole, Nathan Yamins, president of the Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and former president of National Allied, Mr. Samuelson, M. A. Rosenberg, of Pittsburgh, Arthur Howard of Boston and Herman Blum of Maryland.

Product Discussed

The first day of the convention included trade showings and inspection of exhibits in addition to the first general session in the afternoon and a supper-dance at the 500 Club.

The next two days' programs were as follows:

Thursday, Sept. 7—Committee Meeting, Trellis Room, 10 a.m.; Eastern Regional Directors Meeting, Gold Room, 11 a.m.; Luncheon for Eastern Regional Directors, Dining Room Loggia; Second General Session, Trellis Room, 2 to 5 p.m.; Ladies' Beach Party, 2:30 p.m.; Official Photographs, Iowa Ave. entrance of Ritz Carlton, 5:30 p.m.; Allied Cocktail Party, Exhibit Hall, 7:45 p.m.; Annual Banquet, Main Dining Room, 8:30 p.m.

Friday, Sept. 8—Third General Session, 3rd Floor, 11 a.m., business including Product Survey Results, Good and Welfare Committee Reports, and Final Adjournment; Bathing Beauty Pageant Parade, Boardwalk, 3 p.m.

Two Courses Open, Writes Myers

Abram F. Myers, National Allied counsel, was on a cruise and so unable to attend the convention. However, in a written message to the convention, Mr. Myers said, after reviewing Allied's participation in the trade practice conferences, "The major companies have two courses open to them. They can abandon all efforts to settle the industry's troubles within the industry and concentrate on defending the numerous Government and private suits. Or they can study the record made by their sales managers and lawyers in the latest attempt at self-regulation and make a new and better effort.

"The lessons of the recent experience are not hard to find. They teach that if the industry is to practice self-regulation successfully it must be on a basis of respect for the independent exhibitors, their chosen leaders and their rights. There must be a real purpose to remedy abuses and not merely to tide over an emergency. There must be recognition of the demands of the Government and of the many public groups who have interested themselves in industry affairs. Above all there must be candor and the utmost good faith."

The convention late Thursday in closed session passed a resolution urging producers to keep their pledges not to cut standards on future production in order to compensate for possible foreign losses resulting from the war in Europe.

MPTOA CONVENTION MAY BE CANCELLED

The national convention of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America may not be held, due to the inability of the ITOA of Northern California to complete arrangements for the proposed national convention at San Francisco next month.

H. V. Harvey, president of the Northern California group, said that the dates which had been tentatively set, late in October, were unsatisfactory, and that the visitors to the San Francisco Fair had made difficult the completion of arrangements for suitable accommodations.

Canadian Independents Convene in Toronto

The first all-Canada convention of independent exhibitors, held Thursday at the King Edward hotel in Toronto behind closed doors, drew few from outside the Toronto district because of the war excitement.

Under the chairmanship of J. O. Scott, of the Anti-Protection League of Canada, which sponsored the gathering, a plan was adopted for the setting up of regional grievance boards on clearance and priority runs. These boards would submit unusual cases to a proposed national board for negotiations with distributors.

The campaign committee suggested that the regional boards haev two independent representatives, one circuit representative and one exchange representative, to negotiate with exchanges and theatre circuits. Colonel John A. Cooper appointed a committee comprising Mr. Scott, N. A. Taylor, Harry Alexander of Toronto and A. J. Mason of Springfield, Nova Scotia.

Two Ontario Legislature meetings have been set for September 19th to decide upon war measures, but the honorable Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, has said that a resumption of the amusement tax is not contemplated for the present and that theatre performances in Ontario cities will continue.

He intimated, however, that the length of the war and the resultant financial burden would determine whether a war levy would be necessary. Ontario started the ticket tax idea in the last war.

ITOA Asks Code Adoption, Action on Arbitration

The Independent Theatre Owners of America, of which Harry Brandt is president, last week adopted a resolution demanding that the major distributors put the proposed trade practice code into effect, and also went on record as requesting the distributors to institute an arbitration policy similar to the one recently announced by Gradwell Sears, Warner Brothers' general sales manager.

The ITOA has sent letters to Columbia, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists and Universal asking the inclusion in the 1939-40 license agreements of a clause relegating all claims and controversies to arbitration.

The resolution on the code said, in part, "It would be a serious mistake on the part of the distribution companies not to make the code effective immediately."

West Virginia Managers Now Members of MPTOA

The West Virginia Theatre Managers' Associantion, at their fifth annual convention, at White Sulphur Springs last week, voted unanimously to join the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America.

It was also resolved that all distributors be asked to adopt the trade practice code at once, while another resolution condemned the Neely Bill.

All the officers of the Association were re-elected, headed by S. J. Hyman, president. Among others, Ed Kuykendall, national president of the MPTOA, addressed the convention.

California ITOA Holds Meeting

The Independent Theatre Owners Association of Southern California, headed by Alfred A. Galston, was scheduled to meet over the week-end.

Oklahoma Allied Arranges Convention

The organizing board of the Allied Theatre Owners of Oklahoma met this week to make arrangements for the first annual convention of the organization which is now definitely set for September 26th and 27th at the Biltmore Hotel in Oklahoma City, according to Orville Von Gulker, Okeene, Okla., exhibitor, and organizing board chairman.

Subjects of talks and discussion will center around film legislation, monopoly practices, and the problems of small independent exhibitors in competing with the large circuits. The convention delegates will be expected to take action on a buying pool for Oklahoma independent operators in Oklahoma, the adoption of a constitution for Allied in Oklahoma and the incorporation of the organization under the laws of the state of Oklahoma.

Kansas-Missouri Group Plans Regional Meets

A series of regional meetings is planned for September by the Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association, according to Frank Cassil, president.

Trade practices will be discussed, and, if possible, a plan will be worked out resulting in the adoption of practices more satisfactory to the exhibitor than at present.

There will be six meetings in Kansas and four in Western Missouri, with dates to be set shortly.

Philadelphia Allied Leaves Buying to Individual Members

At the meeting of the Eastern Pennsylvania Allied unit in Philadelphia last week, 1939-40 buying was left up to individual members. At the meeting, rentals, interchange of allocations, clearance and buying were discussed.

Famous Players Dividend

Reports on business in the second quarter of 1939 received at a directors' meeting of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, presided over by N. L. Nathanson, president, resulted in the declaration of another dividend of 25 cents on each of the common shares, payable September 30th to stockholders of record September 15th.

U. K. TAKES CONTROL OF EMPLOYMENT

Motion picture producers, distributors and exhibitors are, like all other employers, subject to the rules promulgated Monday in London prohibiting employers throughout the United Kingdom from engaging or reengaging employees without the consent of the Ministry of Labor.

Also affecting the motion picture business, as others in the country, was a bill passed by Parliament on Monday requiring all persons in Great Britain to register for national service of one kind or another.

Lower Admission Prices

The first change in admission prices in three years in Spokane, Wash., was made last week when the Evergreen lowered matinee prices five cents at the State and Fox. The new scale for both theatres is 25 cents until five p. m. weekdays; 25 cents to two p. m. Saturday and Sunday, and 35 cents from two to five p. m. Saturday and Sunday. Evening prices remain at 40 cents plus two cent state tax.

Set Yiddish Film Opening

Joseph Green, president of Sphinx Films Corporation, said this week that his fourth feature length Yiddish picture entitled "A Brivele Der Mamen," starring Misha and Lucy Gehrman, has been booked into the Waldorf theatre, New York, and will open the middle of September. Mr. Green also produced and distributed the Molly Picon pictures "Yiddle with His Fiddle" and "Mamele."

Reopening Portable Circuit

A circuit of five towns, operated with portable equipment, is being reopened for the Autumn and Winter season by the Reverend O. Martorell of San Luis, Col. Besides San Luis, Rev. Martorell operates in Chama, Ft. Garland, San Pegro and Capulin, all in Colorado.

Paralysis Ban Hits Theatres

Theatres in Atchison, Kan., have been hard hit by the local infantile paralysis ban, which included prohibition of children at films. However, Dr. W. K. Fast, health officer, has announced that the ban would be lifted this week.

Declare Dividend

Twentieth Century-Fox's board of directors on Thursday declared a cash dividend of 37½ cents a share for the third quarter of 1939 on the outstanding preferred stock of the corporation, payable on September 30th to stockholders of record September 18th. The board decided not to declare any common stock dividends now because of the foreign situation.

Sets Kraska Deal

A deal has been closed by Oliver Unger, sales manager of J. H. Hoffberg Company, with George Kraska, operator of the Fine Arts theatre, Boston, for the company's 1939-'40 product lineup.

Mexicans Seek Argentine Outlet

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

Thirty pictures made in Mexico are lying on the shelves because of their unsuitability for exhibition. Some producers hope to alleviate this situation by encouraging a demand in the Argentine for Mexican pictures.

However, the Argentine producers are seeking a market in Mexico, 21 films having arrived with plans for wide exhibition. The Mexican producers resent this "foreign invasion."

French pictures have come into popularity, and even the Japanese are attempting to make inroads, the legation having screened a dozen films for exhibitors. Nevertheless, Hollywood need not worry. Nearly 96 per cent of the pictures shown in this country are American.

A theatre for children, intended to combat what it describes as the evil influence of pictures shown at Sunday morning cinema shows, has been opened in Mexico City by the general direction of Civic Action, a semi-official uplift organization. The theatre functions once a fortnight. It is soon to go on a once-a-week basis.

Some newspaper film critics are taking jabs at this theatre, contending that some of its presentations, such as those dealing with the Spanish Inquisition, are hardly proper for children.

The success of film revivals in the United States has prompted Pedro Calderon, producer-distributor, to book for Mexico several of these films, including some very early Chaplins, "The Eagle" with Rudolph Valentino, and Paul Muni's "Scarface."

Organization has been completed here of Mundial Films to distribute French pictures. It is headed by A. Signoret, proprietor of a large local department store. This firm has brought in three French pictures and has booked "Janosek," made in Czechoslovakia.

The Rains Came

Melodrama

Drawing his talent from hither and yon and pouring into the film all the technical skill of a picked staff, Darryl Zanuck has made of Louis Bromfield's best selling novel an always solid and sometimes tremendous entertainment.

Showmen can sell it on any or all of a variety of angles, a name-laden cast that includes also a first-timer in a principal role, a widely read book, a million dollar investment, or a super-spectacle. It contains an earthquake, a cloudburst and a flood, all stupendous, in addition to plagues, elephants and more rain than anybody ever saw on screen or off. It is very sound entertainment, diversion in the correct sense of a word that means more than usual just now.

Tyrone Power has one of his better assignments as a native of India who has learned medicine and culture with a view toward helping the population of a province he will one day rule, but George Brent, borrowed from Warners for the film, is no less prominent as the rum-loving Britisher who is his friend, and Myrna Loy, borrowed from MGM, is the efficacious center of interest save when she yields footage to Brenda Joyce, Hollywood school girl making her first film appearance as the missionary's rebellious daughter with a yen for the Briton. Maria Ouspenskaya and Nigel Bruce have highly developed supporting roles.

The Bromfield story is about a woman of unprincipled past, now respectably married, who sets out to captivate a handsome young East Indian and isn't doing very well at it when an earthquake followed by a cloudburst and flood precipitates a condition so calamitous that she goes into hospital service, her husband being conveniently killed in the disaster, and has herself honestly in love with the young man, and vice versa, by the time she dies of the plague. Meanwhile the disaster has also made such a changed man of a dissolute Englishman who is one of her former lovers that he decides to marry the young innocent currently fascinated by his reputed wickedness.

With that kind of a plot to work with, less able writers than Philip Dunne and Julien Josephson, a less able producer and director than Harry Joe Brown and Clarence Brown, could have turned out a pretty sultry, even sordid picture, these gentlemen did the opposite thing. They put the woman's sins in the past tense and stressed the building of character under pressure of disaster, the interplay of blunt reality and pallid sophistication. They turned out a film sound enough and strong enough to make its observers forget the headlines and radio broadcasts for at least the duration of its exhibition, clean enough for family consumption, rich enough in names and audience values to support a showman in a comprehensive exploitation campaign carrying his personal promise of satisfaction.

Blackmail

(MGM)

(Melodrama)

Here is 80 minutes of as punchy and exciting melodramatic entertainment as anyone has seen in a long time. "Blackmail" is a grim picture. It's the story of a brave, desperate and dangerous man who wins a stern battle for the good things in life to which he is entitled. While its realism causes pulses to beat faster, it has those essentials that appeal to sympathetic emotions; and there is comedy counterbalancing its fierce relentlessness.

The picture presents Edward G. Robinson in a role that parallels his best performances. It has Gene Lockhart portraying a role of villainy that equals his work in "Algiers." "Blackmail" gives Guinn Williams his best opportunity in months. For further name value it features Ruth Hussey and Bobs Watson.

Excitement, suspense and power are the substances of the original story prepared by Endre Bohem and Dorothy Yost, and these elements have been convincingly amplified in the screenplay of Dave Hertz and William Ludwig. The quality of the production's supporting action incorporated by the producer, John W. Considine, Jr., especially the two oil well fires, the brutality of a chain gang camp, the hero's daring escape and vicious fight make for sensationalism vividly accentuating the basic drama.

"Ingram," fugitive from justice yet for years an expert oil well-fire fighter, is double crossed by a thief, "Ramey," who committed the crime for which he was jailed. Returned to the chain gang, robbed of home, family and fortune, brutal penal tortures shatter his courage but do not dim his resolution for revenge. As "Ramey" grows rich on the profits of the oil well discovered by "Ingram," his ("Ingram's") wife is driven to poverty and worry. "Ingram," a mad man, smashes loose from captivity, and eluding pursuit over half a nation catches up with the blackmailing "Ramey," and on the brim of a blazing oil well inferno forces him to confess.

Where the screens need a strong story, expertly written, acted and directed and one whose essence is sensational realness, "Blackmail" is a showman's show that should satisfy almost any kind of audience.

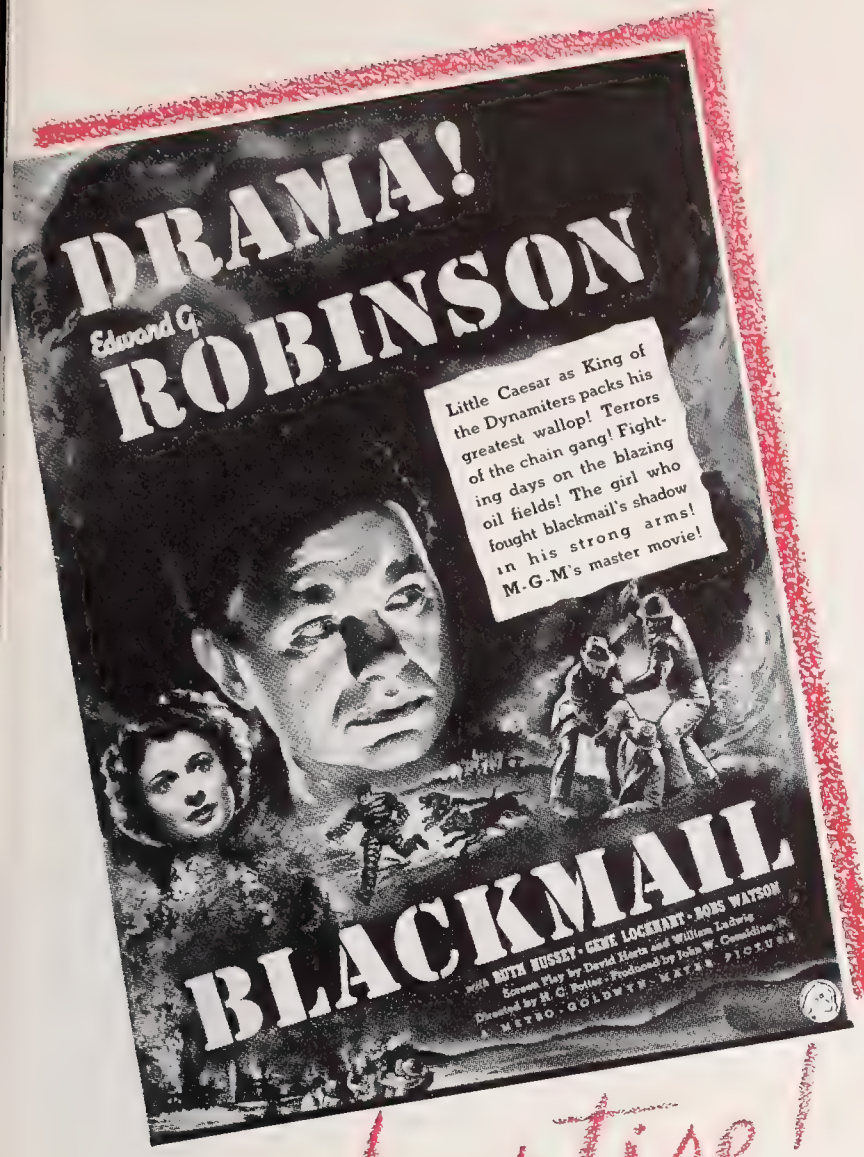
The Angels Wash Their Faces

(First National)

Angelizing the "Dead End Kids"



In this day and age of worldly change, either backwards or forwards, according to one's point of view, it was a little too much to hope that the slugging, slamming school of the "Dead End Kids" would remain the same unspoiled rough, tough hoodlums. In their present production, the lads don't go to the other extreme, but in comparison with their past performances the youngsters seem almost to sprout the beginnings of wings. Yet this transformation does not in any way water down the entertainment punch. In fact, the shift may increase the saleability appeal of the film.

The picture does not bear any connection with its pictorial predecessor of angelic appellation, "Angels with Dirty Faces."

The player panel gives foremost mention to Miss Ann Sheridan, but the limited assignment calls for no display of her "oomph." Additional supporting names of recognized merit include Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas, Ronald Reagan, Henry O'Neill, Margaret Hamilton and Marjorie Main. The menace side of the story is supplied by Eduardo Ciannelli and Bernard Nedell. Ray Enright directed from the triumvirated pens of Michael Fessier, Niven Bush and Robert Buckner and gave the proceedings a fast, funny and felicitous timing.

an incendiarism charge by a neighborhood racketeer. The boy's pals, (the "Dead End Kids"), banded in a local club known as the "Termites," crusade to exonerate their fellow member. They effect this step by having one of their fellows (Billy Hallop) selected as honorary Boy Mayor for Boys' Week activities. The juvenile executive thereupon appoints his young friends to various prominent civic posts and in this setup they proceed to gather incriminating evidence that will convict the real firebugs. The incidental romance is handled by Miss Sheridan and Ronald Reagan.

Riders of the Frontier

(Monogram)

Western Plus Songs

Herein Tex Ritter again portrays the upright Westerner who masquerades as a desperado, joins the cut-throat band engaged in despoiling a prosperous ranch and, having acquired necessary proof of the outfit's guilt, brings the outlaws to justice. It is not importantly unlike countless westerns that have preceded it, many of them more convincingly worked out.

On the plus side of the film are three songs by the star, one in company with the dusky Mantan Moreland, also a cattle stampede and some handsome mountain terrain used as the scene of a running gun fight. On the other side are implausibilities which only dyed-in-the-wool western fans might be expected to overlook. It's an original screen play by Jesse Duffy and Joseph Levering directed by Spencer Gordon Bennett.

Western

Marking a slight departure from the usual western story but having the other ingredients that constitute these outdoor melodramas this latest of the Roy Rogers' series is good entertainment, not only from the standpoint of western adherents but of others who like a lot of comedy in their films. This has a lot of comedy and although credit probably is due all along the production line most of it surely belongs to Raymond Hatton and George Hayes, both of whom have been around a long time and like wine they improve with age.

Rogers sings several songs, in fact he sings on the plains, in a baggage car of an east bound train and in a night club on the Merrick Road on Long Island. Other members of the cast are Ann Baldwin, who makes her debut here; Pierre Watkin, a Wall Street financier and Craig Reynolds and Ivan Miller, the inevitable "bad men." The film was directed by Joseph Kane from a screen play by Gerald Geraghty and Norman Hall.

The story opens at the Rogers' ranch, which has been left him by his father. A mortgage on the farm is soon due and Rogers attempts to get an extension but the crooked loan company refuses as it intends to foreclose. The upshot of this sends Rogers and his two buddies, "Gabby" and "Chuckwalla", to New York for financing when "Gabby" pretends he has found gold on the ranch. The nugget contains no gold but is rich in molybdenum. There is a wild scramble for control of the ranch involving gangsters on Long Island and kidnapping on the ranch but the ending is as expected.

Calling All Marines

(Republic)

Action Melodrama

As long as there is plenty of action in the picture, most persons who like exciting entertainment don't care very much whether or not the motivating story is plausible. Republic has had success with such a premise before, and has made use of it in "Calling All Marines." The picture is not a war story. Rather it is a combination service-gangster-spy-plot yarn. Some of it is pretty hokey. Yet there is enough legitimate stuff to make it satisfactory sustaining entertainment.

"Blackie," gangster-spy ring minion, gets into the Marines by fraud. Disrespectful, unwilling to be disciplined, he does everything to make himself disliked, and in general plays hob with all Marine Corps traditions. A smart guy, he does, however, begin to take some pride in himself. He saves the life of "Sergeant Fox," who beat him up. Yet he unintentionally involves "Fox" in a spy plot. Deserting while under arrest, after being caught a traitor, he learns that "Big Joe's" mob has double crossed him. Becoming a true Marine, he prevents his onetime gangster pals from stealing a military secret in an action-loaded finale.

Romance is but a secondary quality. Comedy contrasts the melodrama.

For names the picture offers the newcomer Donald Barry, Warren Hymer, Robert Kent, Cy Kendall, and Helen Mack in lead roles.

Everything's On Ice

(RKO Radio - Sol Lesser)

Skating Novelty

The skating ability of Irene Dare—a miniature Sonja Henie on the ice—plus a lot of hokum comedy with Edgar Kennedy and Roscoe Karns serving as field marshals of the fun-making forces, and a triangle romance concerning Lynne Roberts, Eric Linden and George Meeker, are the entertainment and commercial assets of "Everything's On Ice."

A family attraction in which there is much to amuse and a few features that amaze, producer Sol Lesser molded the show, which stars his newest child prodigy, from an original screen play by Adrian Landis and Sherman Lowe. Victor Young, Paul Webster, Milton Drake and Fred Stryker composed the music numbers which provide the melody for the well mounted and picturesque solo and chorus skating episodes staged by Dave Gould. Erle C. Kenton's direction makes for an equitable balance of demonstrations of six year old Irene's exceptional athletic talent and mirth-provoking fun.

Just William

(Associated British)

Juvenile Comedy

The works of Richmal Crompton—"Just William," "More William," "William Again"—light-hearted, superficial studies in mischievous childhood, best sellers in their time, have still a public in England. This free and easy variation on the "William" theme, for it owes no allegiance to any particular book, aims at exploiting the title with a juvenile public. With that in view, the producers apparently have aimed at a low target, not lost any sleep in concern about high technical qualities. The childish humors and boyish prankery of the comedy may not arouse the critical enthusiasm of the intelligentsia, but there must be a wide audience mainly of juveniles, and of unsophisticates, who enjoy such lowbrow fare.

There is a strangely vaudevillian story about William's father and a bid for mayor, a share-pushing crook, and an upstart woman neighbor who seems to carry all the local influence. It is probably less important than the adventures of redheaded William and his three playmates.

Teddy Lupino, selected with care for the role, is a chubby and self possessed William, but there is a picture stealer in the person of a Scots child, Norman Robinson, whose laconic comments punctuate the film in the manner of a Caledonian Ned Sparks. Basil Radford is best of the adult cast as a proud parent, while Fred Emney plays his opposite number in the music hall manner, but gets the laughs.

Shown to a trade audience at the Cambridge Theatre, London, the film was received with a sustained smile. Exhibitor opinion at a post trade show reception inclined to the feeling that the indifference of the sophisticates might be anticipated, but that the film made an interesting bid for a wide juvenile public.—AUBREY FLANAGAN.

Soldiers with Wings
(March of Time - RKO)
Army Air Corps

Amid Europe's torpedoings and shellings The March of Time is releasing "Soldiers with Wings," the first issue of volume six.

Handled with the skill and embracing coverage common to The March of Time, the film was made with the full cooperation of the United States Army Air Corps. The action opens in London, shifts to Paris and other European cities, all in imminent danger of being bombed; shows preparations now going on for air raid precautions, pictures the air forces of the leading powers, and then shifts to America and the Army Air Corps with the caption: "The United States is in fact the only great power in all the world whose people do no live in daily fear of air raids and destruction."

Included in its coverage of the Air Corps are the recruiting of pilots, mechanics and technicians; intensive primary training at privately-owned aviation schools; intricate tactics of mass formation and aerial warfare and bombing of targets. A deal of the filming is of airplanes in the air, light pursuit ships, reconnaissance ships and all the other types of military planes, not forgetting the great "Flying Fortresses." Running time, 20 minutes.

Rhumba Rhythm
(MGM)
Musical Miniature

The story of two little girls who went to Hollywood to see the local sights, saw a gallery of movie personalities and conquered in a rhumba contest staged in one of the screen capital's night spots, is the import of this much ado about nothing from the Miniature sidelines. The payoff is when the lasses are presented with an exorbitant bill from their dancing partners, who, unknown to them, are professional instructors. Off the record shots of some of the film personalities include George Murphy, Chester Morris, Frank Albertson, Lana Turner, June Lang and Marsha Hunt. Eduardo Chavez and his rhumba band from the Hollywood La Conga supply the torrid tunes. —Running time, 10 minutes.

Interesting

Color is the high-light of this interesting collection of facts. Four subjects make up the reel. First, the cutting and polishing of precious stones from their original and crude shape until they are ready for the customer. The manufacing of English chinaware is shown secondly with the intricate process clearly described. Polarized glass is the third subject and finally the last sequence reveals the painting of large outdoor billboards from the time when it is first sketched by the artist until it is finished to herald its message to the public.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Stranger Than Fiction, No. 64
(Universal)
Oddities

Universal has an assemblage of interesting persons and facts in the latest Stranger Than Fiction. In Washington there is a pawn shop operated for Indians exclusively. Mrs. Fireda Bax of New York has a love bird that follows her wherever she goes. Along the shores of the Pacific Ocean glass globes of various sizes are picked up by the residents and used for lawn decorations. These globes have been carried by the strong currents from Japan where the fishermen used them for net markers. The remainder of the reel concerns a miniature Merry-Go-Round, pin-head electric motors one-eighth of an inch in size that actually work, a horse nine feet high reputed to be the largest horse in the world, and finally a dog that deposits money in the bank and runs errands for its master.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Big Fish
(Columbia)
Sport Subjects

Marlin fishing in the Pacific Ocean, off the Mexican coast, is presented here in interesting fashion. The struggle between the fisherman and the game and powerful marlin is one easy to watch for the marlin in an effort to escape leaps far out of the water. Running time, 10 minutes.

Sweet Moments
(Paramount)
Musical Variety Program

In the latest issue of Paramount's musicale headliners program Russ Morgan introduces four new songs especially written for this subject. The songs, "Old Heart of Mine," "Holiday in Toyland," "Am I Proud" and "Sweet Moments" are sung by Claire Martin, Mort Curtis, and Carolyn Clarke. Clever direction and excellent lighting enrich the presentation of the tunes. Running time, 11 minutes.

Mooching Through Georgia
(Columbia)
Keaton Comedy

Buster Keaton here portrays a would-be spy in the Civil War. It's never quite clear as to which side Buster is spying for but that is an unimportant consideration, for the whole thing is all in fun. The dead-pan comedian with the help of Monte Collins and Bud Jamison carries on his own little war in a farm house and barn in Kentucky. Buster is captured and sentenced to be shot but he delves into his bag of tricks and singlehandedly disposes of the detachment of troops quartered in the farm house. Running time, 19 minutes.

Merrie Melody Cartoon

This is one of the better and more amusing in the Merrie Melody series. It is a cross-country tour of the United States occasionally reverting back to a "human fly" climbing up the side of one of New York's tallest buildings. On the tour the audience visits, in many amusing situations, the prairies of the west, the land of Dixie, Yellowstone National Park and other points of interest each having its own amusing situation.—Running time, seven minutes.

Jitterbug Knights
(Columbia)
Color Cartoon

A cartoon in color, this tells the story of the birth of an heir to a king. The king, overjoyed at the birth of a son, invites the Three Wise Fairies to come to the palace and bestow their good wishes on the new born prince. The prince has his own ideas as to what favors he wants bestowed. He wants to be a jitterbug. He gets his wish, with the result all the palace attendants join in a general jitterbug jamboree. Running time, 7 minutes.

Hydro-Maniacs
(Paramount)
Sportlight

Narrated by Ted Husing this short is a sequel to "Aquabats" made two years ago by Paramount. Like "Aquabats" the short deals with outboard motorboat racing in Florida waters. The racers run thrills and dangers to win the race by steeplechasing over water barriers, on dangerous hair-pin turns, skidding over land and racing through fire. The short ends with the racers being caught by two ambulance doctors and taken to the local asylum.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Community Sing No. 1
(Columbia)
Crosby Hits

With this Community Sing a new series is begun. It marks the fourth year of the subjects and presents Gene Morgan as master of ceremonies and the King Sisters, a quartette, as the singers. The songs included in this reel are songs made popular by Bing Crosby. They are "One Two Button My Shoe," "Pennies from Heaven," "Love in Bloom," "I'm an Old Cowhand from the Rio Grande" and "Blue Hawaii." Running time, 9 minutes.

The Charm Bracelet
(Columbia)
Cartoon

This is the first subject in a new cartoon series in which new characters will be introduced. Margie, a little girl, receives a bracelet from Scrappy attached to which are an assortment of charms. At night after Margie has gone to sleep the charms come to life. With the dawn the charms return to the chain. Running time, six minutes.

TEST CASES IN ILLINOIS WILL AFFECT VETOED BILL FIXING PROGRAM LENGTH

Rejection of Two Measures by Governor After Expiration of Ten Day Period Challenged; Trade Awaits the Decisions

by KENDALL OLDS
in Springfield

Two Illinois court tests challenging the veto power of Governor Henry Horner may affect the status of numerous pieces of legislation approved by the recent general assembly, but vetoed by the Governor, including the Sandquist bill to limit moving picture performances to two hours and fifteen minutes and aimed at the halting of double bills.

Ten-Day Delay Questioned

A suit has been filed in the Cook county Superior Court at Chicago challenging the governor's right to veto a bill creating a pension system for employes of the state and a similar suit has been filed in the Illinois supreme court at Springfield testing the chief executive's power to veto a measure amending a law regulating the optometrist's profession.

Both test cases question the governors' power to act on bills after ten days (excluding Sundays) from the end of the legislature. Of the 52 bills vetoed by the governor, 41 were acted upon after expiration of the ten-day period in question.

In both suits, it is contended that the two measures on which they were based would have automatically become law at the end of the ten day period whether the governor had acted on them or not. The basis for this is a provision of the state constitution which reads:

"Any bill which shall not be returned by the Governor within ten days (Sundays excepted) after it shall have been presented to him shall become law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the general assembly shall, by their adjournment prevent its return, in which case it shall be filed with his objections, in the office of the secretary of state, within ten days after such adjournment, or become a law."

The Governor holds that the ten day period means ten days after the day upon which he he receives a bill from the legislature. A majority of the bills he vetoed were received from the legislature, however, after the expiration of ten days, making it impossible for him to have acted on these bills.

The governor bases his contention on a ruling in 1937 by the attorney general of Illinois holding that the governor had ten days to act on all legislation regardless of the time which it reached his desk.

No direct test of the governor's veto has ever reached the courts before in Illinois, and legislative leaders are anxiously awaiting outcome of the present litigation.

Movie Bill Affected

The Sandquist movie bill, which in effect would ban double features in Illinois, was vetoed by Governor Horner on July 26th—14 after expiration of the ten day limit under question.

He withheld his approval from the legislation on the grounds that it was unconstitutional in that the legislature had no power to pass laws for such regulation. His decision said the power of the general assembly to regulate a lawful occupation extends only to such measures as are "reasonably necessary and appropriate for the accomplishment of a legitimate object within the domain of the police power," and that the police power cannot be invoked unless the purpose to be attained "has a rational and clear relationship to the public health, morals, safety or welfare."

He said the bill contained no reference to the quality or character of motion picture films exhibited, and consequently, was not intended to protect public morals, safety or welfare.

Should the Sandquist bill become law by virtue of a court ruling it probably would not be enforced immediately because of the question of its validity. Should it be enforced, however, it carries a penalty for violation of a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500 or imprisonment in the county jail for not more than six months, or both, in the discretion of the court.

STEFFES PREDICTS FLOOD OF DUALS

A. W. Steffes, president of Northwest Allied, said last week at the hearing on the proposed ordinance to limit film programs in Minneapolis to 2 hours and 15 minutes that every independent is unanimously in favor of the ordinance. He predicted that unless it is adopted the city within a short time would be flooded with double and even triple bills.

The rumored Chicago ordinance for restricting film shows to 2 hours and 15 minutes has been tabled for the present, according to sponsors of the measure.

Sign Wisconsin Bill; Other Legislation

Julius P. Heil, Governor of Wisconsin, has signed the Rubin bill which provides for stricter penalties for discrimination against persons in inns, hotels, places of amusement, etc., because of color or creed. The amendment to the state law increases the minimum damages to which violators are liable from $5 to $25.

The Oshkosh, Wis., common council has adopted an ordinance which provides for the appointment of an electrical inspector whose duties include the inspection of wiring and electric installations of all film theatres at least once every three months. Under the measure, theatres would be required to make necessary repairs or changes as stipulated by the inspector within 15 days after notice.

As a result of a special election held in Walton, N. Y., this week, a victory for Sunday motion pictures was won with the voters casting 848 votes for and 771 against the proposition. The referendum brought out the second highest registration in the city's history.

Sunday motion pictures for Lake City, Tenn., were approved this week by a three to one vote of the board of alderman.

Screen Expresses Democracy, Says Dietz at Forum

Motion pictures represent a broad propaganda for the "American dream of equality and opportunity for all," while the box office functions as the ballot box of public taste, said Howard Dietz, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer advertising and publicity director, in a speech on "The Movies and Propaganda for Democracy," made at the Williamstown Institute of Human Relations last week.

The meeting at Williamstown, an annual event, had as one of its leading topics the effects of propaganda on democracy. Meeting from August 27th to September 1st, the forum had among its speakers, in addition to Mr. Dietz, Worthington Miner, Theatre Guild director; Brock Pemberton, theatrical producer; Alfred Harding of Actors' Equity; Dr. Frank Kingdon, president of the University of Newark; Dr. Everett Clinchy, director of the Institute; and Professor Richard Lewis of Glendale Junior College.

Citing the Italian banning of foreign films as "perhaps the greatest business mistake of the Italian Government," Mr. Dietz said that "American films convey throughout the world a broadness of understanding which we in America, so accustomed to the true atmosphere which they find mirrored, do not always recognize."

"I do not hold," continued Mr. Dietz, "that the boxoffice is a criterion of what is to be preferred in motion pictures, but an organic understanding of the position now occupied by the motion picture would give considerable weight to the boxoffice which functions in its own critical fashion in a democratic way analagous to the ballot box."

Mr. Deitz added, "When one discusses 'The Movies and Propaganda for Democracy,' one implies that the movies may be used for a purpose as a message. The fact is, however, that movies are an expression of democracy and they find their greatest success when they are a true expression of it. . . . As for contemporary social problems which bring us closer to our thoughts about democracy, the makers of movies have to be extremely careful not to misrepresent those problems."

Mr. Pemberton said that "nothing is as dull on the stage as politics, because politics is an intellectual concept and the soul of drama is emotion." He ended by asserting that "dictatorships in recent years have furnished indisputable proofs that the drama is better off under democratic forms of government. A free theatre is a vital theatre; a censored theatre is on its way out."

The legitimate theatre was characterized as"highly undemocratic" by Mr. Miner. He said that the theatre was "for the rich in the richest city of this country, and I believe this situation is deplored by every author, actor and manager in the business."

NEW TRUST SUIT; COAST HEARING OCT. 16; MOMAND CHARGES DENIED

L. L. Dunbar in Dallas Accuses Interstate Circuit of Conspiracy to Force Up Prices in Second Run Theatres

Add to the growing list of 40-odd anti-trust actions by government and independent against circuits and the majors the suit filed this week in Dallas by L. L. Dunbar against Interstate Circuit and Karl Hoblitzelle, its president.

Unusually quick action is being taken with the suit filed last week by the United States against Fox West Coast Theatres and the majors, the U. S. district court at Los Angeles on Tuesday fixing October 16th as the hearing date for the criminal contempt action.

All defendants among the majors in the Momand trust action in Oklahoma City filed denials this week, a week which also saw the closing of the Government's case against Balaban and Katz and the majors in Chicago, and extension of the time to answer in the New York case of Folley Amusements vs. distributors and the Baltimore case of Westway vs. the majors.

Dunbar Asks Triple Damages

L. L. Dunbar, operator of the Cliff-Queen theatre in Dallas, filed suit in federal court last week against the Interstate Circuit and Karl Hoblitzelle, its president, charging conspiracy to force up prices in second runs, and asking triple damages of $54,443 and attorneys' fees.

Mr. Dunbar charged that the circuit had put pressure on distributors causing "the latter to demand that second run films be shown for an admission of not less than 25 cents," whereas his price had long been 20 cents.

In addition, he charged that the defendants "had brought about a ban against double bills," and that he had operated his house since 1925 with average annual profits of about $6,000 "until the restrictions were placed on operations."

Hearing on West Coast Action Set for October

The criminal contempt action filed last week by the Department of Justice against Fox West Coast, the majors, except Columbia, and 54 individual defendants, charging violation of a 1930 consent decree, is to be heard before U. S. District Judge George Cosgrave on October 16th.

Among the violations of the decree charged are the following: that as a result of the defendants' practices, many unaffiliated exhibitors were forced to sell their theatres to Fox West Coast, or enter into arrangements granting the circuit a controlling interest in their theatres, and that the circuit had been permitted by distribuors to deduct costs of giveaways or stage shows from gross receipts.

The individual defendants named were:

Loew's and M-G-M Distributing Corporation: Nicholas M. Schenck, Al Lichtman, William F. Rodgers, Edward M. Saunders, George A. Hickey, Clayton T. Lynch.

Paramount: Barney Balaban, Neil F. Agnew, Charles M. Reagan, Myke H. Lewis, George A. Smith, Carroll N. Peacock.

Warner Brothers, Vitagraph: Harry M. Warner, Albert W. Warner, Ben Kalmenson, W. E. Calloway, Gradwell L. Sears, N. H. Brower.

United Artists: Murray Silverstone, Ben Fish, George J. Schaefer, E. W. McLean, L. J. Schlaifer.

Universal: Nathan J. Blumberg, J. Cheever Cowdin, William A. Scully, Charles J. Feldman, William J. Heineman, James R. Grainger, A. J. O'Keefe.

RKO: Leo Spitz, Ned E. Depinet, Jules Levy, Cresson E. Smith, Harry Cohen, George J. Schaefer, N. P. Jacobs.

Twentieth Century-Fox: Sidney R. Kent, Joseph M. Schenck, W. J. Kupper, John N. Dillon, Herman Wobber.

It was pointed out by the Department that the penalty for criminal contempt is fine or prison or both.

Momand Defendants File Denials

Answers materially denying specific allegations were filed this week by the 16 defendants, including the majors, in the $4,500,000 anti-trust suits of A. B. Momand, in Federal District Court in Oklahoma City.

The answers to the amended complaint state that the complaint fails to state a cause of action against the defendant upon which relief can be granted, that Momand is not the real party in interest, deny that the defendants are violating any section of the Clayton Anti-Trust act, and deny each and every material statement, averment or inference in the complaint of any combination, agreement, contract, monopoly or conspiracy on the part of the defendants.

While the answers were the same, each defendant company filed a separate paper.

Schines Ask for Suit Dismissal

A motion to dismiss the Government anti-trust suit complaint against the Schines in Buffalo federal court was filed Tuesday by Willard S. McKay, attorney for the defendants. The motion, which will be argued September 18th, asks dismissal on the ground that the court lacks jurisdiction because the Schine circuit is not engaged in interstate commerce. Additionally, the motion claims that the complaint fails to state facts on which any judgment can be based and that no facts are set forth which show violation of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Defendants are Schine Chain Theatres, Inc., Schine Circuit, Inc., Schine Theatrical Company, Inc., Schine Enterprises Corporation, Schine Lexington Corporaiton, Chesapeake Theatre Corporaiton, J. Meyer Schine, Louis Schine and John A. Kay.

U. S. Closes B & K Case

The Government in Chicago Wednesday closed its case against Balaban and Katz and the majors for alleged violation of a consent decree. The defense was expected to immediately file a motion to strike out portions of the evidence or to dismiss the case.

Edgar Eldredge, master-in-chancery, was to hear the motions before the weekend. The case then is expected to be postponed for one week, the defense starting its evidence on September 25th.

Columbia Gets Extension To Answer Folley Suit

A stipulation extending the time of Columbia Pictures to December 20th to serve and file its answer to the suit of the Folley Amusement Company was filed in U. S. District Court last week.

No reason for the extension was given.

Extension of Time For Westway Defendants

Counsel for the defendants in the suit of the Westway theatre, Baltimore, versus the Edgewood theatre and major companies, this week moved in federal district court, Baltimore, for a motion of extension of time.

Judge W. Calvin Chestnut granted the motion, extending the time for filing answers to complaints to September 13th.

HAYS ALSO CONFERS WITH FRANK MURPHY

Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, not only visited President Roosevelt last week at the White House but also conferred with Attorney General Frank Murphy in Washington shortly thereafter.

In neither case, it was said, was the Government's anti-trust suit against the film industry discussed. President Roosevelt, while denying that the trust suit had been mentioned, did not disclose, at his press conference, what had been discussed.

Mr. Murphy said that the meeting with Mr. Hays was for the purpose of discussing a "formula" to be followed by the producers in making films involving Department of Justice activities. Department officials, it is said, have not been pleased at the depiction of their activities in some recent films.

U.S. ASKS MAJORS TO ANSWER FOR EVERY MOVE MADE IN EIGHT YEARS

68 Main and 189 Sub-Questions Cover Every Phase of Film Activity; Details Sought on Lending Stars

The United States Government, in extending, through the courts, its interest in the operation and conduct of the motion picture industry, has asked the federal court to order the eight major company defendants and subsidiaries and affiliates, to answer for every financial, corporate, management and operating move made individually by them in the last eight years.

68 Main and 189 Sub-Questions

The demand took the form of a petition filed last Friday in the U. S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, in the key equity suit in New York for the answers to and full explanation of 68 main and 189 subquestions governing every conceivable phase of corporate organization, production, pooling and lending of talent and production assets, distribution, exhibition and defendant's history.

Thurman Arnold, U. S. assistant attorney general, in charge of anti-trust suit cases and prosecutor of this case, signed the petition, together with his aides who are participating in the case: Paul Williams, Robert L. Wright, John F. Clagett and Shelby Fitze, as his special assistants and Seymour Krieger, J. Cunningham and Seymour Simon, special attorneys. John T. Cahill, U. S. Attorney for the Southern District of New York, signed the petition.

It is at the discretion of the court to grant or refuse the Government's petition, and the major defendants are virtually certain to oppose the demand, which, if granted, would put into documentary form probably the greatest insight into individual company and industry structure ever written. While it is customary under the new rules of federal court procedure for the court to order the defendants to answer questions contained in such a Department of Justice petition, the defendants can move to vacate.

By agreement with Mr. Williams, for the Government, the defendants will be given an extension of 30 days beyond September 15th to answer the Government's petition.

See Trial Delay

The Government's demand may make the start of trial of the suit before the first of next year a physical impossibility, regardless of the pending Federal court action on the Government's application for a preferred place on the calendar.

Some companies, it is believed, will contest the Government's right to some of the information sought and others will question the propriety and relevancy of other parts of the interrogations.

Both procedures will be time-consuming and, attorneys assert, a month or more may be required to obtain the information sought by the Government and prepare it for submission.

Gross and Net Returns

Each defendant is required to state its gross income and net earnings or losses for 1935-36-37 and 1938. The questions seek information of the names of all concerns and individuals in which the particular defendant owns "any financial interest, directly or indirectly, through subsidiaries or otherwise" in the production, distribution and exhibition fields. In each instance the defendant is asked to set forth the form of the organization, capital invested, number and location of offices, amounts of stocks and bonds held by defendants, date of acquisition, and names of persons from whom acquired. These details are also asked as to ownership of any business "related to the motion picture industry other than production, distribution, or exhibition."

Similar data is required as to ownership in the defendants of a financial interest by an outside concern. Defendants must supply in addition information as to their relationship with holding companies.

Incorporation Details

Defendants are required to supply date and state of incorporation and the purpose of incorporation. A list of the addresses of principal executive officers and of exchange officers with the names and duties of managers and assistants is asked for. A list of the names and addresses of directors and officers, a statement of the outstanding stock, total amount of indebtedness and current loans, and identification of creditors in the sum of $10,000 or more must be furnished.

The U. S. also seeks a list of the 20 largest stockholders of record of each class of stock, and also seeks the names of corporate defendants who either own securities of a company, or are creditors of it, and details concerning the relationships, such as participation in the management of the company.

Also asked are a number of questions as to pooling arrangements or joint ventures, financial details and manner of operation. Separate data was also asked for on pooled theaters held in Philadelphia, New York City, Dallas, Kansas City, New Orleans, Boston and Seattle. Details on box-office receipts from first-run and subsequent-run theaters was asked for specifically.

History of Defendants

Four questions are presented on the history of the defendants and made inquiry into reorganization, mergers, stock or asset acquisitions and consolidations. In respect to these questions, information was also asked about the acquisition of ownership of companies operating more than 10 theatres. Names and addresses of persons supplying the information must be set forth, the notice stated.

Separate information is sought as to film rentals received from theatres in New York City, Chicago, Philadelphia, Washington, Los Angeles, and Cincinnati.

The Government requires the name and location of every theatre in the U. S. which has purchased for exhibition any feature picture, excluding spot bookings, distributed by the defendant or a subsidiary during 1937-38, and to group these according to zones and protection.

Also required is information on the protection afforded to each theatre, and the number of persons employed by the defendant or its subsidiaries in the distribution field.

Questions asked about exhibition include complete information on the names and financial arrangements of subsidiaries and of pooled theater holdings. Details are requested as to the nature of the interest, date of acquisition, and from whom acquired since Jan. 1, 1930.

If a company subsequently divested itself of a theatre, details are wanted.

Shorts and Newsreels

A list of short subjects and newsreels distributed over the same period, with details as to titles, cost of production, release date, name of producer, and total film rental, is demanded.

Lists are also wanted of short subjects and newsreels distributed to affiliates of the five major producer-exhibitors. The notice asked that each defendant submit any charts or compilations available on the subject of the proportion of total domestic revenue that it received from any one feature picture in any particular city or geographical subdivision.

Particular information is sought on exhibition in cities of Milwaukee, Chicago and Cleveland.

Each defendant must itemize a list of its feature pictures, produced either by it or its subsidiaries, from 1919 through 1938, including the titles, names of stars, approximate costs, and name of distributor. The number of sound stages owned, leased or operated by a company, with its location and size is asked for.

Companies must list the number of short subjects and newsreels produced, commencing with 1919, stating the cost of production for each season. Each company also must furnish information as to the number of persons now employed by it and its subsidiaries in production.

A number of questions are directed to the practice of lending talent and production assets.

Stars and Loans

The government also wants to know the names of the first five persons in the categories of star, featured player, director, or technicians loaned to other producers; the names of the producers, and date of the loan. Complete details are sought on all loans made since Jan. 1, 1933, and whether profits were shared when a loan was made. Companies must also state identical information concerning the borrowing of personnel.

The Government also asked questions concerning the lending of production sets, sound stages or other equipment, and a list of each instance since Jan. 1, 1933.

Distribution activities were covered by 12 main questions, first of which was a demand for a list of all feature pictures distributed by the defendant or its subsidiaries from 1935 through 1938. In regard to this list, complete information is sought on the title, name of producer, names of stars, cost of production, national release date, total number of theaters in U. S. to which picture was distributed, total film rental, a separate list of film rentals from theaters affiliated with the five major producer-exhibitors, film rentals from first-run theaters, with a separate statement from first-run affiliates and from subsequent-run affiliates.

PARAMOUNT CARAVAN WILL TOUR COUNTRY

A caravan sponsored by Paramount will leave Los Angeles September 13th for an 8,500-mile tour of the United States. It will consist of one three-masted clipper ship, 67 feet long, mounted on a truck and trailer; a second ship, replica of the first steam vessel to cross the Atlantic, 57 feet long; two special de luxe buses in in which film players and their guests will travel from city to city, and a 5-ton supply truck and an advance truck containing two-way radio communication with the main caravan and two sedans.

The vessels are quarter-scale replicas of those used in the Paramount production, "Rulers of the Sea".

A new 1,000 seat theatre is to be built in Brentwood, a suburb of Pittsburgh, by John P. Moss, who also operates the Melrose theatre in Carrick.

213 CIRCUITS COMPLETE CAMPAIGNS FOR "GOLDEN JUBILEE" IN OCTOBER

Committee Points to Mention in Editorials in 80 Newspapers; Public Library's Collection To Be Made Available

Two hundred and thirteen circuits, large and small, and scores of individual owners from east to west, have notified the "Golden Jubilee" committee at headquarters in the offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, in New York, that they have actually launched or are about to launch campaigns in behalf of the industry and their box offices in observance of the motion picture's 50th anniversary during the week of October 1st to 7th.

Combining their own promotional initiative with the plans and ideas set down by the committee (detailed in MOTION PICTURE HERALD on August 5th, page 33), from the amplified press book specially prepared for the occasion, circuit executives, managers and individual owners now are completing the form which the observance will take in their respective operations, embracing parades and proclamations, ballyhoo of every kind and description and the more quiet styles of theatre exploitation.

Editorials in 80 Newspapers

Since the first announcement, on August 15th, the observance has received favorable attention in editorials in 80 newspapers, besides news stories filling many press books, the committee reports.

The largest collection of motion picture bibliography, posters, press sheets and other material, both old and contemporary, in any public institution, now reposing in the New York Public Library, will be turned over to the "Golden Jubilee" campaign by George Freedley, director, who will set up the material for public study during the celebration week.

In the committee's special press book there are detailed numerous forms of accessories available and special press material obtainable for local press use by exhibitors.

Cooperation of civic, club, library and school leaders has been enlisted in many places. Mrs. Malcolm Parker MacCoy, chairman of the Department of Motion Pictures of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, has sent a letter to all local motion picture chairmen in the state suggesting that they take the initiative in local observances. The Federation program includes a suggestion to local chairmen that they call together all agencies in their communities which have an active motion picture program, such as women's clubs, YMCA's, YWCA's, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, representatives of schools and public libraries.

She enclosed a three-page outline of activities, including library, school, radio, newspaper cooperation, and a luncheon, dinner or mass meeting under sponsorship of the Federation to observe the 50th anniversary, week of October 1-7.

RKO's Tieup

Many individual phases are being developed in theatre campaigns. RKO Theatres have tied up the Golden Jubilee with the 50th anniversary of RKO Theatres. A trailer is now running which uses the combined anniversaries as a news peg for the announcement of new screen attractions. Theatres are decorated and many special celebration stunts are being planned, according to Harry Mandel, director of advertising. "RKO salutes motion pictures' Golden Jubilee of hits," and "This RKO theatre proudly joins in celebrating motion pictures' Golden Jubilee," are among the slogans being used.

National Theatres are using the anniversary in connection with their fourth national drive. Spyros Skouras returned to New York from a tour, in the course of which he canvassed the entire Fox West Coast circuit, making the 50th anniversary a part of the campaign he outlined before a series of six sectional meetings which included managers, bookers, maintenance men, treasurers, district and division managers in the Milwaukee, Kansas City, Denver, Northwestern and California areas.

Eastern Skouras Theatres are making general use of the anniversary in programs, trailers and advertising. Public relations departments of both eastern and western divisions are making wide use of 50th anniversary material in connection with schools, universities, library and club cooperations.

The Paramount campaign is decentralized, each partner's organization handling its own campaign.

Circuit and Theatre Plans

One of the earliest campaigns to get underway was that launched by the Schine Circuit (detailed by the MOTION PICTURE HERALD of August 19th). Gene Curtis, director of advertising, developed a trailer which opens with the May Irwin-John C. Rice kiss made by the Edison Company in 1896, Mary Pickford in "The Good Little Devil," and John Bunny as Mr. Pickwick. It outlines a "Movie Line Contest" and the new pictures for the season.

F. F. Vincent, of Pioneer Theatre Corporation, in Minnesota and Iowa, has planned a series of special luncheons in each of his 12 towns.

Allied Theatres of Michigan is planning to celebrate the 50th anniversary in connection with its own 20th anniversary. Miss P. M. Sprott, business manager, is preparing special material for the convention program in Kalamazoo, October 2nd to 4th.

C. W. Anderson, publicity manager of Civic Theatres, Denver, has already used Mr. Hays' announcement and the first of the four installments of the highlights of motion picture history, in the Civic News, distributed as a weekend section of The Monitor. The paper is now running an editorial series of special articles on various phases of the industry.

John F. Burhorn, manager of the Gayety theatre in Chicago, has arranged an extensive publicity campaign on the Fiftieth Anniversary with the cooperation of The Daily Calumet.

The observance is reported to be industry-wide. All exhibitor organizations are cooperating, including MPTOA, Allied and other independent groups, according to the committee.

The combined Loew's "Movie Hit Parade and Crosley Motor Cavalcade," which celebrates both the "Golden Jubilee" of motion pictures and the annual Loew-Poli inauguration of the new film season, started from Boston September 7th with a parade of the ten Crosley cars, driven by college girls, and a specially-constructed Loew float, visits to the Governor and Mayor, radio broadcasts and a theatre celebration. Harry F. Shaw, Loew-Poli division manager, accompanies the cavalcade from Boston to Springfield, Providence, Worcester, Hartford, Meriden, Waterbury, New Haven, Bridgeport, and the windup at the N. Y. World's Fair.

CLEVELAND HURT BY NIGHT BASEBALL

Cleveland is another city added to the growing list of those playing night baseball games with the resultant falling off in theatre business. The games in the Stadium have drawn crowds of 15,000 to 50,000, causing a drop of 20 per cent in receipts in the average house.

Municipal and private tennis courts also have been equipped for night playing, a situation true of other sports and sporting events. Cleveland has gone back to the old-fashioned picnic this year also and few large picnics have been postponed because of rain.

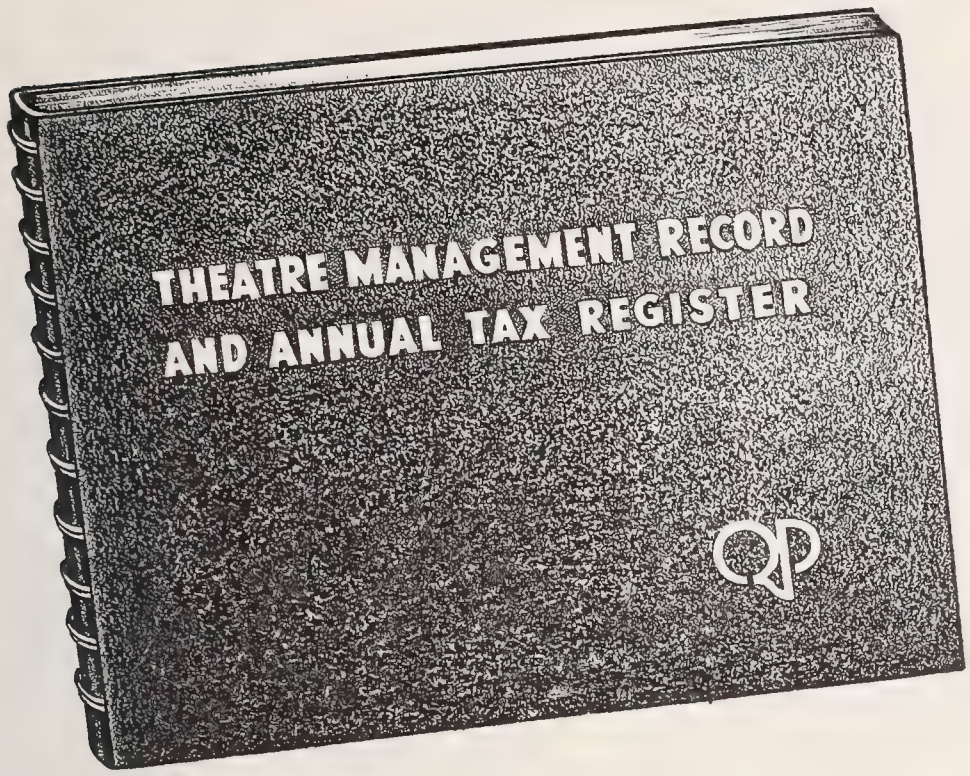
Tri-States Outing Held; Variety Clubs Set Dates

Tri-States and Central States theatre officials, headed by A. H. Blank, were hosts to approximately 150 men of the office force of both corporations, and managers, salesmen and bookers of the Des Moines and Omaha film exchanges, at a golf outing followed by a steak dinner and social evening at the Hyperion Club in Des Moines last week.

The Milwaukee Variety Club is sponsoring an all-day outing Friday at the Tripoli Country Club. The committee in charge includes L. F. Gran, Frank Clark, Charles W. Trampe, E. J. Weisfeldt and B. J. Miller.

George Baker, head of the Kansas City Variety Club, has appointed Earl Jameson as general chairman of the 1939-'40 Charity Ball, and Frank E. Ritter and T. R. Thompson as co-chairmen of the annual golf tournament, which will be held some time this month.

The Annual Golf Tournament and Dinner Dance of Exhibitor-Variety Club of Philadelphia will be held at LuLu Country Club September 29th. Milton Rogasner is chairman of the committee arranging the affair.



The Atlantic City Variety Club held a jubilee dinner at the Hotel Traymore there on Tuesday, with P. Mortimer Lewis and Frank R. Gravatt, president of the Atlantic City Steel Pier Company, acting as Kings-for-a-Day.

William K. Jenkins, vice-president of Lucas and Jenkins Theatres and chief barker of Atlanta's new Variety Club, has announced that all plans have been completed for the charter night presentation of the club which will take place September 21st at the Henry Grady Hotel.

Louis B. Mayer, vice-president in charge of production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has accepted honorary chairmanship of the annual charity baseball game of Hollywood stars to be played in San Francisco September 17th.

Warner Brothers annual home office golf tournament will be held September 19th at Glen Oaks Country Club at Little Neck, L. I. Jerry Keyser is chairman of the golf committee.

Many Theatres Unsatisfactory, Says SMPE

"Probably the most striking results" of an investigation by the projection committee of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, consisted in the finding that of 600 representative theatres examined only about 16 per cent proved to have satisfactory conditions for all the basic considerations of proper visual and acoustic motion picture presentation, according to M. Rettinger, of RCA Manufacturing Company, Hollywood.

While this analysis included theatres built before sound, the number of satisfactory theatres erected since that time was not greatly larger, being about 27 per cent, disclosed Mr. Rettinger.

The Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has issued a supplement to the previously issued technical bulletin of October 10, 1938 (Third Revision, Standard Electrical Characteristics for Two-Way Reproducing Systems in Theatres) containing specifications for standard electrical chacteristics for International Projector Simplex "four-star" sound systems.

Use of these standard electrical characteristics, said the Council, will permit the theatre to derive the maximum advantage from the latest studio sound recording practices "and will result in a more uniform sound quality in all theatres using these systems." These standards, adopted by the Council after holding a number of listening tests in several theatres in the southern California areas, are a continuation of the work of the Council's theatre standardization committee to further the coordination between the theatre and studio groups.

These characteristics, in conjunction with previously issued standard electrical characteristics for Mirrophonic and RCA systems cover a majority of modern sound reproducing equipments as currently installed in theatres.

In addition, the Council also is issuing supplementary instructions calling attention to the fact that to obtain high quality sound reproduction in the theatre it is necessary to install adequate audio-frequency power, depending on the size of the theatre auditorium under consideration.

Time Planning Subject On Catholic Church

The March of Time is planning a subject on the Catholic Church, especially concerning its functioning in the United States. Camera crews have been at work for some little time at the Vatican, shooting general material for use in the subject.

It is said that a large portion of the footage will be shot in this country. At the present time the subject is expected to be ready for release in about six months, although it is possible it will be released earlier.

Acquire Yamins Theatres

Nathan Yamins' Durfee and Empire theatres in Fall River, Mass., have been taken over by Interstate Theatres Corporation. Mr. Yamins will continue to operate the Park, Strand and Capitol in Fall River. William J. Canning, manager of the Durfee until about a year ago, will return to manage the Empire for Interstate. The Durfee will be managed by Christopher Joyce of Plymouth.

"Rains Came" Premiere

A special premiere of "The Rains Came" will be held at the Ohio theatre in Mansfield, Ohio, on Saturday. The premiere of the Twentieth Century-Fox film will be in honor of the author, Louis Bromfield, whose home is in Mansfield, and will follow by one day the world premiere at the Roxy theatre in New York. (Reviewed on page 46.)

Talk of Ban Adds To Publicity for 'Gone with Wind'

After nearly two years of first-class, first-page newspaper attention, pending the start of production, David Oliver Selznick's "Gone with the Wind" had been getting very little press and public notice of late, as the cameras have been grinding around it, until last week when the North and South went at each other again with a press agent's delight in attack and defense of the story of the Civil War.

The oldtimers of the Grand Army of the Republic last Thursday voted an absolute boycott; the South quickly rallied to the rescue, and the newspapers once more went back to the subject of Mr. Selznick's film.

The word battle over the film was begun by the Daughters of Union Veterans, an auxiliary, and was taken up by the GAR when the resolution of Thomas Ambrose, Sr., vice-commander of Illinois, was adopted by 100 representatives of the 2,700,000 men who enlisted in the Union Army in the Civil War. The Daughters, meeting in conjunction with the 73d annual encampment of the GAR, held in Pittsburgh, charged that the Hollywood version of the novel was "an outrageous attempt" to "smirch the reputation" of General William T. Sherman.

The Ambrose resolution charged the film version of the Margaret Mitchell novel would portray a Union soldier as "a hideous maurauder, attacking women," and urged that the GAR "absent themselves" from any theatre showing "this defamatory film."

Mrs. Walter D. Lamar, president-general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, in Macon, Ga., said the resolution "may cripple the fine relations between the Grand Army of the Republic and the Confederate veterans, but not for long."

"They cannot affect the staging of a truthful, impressive account of that strife between brothers," she said, adding, "they may nullify the good of the Gettysburg reunion."

Mrs. Edna R. Carroll of Philadelphia, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Board of Motion Picture Censors, said this week that the book "left me with a definite feeling that the invading forces were held up in a bad light. But that's history. I don't think there is any basis for banning a picture on those grounds."

Incidentally the film is to be released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Appointed Sales Director

Myke Lewis, Paramount sales executive, has been made director of sales for Harry Sherman Productions, with Hollywood headquarters. He will leave soon on a trip to all Paramount exchanges in the United States and Canada.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

Hunchback of Notre Dame

(RKO Radio)

Melodrama of Devotion

Few works of quasi-fact and fiction are as universally well known as Victor Hugo's timeless novel, "Notre Dame de Paris." The current screen boasts very few, if any at all, better actors than Charles Laughton. "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Ruggles of Red Gap," "The Beachcomber" and "Jamaica Inn" substantiate that fact This powerful story of medieval Paris and its great cathedral narrates the doglike devotion of a deformed outcast to his masters, his revolt against one who ruthlessly persecutes a beautiful gypsy girl. It also tells of the girl's romance with a young poet. This moving story, when made with Lon Chaney the star, was one of the most notable pictures of its generation.

The whole RKO Radio organization, producer Pandro S. Berman and director William Dieterle, maker of a great many outstanding Warner films, are making every effort to insure that this production will maintain all its fine traditions. A great deal of money has been spent. Great and impressive sets will be seen; thousands of extras will participate. When it comes to names, little is left for any exhibitor to desire. With Laughton there will be Sir Cedric Hardwicke, now in "Stanley and Livingstone"; Thomas Mitchell, outstanding in "Hurricane" and "Stage Coach"; Maureen O'Hara, Laughton's co-star in "Jamaica Inn"; Walter Hampden, one of America's ablest actors; Alan Marshall, Katherine Alexander, Harry Davenport, Minna Gombell, Rod LaRocque, George Zucco, Fritz Leiber and Etienne Girardot.

At RKO Radio, where the 1939-40 product looks considerably stronger than was the 1938-39 program, there is a strong feeling of confidence that the "Hunchback of Notre Dame" will prove to be a better audience and money attraction than was "Gunga Din."

Rio

(Universal)

Melodrama and Romance

The production which John Brahm is directing will offer a carefully chosen and exceptionally well balanced cast. All the principals are name players, with dependable Basil Rathbone, Victor McLaglen and Leo Carrillo assigned important roles. In addition there is Sigrid Gurie. First seen in "Marco Polo" with Gary Cooper, the definite impression she made in "Algiers" was furthered by her able work in "The Forgotten Women." Yet the impression prevails at the studio that with "Rio," Miss Gurie will take her place among the screen's most glamorous stars. Another evidence of showmanship casting is seen in the selection of Robert Cummings, who after several years in so-so pictures came into his own in "Three Smart Girls Grow Up." Irving Bacon and Maurice Moscovich will be the principal support.

With locales in Paris, Brazil and a jungle penal colony, the story has a strong basic plot and several arresting counterplots. Melodrama is the essence of all that occurs. Prison is the fate of Rathbone when his financial empire, built on fraud, collapses. His wife (Sigrid Gurie) and their old servant McLaglen go to South America to be near him. There the wife meets young American Cummings, and inspires him to rehabilitate himself. They fall in love. Meanwhile her husband, aided by McLaglen, contrives to escape. Beating a tortuous way back to his wife, he finds her and the American in love. In blind fury he threatens to kill, but, realizing that more unhappiness would be the result and that a return to prison horrors would be inevitable, he prevails upon his faithfully obedient servant to kill him.

OurNeighbors—TheCarters

(Paramount)

Family Sentimentality

"Our Neighbors—The Carters" will tell the story of a typical American family, the kind that everybody knows. It traces a brief but critical chapter in the family's history, picturing its joys and sorrows, hopes and disappointments, tragedies and triumphs, and promises to be human interest screen entertainment.

The Carters are forced to face two problems. Losing his drug store lease to a chain, Carter, Sr., denied the management of the unit, launches another personally directed business, only to face the discouraging competition of big business. Secondly, one child who has been a cripple, needs an operation, but the money secretly saved for this has been spent to finance the new store.

A Charles R. Rogers production, the picture is being directed by Ralph Murphy, who was associated with Mr. Rogers several years ago in connection with "Song of the Eagle" and "Golden Harvest."

Frank Craven and Fay Bainter will be presented as the heads of the Carter household, with Gloria Carter, Benny Bartlett, Donald Brennon and Scotty Beckett, the children. Edward McWade will be the town banker and Edmund Lowe and Genevieve Tobin the family friends.

Release date: To be determined.

Missing Evidence

(Universal)

Crime Melodrama

This picture's name value will be represented by Preston Foster and Irene Hervey, who were cofeatured in "Society Smugglers," Chick Chandler, Inez Courtney, Noel Madison, Joe Downing, Oscar O'Shea, Ray Walker, Matty Fain and Robert Strange.

The time of "Missing Evidence" is the present and New York City is the general locale. The theme, which is supported with action and excitement, has to do with the exploits and adventures of a fast-thinking, ready-fisted FBI agent who exercises his racket busting talents by smashing a ring that has been distributing counterfeit sweepstakes tickets and wins the affections of a girl who assisted him.

The story is an original by Stuart and Dorrell McGowan, which Arthur T. Horman transcribed to the screen. It is being directed by Phil Rosen.

Release date: To be determined.

Three Sons

(RKO Radio)

A Family Story

A while ago RKO-Radio produced "A Man to Remember," a picture which still is being talked about in many quarters. Since that time Robert Sisk, producer, has been searching for a story of similar emotional and commercial appeal. He finally decided upon Lester Cohen's novel, "Sweepings." It may be remembered that Radio made this picture in early 1933 with Lionel Barrymore in the leading role. Now, with Edward Ellis, starred in "A Man to Remember," succeeding Barrymore, the character of the story, with John Twist credited with the screen play, has been considerably changed, though the basic plot has been retained.

The general setting is Chicago and 40 years elapse in the story, which concerns a man's belief in his city, his store and his family. The store prospers and so does the city, but the family proves a disappointment. Money, the thing he has striven for, destroys his children. The boys grow up spendthrifts. Only when the old man is at the point of death, when he visions his dynasty crumbling, does the youngest show signs of willingness to carry on his dreams.

The cast supporting Ellis will feature, as his children in the story, Kent Taylor, Dick Hogan and Robert Stanton, who with Virginia Vale won the second Jesse Lasky "Gateway to Hollywood" radio talent quest. William Gargan will be his brother, Katherine Alexander his wife, and J. Edward Bromberg the store manager. Additional players listed are Grady Sutton, Barbara Pepper, Adele Pearce and Alexander D'Arcy.

Release date: October 6, 1939.

Another Thin Man

(MGM)

Comedy-Mystery

Probably most exhibitors, when it comes time to exploit "Another Thin Man," will be content to broadcast the announcement that William Powell and Myrna Loy again will be seen with their dog Asta, in a picture that contains the full appeal of an amusing domestic comedy and an exciting detective mystery. In the majority of cases that bare announcement would probably be enough, for it will recall the happy memories of "The Thin Man" and "After the Thin Man." The married couple will have a baby this time, eight months old William Paulson.

For other name value the cast will include C. Aubrey Smith and Otto Kruger. Besides a trio of MGM's younger players, Virginia Grey, Ruth Hussey and Tom Neal, others featured are Patric Knowles, Horace MacMahon, Phyllis Gordon, Sheldon Leonard and Harry Bellover.

It is to be a Hunt Stromberg production and William Van Dyke II is the director.

Release date: To be determined.

New Cummings Contract

Jack Cummings, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer producer, has been signed to a new long-term contract by the company.

IN COURTS

Court Denies Application For "Lynton" Rehearing

The application of Edward Shelton and Margaret Ayer Barnes for reargument of the appeal to the United States circuit court of appeals, which reduced an award of $532,000 against Loew's, Inc., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation, MGM Distributing Corporation and Culver Export Corporation to one-fifth of the net profits of the picture, "Letty Lynton," was denied by the court this week.

The plaintiffs previously had obtained the award from Vincent L. Leibell, federal judge, for plagiarism of their play, "Dishonored Lady," in "Letty Lynton." The previous decision of the circuit court, which the plaintiffs sought to reopen, had ruled that the plaintiffs were not entitled to obtain the entire net profits as damages and apportioned damages at one-fifth of the net

The plaintiffs had contended on the application for reargument that the award was improper and inadequate and that stories were of greater value as box-office attractions than stars.

Seek Krellberg Examination

Producers Laboratories, Inc., has filed application in the New York supreme court for an order directing Sherman S. Krellberg, as president of Joan of Arc Pictures, Inc., to appear for examination before trial. Joan of Arc Pictures is plaintiff in a suit against Producers Laboratories in which it seeks rescission of a contract under which it purchased distribution rights to the films, "I Conquer the Sea" and "Revolt of the Zombies."

Arnstein Files Appeal

Ira B. Arnstein has filed notice of appeal to the circuit court of appeals from a decision of Edward A. Conger, federal judge, made on July 12th which dismissed his suit for an injunction, accounting and damages against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, Warner Brothers, Columbia Broadcasting System, National Broadcasting Company and a large number of music publishing houses. Mr. Arnstein claimed infringement of over 50 of his songs.

File Salisbury Suit

Robert W. Dallas, trustee in bankruptcy of George L. Hoppes and Sons, this week filed two suits in chancery court in Salisbury, Md., asking the return of the Wicomico theatre and its equipment to the trustees in bankruptcy. The suits charge the theatre building and equipment were transferred "to hinder, delay and defraud creditors" in the collection of debts. Defendants are Milton R. Hoppes, his wife, Edna Mae, of Chester, Pa., in whose name the building is held; J. Crisfield Davis and May D. Hastings, holders of a mortgage, and Wicomico Theatre Corporation, which holds a 10-year lease on the building.

Application Denied

The application of Katherine Moog to examine Milton Krims, Charles Einfeld and Lya Lys as witnesses in her suit for $75,000 damages against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., was denied this week by Samuel Mandelbaum, federal judge. The plaintiff claims the Warner picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," libeled her and violates the Civil Rights Law.

Reserve Decision

Judge P. B. O'Sullivan in Milford, Conn., has reserved decision in the case of 12 residents against the Milford Drive-In theatre, seeking a permanent injunction because of noise.

Consents to Examination

Booth Tarkington this week filed a stipulation in federal court in New York consenting to an examination before trial in his suit for $100,000 damages, an injunction and an accounting against Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. The author claims misappropriation of his literary property by the defendant in its film "Penrod and His Twin Brother." Warner Brothers are counter-claiming for $18,750, charging that certain stories sold to the company were in the public domain.

Warner Stars on Goodwill Tour

Some 12 to 14 Warner Brothers players left Los Angeles Wednesday on a week's good will tour to aid coast independent exhibitors who bought the company's product when it was recently sold away from Fox West Coast theatres. Traveling in a special car, the stars and featured players are accompanied by an elaborate ballyhoo which will be staged in about a dozen cities.

Warner Brothers began its new season this week with 381 simultaneous engagements on "The Old Maid," initial release on the 1939-40 schedule. The picture has been held over in six special pre-release situations to date. At the Paramount, Brooklyn, where the film is staying a second week, the film broke every existing record for the house in its first week, according to the company. Similar business was reported in other hold-over spots including the Stanley, Baltimore; the Earle, Washington; the Warner, Atlantic City; Warner, Bridgeport, and the Strand, N. Y. At the latter theatre the feature is staying a fourth week.

W. P. (Pat) Garyn, who is handling independent pictures in the South, has sold the Hoffberg Zane Grey "Rangle River" to Interstate and Griffith circuits.

U.S. WIDENS ITS HOLLYWOOD PROBE; PEACE FINALLY SETTLES ON ACTORS

Attorney General's Assistant Begins Investigation of Actors' Guild, IATSE, Executives' Income Taxes, and 20th-Fox

The Screen Actors Guild—as well as the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, the income taxes of movie magnates, and the organzation of Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation—is being investigated by the United States attorney general's office, it was learned this week.

Charles Carr, assistant to Attorney General Frank Murphy, is in Los Angeles to conduct the general probe of industry conditions, and revealed his investigation into complaints by members, against the Guild's leadership.

Follows Tilt with "Four A's" . .

The charges apparently are an outgrowth of the war between the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, of which the Guild is a powerful member, and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes. Some of the complainants are dancers, members of the American Federation of Labor and of the guild, who claim they were forced to join the American Guild of Variety Artists, the organization that supplants the American Federation of Actors as the "variety" unit of the Four A's.

There are also charges that the senior members of the Guild negotiated with producers for an extra players' contract, without letting the latter have a voice.

Another Hollywood development was the resignation of Jeff Kibre from Studio Technicians' Union, Local 37. Mr. Kibre faced trial by an IATSE trial board, for creating dissension within the union. He had been the spearhead in the drive by Local 37's dissidents against the international officers, a drive more than a year old, which resulted in charges against the officers, of unaccounted and excessive dues, and of "racketeering" and "autocracy"; and counter charges by the officers against the union rebels, of "communism," and efforts to aid the C.I.O. by destroying the IATSE, an AFL affiliate.

Mr. Kibre, in resigning from Local 37, declared he would do everything possible to drive from union life George Browne, IATSE president, and William Bioff, his personal representative on the coast.

NLRB Election September 21

Briefs were being written this week by attorneys for both sides, in the battle before the National Labor Relations Board, between the producers and the Screen Writers Guild. Hearings closed last week. It had been charged by the writers that they had been "threatened" by the producers; and by the producers that they feared monopoly of writing sources. The writers' charges were also denied by the producers. Both sides, early this year, before the NLRB hearings, had failed to agree on contract terms, after long negotiation.

Meanwhile, the IATSE was preparing this week to reenter the "basic agreement" with the studios; its reentrance to depend upon winning the NLRB election on September 21st to determine the bargaining agent for Hollywood studio workers. The Alliance officials confidently expected victory over the United Studio Technicans' Guild, the membership of which, they assert, is over-estimated.

The Alliance re-entrance into the basic pact would probably be in October, at the next meeting of the other "Big Four" entertainment industry unions with the producers' representatives. The "Big Four" met with producers' representatives two weeks ago in Newark, New Jersey; but nothing was done, presumably because of the IATSE inability to act until its certification by the NLRB.

The other unions, known as the "Big Four," are the American Federation of Musicians, the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners.

The IATSE withdrew from the basic pact last year, after its Hollywood locals demanded bargaining autonomy. The pact itself, with all the unions, is up for renewal.

The IATSE has already signed, with the producers, a closed shop agreement, subject to ironing out the details, which in substance, embodies the basic pact provisions.

Mitchell Wolfson, of the Wometco Theatre Corporation, Miami, has taken his seat on the Miami Beach city council following a recount of ballots in the election of June 6th.

Settlement Provides That IATSE Revoke Actors' Federation Charter; Recognize Four A's; Sophie Tucker Is Reinstated

In a "Munich settlement" which abruptly and mysteriously jettisoned Ralph Whitehead and his American Federation of Actors —a man and cause for which it had, until last Saturday, been willing to tie up the entire entertainment industry—George E. Browne's International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, early Sunday morning, reached an agreement with the Associated Actors and Artistes of America. The settlement granted the actors' parent union virtually everything it had demanded, and averted a strike which would have engaged actors and stagehands in a war involving the motion picture industry.

Revoking Charter

The settlement provided that the IATSE revoke the charter it gave to Mr. Whitehead's union, expelled some time ago from the Four A's; that Sophie Tucker, president of the AFA, be reinstated into Actors' Equity, which she was, early this week; that the Four A's work closely with the Alliance and the American Federation of Musicians, in furtherance of the "one big union" idea of all in the entertainment industry; that the IATSE recognize that the four A's has jurisdiction over all performers; that the IATSE notify its locals everywhere that they assist and recognize the American Guild of Variety Artists (Four A's union which was formed by that body as a substitute to Mr. Whitehead's AFA) as the only unit for "variety" performers; that all litigation or contemplated strikes by parties concerned, be withdrawn; that the suspension of Harry Richman, by Actors' Equity, be withdrawn; that both sides (IATSE and AAAA) respect each other's jurisdiction; and that the AGVA admit all members of the actors' federation without discrimination, or payment of dues.

Mr. Whitehead said at midweek that he was "glad to be the instrument through which these conditions (he referred to the contemplated strike by the AAAA against the Alliance attitude) were averted, even at a painful personal sacrifice.

"My relief and joy," he continued, "that there will be no strike, are equalled only by my feeling of gratitude toward Sophie Tucker and the thousands of other loyal AFA members who stood by me staunchly through all the false statement and accusations and through all the vicious and unwarranted attacks on our organization."

Whitehead "Indisposed"

Mr. Whitehead urged former AFA members to join the AGVA, but warned that they were being placed in the hands of a group "who have pointedly ignored and misunderstood our people for more than 20 years"—he was here referring to the other units of the Four A's, with whom he had fought, and whom he had charged with "framing" the case against him and his union, and causing his and his union's expulsion several weeks ago for "mismanagement."

At midweek, Mr. Whitehead was "indisposed," a term which was rumored a mild collapse, inasmuch as it was reported that the settlement of the conflict came as a complete shock to him. Over the weekend, while Four A's leaders and Alliance heads were conferring on the settlement in Hollywood and New York, Mr. Whitehead and his actors' federation aids had been planning an organizational drive, under their new charter from the IATSE, which granted them jurisdiction over all performers.

The action came as a climax to long negotiations which had begun in early August, when the American Federation of Labor executive council met in Atlantic City to consider Four A's protests against the issuance by Mr. Browne's IATSE of a charter to Mr. Whitehead's AFA, a union which they had expelled; and which were climaxed last week with threats of a national strike by the Four A's.

The AFL's mediation efforts failed, Mr. Whitehead being the sole issue. All compromise decisions insisting upon his retention, along with Mr. Browne's revocation of the AFA charter, were rejected by the Four A's; and all compromises dropping Mr. Whitehead were rejected by the AFA council, and by Mr. Browne, who asserted loyalty to the executive secretary of his newly acquired actors' union.

CIO Timber

Mr. Browne's loyalty to Mr. Whitehead was also said to be tempered with the fear that the newly orphaned actors' federation, if left orphaned by the Four A's, or if cut adrift again by him, would become material for John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations—and Mr. Browne was having enough of that organization these current weeks, with the United Studio Technicians in Hollywood attacking his IATSE, and reported backed by the C.I.O.

The fight against Mr. Whitehead started back this year, when Mr. Whitehead asked for an investigation of his secretaryship of the AFA by the international board of the Four A's, to "clear up ugly rumors." He got the investigation, but not the clearance. He and other AFA officers were ordered to stand trial for undemocratic management, misuse of relief monies, and other charges, on July 10th. He, Miss Sophie Tucker, the president, and other officers, walked out of that trial. They were found guilty in absentia, they and their union expelled, and a substitute set up, the American Guild of Variety Artists which this week absorbs the whole AFA in final victory. One week later, Mr. Browne handed a charter to Miss Tucker's and Mr. Whitehead's orphaned union, thereby precipitating the storm which culminated last week in the threat of a national strike.

The Four A's took their protest to the Atlantic City AFL council session, charging that Mr. Browne's granting of a charter to the AFA (a charter which granted that union jurisdiction over all performers) was an invasion by "stagehands."

Prepared for Strike

When the mediation efforts failed, preparations were made for a strike; all units of the Four A's, some 30,000 actors, pledged support, unity, and money; and Sunday night meetings in New York and Hollywood were to herald the decision on the strike; that is, the memberships last Sunday, in Hollywood and New York, were to vote for the strike.

Instead, actors at both meetings heard the peace settlement; for which they were obviously, to all observers, glad, inasmuch as it represented almost a complete victory for them.

The cause for the strike was to have been, ostensibly, and immediately, the appearance of Sophie Tucker, the AFA president, in the leading role of Vinton Freedley's "Leave It To Me" in New York's Imperial Theatre, on this Monday night. Backed by the stagehands, Miss Tucker, two weeks ago suspended by Actors' Equity, a Four A's powerful union, was to have appeared, and the actors, all of them Equity members, were to have walked off. This was to have provoked retaliation by the stagehands in other legitimate theatres in New York. And this retaliation was to have provoked counter-action by Four A's members in Hollywood, in the studios, where 6,000 of the actors are Screen Actors' Guild members. And, in turn, the IATSE stagehands' union would have called out its 12,000 studio workers. And so on down the line, with the whole entertainment industry to be tied up.

David Wark Griffith, who recently joined the Hal Roach organization after an absence from production for eight years, will produce "1,000,000 B.C." for Hal Roach Productions and United Artists release. The picture, which will be a story of a prehistoric man and woman in their struggle for existence against the monsters that surround them, is scheduled to go before the cameras following the completion of the Hal Roach production of John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men".

Followed Settlement

Miss Tucker's desertion of Mr. Whitehead's cause, if that is what it was, came after the settlement, and not before. By her reinstatement in Actors' Equity she was allowed to appear in the New York show, which she did. Mr. Whitehead's statement of defeat mentions Miss Tucker gratefully. Through the whole struggle, she had not been attacked personally, but merely as one misguided by her trust in Mr. Whitehead. In most of her public statements, Miss Tucker emphasized her belief in Whitehead's innocence, and repeatedly declared she would not let him down. She was a powerful factor in keeping the AFA membership behind her and Mr. Whitehead and in counteracting the natural public support of the numerous actor stars of the Four A's, as all factors.

The reasons for the settlement appeared numerous this week, and equally speculative. The fact that they are speculative and that they are numerous is a consequence of the suddenness of the settlement, and the fact that, for the IATSE at least, it represented virtually an about-face.

The settlement is reported to have been made in Hollywood, in the early hours of Sunday morning, after Ralph Morgan, Guild president, and Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of Guild, a factor in the Four A's, had gone into conference with IATSE international officers, and with William Bioff, personal representative of Mr. Browne on the coast, at Mr. Bioff's home.

The settlement is supposed to have been reached about five o'clock in the morning, coast time, and agreed upon as a secret until announcement at the actors' meetings Sunday night in New York and Hollywood.

While the conferees were negotiating, Four A's leaders in New York were constantly apprised of the progress, by telephone. Their agreement settled the pact.

The entrance of Mr. Bioff into the negotiations introduced a speculative note, inasmuch as his admitted police record had been consistently attacked by the Four A's in public statements, in their endeavor to show "what kind of an organization" they were fighting; and inasmuch as the Actors' Guild in a public letter to Mr. Bioff had praised his assistance in ending the conflict. This letter, over Mr. Thomson's signature, said:

"Through the intervention of AFL officials, your services were made available to the end that a just and equitable solution of existing differences has been effected.

"Because we feel that industrial peace and harmony are essential at this time, and should be paramount to all other considerations, we are glad to assure you the assistance you rendered is appreciated by the AAAA."

Mr. Bioff is the former IATSE leader who was said to have borrowed $100,000 from a producer, while in 1937 studio labor troubles were in progress.

A movement to return Mr. Bioff, who has been inactive for about a year, to a regional directorship of the IATSE in Hollywood got under way Wednesday, following the mailing of a letter sent to Mr. Bioff by the executive board of International Photographers Local 659 asking his aid in negotiations with producers.

The role which the United Studio Technicians' Guild played, is also a matter for speculation. This union is reported backed by the C.I.O.; some of the C.I.O. coast harbor unions are known to have contributed money to it. It will contest for the bargaining power for Hollywood crafts workers in a National Labor Relations Board election this month. It is reported to be growing. And, further, it had been reported that the Screen Actors' Guild, battling for the Four A's in the proposed industry strike, would have tied up with the USTG, against their common enemy, the Alliance.

The settlement of the strike ends for the IATSE the prospect that the new union would be backed by the resources not only of the C.I.O. but of the Screen Actors Guild, and the whole of the Four A's.

Peace Sought by Producers

Another reason imputed as cause for the settlement is the desire of the producers to see peace; and their threat, personally conveyed to the Four A's, but most especially to Mr. Browne, that, unless the two AFL international unions settled peacefully, the studios would shut their doors for 60 days.

Mr. Browne himself, in a typically muddy opinion, asserted that now was not the time to have arguments within the entertainment industry; and that the agreement would benefit all concerned.

The announcement of the settlement came completely as a surprise to the actors, who assembled in New York's Hotel Astor, and Hollywood's Legion Stadium.

In the Astor, there were no speeches. Frank Gillmore, president of the Four A's, read the terms of the settlement. The audience cheered each point.

In Hollywood, Ralph Morgan read the peace agreement, which was wildly cheered as an actors' victory.

A meeting of the AFA executive council was held Wednesday, but no action was taken on the dissolution of the union. Formal action is expected soon. In preparation, the American Guild of Variety Artists has set up new and larger New York offices, with Jean Muir, actress, in charge.

One result of the settlement is to increase the probability of a realignment of Four A's units organization and dues collecting, with the "one big union" idea predominating. The need for united action in the recent crises, and the various formalities necessary to secure this, is said to have convinced Four A's officers of the necessity of reorganizing the association to some extent.

THREE-WAY AGREEMENT IS SOUGHT

Officials of the Four A's this week were reported working on a three-way "mutual assistance" agreement with the IATSE and the American Federation of Musicians, as provided by the settlement—a pact similar to that existing between the Alliance and the AFM.

As the smoke cleared, the cost of the whole struggle was estimated to have been borne mostly by the Four A's. Their use of chartered airplanes, of hotel ballrooms, stadiums, of press agents, and the like, is said to have cost more than $15,000. The IATSE is said to have spent much less than this, and the AFA bore most of whatever expenses were incurred. The latter union was reported this week to have no general funds left, but a considerable amount in death benefits.

However much the Four A's campaign may have cost, it gained them public support. Throughout the conflict, and in spite of the favorable way in which reporters and photographers handled Sophie Tucker for the AFA-IATSE forces, the public acclaim, and certainly that of commentators, was for the Four A's.

Pegler Attacks Alliance Record

Notable in condemnation of the Alliance's record, tactics, and aims in the fight, was Westbrook Pegler, columnist for the Scripps-Howard newspaper chain, who devoted several columns to the subject, and also brought up the Bioff police record, and the payment of IATSE dues.

A result of the settlement was to end associated fights in night clubs and theatres of Boston, Chicago and New York, where actors' federation members fought members of the new AGVA.

Though the AFA existed at mid-week merely on paper, the Theatre Authority's case against it was scheduled to have a hearing on this Thursday before that body's council. The AFA has already withdrawn from the TA. It was charged with misuse of TA money.

Libel Suit in Doubt

The fate of Ralph Whitehead's suit for libel and $100,000 against leaders of the Four A's, which was instituted in New York Supreme Court last Thursday, was in doubt at mid-week.

The suit alleges that a publicity release of the Four A's, issued on August 18th, during the Atlantic City hearings, and referring to the charges against him by the Four A's, is libelous.

The AGVA advertised in the trade papers this week, asking variety artists to join, stating that the organization was supported by all of the Four A's unions, and also by the IATSE, that AFA members with paid-up cards would receive full credit, and that no initiation fees would be asked of AFA members now in arrears.

The AGVA drive was said this week to be centered on the inclusion of all "variety" actors, in all cities. Its officials claimed their membership drive would not be confined to "key" cities, as they claimed Mr. Whitehead's AFA membership drives were. At the time of its expulsion, the AFA claimed 15,000 members.

The AGVA this week has offices in Chicago, New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

U. S. ARMY AIR CORPS AWARDS RADIO ORDER

The U. S. War Department has placed what is reported to be the largest order for radio equipment in peace time history, with the awarding of a $2,678,852 contract with the General Electric Company for transmitting equipment and accessories for the Army Air Corps.

Two contracts were awarded, one for equipment for new heavy and light bombardment airplanes and another for equipment for observation and short range liaison planes.

If It Isn't One It's Another

As the motion picture industry complacently contemplated the settlement of the actors-stagehands fight, it was faced this week by the threat of a strike affecting many theatres, out of the conflict between the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers Union and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, for jurisdiction over theatre treasurers.

Get IATSE Charter

The treasurers' division of the TMAT last week broke away from its parent, and received a charter from the Alliance. Gustave Gerber, attorney for the TMAT, and its officials, charged this constituted treason, formation of a "company union" and that it was an invasion by the IATSE of TMAT jurisdiction.

The New York State Labor Relations Board this week was considering the case, but it was not known at mid-week whether it would act, inasmuch as its policy has been that in cases involving two American Federation of Labor unions, such as the two in conflict are, it is up to that body to decide.

It appears likely that the dispute will be settled, however. The union on Wednesday opened negotiations with the League of New York Theatres for a contract covering press agents and company managers. If an agreement is reached there would be nothing to bar the IATSE from holding the treasurers.

Doubts Strike

Mr. O'Connor belittled the strike threats, and said that the agreement between the TMAT and the IATSE, of long standing, had been for the treasurers to join the stagehands' union whenever the latter was ready to receive them.

The TMAT still faces division within its ranks, with members of its motion picture division reported anxious to join the Alliance.

Another factor this week was the result of the demands by the TMAT upon the members of the League of New York Theatres, that they raise wages of "front office" employees.

What the Four A's, having over the weekend signed an armistice with the Alliance, would do over the new situation, at mid-week was questionable. They were reported favoring help to the TMAT, against an "invasion of jurisdiction" like that which they claimed to have faced, and which ended in the peace pact.

Mr. O'Connor, leader of the treasurers who seceded from the TMAT to join the Alliance, claimed over 200 members this week. This number was denied by TMAT officials.

Most in Legitimate Theatre

Effect upon motion picture houses was a matter for speculation, at mid-week. The treasurers affected are mostly in the legitimate theatre. However, should the TMAT decide to harm the IATSE in all houses in which it, and they, have members, the strike possibly would close many motion picture theatres in the Eastern states.

The attitude of the actors was to be determined by a Four A's meeting late this week; if they should decide not to cross TMAT picket lines, the Broadway legitimate and film-stage shows would definitely be closed.

The State Labor Relations Board this week indefinitely postponed hearing of the TMAT application for certification as the bargaining agent for the Rugoff and Becker circuit, and set next Tuesday as the hearing date for its appeal for certification as the bargaining agent for the Raybond Theatres.

The union this week reached a tentative agreement with the Vogue, Metro, and Congress Theatres, in the Bronx, New York City. This provides for a two year closed shop and reemployment of all striking employees; and is provisional upon purchase of the houses by Max Felder, Sig Wittman, and P. Block.

RKO Dinner Held for Anna Neagle and Wilcox

RKO Radio held a dinner in the Empire Room of the Waldorf Astoria Hotel last Thursday night in honor of Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox, star and producer, of "Nurse Edith Cavell." George J. Schaefer, president of RKO, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were Miss Neagle, Mr. Wilcox and Charles Hallert, Belgian vice-counsul. About 200 attended the dinner, which followed a special screening of the film at the Lexington Avenue Trans-Lux theatre.

The guests included Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America; Mr. and Mrs. Terry Ramsaye, Sam Shain, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ehrman, W. G. Van Schmus, Richard C. Patterson, Sir Louis Beale, Jack Alicoate, Don Mersereau, Ned Depinet, M. H. Aylesworth, Malcolm Kingsburg, Leon Goldberg, Major L. E. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. William Mallard, Leo Mishkin, William Boehnel, Bide Dudley, Kelcey Allen, Al Finestone, Andrew Christiansen, S. Barret McCormick, Gus Eyssell, Bob Wolff and Frank Nugent.

Complete Script of Time Film

The final shooting script for "The Ramparts We Watch," first full length feature to be produced by The March of Time has been completed, Louis de Rochemont, producer, announced this week. The film will be distributed by RKO Radio and sold as an individual attraction.

Variety Film Distributors has moved its offices to new and larger quarters at 33 West 42nd Street, New York. Joe Mazer has joined the organization.

REOPEN FIGHT ON FILM STARS ON AIR; J. L. FLY TAKES OVER AS FCC CHAIRMAN

Independent Exhibitors Say Broadcasts "Put Stars Through Wringer, Then Discard Them Like Worn Rags"

Exhibitors this week reopened their "war" against radio appearances of motion picture stars as guests and otherwise, complaining that many sound like high school students reciting in squeaky voices, and demanded immediate bans by the producers on the ground that the appearance of their players are both in competition to box offices and a blow to the popularity of the player.

Independents Reopen Fight

The fight was reopened, after lying dormant for months, by the Independent Theatre Owners Association of the east, headed by Harry Brandt, which sent an ultimatum direct to Hollywood, charging "bad faith" of some producers who had agreed to keep their stars off the air. At one time or another virtually every city, state and national exhibitor organization has attacked the practice.

The new action came within a week of publication by MOTION PICTURE HERALD, on August 26th, of the lineup of air shows for the new radio season, starting September 1st. The network broadcasters disclosed that Hollywood again will be the major source of supply of name talent for their sponsored shows, listing 17 "big-name" programs as coming from Hollywood in the new season.

Says Exhibitors Demand Change

This week the ITOA warned Hollywood, "The time to call a halt to this practice has come, and theatre owners have banded together for the purpose of protecting that which takes their time, money and effort to build up. Theatre owners no longer intend to sit idly by while their investments are depreciated, not through their own doing, but by the thoughtless action of our stars. Stars who gain prominence through the studios and the producers, and then refuse to make more than one or two pictures a year, must stop appearing weekly on radio programs.

"So few stars have radio personalities that it is safe to say that the screen receives no benefit whatever from radio. We admit readily that a broadcast of the type held last year on behalf of 'Alexander's Ragtime Band' helped the business of that picture. But it must likewise be observed that broadcasts of the type we decry put our stars through a wringer and then discard them like worn out rags."

"Tired of Honeyed Words"

"You stars in Hollywood should carefully check on the names that appeared on the radio last year and which will not appear this year —and then ask yourselves the reason why," advised the ITOA.

"We are tired of listening to honeyed words about what will be done. We are tired of being agreed with and then left in midair with no action taken. We are tired of bringing to the attention of these stars and their producers the fact that agents are playing the old hit-and-run game with them. The agents' motto is: 'Get as much as possible out of Johnny Jones today while the getting is good, for tomorrow we'll have to get another Johnny Jones.'

"Theatre business is terrible, due, to a great degree, to the fact that many stars now appearing in pictures have killed their value by convincing the public, through the radio, that they haven't the glamour the screen has built up for them. We are purposely refraining from mentioning names at the present time for we feel that this article should come under the head of being a fair warning. We do not intend to pull our punches and unless this warning is heeded, not only will names be given, but actual proven figures.

"No More Waiting"

"Several of the producers have promised that they will not permit their stars to appear on the radio. Two companies have not—and this is intended as a fair warning to those companies as well as to their stars. We will not tolerate the willful dissipation of box office names, names theatre owners have worked hard to build up into money-making personalities. There will be no more waiting about a subject as serious as this.

"We intend doing what any sound business men would do when their business is bad and we will no longer condone the silly mistakes of our stars, the vacillating acts of the producers and the avariciousness of the agents. We are definitely moving towards the removal of picture stars from radio and to that end we intend working with the means at our disposal. This is no open declaration of war. This is no threat. It is a clear, logical exposition of what must be done to maintain the drawing power of our stars and keep the movie business healthy.

"We issue fair warning we are going to fight for these things. We should not have any opposition. If there should be any, let those persons handing it out, be just as well prepared to take it."

Personnel Changes In Famous Canadian

Famous Players Canadian Corporation has transferred R. S. Roddick of Toronto, former district supervisor of theatres in the London, Ont., territory, has been transferred to Halifax, N. S., where he will have supervision over theatres in the Maritime Provinces. Mr. Roddick takes over the management of the Capitol in Halifax in succession to L. Graburn, who returns to the home office at Toronto.

Jack Arthur, manager of the Uptown theatre, Toronto, has been promoted to district manager for western Ontario. Fred Trebilcock, assistant manager, has been promoted to manager of the Uptown.

The transfer of Mr. Roddick to the Maritime Provinces zone marks the virtual retirement of Clarence Robson, who has served many years as eastern division supervisor, and who is seriously ill. It is understood that Morris Stein of Toronto, central Ontario district manager, will take over the eastern Ontario territory temporarily.

"Arizona," which Columbia will put into work this month, will be the company's first full length feature to be made in color. Wesley Ruggles will direct the film, based on Clarence Budington Kelland's Saturday Evening Post story and novel.

Welcoming banners were draped over Universal City streets last Thursday to greet L. J. McGinley, former Seattle branch manager, who recently was appointed assistant to William J. Heineman.

Successor to McNinch Says Any Further Changes Would Come Only After Thorough Study by the Commission

In sharp contrast to his predecessor, Frank R. McNinch, who aired strong views against newspaper ownership, monopoly and other radio matters promptly upon assuming the chairmanship of the Federal Communications Commission, September 1st, James Lawrence Fly, let it be known that he is not prepared to make any immediate moves toward further reorganization of commission personnel or policies.

Only After Long Search

Mr. Fly made this clear within a few hours after he was sworn in, when he told newspapermen that such steps would be taken only after thorough study and consideration by the full commission.

Likewise, he had nothing to say at the time regarding plans to control radio in the event of necessity during the European crisis, although it is known generally that the Administration has ready very complete plans, which will be invoked should an emergency arise. He indicated, however, that, for the time being at least there will be no interference with the ordinary operations of broadcasters.

While Chairman Fly refused to discuss the situation, it is known that the Administration has given considerable thought to the radio problem created by the European situation, which has unleashed a torrent of propaganda directed at this country by the Government-controlled short-wave stations of all the powers involved. How to deal with that propaganda, as well as quash any attempts that may be made toward its dissemination over the air from domestic stations, is one of the most serious questions to be faced by President Roosevelt in carrying out his avowed intention of keeping the United States neutral.

Filling Prall's Term

Chairman Fly, appointed by the President to fill the unexpired term of the late Commissioner Anning S. Prall, will serve to June 30, 1942, providing he does not lose out in the anticipated reorganization of the commission asked last winter by Mr. Roosevelt and due to be taken up by Congress next session.

The new FCC head was born at Seagoville, Dallas county, Texas, on George Washington's birthday in 1898, was graduated from Dallas High School in 1916, went through the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis and served in the Navy from 1920 to 1923.

Resigning from the naval service, he entered law school at Harvard, receiving his degree in 1926, and then joined the law firm of Burlingham, Veeder, Maston and Fearcy in New York City. In 1929, he severed his connection with that firm and became a special assistant attorney general, acting as Government counsel in actions involving restraint of trade under federal anti-trust laws and regulatory measures under commerce power.

From the Department of Justice, Mr. Fly in 1934 went to the Tennessee Valley Authority as general solictor and head of the legal department, where in 1937 he became general counsel of the TVA.

The new FCC chairman is married and the father of two children. He is also, according to a biographical sketch issued by the communications commission, a Democrat.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

BLONDIE MEETS THE BOSS: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—This seemed to please an average sized audience. Played August 5.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

BLONDIE MEETS THE BOSS: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—Quite as good as the first. Unfortunately, no draw for us, however. Played August 29.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOMICIDE BUREAU: Bruce Cabot, Rita Hayworth.—Well received. Suitable for a dual bill.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

NORTH OF THE YUKON: Charles Starrett, Linda Winters—A dandy Saturday action picture of the northwest mounties.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

THUNDERING WEST, THE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Sons of the Pioneers—A fair western. Fair business. Played August 12.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

WHISPERING ENEMIES: Jack Holt, Dolores Costello—About the poorest I have had from Columbia this year. Not really bad but was definitely intended for the lower half of a double bill.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

First National

COWBOY QUARTERBACK: Bert Wheeler, Marie Wilson, Gloria Dickson—Fair picture; fair business. Just gets by. Played August 25-26.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DAUGHTERS COURAGEOUS: Lane Sisters, Gale Page, John Garfield, Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jeffrey Lynn, Donald Crisp, Dick Foran, Frank McHugh, May Robson—Again Priscilla Lane is the show. This is not a picture that men will especially enjoy but a sweet little drama that will do slightly better than average business. Not better than "Four Daughters." A good picture for the women. Running time, 105 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

DAUGHTERS COURAGEOUS: Lane Sisters, Gale Page, John Garfield, Fay Bainter, Donald Crisp, Jeffrey Lynn, Dick Foran, Frank McHugh, May Robson—We did above average business on this one and everyone enjoyed it but it doesn't come up to "Four Daughters" standard. Small town patrons will enjoy it. Running time, 107 minutes. Played August 3-4.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T GET AWAY WITH MURDER: Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page—Not bad at all, though still another in the ceaseless chain of crime pictures. Played August 15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BRIDAL SUITE: Robert Young, Annabella, Walter Connolly—Here's one that didn't click with us. The swell cast did all they could but it just didn't seem to be in the cards and did not do any business. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 16-17.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lionel Barrymore, Lew Ayres, Lana Turner, Laraine Day—Now there's a picture! Has everything, cast, story, direction and box office value. You couldn't find a better man than Barrymore, and Ayres fills the bill also. Where does Metro find all these swell girls? Turner and Day sure are destined for bigger things. Running time, 86 minutes. Played August 18-19.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

IN this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

Rockefeller Center, New York

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore—Not as good as the first Kildare and hardly up to standard for a Sunday opening, three-day run. Personally, was rather disappointed in it, and I am not saying that because business was below average.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—From a box office standpoint, we did poor business on this picture and I think the reason is because our patrons do not like the English accent nor have they seen enough of Robert Donat to become excited. I would not be fair, however, if I did not praise it from another point of view. It is too long and a little slow at the beginning, but Robert Donat does a superb piece of acting throughout the whole picture. Greer Garson is good and I hope we see more of her. Those who saw it were keenly touched and loud in their praises. The whole picture has quiet dignity that leaves a satisfied feeling. I would say play it for its merit. Running time, 114 minutes. Played August 17-18.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

HARDYS RIDE HIGH, THE: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Personally think this not up to the standard of the other Hardys.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

IT'S A WONDERFUL WORLD: Claudette Colbert, James Stewart—Nothing but praise for this. Grossed as much as either of the last two Hardys we ran and had a big Softball Tournament under the lights for competition the last two nights. Stewart is certainly coming up fast and Claudette is better than ever.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

LUCKY NIGHT: Robert Taylor, Myrna Loy—Above average for our mid-week change. Fair picture with rather a weak story held up by "name" cast. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 23-24.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Lionel Barrymore, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Bobs Watson, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel—Good picture; good business. Not a picture for shallow minds. Running time, 99 minutes.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Bobs Watson, Lionel Barrymore, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkel—This is one of the most unusual pictures we have ever played and the audience reaction was the most outstanding. No one criticized its impossible story. It was so well done they found themselves believing it in spite of unreality. At times our audience was so intrigued with it I doubt if someone hollered "fire" they would have heard it. For days after its run, we heard it being discussed. It will leave you with a feeling you can't shake off nor can you forget it very soon. Lionel Barrymore has surpassed himself as "Gramps." His performance is magnificent, and Bobs Watson can easily claim the child acting honors of any year. We were pleased with our business but better yet were proud to be able to present such a picture to our audience. I say to every exhibitor run it and give your patrons something to think about! Running time, 133 minutes. Played July 30.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Lionel Barrymore, Bobs Watson, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Beulah Bondi, Una Merkle—Here is a masterpiece. The grandest Sunday picture ever produced. Stand alone in any spot and believe McPhee 'cause he knows. Running time, 99 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PYGMALION: Leslie Howard, Wendy Hiller—The most idiotic and uninteresting nightmare I have played. Should have just paid for it and played something else. Business way below average. Any one who could get out of town went. Running time, 87 minutes. Played August 20-22.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

6,000 ENEMIES: Walter Pidgeon, Rita Johnson—Fairly good picture of jail life which failed to draw. Played August 13-14.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

6,000 ENEMIES: Walter Pidgeon, Rita Johnson—A darn good little B picture that will entertain all the way. Running time, 62 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

TARZAN FINDS A SON!: Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan—Excellent picture to good business. Perhaps, not quite up to previous Tarzans due we feel to lack of romantic scenes between Tarzan and Jane. Played August 18-19.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TELL NO TALES: Melvyn Douglas, Louise Platt—Very good.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THEY ALL COME OUT: Rita Johnson, Tom Neal—We expected this to be another program "fill-in" picture but were agreeably surprised. While we did only average business, we were glad to hear so many say it was a "good" picture. O. K. for small towns. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 16.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

WITHIN THE LAW: Ruth Hussey, Paul Kelly—This interesting picture didn't have a big name in it, but what a swell group of coming stars, all of whom did their respective parts well. We like Ruth Hussey very much. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 4-5.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Miscellaneous

SKY DEVILS (reissue): Spencer Tracy, William Boyd—Thank you, Jimmie Davidson, for a real hit. We did extra good business to a nice buildup the second night. Brother exhibitors, this may be old but it's got lots of "umph" at the box office.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Paramount

BULLDOG DRUMMOND'S BRIDE: John Howard, Heather Angel—When you got to fill a date, you got to fill a date, so you show them this shoddy, cheap production and then duck your audience when they exit.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

GRACIE ALLEN MURDER CASE: Gracie Allen, Warren William, Kent Taylor, Ellen Drew—Second half in the big towns. Gets by in the small towns O. K. Running time, 75 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

HERITAGE OF THE DESERT: Evelyn Venable, Donald Woods—Satisfactory enterainment to good business when cofeatured with "Invitation to Happiness."—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

INVITATION TO HAPPINESS: Irene Dunne, Fred MacMurray—Satisfactory entertainment to good business when cofeatured with "Heritage of the Desert." Played August 13-14.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LADY'S FROM KENTUCKY, THE: George Raft, Ellen Drew, Hugh Herbert, Zazu Pitts—Very good. Suitable for any day of the week. This did well at the box office. Running time, 77 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

MAGNIFICENT FRAUD, THE: Akim Tamiroff, Patricia Morison, Lloyd Nolan—Another palooka which failed to draw on two-for-one night. Running time, 85 minutes. Played August 22.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MAGNIFICENT FRAUD, THE: Akim Tamiroff, Lloyd Nolan, Patricia Morison—This picture will not appeal to small town audience and it fell flat for us on Sunday and Monday. I think the title as well as the setting had lots to do with it. It is farfetched, rather impossible and leaves much to be desired. There are no real box office names and Akim Tamiroff will not bring them in here. Put this one on your double bill, or leave it alone. Running time, 78 minutes. Played August 6-7.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN: Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes, Rochester.—Grand show. Benny at his best and will click all the way. Remember McPhee knows. Running time, 85 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

NEVER SAY DIE: Bob Hope, Martha Raye—This drew above average mid-week business, which was a surprise. I didn't see the picture but the favorable comments were much more numerous than the kicks, so I presume it was O. K.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

NEVER SAY DIE: Martha Raye, Bob Hope—Only so-so. A good playdate wasted. Played August 9-10.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SOME LIKE IT HOT: Bob Hope, Shirley Ross, Gene Krupa and His Orchestra, Una Merkel—A Jitterbug picture that was liked quite well. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SUNSET TRAIL: William Boyd, Russell Hayden, George Hayes—These Hopalong Cassidy westerns are tops in the horse opera field. Well produced, good direction, action aplenty to satisfy the most critical. Running time, 68 minutes. Played August 25-26.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

Republic

BILLY THE KID RETURNS: Roy Rogers, Lynn Roberts, Smiley Burnette—Went back quite a spell to pick up this one, due to the fact that "Frog Millhouse" was in it. "Millhouse" is the guy who packs 'em in anytime. Print received was rather poor.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

COME ON, RANGERS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart—Only average Friday-Saturday biz. Played August 11-12.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

I WAS A CONVICT: Barton MacLane, Beverly Roberts—Crime pictures are ordinarily taboo for this location. This one pulled through, perhaps, aided by serial. Narrow-minded or biased people will disagree with the possibility herein depicted. Played June 23-24.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MAN OF CONQUEST: Richard Dix, Gail Patrick, Joan Fontaine, Edward Ellis—The biggest effort to come from Republic Studios to date. A remarkable action picture. But never contract for an increase in rental. It makes you lose too much sleep wondering if everything will pan out all right. Played August 22-4.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

MEXICALI ROSE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette—Tried this one on mid-week date and perhaps lost a little revenue. Friday and Saturday would have been much better. Had a terrible time getting a date on this one and the radio had worn out the songs before I got them. P. S.: a hint. Played August 15-17.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

NIGHT RIDERS: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Doreen McKay, Ruth Rogers—Ever since Robert Livingston left this trio, it seems to be lacking something. This series is good but there is room for improvement.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

PRIDE OF THE NAVY: James Dunn, Rochelle Hudson, Gordon Oliver—We were somewhat disappointed with this one. Rochelle definitely don't exhibit much "oomph" in this type of role. I suggest a change of directors or something, which will give Miss Hudson more conspicous roles. Played July 6-8.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

SHINE ON HARVEST MOON: Roy Rogers, Lulu Belle and Scotty—This rather inconsequential show gave us our fifth highest gross of the year and set an all time high for Friday-Saturday. Lulu Belle and Scotty brought them in and put on a show the farmers like to see. My date book is wide open for these entertainers.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

SOUTHWARD HO!: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart—We had a beauty contest on this picture and never had such business since "Jesse James." One "Miss Tilbury" and Roy Rogers really helped us pay our taxes.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

STREET OF MISSING MEN: Charles Bickford, Tommy Ryan, Harry Carey, Nana Bryant—Bickford in a swell role. Average a little above par on Republic features. Played August 4-5.—Elmer A. Slaybaugh, Park Theatre, Mountain Park, Okla. Small town and rural patronage.

WOMAN DOCTOR: Frieda Inescort, Henry Wilcoxon, Claire Dodd, Sybil Jason—This one pleased my week-day patrons. Republic's B pictures are on a par with the major companies B pictures. You check the box office and see. Business normal for this time of week. Running time, 65 minutes.—E. I. Hawkins, Hawkins Theatre, Newellton, La. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

ALMOST A GENTLEMAN: James Ellison, Helen Wood—A dandy story of a man and his dog. Failed to draw very well. Played August 25-26.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook. N. H. General patronage.

BACHELOR MOTHER: Ginger Rogers, David Niven, Charles Coburn—A comedy riot. One of the best comedies of the year. Give it your best playing time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

FIVE CAME BACK: Chester Morris, Lucille Ball, Wendy Barrie, C. Aubrey Smith—Here's an RKO picture that could have been a big hit with a little more buildup. This picture has lots of action and drama. Good from every angle. Give it lots of advertising and should do swell business. Running time, 75 minutes. Played July 27.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

FIXER DUGAN: Lee Tracy, Virginia Weidler—Good over Friday-Saturday. Crowd enjoyed this very much. Running time, 60 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

GUNGA DIN: Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Joan Fontaine—Although I personally thought this a good production, it somehow missed fire. The trailer spoiled this, as the women stayed away. Complaints were "it's too gruesome." Just fair B. O. Running time, 107 minutes. Played July 13.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

STORY OF VERNON AND IRENE CASTLE, THE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Edna May Oliver, Walter Brennan—Good picture. Very fine dancing. The title hurts the picture. Fred Astaire is slipping. Ginger Rogers is getting better in every picture. Running time, 91 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

STORY OF VERNON AND IRENE CASTLE, THE: Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Edna May Oliver, Walter Brennan—Pleased all Astaire and Rogers fans. Trouble is I didn't have enough of them. However, business was O. K. and it's a good picture. Running time, 93 minutes.—E. I. Hawkins, Newellton, La. Small town patronage.

TWELVE CROWDED HOURS: Richard Dix, Lucille Ball—Pretty good. Running time, 65 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALWAYS IN TROUBLE: Jane Withers, Jean Rogers, Arthur Treacher, Robert Kellard—Played this with "Nurse from Brooklyn." Had to double bill these pictures on account of length and what a B. O. headache. Why Fox persists in giving Jane Withers such rank pictures beats me. She should gross as much as Shirley Temple if she's given a decent picture. Jane is very popular here. I hope she gets a break. Running time, 69 minutes. Played August 15.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

CHICKEN WAGON FAMILY: Jane Withers, Leo Carrillo, Marjorie Weaver—This is one of Jane Withers' worst pictures. Our patrons have always given her a big hand but this one is too unbelievable and the whole picture is choppy and noisy. We ran it on Sunday-Monday and Tuesday to average business, but expected more. Just so-so. Running time, 74 minutes. Played August 13-15.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

ELSA MAXWELL'S HOTEL FOR WOMEN: Ann Sothern, Linda Darnell, James Ellison, Elsa Maxwell—We booked this one for bargain night, but it is well worth a mid-week date at full price. Our patrons enjoyed the comedy and Ann Sothern does her part to perfection. We did a little above average business and everyone came out of the theatre with a smile on their faces. It will surprise you on its merit. Played August 8-9.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

ELSA MAXWELL'S HOTEL FOR WOMEN: Ann Sothern, Linda Darnell, James Ellison, Elsa Maxwell—Classy, interesting, something different. Stand alone in any spot for extended time. Running time, 82 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

INSIDE STORY: Michael Whalen, Jean Rogers, Chick Chandler—One of the roving reporter series that is fairly good entertainment. This series is nothing pretentious but does serve as good light entertainment for use on double bills.—Theodore J. Friedman, Strand Theatre, Suffern, N. Y. General patronage.

IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU: Gloria Stuart, Stuart Erwin—A nice little program picture that pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

LITTLE PRINCESS, THE: Shirley Temple, Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Cesar Romero, Arthur Treacher—Fox outdid themselves on this one of Shirley's. Although we find Temple fans on the wane, this picture brought them in and what's important they sure were satisfied. Very lovely color and good vehicle for Shirley. Running time, 93 minutes. Played July 6.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

LITTLE PRINCESS, THE: Shirley Temple, Richard Greene, Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Arthur Treacher, Cesar Romero—A good picture but they're not so hot for Shirley any more. Running time, 92 minutes.—C. H. Collier, Globe Theatre, Drew, Miss. Rural and small town patronage.

RETURN OF THE CISCO KID, THE: Warner Baxter, Lynn Bari, Henry Hull, Cesar Romero—Good action picture for week-end but I made the mistake of using it on a Sunday change and it failed to please. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 6-8.—Don Bloxham, Palace Theatre, Exira, Iowa. General patronage.

ROSE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Al Jolson—This did not live up to expectations, although it did more than average business. Pleased about 50-50%. Running time, 86 minutes. Played August 6-7.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SECOND FIDDLE: Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power, Rudy Vallee, Edna May Oliver—Good but not special calibre as expected when they star Miss Henie opposite Tyrone Power. Music good and it's worth the admission just to see good old Edna May Oliver again. Played August 20-21.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

STORY OF ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL, THE: Don Ameche, Loretta Young, Henry Fonda—We weren't ashamed of this picture, but it certainly didn't do any business. Was way below our average take on Sunday and never did pick up. Fox has it priced out of line but if they'll price it right, get a date and satisfy your patrons.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SUSANNAH OF THE MOUNTIES: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Margaret Lockwood—About all we can say for Shirley is that the kids still go for her but ten cent tickets don't pay Fox what they think she is worth or for what they're stuck on a contract. We just don't do business on this star any more and guess we are not alone. Hope they put her on a vacation next year, six months, twice a year.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SUSANNAH OF THE MOUNTIES: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Margaret Lockwood—He who quibbles over this picture has tasted sour grapes. It's plenty okay in our opinion. Played August 6-7.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

SUSANNAH OF THE MOUNTIES: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Margaret Lockwood—We had better business on this picture than we had on "Little Princess," but it still was not good. I believe Shirley Temple is outgrowing her popularity. She is a good little actress and has a sweet manner but it is my opinion her wave of popularity is over. After so many years people want new faces and it is noticeable that even the kids do not come to see her. Maybe it is just in this locality but I am inclined to believe it is general. Running time, 78 minutes. Played August 22-23.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

THREE MUSKETEERS, THE: Don Ameche, Ritz Brothers, Gloria Stuart, Binnie Barnes—This was doubled with a Hopalong. The customers all stayed through the Cassidy but walked out plenty on this. Plenty of effort was made to produce a worthwhile show, but it just wouldn't jell.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

UP THE RIVER: Slim Summerville, Arthur Treacher, Preston Foster, Tony Martin, Phyllis Brooks—Just an ordinary comedy that did very little business. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 3.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

YOUNG MR. LINCOLN: Henry Fonda, Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver, Arleen Whelan—Played this on Bank Night and very well liked by our patrons. Excellent picture.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

YOUNG MR. LINCOLN: Henry Fonda, Alice Brady, Marjorie Weaver, Arleen Whelan—Almost beyond words to describe Fonda's acting in this. He was more Lincoln than any other player we've ever seen enact the role of America's great president of the Civil War days. Picture fine. Played August 11-12.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

United Artists

COWBOY AND THE LADY, THE: Gary Cooper, Merle Oberon, Patsy Kelly—Smart picture from U. A. but not much B. O. Running time, 99 minutes. Played July 20-22.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

KING OF THE TURF: Adolphe Menjou, Dolores Costello, Roger Daniel—This was the "silent partner" with "Shine on Harvest Moon." Wasn't mentioned in the marquee nor was there any paper out in front. We packed them in with "Moon" and sent them out praising "King of the Turf." Had I seen this, it would have been given a single booking. All in all, an excellent program picture.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

KING OF THE TURF: Adolphe Menjou, Dolores Costello, Roger Daniel—Very good picture of its kind. Played to only fair business. Somehow we can't make anything on UA product this year. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 31.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

PRISON WITHOUT BARS: Corinne Luchaire, Edna Best—An English picture that went over much better than the average British production. We doubled with an Autry and had only a couple of walkouts, which is really something for this class of picture. Rather drab plot but the better class will find it quite satisfactory film fare.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

THERE GOES MY HEART: Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly—Well received. Patrons liked it very much. The skating scene seemed to register 100 per cent. Business above average.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canda. General patronage.

TOPPER TAKES A TRIP: Roland Young, Constance Bennett, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray—The theme is somewhat objectionable in a good church town. I thoroughly disliked the show but had a few say they liked it. Gambling, drunkenness and bedroom scenes and not an especially tasteful use of the supernatural are the subjects that the story is built around. No elimination with U. A., so we had to use it or pay the rental.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

TRADE WINDS: Fredric March, Joan Bennett, Ralph Bellamy, Ann Sothern—This is a very smart picture. Trailer on this not peppy enough. Good in every respect but B. O. Running time, 95 minutes. Played August 10.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

WUTHERING HEIGHTS: Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier, David Niven, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Flora Robson—Sunday business was far below average, but Monday and Tuesday did nicely and the total came up to a good average. Comments were plentiful and the kind the exhibitor loves to hear. Should easily rate as one of the 10 best for 1939.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

Universal

EAST SIDE OF HEAVEN: Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy—One of the most satisfactory pictures we have played this year. We personally recommended it and our business was a little above normal. Played August 9-10.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

EAST SIDE OF HEAVEN: Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy—Everybody enjoyed this picture. The baby made a big hit also. I cannot understand any exhibitor complaining about this picture. Our public ate it. It's definitely Crosby's best picture. Business extra good. Play it by all means.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theare, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End Kids," Robert Wilcox, Helen Parrish—Received very good comments on this from those who saw it. Just fair B. O. Running time, 83 minutes. Played August 7.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

NURSE FROM BROOKLYN: Sally Eilers, Paul Kelly—Played this with "Always in Trouble." Had to double bill these pictures on account of length and what a B. O. headache. "Nurse from Brooklyn" pretty good entertainment. Running time, 66 minutes. Played August 15.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

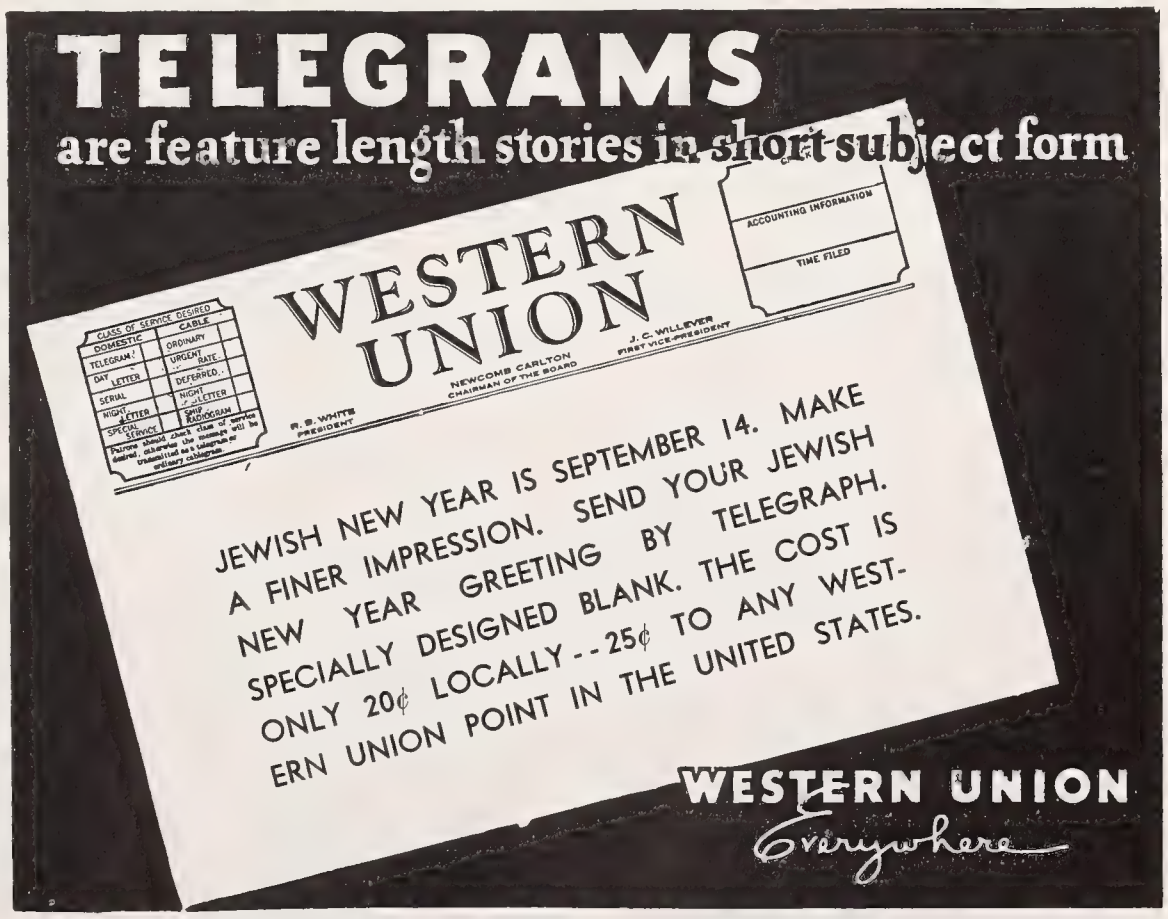
RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Helen Broderick, Louis Hayward, Mischa Auer—Very poor business on this picture. The trailer spoiled this one. Didn't seem to interest the customers. Consequently, on one came. In short, a colossal buildup for a terrific letdown. Running time, 76 minutes. Played August 21.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

SECRETS OF A NURSE: Dick Foran, Helen Mack, Edmund Lowe—Very good picture. Well liked by our Friday-Saturday crowd. Running time, 72 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SPIRIT OF CULVER: Jackie Cooper, Freddie Bartholomew, Andy Devine, Henry Hull, Jackie Moran—Nothing to rave about. Running time, 90 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SUN NEVER SETS, THE: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Basil Rathbone—Only fair. It drags as entertainment. It draws as box office. Played August 27-28.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THREE SMART GIRLS GROW UP: Deanna Durbin, Nan Grey, Helen Parrish, Robert Cummings, Charles Winninger, William Lunigan—A very satisfactory performance to a little better than normal business. Played August 2-3.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.



UNEXPECTED FATHER: Micha Auer, Baby Sandy—Another good picture from Universal with Baby Sandy. Pleased all.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

DAWN PATROL, THE: Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, David Niven, Donald Crisp—Another Warner's hit that did swell business. Some even liked it better than the original. Very good acting by David Niven and Donald Crisp and Basil Rathbone. Splendid picture all around. Running time, 103 minutes. Played August 17.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Excellent in every way. It is hard to say which one is the best, "Union Pacific" or "Dodge City." We played these five days and a matinee and this rolled up one of the biggest grosses we have had. Good business all five days. Give us more like it. Running time, 104 minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Hats off to Warners. Very, very good. Pleased all and did swell business. They gave Miss Sheridan a very small part, her being the "oomph" girl of the day. Running time, 104 minutes. —E. I. Hawkins, Hawkins Theatre, Newellton, La. Small town patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—This is one of the "Big Three" for 1939 (the others: "Jesse James" and "Union Pacific"). Swell picture, swell color, swell story, swell business, swell everything! Thanks, Vitagraph.—L. V. Bergtold, Westby Theatre, Westby, Wis. General patronage.

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victory Jory—This picture is tops from all angles. Lots of action. Good color and splendid sound. This is a small town exhibitor's idea of a smash hit. Warners are doing fine this year. Running time, 104 minutes. Played June 29.—Mrs. Ann Stone, Star Theatre, Unity, Saskatchewan, Canada. Small town and rural patronage.

HELL'S KITCHEN: Margaret Lindsay, Ronald Reagan, "Dead End Kids"—This picture showed these tough kids in a sympathetic role and the picture was well liked by the audience. Did normal business which in the state of the nation is something.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind.—General patronage.

HELL'S KITCHEN: "Dead End Kids," Margaret Lindsay, Ronald Reagan—Good picture; good business. Played August 23-24.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY: Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page, John Payne—As poor as "Naughty But Nice" was, "Indianapolis Speedway" is just the opposite. This picture for thrills and action is a knockout. Do not waste this honey as it should do extra business. A swell show and it will draw them in. The best automobile picture of the season. Running time, 82 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY: Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan, John Payne, Gale Page—This is just program fare that is neither too good or too bad. We ran it on Sunday and Monday but our patrons were just lukewarm about it. Running time, 82 minutes. Played August 20-21.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

JUAREZ: Paul Muni, Bette Davis, Brian Aherne, John Garfield, Claude Rains—Not for small towns. Picture is very fine with a grand cast headed by probably the two best stars in the business today, but that doesn't mean a thing at the box office when the picture is not the type people want. Poorest Sunday-Monday business. Running time, 127 minutes. Played August 20-21.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

JUAREZ: Paul Muni, Bette Davis, Brian Aherne, John Garfield, Claude Rains—They billed Muni and Davis and featured Brian Aherne. Any good poker player could have played Muni's part. Business not so good. Running time, 127 minutes.—E. I. Hawkins, Hawkins Theatre, Newellton, La. Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Dick Powell, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page—Why a company can waste such a cast on such a picture is beyond all comprehension. This one was terrible. A few like this and all Ann Sheridan's buildup will drop like a thud. Just no good. Play it on Bargain Night. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Dick Powell, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page, Allen Jenkins, Helen Broderick—Your audience will go to sleep waiting for this to start and when they wake up they won't have missed a thing. It won't do Dick Powell any good or Ann Sheridan. You can have my end of them after this opus. And I think the audience will support me. The single saving grace is the music in the picture and, if there are any bouquets to hand out, it goes to Helen Broderick. I just can't conceive a producer turning out so weak a story and using a cast as expensive as this evidently is. There is just nothing to it. It is Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing." This sums it up as far as this situation is concerned.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

TWO JOIN RANKS OF CONTRIBUTORS

Two more exhibitors this week join the ranks of contributors to the What the Picture Did for Me Department. They are:

Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Lyons, Neb.

William Noble, Criterion Theatre, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Reports also have been received, after a considerable lapse from:

Beatty and Johnston, Capitol Theatre, Red Deer, Alberta, Can.

Read the reports from these and other exhibitors in these columns.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Dick Powell, Gale Page, Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan—Very funny. Fair draw. Played August 25-26.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WATERFRONT: Marie Wilson, Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson—We played this on bargain night to a small audience. O. K. for a double bill. Just a lot of rough stuff for nothing. No box office draw. Running time, 59 minutes. Played August 1-2.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

COMMUNITY SING: No. 8—A little different. Sort of a classic. Well received.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

LUCKY PIGS: Color Rhapsodies—Not so hot. Just a fair cartoon. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NOW IT CAN BE SOLD: Broadway Comedies—Andy Clyde is always well received by our week-end customers. Columbia has the laughs in their comedies all right.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SAP TAKES A WRAP, THE: Broadway Comedies—A good two-reel slapstick comedy.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS, NO. 12: Noah Beery—This Screen Snapshot showing the old timers makes Jimmy Fidler's Personality Parade of last season look like amateur photography. Here is a honey; do not waste it. Excellent. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YANKEE DOODLE HOME: Music Hall Vanities—A very good short, especially for exhibitors in U. S. A.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

COLORFUL CURACAO: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—As we have always contended, these are tops and this one is no let down. Excellent. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

COLORFUL CURACAO: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—A very fine travel picture—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CULINARY CARVING: Pete Smith Specialties—A good reel on carving the Sunday dinner.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

DARK MAGIC: Robert Benchley—Another good Benchley.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

HOME EARLY: Robert Benchley—Fairly good short for those who like subtle comedy.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

JOY SCOUTS: Our Gang—Entertaining Our Gang comedy.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

POETRY OF NATURE: Pete Smith Specialties—Here is a good short with a crow as the leading role and other animals of the forest in the cast. Excellent. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TINY TROUBLES: Our Gang—Would like these better in two reelers. Running time, one reel.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

WHILE AMERICA SLEEPS: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—Very good.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Paramount

CHAMPAGNE MUSIC OF LAWRENCE WELK: Headliners—A very fine band act.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

CIRCUS CO-ED: Paragraphics—Not bad; not good. —L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

COLUMBIA: Color Cruises—A fine travel reel. Educational and enjoyed by all.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

DEATH VALLEY THRILLS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Okay.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

POPULAR SCIENCE: No. 5—Interesting—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RHYTHM ON THE RESERVATION: Betty Boop Cartoons—These Boops not so hot.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

WATCH YOUR STEP: Grantland Rice Sportlights—A dandy sport reel showing the walk and step of animals and humans.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

YIP, YIP, YIPPY: Betty Boop Cartoons—Could be worse or else lots better.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

YIP, YIP, YIPPY: Betty Boop Cartoons—Entertaining Betty Boop comedy.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

DONALD'S LUCKY DAY: Walt Disney Cartoons—A topnotch cartoon, as are all the Disneys. Running time, one reel.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

GOOD SCOUTS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Another Disney home run.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GOOFY AND WILBUR: Walt Disney Cartoons—Okay.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MARCH OF TIME: No. 11—This dealt with peace or propaganda. Most timely. Don't think they could put out a better subject. Play it at once. We were more than proud to give this education treat to our cash customers and more than ever it made us proud of both the United States, our good neighbors, and our British Empire.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

INSIDE BASEBALL: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Good sport reel.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

United Artists

JERUSALEM: World Windows—A very excellent travel reel. Should be played by all theatres. Educational and pleasing.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Universal

PATIO SERENADE: Mentone Musical Comedies—Good but overheavy on vocalizing.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

NO NEED TO SEEK

In reporting a novel and inexpensive idea for front decoration, reproduced here last week, Manager H. A. Doman of the Harris-Dubois in Dubois, Pa., explains why he has contributed infrequently: "because he is not much of a publicity-seeker". And we suppose just so long as there is a Round Table, many ace ideas created by sincere theatremen who fear the label of "three-sheeter" will be lost to the membership for reason of it.

Is it not evident by this time that all sectors of the industry regard contributions of the members to these pages as highly vital to the grosses? As a result there can now be little dissent that this department is the clearing house of the business for promotional ideas of definite, proven worth.

Your Round Table is supported by the cooperation of members who eagerly assume an obligation to tell each other what they are doing to lengthen those lines out front. It may be in so doing that theatremen of talent receive publicity—but essentially publicity of value to build important personal prestige. That comes without seeking.

"We are following the policy of advancing men from within the company to more responsible positions," writes J. J. Fitzgibbons, Famous Players Canadian headman, informing this department of recent promotions, detailed elsewhere. Fortunate are R. S. Roddick, L. M. Graburn, Jack Arthur, Fred Treilcock, to serve under a leadership definitely committed to so sound a procedure. Congratulations!

RIGHT INTO THE MIDDLE

The previous issue told how Bill Johnson moved his theatre right smack into the center of the Millinocket, Maine, celebration in honor of young Donn Fendler, the lost Boy Scout. A few hours before, Johnson was "absolutely stranded for a good idea". But when the news broke, the Round Tabler was on hand to grab the brass ring. Sez he:

"It was a big day, by far the biggest event that has taken place here in years. And by jumping right into the middle of things we got for ourselves the biggest day's gross of the summertime instead of being completely forgotten during the overwhelming events of the occasion."

The difference between profit and no profit can often be measured by how far "into the middle of things" the manager engages himself. The smart lad can't go far wrong by endeavoring to funnel adaptable community activities in the direction of his ticket-window.

IT STILL REMAINS A PASS

It's a stunt reported here by the home office admen of the company represented and executed by a theatreman known for his promotional ability. To stimulate interest in a coming picture, one accepted generally as among the better of the current crop, the manager distributed to 1,000 of his mailing list negotiable checks, good for 10 cents in cash until the closing date of the run. With each check went a note from the showman reading: "The check's purpose is to call your attention to the next paragraph of this note." The paragraph was a strong personal endorsement.

Allow, if you will, for peculiarities of the local situation, time of the year, sluggish business and other uncontrollable conditions. The promotion still remains a form of free admission. The returns may have well served the manager's purpose for that particular engagement. But the offer still comes under the heading of "passes and their evils".

For what it gives, today's motion picture program is the fairest buy, if not the biggest bargain in town. No matter how ingenious, any promotion that invites patrons to expect yet more for full value received is economically unsound.

On August 25, 1904, the stage show, "The Wizard of Oz", opened a date in Davenport, Iowa. Thirty-five years later, to the day, the picture bowed in at the Capitol, in the same spot.

The startling coincidence uncovered by his assistant, Francis Gillon, reports Manager Dale McFarland, proved newsworthy enough to land an advance three-column "remember when" story on behalf of the date.

Round Table in Pictures

Above left is reproduced front of the Capitol, in Dallas for Louis Charninsky's "Heritage of the Desert" date. Animation was provided by electric cow whose head and tail moved, mouth opening and closing also. Mounted wolf dog, snakes, turtles, etc., completed the display. . . . Above lobby setpiece was created by Manager W. M. Shields and publicist Van Roberts for "Hotel for Women" at the Arcadia, Tyler, Texas, consisting of six-sheet cutout of girl dressed in blue and silver cellophane silk to sell the girl and glamour angle of the picture. Billing aimed to sell best local angles of cast, etc.

In exchange for a few ducats, the Boys' Club of Syracuse, N. Y., was promoted by Round Tabler Frank Murphy of Loew's State for the street bally on "Andy Hardy Gets Spring Fever." Ahead and during run, boys each carrying title letters paraded the business district in varying formations, winding up in front of the theatre where they posed for newspaper pictures.

Several thousand patrons of Warner's Circle Theatre, in Philadelphia, signed a giant scroll wishing Lionel Barrymore a happy 61st birthday as part of Manager C. L. Yearsley's advance publicity campaign for "On Borrowed Time." This was but part of the huge lobby display, scroll was later sent to Barrymore in Hollywood and local papers picked up the stunt with stories and art.

Two attractive young girls attired in sports outfits and carrying skis and ski poles to which were attached pennants with copy reading "We are on our way to see 'Winter Carnival' at the Roosevelt Theatre," paraded the entire loop district of Chicago in advance and during run of that picture. Stunt was arranged by Bill Hollander's Balaban and Katz publicity department.

Staged by Columbia Pictures was the "Golden Boy" Day held at the World's Fair at which a drawing was held among women guests, the winner having the pleasure of lunching at the French Building with William Holden and Adolphe Menjou, appearing in the picture. At right may be seen the stars with the lucky girl who was included in the entire day's festivities.

Three young service staff men costumed in exact reproductions of the Tin Woodman, the Scarecrow and the Lion paraded through downtown shopping district with picture, theatre and playdate copy on their backs as part of Wally Caldwell's advance publicity on "Wizard of Oz" at Loew's Valentine, in Toledo. Tieup was also effected with moonlight boat trip three days ahead whereby lads entertained and plugged the picture throughout the evening. Boys also distributed gas filled imprinted balloons on shopping zone corners.

Baby Bathing Beauty Contest Held on Stage by Conner

Instead of having the usual bathing beauty contest, Marlowe Conner at the Rhodes, in Chicago decided to use real babies instead. Therefore, two weeks in advance applications were solicited for girls between the ages of two and five. Each week, 25 of them were presented on the stage dressed in bathing suits, three winners selected by audience applause and each awarded a cash prize donated by local merchant.

Preliminaries were run for four weeks followed by the finals with all previous winners present. Newspapers were generous with stories ahead, during run of contest and winding up with human interest story and list of winners.

Another stunt engineered by Conner was the clipping of the best numbers from six different band reels which were made into a 20-minute short and played along with his Saturday night show. Theatreman also saw to it that there were several couples of jitterbug dancers in the aisles to pep up the jamboree. Idea was sold via trailer and mimeos, plus word-of-mouth campaign from local jitterbugs.

Letter-Writing Slant Sells Meakin's "In Name Only"

A letter-writing contest entitled "Why I'd Like to Be in the Movies," conducted through the Washington Times-Herald, highlighted the exploitation arranged by Hardie Meakin, manager of the Keith Theatre in the Capitol city for "In Name Only." Contest was arranged in honor of Peggy Ann Garner, little six-year-old miss who appears in an outstanding role in the film. Contest was open to girls between the ages of six and 11, giving them an opportunity to express themselves.

Prizes were awarded the first five best letters, consisting of hand-paintings in oils on ivory of miniatures. In addition 25 passes were given to runnersup as additional prizes.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Jitterbug Idea Held At Park by Granara

A jitterbug contest, held at Norumbega Park, Boston, largest and most popular amusement park in New England, highlighted the exploitation of Jack Granara, publicity director of the Keith Memorial Theatre, for "Bachelor Mother." The contest, held the night before the opening of the picture, attracted the masses from a radius of fifty miles. First prize was a beautiful silver cup, while runners-up received twenty-five pairs of guest tickets.

Other features included stories and art lay-outs in the daily newspapers; a banner, announcing the picture across main street.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Cupp Takes Group to Fair

A Popularity contest staged at each of the theatres in the McCollum Circuit came to a close August 12. The successful candidates were rewarded by a seven-day trip to the World's Fair at New York with all expenses paid. Cooperation of local newspapers and officials of the World's Fair created a keen interest and a large amount of enthusiasm for the entire affair.

The party left Chicago, August 20 for the World's Fair. Elmer C. Cupp, manager of the Lorraine Theatre in Hoopeston, Illinois, had charge of the group.

Milking Contest Builds Patronage from Farm Draw

One of the most direct contacts between theatre and farm-folk in the drawing area has proven to be the "cow milking" contest employed profitably in various sectors and currently as reported by Manager Andy Roy of the Warner Strand, in Albany and C. L. "Holly" Hollister at the Babcock, in Wellsville, N. Y.

In Roy's plan, contacts were made with the farm clubs, such as Granges, Bureaus, etc., and with civic groups interested in youth, particularly in the 4-H groups and health groups. With all radio stations having farm programs at noon, their cooperation was enlisted for plugs on the stunt. The contest itself was a scientific exhibit and the contestants in Albany were 4-H boys elected by each of the nine 4-H Clubs in the county. Roy explained the contest and introduced each contestant who was given two minutes to milk. The person getting the greatest number of pounds of milk was declared the winner. Judges were representatives of civic or farm organizations, the whole program taking but 30 minutes.

Mayor Proclaims Milk Day

The cows were prize bovines that had been exhibited before so that they were used to crowds and there was no danger of stampeding. A tarpaulin was spread over the stage with shavings. Various milk companies were contacted and cooperated generously on the contest. The Mayor declared a Milk Day, with parade of the contest. Display was planted in lobby week ahead showing the processes through which feed becomes milk, different breeds of cows, etc. All milk companies bannered trucks with tie-in copy, milkmen placed collars on all bottles delivered to customers and the prizes for winners were promoted from cooperating merchants.

Hollister Entrants Fill Quart Bottle

"Holly" Hollister's recent contest is detailed as follows: Advertising consisted of window cards distributed predominantly through more rural parts of trade area; trailer on screen week ahead, newspaper readers and ad space and announcements from stage. Promoted from the cooperating dairy were two cows, cash prize money and transportation of the cows to theatre and back.

Contacting the Farm and Home Bureau agents, "Holly" secured most of his contesttants. Other contacts were schools, stores, and cheese factories. The contest itself was conducted by means of having each entrant milk until a quart milk bottle overflowed. Contestants were not furnished stools, being required to stoop, holding the bottle in one hand and milking with the other. Both cows were milked continuously during the contest, which was entirely against time, a judge with stop watch clocking each milker, the time being announced to the audience.

Hollister reports it is his experience milkers do not flock to apply, but that it is necessary to go out and make a concerted effort to round up applicants.

NEW SEASON DRIVES ARE SPEEDED AS THEATREMEN GO "BOOM BOOM"

Twin Cities Call It Greatest; "Happy New Movie Year" Slogan of Oklahomans, in Campaigns on Coming Shows

Further reports in various sectors to speed the new season on its way spotlights the activities of the Minnesota Amusement Company theatremen in the Twin Cities, St. Paul and Minneapolis, and the campaign put out in Oklahoma City by the Standard Theatres staff, both of which are set down herewith.

Since the summer outdoors opposition in those parts is doubly strong, the Minnesotamen in the Twin Cities district jumped their opening a month ahead and started their season under the title of "Greatest Movie Season" in August. According to E. E. Seibel, district ad head, in Charlie Winchell's department, the keystone of the advance campaign was that motion pictures are the finest entertainment at the lowest cost for the masses, used as a catchline in all copy.

The 20 theatres concerned sold the plan under the supervision of Barry Burke, district manager, the advance beginning the early part of July with processed 40 by 60 lobby posters carrying general copy and space for individual attractions. Pennants, die-cuts, stars and streamers all carried the line "Greatest Movie Season—1939."

Theatremen Appear On Radio

Trailers were used starting two weeks ahead and were followed through appropriately into August with new copy used to identify the month as the start of the season. Trailers were made up so that each theatre could sell coming shows. Same thought was carried out in all lobby displays in advance and current. Newspaper advertising was given special attention, all the "Season" ads carrying identifying stars. By use of guest tickets, individual theatres promoted gratis publicity and ads in weekly and neighborhood papers in a 25-mile area.

Radio promotion was especially effective. In St. Paul, the theatres landed seven 15-minute gratis periods over KSTP each week. Spot announcements were obtained on WMIN and KSTP. In Minneapolis, WCCO contributed four spot announcements daily in addition to individual theatre listings. WDGY and WTCN also cooperated.

Minnesota managers and publicists were used on the broadcasts for round table talks on the coming product. Managers were also introduced and interviewed on other programs using guest speakers.

Cities Divided Into Zones

Mechanics of the plan was handled by portioning off zones in each city with managers in each zone selling the coming attractions to industrial plants, manufacturing concerns, stores, etc. Theatre parties, block tickets and other devices were successfully employed to work up other interest. Similar idea was carried out in contact with local clubs and in St. Paul, business association sent out a bulletin to members. Minneapolis civic and commerce association cooperated likewise.

Special committee of managers in each city plugged the plan at picnics, band concerts, boat races, etc., and in both situations theatremen formed tourist and convention committee which proved highly successful. Conventions listed for the Twin Cities in August were contacted and induced to include theatre parties on their programs. As a followup, uniformed guides stationed about the city by the chamber of commerce to assist out-of-town visitors were furnished with list of attractions at the theatres.

Rubber Stamp Found Effective

One of the most effective ideas, reports Seibel, was the use of a four-by-four rubber stamp containing "season" copy, by the staffs of all theatres in stores and markets. Started ten days ahead, over 200,000 bags were stamped by opening day, with a goal of a half-million indicated by coverage in outlying sections as well as local contacts.

Interest was kept high among the theatremen by a drive dedicated to John J. Friedl for the duration of the project, with each manager striving to top August grosses of last year.

Mayor Opens St. Paul Season

Featured was the Greater Movie Season campaign at the Paramount, in St. Paul, Minn., guided by Manager Walter Van Camp and ad head Don Alexander. Much was made of this in the newspapers and civic cooperation was obtained by having Mayor Fallon open the new season by being the first to enter the theatre on the date for "Bachelor Mother". His Honor, greeted in the lobby by Van Camp, was photographed for the newspapers.

Another newspaper tiein had to do with the widely read "Hawf and Hawf" column of the local Dispatch, which cooperated on a campaign in which tickets were given to those writing the best answers to the question "What would you do if you found a baby on your doorstep?" The contest was featured a week ahead and much unusual publicity obtained as a result.

Chamber of Commerce Cooperates

Another ingenious promotion was effected through the local Chamber of Commerce with a letter from the Secretary to members stressing the Greater Movie Season idea, as a vital improvement in the downtown district. The letter described the entire promotion, naming all the Minnesota theatres involved. Also mentioned were the names of the outstanding coming pictures, members being urged to attend theatres during this time wherever possible.

The featured newspaper promotion was a one ad tiein with the Pioneer Press which plugged the tieup in page one boxes and also two column type on the classified page. Prizes were given for those who completed a sentence having to do with the Season and who forwarded 25 word letters on their favorite want ads.

Standard Theatres Color Co-op Pages Stress 'New Year'

New product shown during the last August weeks and in all of September was sold by Standard Theatres, of Oklahoma City, under the drive title of "Happy New Movie Year," used widely in all the campaign advertising and publicity, as reported here by Pat Patchen, circuit ad head.

Unusual in the newspaper promotion was the use of color pages, the slogan, in reverse red streamer, topping the page which was mainly a layout of scene and star cuts, in color, from the coming attractions. Layout was mortised to provide for type captions illustrating each cut. Cooperating merchants were listed below under a "Best Wishes" head for the new season.

Mailing Piece Features Drive

Further stressed was a mailing piece distributed to thousands of local names, an offset three-fold job, the front page given over to scene cut on Bob Taylor and Hedy Lamarr. Inside spread included star and scene cuts, each numbered and explained in identifying type panel. Two folds on back page were similarly decorated with third fold providing for names and mailing addresses, topped by the "new year" slogan.

Trailers were made up with typical New Year music and sound effects. Same idea was carried out for radio spots, with "Auld Lang Syne" for background music. Lobby and front decorations all carried out the New Year's thought, including bells hung from the marquee, and all incoming phone calls answered "Happy New Movie Year."

In all, the campaign reacted advantageously, Patchen reports, much being done to bring strongly to local attention that there were many good pictures shown currently and on tap for future release.

PARKING METERS TIED TO "BORROWED TIME"

Week ahead of and during his date on "Borrowed Time," Manager Hadden Matthew, 69 Street Theatre, Upper Darby, Pa., had boys on street searching for cars in parking meter spaces displaying violation flags. When one was spotted, boys put penny in meter good for 12 additional minutes. Under windshield, card same color as police cards were inserted, copy calling attention to the extra penny in meter, and headed "You're parking on Borrowed Time. We hope this will save you a fine." Theatre credits followed.

MORE "MINNESOTA"

In addition to the "season" activities, Minnesota-men in other sectors of the circuit are keeping up their end with sustained promotions of various kinds. What some of the boys have done recently is detailed below, from campaigns forwarded here by circuit ad head, Charlie Winchell.

In Duluth, Manager George Irwin at the Lyceum reports a fancy job of work on "Goodbye Mr. Chips", prominent in which was special screening for newspaper critics and select list, which brought rave advance reviews in all papers. Irwin also planted the "How many ways can you say 'Goodbye Mr. Chips?'" pressbook contest and another promotion was built around invitation performance to group of local retired school teachers. In addition, George landed a scrambled letter contest which netted much gratis space in exchange for a few ads.

On behalf of "Four Feathers", Irwin concentrated on what he terms a test preview campaign wherein leading locals were invited to an advance screening, their opinions used in newspaper advertising in addition to a personal endorsement from the Round Tabler, examples of both advertisements reproduced on the following page.

Edeneal Ties Stores to "Chips"

For his "Goodbye Mr. Chips" date at the Paramount, Mitchell, S. D., Ernie Edeneal was able to plant small reverse panels containing the title in ads of leading stores. For street work, he had a costumed Santa Claus working the downtown district and carrying sign reading "150 days till Christmas, but you can see 'Mr. Chips'" etc., etc. Prominent in the lobby display was a 40 by 60 illustrated with photos of Robert Donat in his past successes carrying copy reading "Remember him?" Another interesting outstanding stunt was the placing of the title in giant cutout letters on the face of an embankment in a popular resort.

For house-to-house distribution, Ernie had a herald made up head reading "Pardon me, may I have a minute of time?" followed by strong personal endorsement copy on the picture.

On "Hotel for Women" at the Orpheum, St. Paul, Lou Golden promoted a five-column-150 line display ad sensationally proclaiming the endorsement of the Theatre and Movie Committee of the Women's Institute of St. Paul and reproduced on the following page.

In addition to the plug for the date, the ad contained a photo of the heads of the women's organization and comments on the attraction from Elsa Maxwell herself.

Salisbury Favors Teaser Cards

Ingenious teaser cards were found effective by Harry Salisbury for "On Borrowed Time" at the Time Theatre, in Rochester, Minn. Using as a theme, the title of the picture, Salisbury had small cards made up in various colors which contained a tag line and illustration which were widely distributed. These, too, are shown on the next page. Harry also mailed special postcards to the doctors and executives of the Mayo Clinic, civic organizations, industrial plants, etc.

Tying in with the State American Legion Convention in Minneapolis, coincident with the date of "Unexpected Father", Charles Zinn at the Uptown had a young man in Legion hat push a bannered baby carriage around the downtown area. The "Legionnaire" made it his business to join up with all of the Legion activities and in the course of his travels led bugle and drum corps parades and had his picture taken innumerable times with the visiting Conventioners.

Bryan McElligott played a prominent part in the selection of a local girl for the "Miss America" title in Aberdeen. Cooperating in the voting were leading merchants to find the winner. The successful entrant was announced and her award made from the stage of the Capitol Theatre. Local papers ran front page stories on the event in which the theatre and manager were prominently mentioned.

Phillips Hooks to Marathon

An excellent example of newspaper "office" ad was the tieup made for "Lady of the Tropics" at the Garrick Theatre, in Duluth, in which the value of personal appearance was stressed in publicizing the local advertisements. Full figure of Hedy Lamarr was used in the three-column promotion and illustrated on the following page.

With Stations KSOO and KELO promoting a piano marathon approximately 18 days in advance of Ralph Phillips, "Chips" opening at the State, in Sioux Falls, S. D., the theatre tied in by planting a huge picture display in the window adjoining theatre where the marathonist was performing. Stunt was put over the air thrice daily for 30-minute programs and on each, Phillips received a plug. In addition to the crowds that gathered to watch the player seeing the picture setpiece in the window, they heard through public address system that was set up plugs on the current and coming "Chips" engagements.

Before screening the picture, Phillips made arrangements with the local movie commentator on KSOO to see the picture and give a five-minute review on it. In addition, the theatreman secured cooperation of various bookstore merchants for window displays of the books, scene stills and other advertising for the date.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Town's Four Daughters Hosted by Fretwell

To stimulate his boxoffice on "Four Daughters," Jack Fretwell, at the State, in Harrisonburg, Va., offered guest tickets to the four daughter families in his community. Several responded, which brought newspaper breaks with credits to picture and playdates. Gratis Priscilla Lane fan photos were distributed to first matinee patrons through courtesy of Auto-Lite spark plugs.

On "Only Angels Have Wings," Fretwell had a plane from nearby airport drop heralds over 10 county towns and the city. The entire campaign was tied in with the "Boost the Harrisonburg Airport" campaign, thereby receiving full cooperation from the Chamber of Commerce.

Pete Smith Shorts Effect Ace Tieins In Wide Campaign

Intensive exploitation and publicity shorts campaign put behind the Pete Smith specialties by M-G-M for national attention began with "Culinary Carving" in which the company tied up with the National Live Stock and Meat Board, an organization of 1100 packers and 200,000 retailers. One hundred and fifty thousand cards advertising the picture were distributed to markets throughout the country. Mats and stills from the picture were sent to 7200 newspapers and meat markets for advertising. This was supplemented by "Meat Goes to the Movies" bulletins regarding the picture. Live stock and meat publications received news material and art and exhibitors arranged special previews for meat packers.

A similar tie-up was made with Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company to promote "Take a Cue" and "Set 'Em Up." Stills on billiard and bowling instruction were supplied for newspapers, shop windows, billiard parlors and bowling alleys.

Billiard Champ Tours Colleges

Charles S. Peterson, the billiard expert in "Take a Cue" toured the universities giving billiard instructions as a side exploitation stunt, with a great deal of newspaper space resulting for the picture.

Andy Varipapa and Ned Day, the bowling wizards appearing in "Set 'Em Up," likewise staged an exhibition tour in conjunction with the bowling Specialty. On the day the picture was released, Day played in a tournament and set a world record of 834 for three games, bowling a perfect score of 300 for his first game and having 21 consecutive strikes. That timely feat broke "Set 'Em Up" into the sports pages.

All bowling publications carried art and publicity sent out by Brunswick-Balke-Collender and many exhibitors awarded regional Pete Smith trophies for bowling tournaments. From Hollywood, the campaign was given impetus by a luncheon for sports and news syndicate writers given by Smith.

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIPS OFFERED ON "MUSIC"

Tiein with the local Press and music school by publicist, Homer McCallon, on behalf of "They Shall Have Music" brought gratifying daily breaks and co-op ads for the date at Loew's Houston, Texas, reports Manager Francis Deering. Scholarships were offered talented juvenile musicians, winners selected at a public audition on stage of theatre.

Paper ran daily entry blanks and two-column stories with generous art spreads as competition progressed. Over 200 entered with 24 scholarships given, instead of the 15 originally agreed upon.

PAST "FORTNIGHT" EXPLOITATIONS

Local Beauty Search Tied To Two Houses by Burhorn

Conducted in Chicago's subsequent Gayety and first-run Commercial, by Manager John Burhorn was his beauty search to select "Miss Southeast Chicago of 1939." At a regular meeting of the South Chicago Chamber of Commerce, a resolution was passed approving the campaign and agreeing to abide by Burhorn's selection, in addition to featuring the winner at any civic function during the ensuing year.

Four local merchants were promoted for $200 each, there were four preliminary contests at each theatre and one final. Application blanks were run in cooperating newspaper and interest was kept alive by stories together with photos of entrants which were run daily. Cooperating merchants plugged the search in their ads and storewide, Burhorn distributing heralds, programs, etc., in addition to trailer and lobby copy.

Most Popular Teachers and Pupils Hosted by Taylor for "Mr. Chips"

Running ten days ahead in local daily which Charlie Taylor says does not usually favor contests, was the stunt he planted for the "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" opening at the Buffalo Theatre, in Buffalo. With daily newspaper coverage, the campaign was climaxed with a dinner at a leading hotel to which the five winners and the folks who nominated them were invited. Contest was ushered in with story in which readers were asked to name the best local teacher they ever had and who the teacher was in their opinion who exerted the most influence on the lives of prominent Buffalonians. Best five letter-writers were chosen together with their choice for the reception.

Newsies Sell Extrys for Fitzpatrick Wearing "Stanley and Livingstone" Hats

With all the daily newspapers publishing extras on the verdict given in the Waterbury, Conn. million dollar conspiracy trial, Manager Ed Fitzpatrick hopped aboard and garnered some additional publicity for his "Stanley and Livingstone" engagement at the Poli Theatre. As soon as the papers were on the streets, theatreman covered all newsstands and corners where newsboys took up their posts, by outfitting the attendants and more than 200 newsies with white sun helmets around each of which was an imprinted band carrying title, theatre and playdate copy.

Postcard Scenes of Villa's Raids Used by Seymour for "Juarez" Date

One week in advance of "Juarez" at the Kermit, in Kermit, Texas, Manager Dwight Seymour borrowed from a local man a set of 75 authentic postcards of the raids that Pancho Villa had made around El Paso. These were mounted on black mat boards and planted on easel in lobby ahead and during run of picture. Lobby display also featured Mexican souvenirs including colored pottery water jugs, man riding a horse which was made of straw, Mexican felt hats, two strings of dried vegetables and other material.

PATRONS' COMMENTS RECORDED BY CONNER

While the picture was playing at the Warner Avalon, Chicago, in advance of his date on "Dark Victory" at the Rhodes, Marlowe Conner placed an electric recording machine in the lobby of the Avalon and invited patrons to record their comments.

Conner then inaugurated his advance campaign by playing the record over his house p.a. system. It went this way:

"How do you do, ladies and gentlemen. This is the Voice of the Lobby, speaking from the lobby of the Avalon Theatre. The picture, 'Dark Victory', is just over and we are going to ask you for a few comments picked at random. Sir, you just saw 'Dark Victory', starring Bette Davis; what did you think of it?" This was followed by patrons' comment.

Airplane Contest at Bennett Field Held by Brown on "Angels Have Wings"

A flying model airplane contest of no mean proportions was staged by Manager Harry Brown and publicist S. Leonard Mayer for "Only Angels Have Wings" at Loew's Cameo, in Brooklyn. Run in advance of the picture, eliminations were held at Marine Park where trophies and medals were awarded to winners in various groups, with the finals at Floyd Bennett Airport, trophies there being presented by officers of the Naval Air Corps on duty at the field. Presentation broke in two Brooklyn papers with a monster parade scheduled for opening night. Band assembled in front of theatre and gave a concert at which time 200 pigeons were released from the marquee.

One sheet was stationed out front through which medium all families bearing the name "Angel" were invited as guests of the management; special radio broadcast over WCNW was held, window secured from local model airplane store and motor for demonstration purposes was planted in front of boxoffice, with appropriate picture and playdate tiein copy.

Novelty Heralds Distributed by Allen In Advance of "Wizard of Oz" Date

Used mainly to call attention to the tremendous amount of money expended on the "Wizard of Oz" production, Wally Allen at Schine's Kentucky, Lexington, Ky., issued gag checks in the amount of $3,000,000, drawn on the Bank of Entertainment to the order of Kentucky Theatre patrons. Reverse side carried copy stressing cost of picture and the fact that the picture could be seen for 10 to 40 cents at his house. These were distributed ahead of opening as were puzzle heralds, on which guest tickets were offered to the first 25 submitting correct solutions.

Brien Drops Heralds from Sky In Advance of "Angels" Date

In the third-run Prince Theatre, Ambridge, Pa., Round Tabler Lige Brien for "Only Angels Have Wings," week ahead planted an easel out front advising patrons to watch the sky on opening day at which time costless heralds were dropped from plane plugging the opening. Various organization heads were contacted by postcards which were mailed from New York, sidewalks were stenciled with "Don't jaywalk, only angels have wings" copy and through tieup with local power plant, pay envelopes were stamped with picture and playdate copy.

For his kid patronage, Brien distributed feathered Indian hats on which were imprinted the title, youngsters thus providing a walking billboard for the theatreman, and an electrical transcription that reproduced sounds of a plane in the sky was played over marquee during run.

Bannan Conducts Newspaper Search For Van Wert's Local "Mr. Chips"

Five prominent school teachers in as many towns were selected as local "Mr. Chips" as part of George Bannan's campaign on that picture at Schine's Van Wert, Van Wert, Ohio. The local newspaper in each instance selected the man most deserving in their town to be honored by the theatre as a guest of the management and at a banquet which was held opening day. Classified ad was run for two days asking for a review by some local person who had seen the picture out-of-town, passes were given for the best review, which was used for out-front display under the heading "local woman raves about 'Goodbye, Mr. Chips.'"

Bench was planted out front with copy "For those waiting to see," etc., etc., two-foot cutout title letters were used on traveler, cashiers telephoned telephone subscribers and bookstore and library displays were featured.

Hauschild Heads Committee To Choose "Leading Citizen"

Since Marion, Ind., was chosen as one of the 100 cities to receive a bronze plaque to be presented to the town's leading citizen in conjunction with the opening of "Our Leading Citizen" at the Paramount Theatre, Manager Thor Hauschild contacted the service clubs two weeks ahead, urging each to select one of their members to meet as a group to choose Marion's leading citizen.

Strange part of it was that Billy Connors, for 27 years manager of the other first run house in town, was selected to receive the plaque. The unusual aspect of one theatre manager honoring his competitor made excellent newspaper copy. Streets were bannered as were merchants' stores and theatre. Numerous organizations were contacted such as Boy Scouts, American Legion, etc., all of which cooperated in putting over the show. Kids on entering the theatre were handed Pledge of Allegiance and National Anthem cards which they recited and sang at an appointed time.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com.-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com.-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

"The American Theatre Owner Has a Right to Expect . . ."

By MARTIN QUIGLEY

THE war in Europe has highlighted a state of emergency in the affairs of the American motion picture industry.

The emergency is a challenge to the management of the industry, demanding that it face the realities of the situation and take, promptly and thoroughly, those steps which are imperatively necessary for the welfare of the industry and those who live by it.

Happily for this, an American industry, the situation is not desperate. It is not even alarming, provided only that those measures which judgment and foresight dictate are introduced and applied.

The immediate effect of the war in Europe is to illuminate a condition which has been asserting itself for some time. This condition comprises the lessening of revenues accruing to the American industry from overseas distribution. The condition comes not as a new development incident to the war. It has been an obvious fact for a considerable period of time; obvious also has been the indication that a continuance of this downward trend is inevitable, due to influences at work in the various foreign markets.

The trend steadily has been toward rendering less profitable to the American producer his activities abroad. This is being brought about through various devices, including quotas, restriction against the exportation of money, mutiplication of duties, fees and licenses and, the nationalistic aspirations of the various governments.

It cannot of course be said that foreign demand for American films threatens to vanish. The essential merit of Hollywood product as entertainment and its deep-rooted popularity with the various foreign publics are such that a continuing demand is assured. But it must be said that its opportunities have diminished in extent and in profit.

AGAINST the darkening cloud of this threatening condition the industry management has just whistled—and hoped that somehow the trend would reverse itself. In the meantime the industry has whirled along its perilous course, facing increasing costs on one side and diminishing returns on the other.

The incidence of the European war increased materially the acuteness of the situation. It did not create it. Even in the absence of a war in Europe the security and welfare of the industry required things to be done which have not been done.

Now there is indeed no choice left.

Either the industry must proceed promptly and thoroughly toward putting its affairs on a sound business basis or disaster inevitably will overwhelm it.

This business as an American industry, blessed as it is with a domestic market of such great possibilities, is at this critical juncture in world affairs in a most fortunate position. Immediately available and almost equally assured are certain foreign markets, Canada, Latin-America, Scandinavia and other lesser territories. There are here opportunities for a continuing great and even more prosperous industry.

BUT—most emphatically—the industry will not be able to continue as either great or prosperous if it continues foolishly to assume that it is to enjoy revenues which will not be realized and on the basis of this assumption allows its cost of doing business to remain unadjusted to realities.

It is probably true that European revenues may after a few weeks be restored in part. They may even at times assume dizzy peaks of a war-made and consequently an artificial prosperity. But it would be the height of bad business procedure for the industry to allow its costs to remain unadjusted against the fantastic speculation that its economic problems would be miraculously solved by a war-impoverished Europe.

"Production costs may be...reduced..."

There is but little point at this time in discussing how and why motion picture production costs reached, and were allowed to reach, present levels. It is enough that everyone knows that the cost of making motion pictures in Hollywood has reached a height that is without the sanction of reason, necessity or good business. However, it has been possible—but just barely possible—previously to support the prevailing costs. Every informed person now knows that it is no longer possible to do so.

Those in Hollywood who have contributed to the development of the American motion picture to its present artistic and entertainment standard have performed an accomplishment that has rightly won for them the laurel wreath of world acclaim. They have, as the whole world knows, been well-paid for what they have done. They have, it would seem, been dealt with royally.

But now in face of world conditions affecting the motion picture and in face also of new economic concepts applying not only to industries but to individuals as well, the time, which is indeed at long last, has arrived for production costs to be adjusted to levels which the traffic can bear.

WITH no violence whatsoever either to the individuals concerned or the quality of the pictures, production costs may be substantially reduced. No informed person denies that senseless competition in the midst of what may be briefly mentioned as the Hollywood merry-go-round alone accounts for compensation figures that transcend all reason and have never been approximated any time or place in the memory of man. Well over fifty percent of the cost of an average motion picture represents salaries and wages. Wage levels, that is, the compensation of craftsmen, artisans, clerks and laborers, cannot be lowered on account of union agreements. They should not be lowered even if there were no agreements. There have been no great extravagances there. But elsewhere in the cost of personnel together with the many incidental extravagances—amongst which may be included an army of figureheads, fixers and fakers—lies ample room for the needed readjustments.

The American theatre owner is decidedly a party at interest. He has a right to expect the necessary volume of product to supply his requirements. He has a right to expect that, irrespective of what conditions may obtain in foreign markets, he receive pictures of a calibre and quality which will afford satisfaction to his patrons. There can be no assurance of either the necessary quantity or quality of film unless production is placed on a basis which reasonably justifies with the ordinary principles of sound economics.

Beneficiaries of the increasingly high cost system of production would like to have it understood that any lessening of production costs necessarily means a lowering of quality. This argument is wholly false.

It is true that the production of a motion picture is a costly process. But costs are relative. No one sensibly expects an important motion picture to be produced for little money. But no explanation has ever yet been made of the present levels of production costs except that they just grew out of the fertile soil of the Hollywood system.

Another pertinent concern of the theatre owner in the present condition is that he shall not be depended upon to supply additional revenues to offset diminished returns from foreign markets.

Unless production costs are adjusted to meet existing conditions the theatre owner inevitably faces, (1) a product shortage; (2) a lower quality in the production delivered or, (3) higher rentals. It is therefore clear that exhibitor opinion inevitably stands solidly behind the demand for adjusted production costs.

Out of the American market and such foreign markets as continue assured to the American producer a great and prosperous industry in all branches may be maintained.

If this is to be done it must be done by acting on the realities of today—not the conditions of yesterday or the visions of tomorrow.

Ticket Taxes

Admission taxes collected by the Federal Government in the fiscal year ended June 30th, last, aggregated $19,470,801.85, a loss of $1,329,977.64 from the $20,800,779.49 collected in the fiscal year 1938, it was reported this week by the Internal Revenue Bureau. The figures were disclosed by the bureau in a compilation of tax collections for the fiscal year, which, from all sources, totaled $5,181,573,952 as compared with $5,658,765,314 in the preceding year.

Stories

Fourteen producers bought 33 stories and plays during the month of August, compared to the 93 properties acquired last year in the same month. Universal led with five purchases, while originals led all other types of material bought.

In 1937, 1938 and 1939 to date, 32 stage plays have been bought through the facilities of the Dramatists Guild for film use.

August purchases and the plays bought from 1937 on are listed on page 68.

Tax Assailed

The Memorial Auditorium in Louisville, Ky., earned less than half its $16,771.34 operating cost in the last fiscal year. J. C. Engelhard, city controller, said that "excessive state amusement taxes" were partially to blame. "Operating income could be increased materially if the excessive state tax on dramatic and musical entertainment could be repealed," he said. Non tax-operating revenues totaled $8,044.61 in the fiscal year.

This Week

Reaction

Following a wave of rumors, mostly tinged with black, which boiled out of Hollywood upon the first impact of war news, the film industry seemed agreed that retrenchment was necessary, that such retrenchment would be undertaken so as not to impair final screen product either in quantity or quality, that there were some bright spots, even grounds for considerable optimism, in the outlook for the future. Executives of the business rushed into print with emphatic reassurances to exhibitors that they would deliver the quality pictures they have promised and that there would be no tampering with release schedules. Some refused to make definite commitments, advising a policy of "wait and see."

England has granted permission to theatres in zones outside of central London or the populous industrial areas to reopen; the order affecting approximately 65 to 70 per cent of the country's theatres, providing that they adhere to prescribed safety regulations as set up by the Government. Protests by distributors, exhibitors and the press were seen as having led to the Government's orders, which became effective last Saturday. Action on the British Films Act is expected shortly.

A survey of industry action and opinion as well as detailed reports from the war affected areas start on page 12.

The Legal Front

A. B. Momand, one-time Oklahoma circuit operator, whose $4,500,000 anti-trust suit against the majors and the Griffith Amusement Company, in the Oklahoma territory, is one of the oldest on record and still pending, last week filed another suit against the same defendants, asking the Federal Court to make the film companies sell second run pictures at equitable prices, to his Odeon Theatre, in Shawnee, same state, asking injunctions against alleged discrimination, and asking for "relief" and costs.

In Chicago, trial of the Government contempt suit against the majors and Balaban and Katz, charging violation of a 1932 consent decree, was to be resumed next Monday, after the Government finished its case. The defense is expected to reply vigorously. Other suits, and Chicago's whole clearance system, await Federal decision on this case.

In New York, consensus was that the code, ruled "illegal" by the Government, would emerge in company contract provisions.

News from the litigation front starts on page 15 and a map showing the points of attack is on pages 16 and 17.

Unions to Decide

Approximately 7,500 Hollywood studio workers are to choose the United Studio Technicians' Guild or the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, as their bargaining agent, at an election next Wednesday, in Hollywood, under the National Labor Relations Board.

In Hollywood a Federal Grand Jury was set to start a probe of alleged film labor racketeering and income tax evasion next Wednesday. The first witness to be subpoenaed was William Goetz, 20th Century-Fox executive. Charles H. Carr, assistant attorney general, said subpoenas also would be issued for William Bioff, IATSE minister without portfolio, and Joseph M. Schenck.

Earlier union news is on page 64.

Bond Theft

The court of chancery at Wilmington, Del., has been notified of the arrest of three men in New York on charges of theft of twenty $1,000 General Theatre Equipment six per cent gold debenture bonds from the files of the court in 1935. The securities were recovered about five months after the theft but the men were not arrested until last week. The three men arrested by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and accused with participation in the bond theft and others in various parts of the country are George Turnley, Peter Burns and Chester G. Bollenbach.

Withdrawal

James Roosevelt, vice-president of Samual Goldwyn, Inc., this week announced his withdrawal from an undertaking to study means of bringing about "closer coordination of inter-studio relationships." In a letter to Joseph M. Schenck, president of the Motion Picture Producers Association, Mr. Roosevelt said he was abandoning the project after a preliminary survey because he felt the task required "full time devotion ....by a person thoroughly steeped in the knowledge and tradition of the industry." He suggested, however, that the objective seemed to require "the creation of a strong, centralized body to decide jurisdictional questions and questions of inter-relationship ...." and urged that consideration be given to the revitalization of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences as a common meeting ground for all branches of the industry among whom, he said, there appears to be a lack of understanding.

The letter of withdrawal came a week after Mr. Roosevelt spent the Labor Day holiday with his father in Washington.

Postponed

The date of the Motion Picture Democratic Committee banquet at which U. S. Attorney General Frank Murphy is to present a scroll to the producer of the film judged to have "contributed most to the ideal of democracy," has been moved forward from September 18th to September 25th at the request of Mr. Murphy.

STUDIOS KEEP SCHEDULES, STUDY SAVING; FRENCH, BRITISH HOUSES OPEN

Producers Assure Exhibitors of Sufficient Product at Same Standards; Report Personnel Reductions Affecting 1,500

Production schedules for the present season will not be affected vitally in the way of either quality or quantity but retrenchment in the direction of cutting unnecessary costs and waste will be seriously studied, it became evident this week as production executives rushed into print with emphatic pledges to exhibitors that they need have no fear of a product shortage or of a lowering of production standards because of the European war.

By midweek Hollywood had digested unofficial but undenied reports of studio personnel reductions totaling some 1,500 employees, principally in the low wage brackets and labor groups frequently affected to this extent by normal production fluctuations. Early excitement had subsided and the feeling generally was that the studios were adopting a watchful waiting attitude. News of theatre reopenings abroad gave added impetus to a spreading belief that beyond a probable brief readjustment period, production activity and studio employment will level off at a higher pitch than prior to the outbreak of armed conflict, with continuing economies consisting chiefly of savings achieved by streamlining scripts, expediting preparation processes generally, and by severe application of efficiency measures of long standing, none too strictly adhered to heretofore.

Oppose Drastic Cuts

General executive opinion in both the New York home offices and in Hollywood is that whatever loss in revenue from the war areas becomes evident can be allowed for in a general paring of expenses rather than by drastic cuts in production budgets or personnel. In some quarters it was pointed out that it is not at all certain that the war will cut off all European revenue. In support of this it is argued that the American industry profited enormously in the last war from the distribution of pictures to the warring nations, and that while European production certainly will be suspended, theatres will reopen as governments realize the value of entertainment in maintaining morale. America, in that case, would be the only source of film supply.

A total of 609 pictures were produced in Europe last year and if the nations which at present are remaining neutral maintain their 1938 production level only 173 pictures will be made, mostly suited only for local distribution.

Hope for increased revenue from the South American market based on the expectation that American product will be left virtually alone in that field because of the suspension of European production was expressed in New York

Film Stocks And War

In the face of a stock market which was bringing joy to the Bulls and causing weeping and gnashing of teeth among the Bears, as it continued to soar in anticipation of American trade increases due to the War, film stocks and bonds hovered unsteadily around their pre-War averages, reflecting slight losses rather than the tremendous gains shown by such "war babies" as steel, wheat, and the like, this week.

The first losses sustained by film stocks, as the vision spread of motion picture companies deprived of the European market which supplies approximately 30 per cent of world revenue, were gradually made up last week, as optimism grew, and it was recalled that Hollywood's domination of the world market came as a result of the last War.

Indicative of the situation was the difference in volume of shares traded between the "war babies" and film stocks.

Last Friday U. S. Steel had a turnover of 84,100 shares, Republic Steel 70,000, New York Central 67,000, and General Motors 64,000. Among film stocks, Warner Brothers common had a volume of 10,000 shares for the day; Loew's common 4,800; Eastman Kodak 3,100, Technicolor 1,200.

On Tuesday, U. S. Steel had a volume of 112,500 shares; Curtiss-Wright 67,300; Aviation Corporation 46,700, and General Motors 70,200. This was in a day when for the first time since the start of the "war boom," profit-taking threatened to cut the gains which had been registered. However, final returns showed gains again, in "war babies."

Trading in film stocks reflected a slight rise in volume, practically no change in price. Warners had a volume of 11,900 shares; Eastman Kodak 3,400; Loew's 6,800, and Technicolor 1,300.

England's Government Permits 65% of Theatres to Resume Showings; Canadian War Taxes Hit Dominion Industry

The Government of England, settling into the new routine called for by what it expects to be "a three year war," gave in to pressure applied by its own people last Saturday and reopened between 65 and 70 per cent of its film theatres in neutral zones. Permits were granted by the Home Office on Friday.

The Home Office had been petitioned by a joint deputation of English distributors and exhibitors last week; and the press, especially Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard, had urged the reopenings in its editorial columns.

Theatres Close Early

Among other restrictions, the reopened British theatres are to close at 10 P. M.

Adjustment of the present British Films Act (the quota) to a war basis is indicated.

The Soviet Government, as a consequence of its recent rapprochement with Germany, has ordered the withdrawal of anti-Nazi films from Moscow, while in Mexico, the Confederation of Mexican Workers has ordered a ban on all exhibitions of German-made films.

The war budget announced by the Canadian Government affects all branches of the film industry in the Dominion. An eight per cent sales tax on electric light and power bills is to be levied and the tax on companies, incorporated or not, is to be raised to 18 per cent on total returns. In addition there is to be a sliding tax of from 10 to 60 per cent on profits above five per cent. There is no addition to the present tax on surplus funds sent out of Canada by film exchanges. A 20 per cent surtax has been added to the personal income tax, affecting all the lower income brackets. The tax on electricity used is entirely new and will mean the necessity of economy in theatre lighting with reduction of marquee and sign lighting.

Safety Regulations Prescribed

Under the permits issued by the British Government, theatres will continue to operate until further notice, but with the proviso that they adhere to the safety regulations prescribed for all theatres in the emergency by the Government. These include adequate provision for ready access by audiences to bombproof shelters, and the maintenance of attendants to be on the lookout for air raid warnings.

Permission to reopen was not granted houses in central London or in the populous industrial areas such as the eastern coastal towns. In all, however, theatres in only about 100 towns have not received permission to reopen.

In an editorial in the "Evening Standard,"

this week. This hope was bolstered by newspaper reports of a 50 per cent increase in orders from Latin America listed by exporters specializing in such products as textiles, steel, machinery, tools, processed foods, naval stores, technical orders for plant equipment and for ship repairs and automobiles. Cabled inquiries and orders were received, too, from Australia and South Africa for goods not usually purchased here by those countries.

Story Change Expected

Even though the pledges of producers are followed to the letter it is believed at present that the 1939-40 schedules will be altered slightly to include a greater concentration of light stories and comedies calculated to counteract the effects of the war. It is probable that budgets will be changed to include these by cancelling or postponing elaborate spectacles and costume pictures. Also expected, according to opinion in Hollywood, are increased advertising and exploitation efforts, designed to make the most of the confined market for pictures.

For the present, however, publication of definite plans for more than the immediate future was confined to strongly worded promises by production company executives to exhibitors that all release dates will be met and that no quality sacrifices would be made. This week such promises were on record from every major company.

At Columbia the only change announced was a temporary postponement, for 60 days, of "Arizona." Harry Cohn, president, said, "We are not pulling in any horns. As a matter of fact we are spending fully $5,000,000 more on Columbia product this year than at any time in our organization's history." He added that September 14th had been approved as the starting date for "His Girl Friday," one of the company's higher budgeted pictures, to be produced and directed by Howard Hawks.

MGM To "Await Developments"

Speaking for Loew's and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Nicholas M. Schenck on Wednesday said he and his company would await developments before making definite decisions on future plans. "At this moment," he said, "it is foolish for anyone to think that our company—or any other major company—will curtail production or lower the quality of pictures, for the reason that the producing companies are themselves large exhibitors and have three to four times as much capital invested in theatres as in production. If we are to operate our theatres successfully, we must have outstanding pictures and plenty of them.

"Furthermore, I believe that the orders closing theatres in England and France will gradually be relaxed as conditions permit, so as to make possible the furnishing of needed entertainment to the civilian population of the warring countries. However, should our foreign losses exceed present expectation, we will at that time consider ways and means of meeting the emergency."

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president in charge of production, told a sales meeting in Chicago last weekend, "Absolutely no deviation from the announced 1939-40 program is planned. There will be no reduction of budgets or elimination of pictures. Our production program was so carefully planned many months ago and is so far ahead of schedule at this time that it is both unnecessary and impractical to attempt to revise it because of the situation created by the European war. This company has the greatest backlog of pictures ready for release in motion picture history. We have 26 completed feature pictures, eight more before the cameras and 17 definitely scheduled for production within the next few months. All were cast, budgeted and planned with the possibility of the war crisis in mind and not one of them will be dropped from our schedule nor will there be any budget revisions on any of these."

Advises Waiting

Returning on the Manhattan from England this week, Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, cautioned against alarm or retrenchments by film companies. A clear picture of the effect of the war on film business will not be had for 60 or 90 days, he said. Pointing out that Republic will not suffer as much in the loss of European revenue as other companies because its position on the continent was not so well consolidated as that of the major companies, he emphasized that the company plans no budget cutting or other retrenchments but will be guided by the course of events.

Mr. Yates said he believed that British quota restrictions would be tacitly ignored for the time being and that American film imports would be permitted without restriction.

Twentieth Century-Fox officials, taking their cue from an official statement released by Joseph M. Schenck, said the company has decided to effect certain economies without affecting the quality or quantity of product. It was emphasized, however, that the company would adhere to the schedule announced for 1939-40.

Included in the economies will be elimination from the payroll of unnecessary employees in certain studio departments. The need for such action had long been apparent, according to the company, but the step was not regarded as financially necessary until the present emergency.

Sees 60 Per Cent Loss

Mr. Schenck's statement said that while retrenchment in studio overhead was necessary, no salary cuts would be made and nothing would be done to impair the quality of production. None of the big pictures planned by Darryl F. Zanuck would be eliminated, he said. Estimating that the industry faces the immediate loss of 60 per cent of its revenue, Mr. Schenck said, "This company has always had economical and efficient organization and operation, but now drastic economy will be necessary if we are to continue to operate in the face of the loss of vital foreign income. . . .

"In recognition of the emergency which has arisen," the statement concluded, "the directors of Twentieth Century-Fox have just voted to pass up the quarterly dividend on the company's

Newsreels' War Status Still Uncertain; French Make Reel

The American newsreel companies, this week, continued doubtful as to their exact status in a European war the details of which remained shrouded in official restriction and censorship. Still relying primarily on transportation by trans-Atlantic plane, with duplicates being sent from abroad by boat, there was many a tale of lost or mysteriously missing prints in the five American newsreels' home offices in New York during the week.

However, an increasing optimism was noticeable, with the feeling generally being that censorship restrictions will be eased to some extent in the warring countries.

The French Government, it is reported, has started to issue a reel on its war activities, which is expected to appear weekly and to be used by the American companies. Called the "Journal de la Guerre" ("Journal of the War") the first issue was to have been ready last Friday, but no reports on it had been received by mid-week in New York. The French Government is believed using for this work many of the newsreel cameramen connected with the European affiliates of the American companies who have been conscripted. During the last war, the French put out a similar reel called "Annals de Guerre" ("Annals of the War").

Truman Talley, producer of Fox Movietone News, said that "Both the English and the French will relax their restrictions somewhat as things reach a state of "war normalcy" from the feverishness of the first period of adjustment." Mr. Talley also said that his company had its first shipment of actual war film "on the way."

At Pathe News, it was reported that no phone calls from New York to London had been accepted since the start of the war. German film is being shipped through adjacent neutral capitals. Company spokesmen also say that they expect a reel, similar to that being prepared by France, from England.

MGM News of the Day says that there is no longer any word directly from Warsaw, and that most newsreel cameramen are concentrated on the Polish-Roumanian border. In company with the other newsreels, they will continue to use plane service as long as possible.

Both Paramount and Universal News report that they, too, are using plane service across the Atlantic, while the former adds that it finds restrictions on communications "loosening up."

One reason advanced for the expected easing of restrictions by the French and British is that, allowing few if any pictures to be sent out, they have left the way clear for German pictures of battle action to virtually monopolize papers in the neutral countries, thus affording a chance for the spread of propaganda.

common stock. This was considered necessary for the protection of the company's cash position in the light of newly arisen difficulties."

Later reports from Hollywood indicated that an unannounced number of employees had been dropped at the Twentieth Century-Fox studios. It was believed that they numbered approximately 10 per cent of the regular payroll roster of 3,000.

The Twentieth Century-Fox directors, in passing the common stock dividend, and assigning the war as the cause, said that it would be "not wise to declare any dividend at this time." Previous dividends were 50 cents each on June 30th and March 15th, of this year.

J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board of Universal, took occasion to comment on the war emergency in a letter to stockholders which announced the voting of a dividend of 37 cents on the preferred stock and the passing of a common stock dividend.

In his letter, Mr. Cowdin remarked that it was "still too early" to gauge the effects of the European war on the company's business.

"There is no indication, as yet," he wrote, "of any reaction on motion picture attendance in this country as a result of the war. However, if, as a result thereof, there is a stimulation of general business, it might be expected to lead to an upturn in motion picture business rather than otherwise."

The Foreign Market

The letter reviewed the foreign market, in brief, thus:

In England, about 70 per cent of the theatres are operating; and the war will bring a demand for entertainment.

In Germany, the company has not been distributing.

In France, the peace-time restrictions on business have been such that war finds Universal little affected.

In other European countries, Universal has been receiving more business, especially from Holland, Belgium and Switzerland. The cutting of other European production is expected to help Universal and American companies.

In Latin America, in Canada and in the other British Dominions, Universal has been making progress, he said.

Nate Blumberg, president of Universal, added his reassurance to that of the other companies at a luncheon given for Cliff Work, production executive, in the Rainbow Grill of the RCA Building, Radio City, last Monday. "Universal announced 61 pictures for this year, and will deliver 61," Mr. Blumberg said. "There will be no lay-offs in the studio or in the home office. There will be no cuts in salaries. Universal has been having a dress rehearsal for this crisis for the last year and a half and now that the curtain is up we are fully prepared.

Roach, Goldwyn, Chaplin Active

Hal Roach announced there would be no deviation from announced plans for the production of six features and four Laurel and Hardy comedies for United Artists distribution in 1939-40. Samuel Goldwyn resumed production on "Raffles" this week with David Niven continuing in the lead role. The picture was suspended last week when it was thought possible that the star, a British reserve officer, might be called to service. A news release from Charlie Chaplin announced that rehearsals have begun for his forthcoming film to be known under the working title of "Production No. 6" until a final title is selected. Previous announcements scheduled a film to be called "The Dictators."

In New York Murray Silverstone, executive head of United Artists, said he had received word from Alexander Korda in London that the war would not interfere with the completion of "The Thief of Bagdad." All shooting on the picture has been completed, it was said.

Statements issued last Friday by Harry M. Warner in New York and Jack L. Warner at a press conference in Hollywood denied reports that production would be curtailed and emphasized promises that all the large scale pictures planned would be released on schedule. Predicting a probable loss of 25 per cent resulting from the closing of European theatres, Jack Warner said the company's production schedule would not be affected. On the contrary, he said, the company will release 10 top quality pictures in the four months and plans more, rather than fewer features than were announced.

No salary or wage cuts will be instituted and no curtailment of personnel will take place, Mr. Warner added, although a general tightening of operations to eliminate unnecessary expense, such as the previously contemplated expansion of the studio laboratory facilities, is expected. No pictures similar in character to "Confessions of a Nazi Spy" will be made, he said. Production of "Underground" has been stopped.

Independent states rights producers also joined the general denials that the war would force them to curtail schedules. Budd Rogers, vice-president and general manager of Alliance Films, said his company would release 12 pictures, one feature a month, as originally planned.

W. Ray Johnston, president of Monogram, said his company would institute no reductions in salaries or personnel. He is studying plans to increase budgets on major pictures which, it is believed, can be sold in territories and theatres not formerly available to Monogram.

A warning to exhibitors to keep foreign war propaganda off the screen features a bulletin issued by the Independent Theatre Owners of New York.

POMMER WONDERS IF HE'S STRANDED

Erich Pommer, who arrived in this country from London for a brief visit shortly before the outbreak of war in Europe, wonders whether he isn't more or less permanently stranded in the United States.

Mr. Pommer, a German citizen, is traveling with a German passport. He is uncertain whether the United States will permit him to leave the country and, if so, whether England will admit him.

Mr. Pommer believes it will be several weeks before his status is clarified. He had planned to begin production in England of a new picture starring Charles Laughton late next month.

Code Interception Laid to WMCA

While radio broadcasters were taking stock of their war coverage to date, and three networks had agreed to curtail and temper their war news, the Knickerbocker Broadcasting Company, Inc., operators of New York's station WMCA, were asked by the Federal Communications Commission to show cause Friday why they should not lose their license for intercepting, and then decoding and sending out as news, code messages between the German and British governments, and their respective military and naval forces, a practice expressly prohibited by agreement between the United States and those countries.

Agreement on Coverage

Neville Miller, president of the National Association of Broadcasters, which meets in annual convention at Chicago this Friday, on Monday night announced that an agreement on war coverage had been tentatively reached between the three major networks, the Mutual, the National Broadcasting Company, and the Columbia Broadcasting System.

Among the agreements' provisions were:

1. That horror, suspense, or undue excitement be avoided.
2. That the broadcasters will try to "be temperate, responsible, and mature in selecting the manner in which they make the facts of war and its attendant circumstances known to the public."
3. That radio audiences be clearly informed so, if the news is censored.
4. That broadcasts from Europe be by Americans, as far as possible.
5. That news broadcasts be under the control of the broadcasters, whether or not sponsored.

Mr. Miller said the agreement was reached last Thursday, but was not made public until James Fly, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, had been informed.

He said that its principles would be discussed by the convention, although the three networks were primarily those affected.

Radio Service Commended

Mr. Fly this week praised the radio's coverage of the war as a "public service."

Last week, before the agrement among the three networks, the Broadcasters' Association cautioned its 500 members to handle war news carefully. It suggested that the "public controversy" plank in the new code of fair practice, a code not yet in effect, be followed "as a safe guidepost."

All the networks noticeably curtailed their war news about one week after the start of hostilities. The clamping down of censorship, the expense, and the complaints from sponsors whose programs were eliminated or broken into for war bulletins and broadcasts from Europe or Washington, were the reasons. There was also the fear of censorship.

No Censorship "At Present"

Stephen Early, secretary to the President, said there was no danger of censorship "at present," but this qualification was considered enough of a warning. And, also, Mr. Early's remarks that radio was a "rookie" in handling war news, and that it must learn to behave "as a good child" were ominous.

The NBC this week set up a rigid war news schedule, for the Blue and Red networks. This provides for six European pickups each weekday, and five such on Sunday. There will also be 19 newsperiods on week-days, and 11 on Sundays. There will also be a nightly round-up and analysis by John B. Kennedy, NBC special commentator, and Colonel Frederick B. Palmer, U. S. A., retired.

CBS issued a memorandum to its staff stressing the need for complete editorial impartiality and the necessity for honesty and sincerity in the presentation of war news.

MORE CONCESSIONS INDIVIDUALLY ON CODE LINES SEEN; ANOTHER SUIT; NO LET-UP ON MONOPOLY: ARNOLD

Kuykendall Lists 17 Points on Agenda of MPTOA Board Oct. 23; Commends Warner Move; RKO Arbitration Offer

The motion picture industry's code of fair trade practices, as formulated by a distributors' committee and company attorneys, remained in "status quo" this week, with the thought prevailing in film companies' home offices in New York that out of the code, inoperative since being declared "illegal" by Thurman Arnold of the U. S. Department of Justice, would come, in addition to those already offered by Warner Brothers, a series of concessions along code lines offered the exhibitor by other distributors, acting individually.

William F. Rodgers, Metro-Golwyn-Mayer general sales manager and chairman of the distributors' code committee, said early this week that the code remained "in status quo so far as any knowledge which I have is concerned." Mr. Rodgers conferred last week with Ed Kuykendall, president of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, on the buyer-seller relationship, the code, and the possibility of individual concessions by the distributors. Mr. Kuykendall left over the weekend for Columbus, Miss.

Warner Action Commended

Warner Brothers' action in offering exhibitors an independent trade practice program is praised in the latest MPTOA bulletin, while RKO, through a statement read at the New Jersey Allied meeting last week by H. M. Richey, director of exhibitor relations, said that its new contract "will include an optional arbitration clause which the exhibitor can he sign if he so desires."

Mr. Kuykendall, before leaving New York Saturday said:

"Trade reforms are not going to be thrown into the discard because of Governmental dissapproval of the Code. There are certain of its provisions that easily can be inserted in contracts; and I am convinced that, as an alternative, this will be done generally."

Paramount, according to Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, has been incorporating in its new season contracts many of the concessions proposed in the code, including cancellation privileges ranging from 10 to 20 per cent, depending upon rental averages, and score charge elimination.

The Board's Agenda

Mr. Kuykendall last week released a bulletin containing the points to be taken up by the MPTOA board of directors at White Sulphur Springs, Va., on October 23-24. These points are:

1) Can the industry work out a practical

War Time Trust Policy

by FRANCIS L. BURT

Anti-trust policies of the Department of Justice are being revamped to meet new conditions resulting from the European War, but there will be no let-up in the campaign against monopoly, The National Petroleum Association Annual Convention, in Atlantic City, was told today by Assistant Attorney General Thurman W. Arnold.

Already flooded by protests against profiteering in food and other industries, Mr. Arnold said, the Anti-Trust Division is preparing to ask Congress for a great increase in its appropriation.

While there will be no change in the underlying philosophy of the Department, he told the oil men, cognizance will be taken of the fact that industry faces different problems in time of war, and action will be guided thereby. However, Mr. Arnold added, while the department will view those problems sympathetically, it will continue unabated its drive against monopoly wherever found.

"In the present emergency, positive regulation of some industries may be necessary," he pointed out. "However, we think that a vigorous anti-trust policy in time of war will make active price control less necessary and more limited . . . "

"Therefore, it is now more necessary than ever before to attack bottle necks which restrain trade through artificial price levels. If we are to maintain a balanced economy under the expanding market of a great way, we must not permit the profits of that expanding economy to become the tools for furthering industrial aggression on the part of a few groups."

Mr. Arnold made no reference to motion pictures directly in his speech, but his reference to "bottle necks" and his announcement of continuance of the anti-trust campaign were seen as indicative of a determination to continue the fight against the film industry.

Momand Files Additional Action, Against Majors and Griffith Circuit, Charging Freeze-out of Product

The battle of the independents goes on.

A new suit in equity, not interfering with his long standing suit for $4,500,000 against the majors, was filed last week by A. B. Momand, Oklahoma theatres operator, in Oklahoma City federal district court, against the same defendants.

In Chicago, the trial of the Government contempt suit against Balaban and Katz and the eight majors will be resumed next Monday, after a postponement for one week at the request of the defendants.

Demands Product

The new Momand suit asks that the film companies be made to give his Odeon theatre, at Shawnee, in Oklahoma, second-run pictures at the same prices charged in other locations of similar population; asserts that the majors are forcing him out of the situation by giving pictures only to the Griffith Amusement Company theatres there, and asks for temporary and permanent injunctions against the alleged discrimination.

Defendants are Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation, Universal Film Exchanges, RKO Radio Pictures, Vitagraph, Inc., Loew's, Inc., and the Griffith Amusement Company.

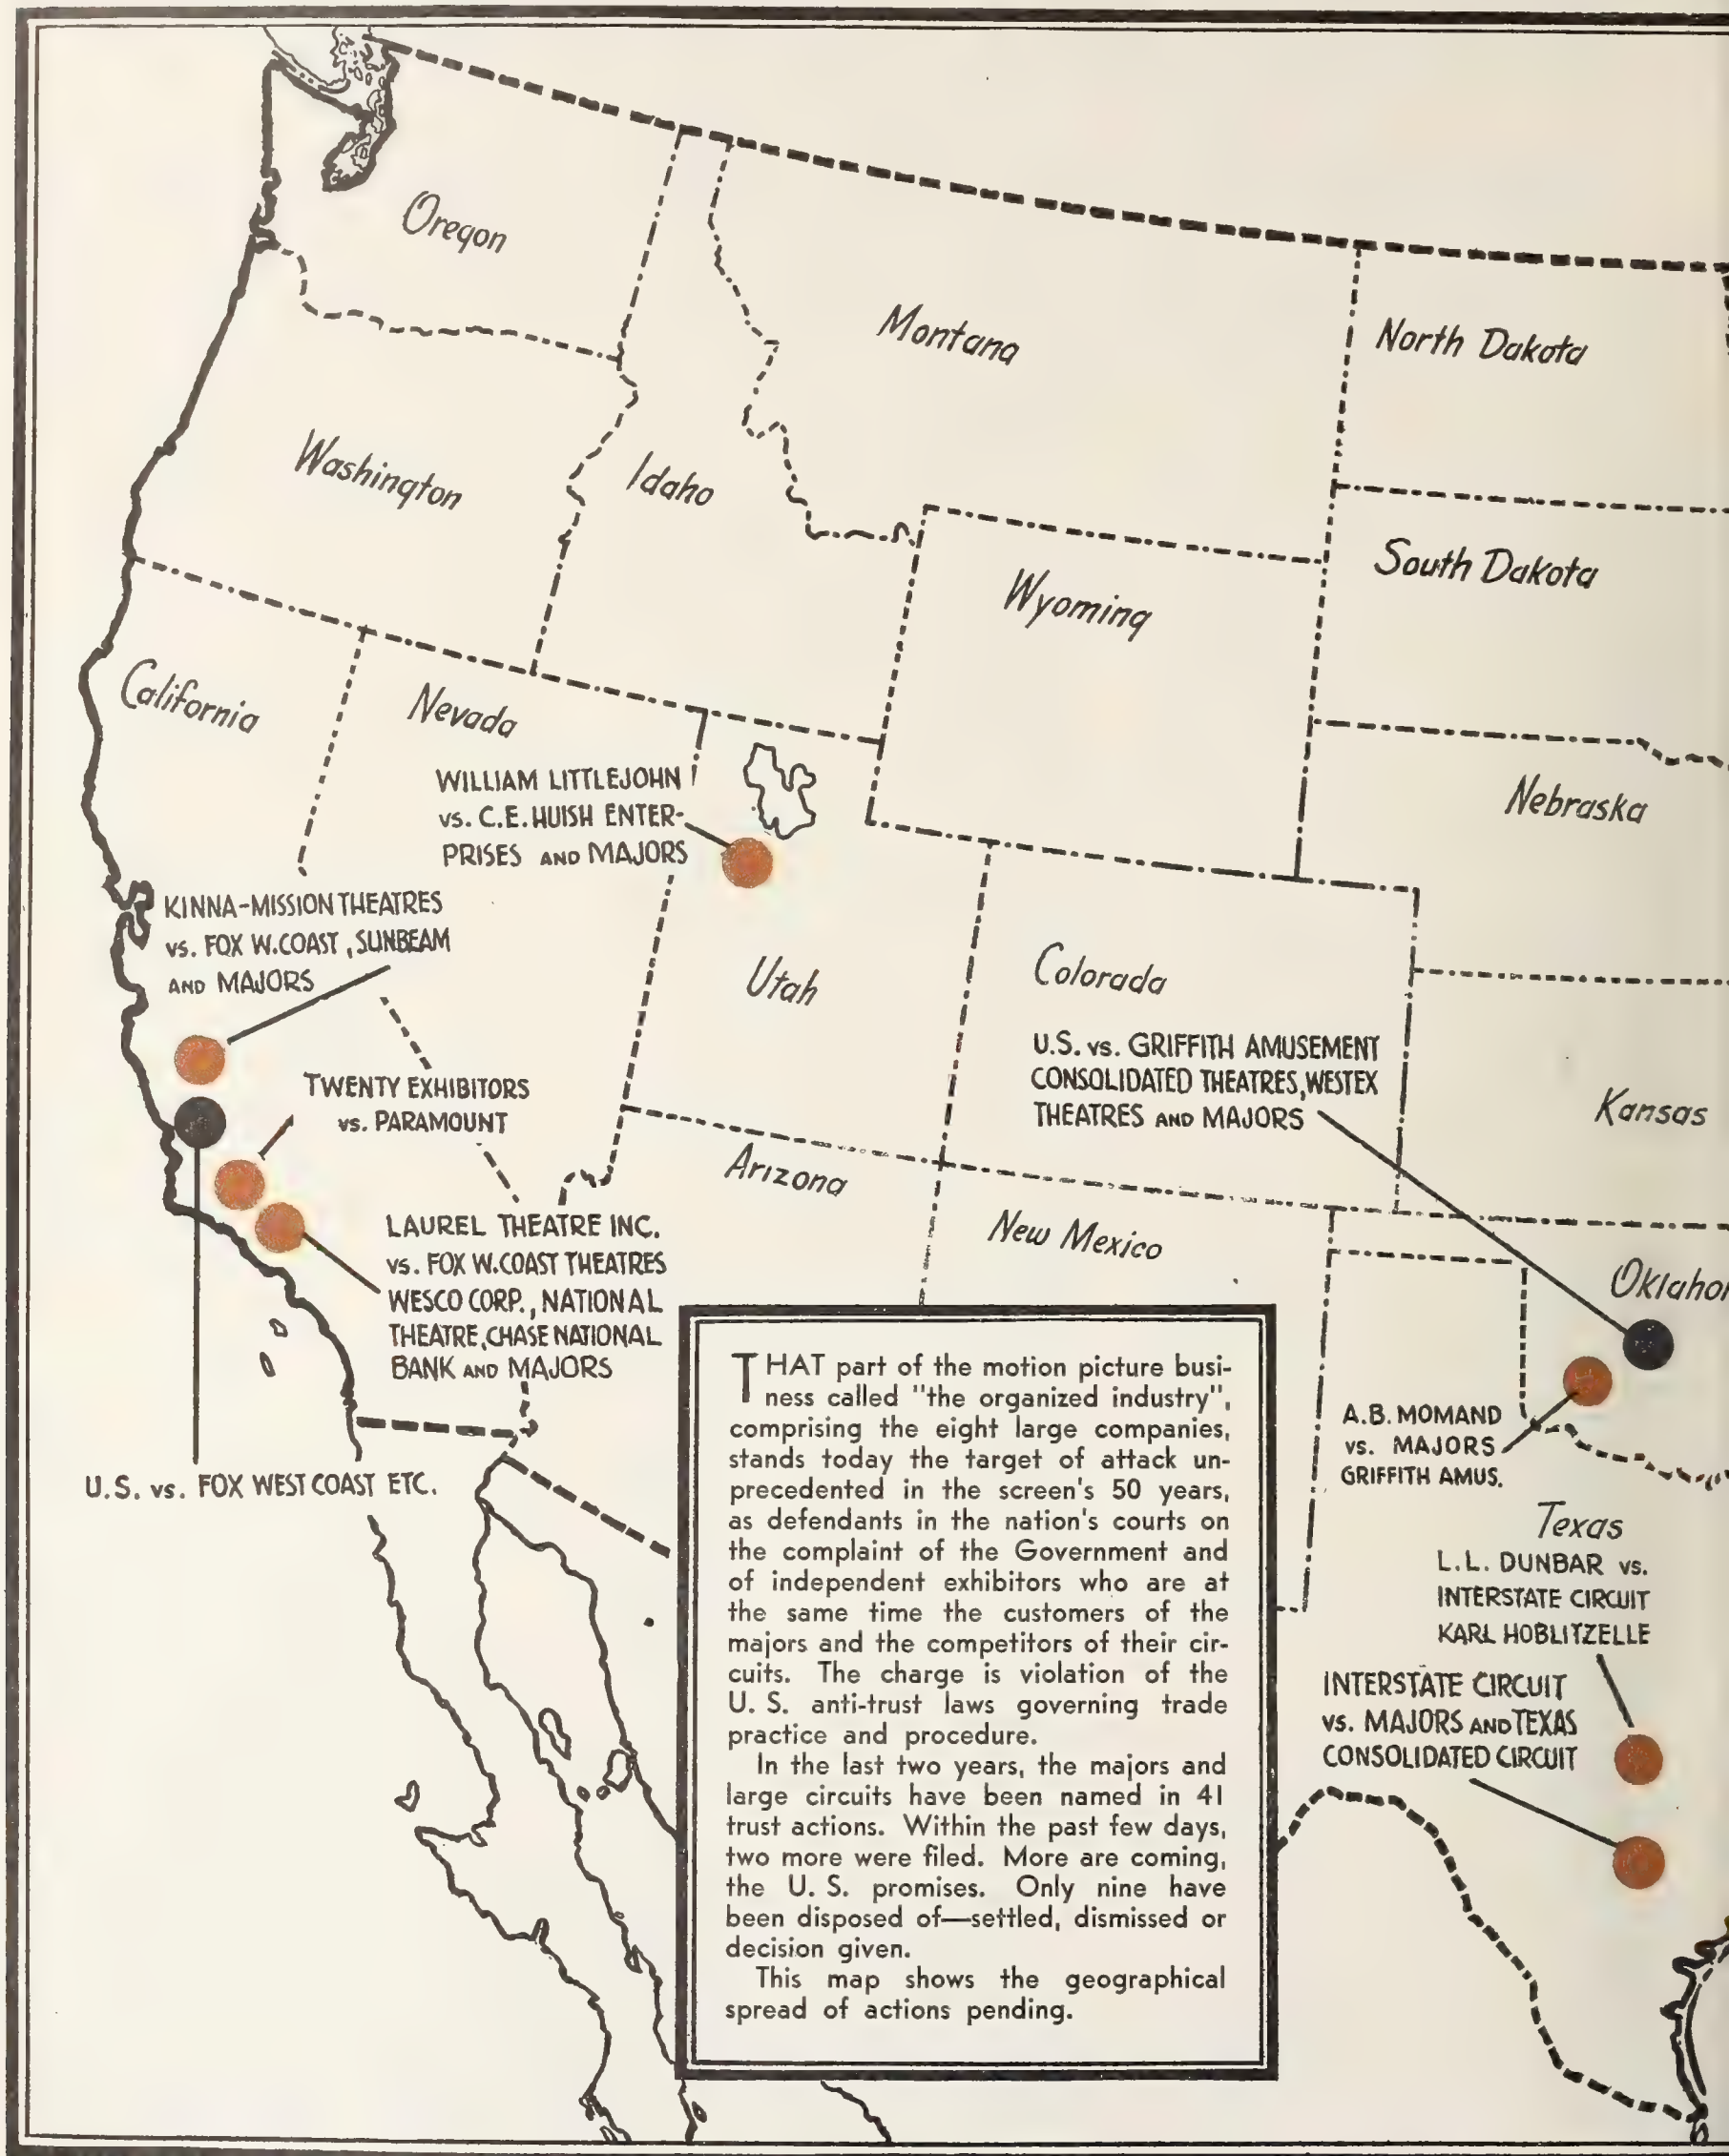
Earlier Suit Still Pending

Hearing on the injunction petition was scheduled for October 2nd before Federal Judge A. P. Murrah.

The suit also provides for the awarding by the court of "relief" as it may deem proper, and asks that costs be recovered for the plaintiff.

Mr. Momand's $4,500,000 suit against these defendants and others is still pending. It is of long duration. It charges conspiracy to put him out of business. Mr. Momand once operated 28 theatres in the state. He now operates only the Odeon, in Shawnee.

In Shawnee there are five theatres. The Griffith circuit owns three.



Government Closes Argument

The Government completed its case in its contempt suit against the majors and the Balaban and Katz circuit last week. It consisted of schedules of the Chicago picture release dates and playing times; also introduced as evidence were the circuit's rental figures and letters between circuit officials and those of the distributors in the Chicago exchanges and in New York.

The defense, unsuccessfully, last week, attempted to have certain testimony stricken

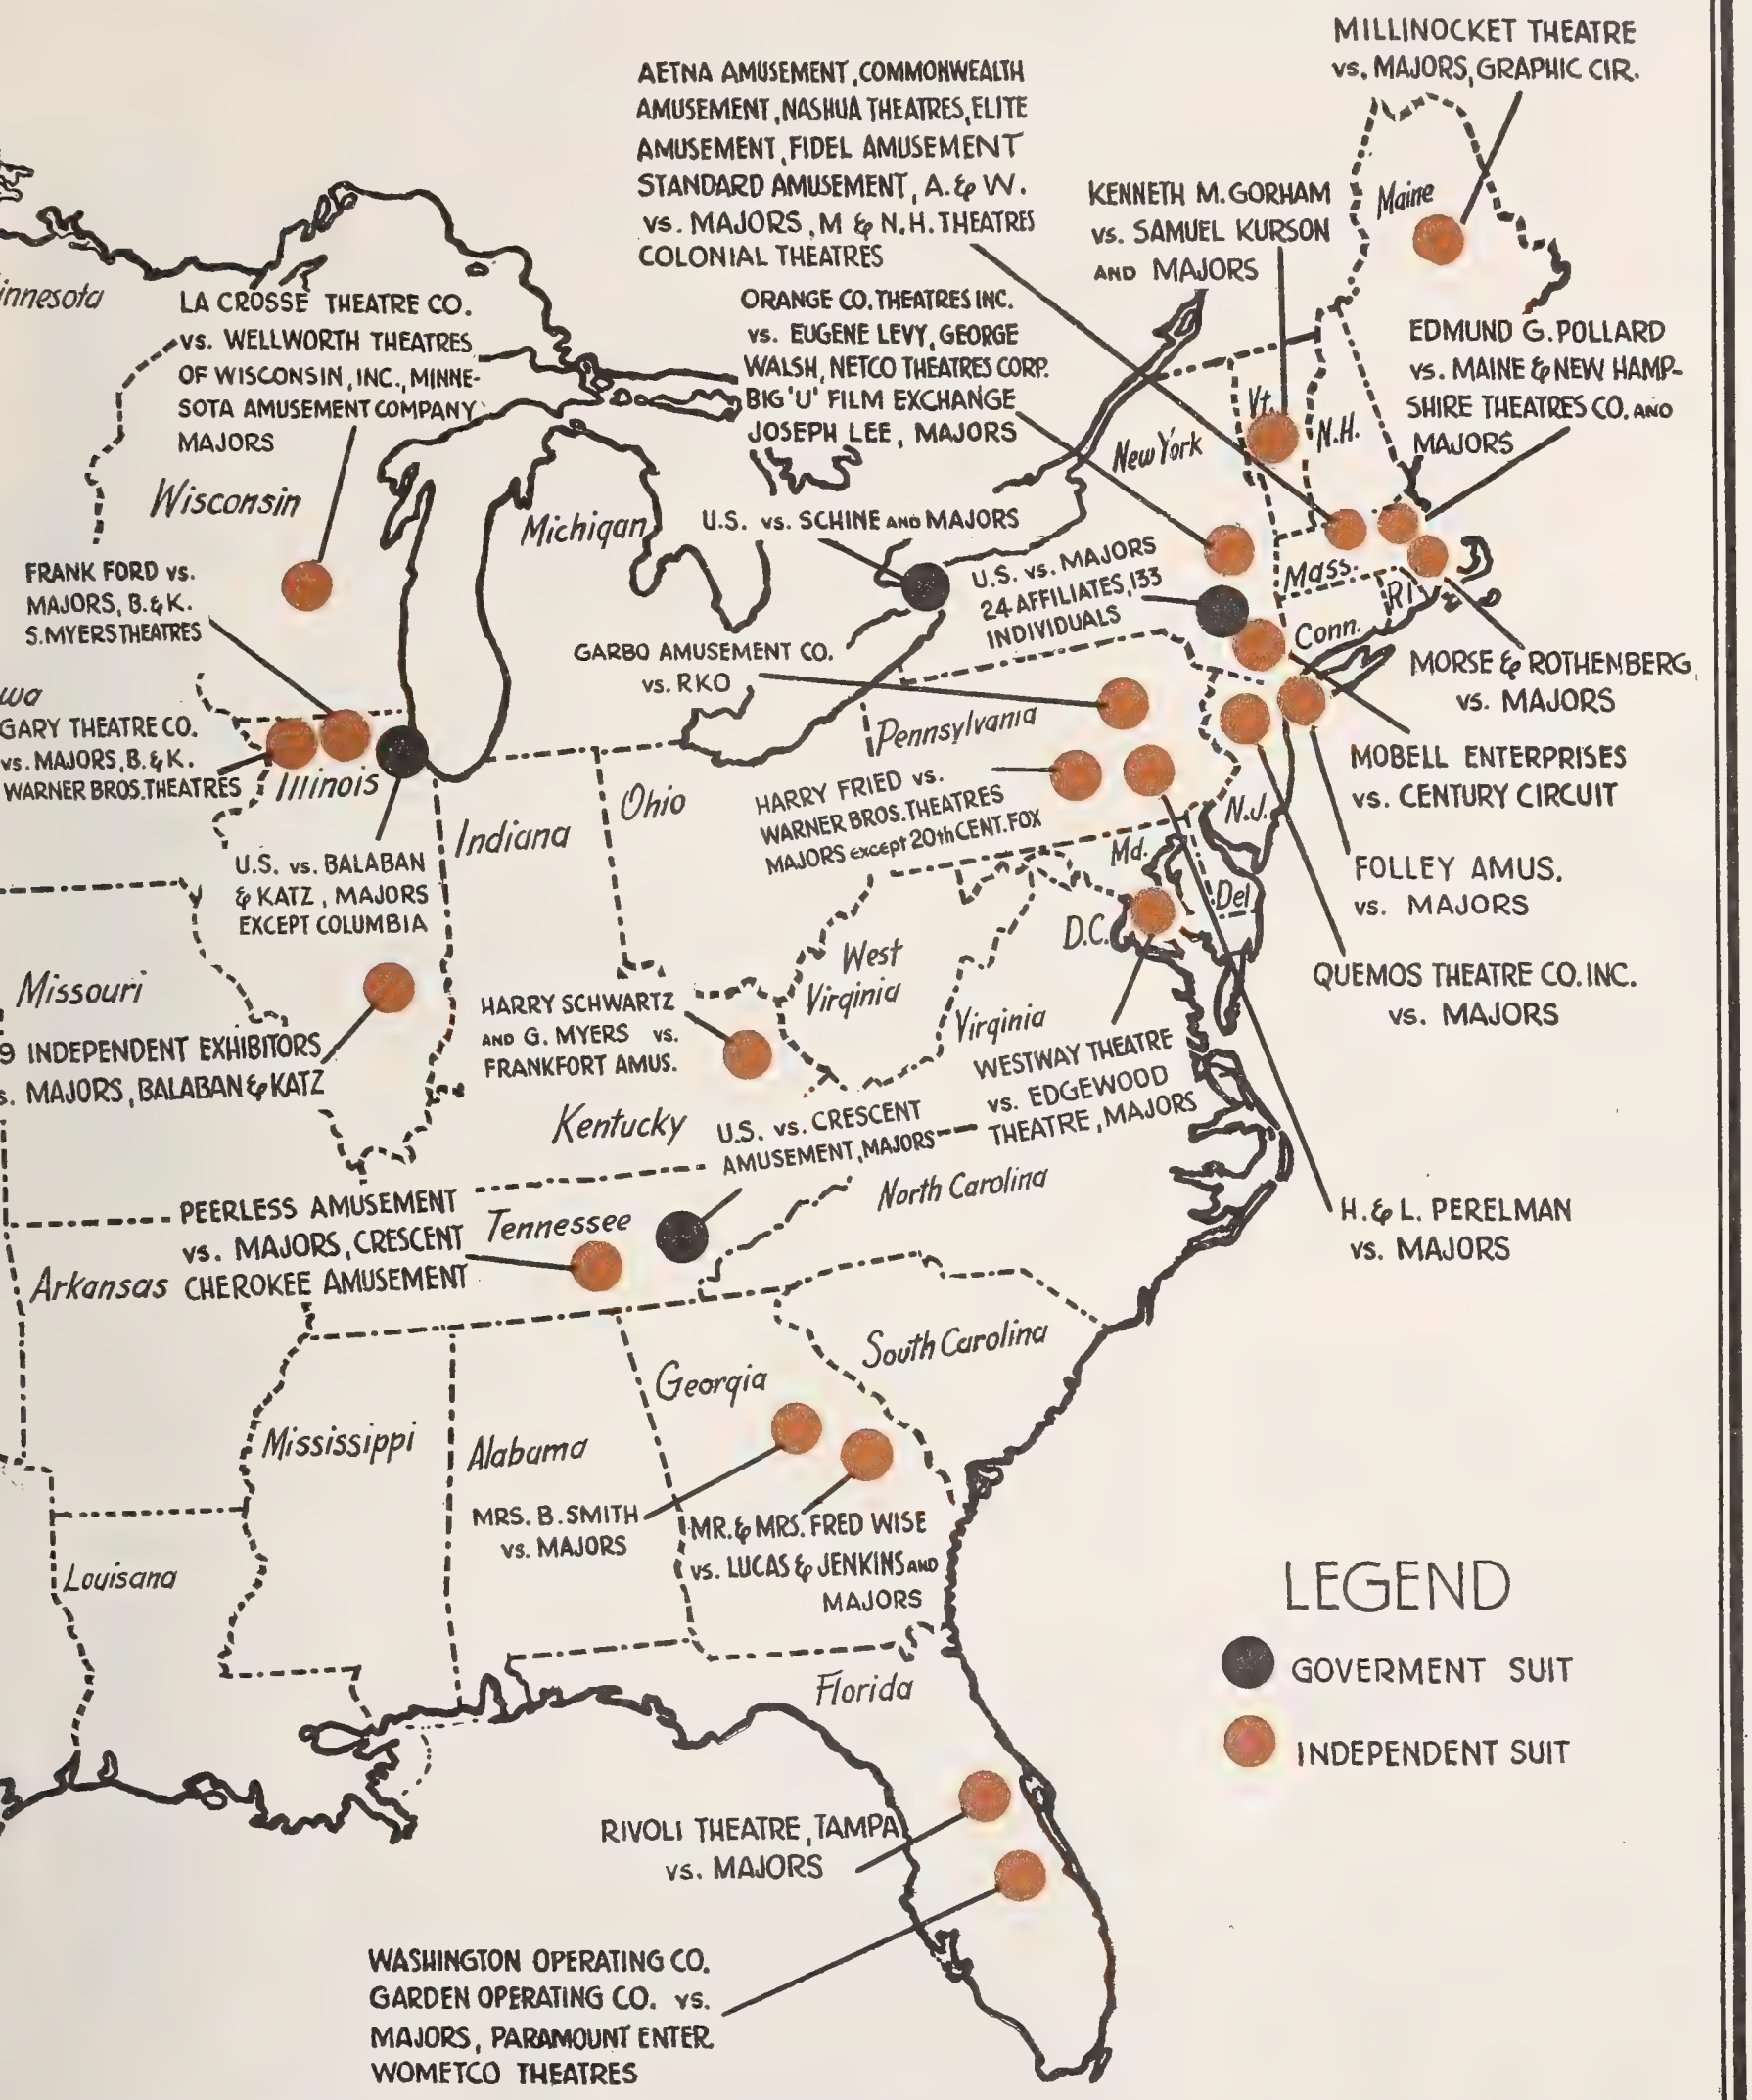
WHERE MAJORS FACE FIR



THAT part of the motion picture business called "the organized industry", comprising the eight large companies, stands today the target of attack unprecedented in the screen's 50 years, as defendants in the nation's courts on the complaint of the Government and of independent exhibitors who are at the same time the customers of the majors and the competitors of their circuits. The charge is violation of the U. S. anti-trust laws governing trade practice and procedure.

In the last two years, the majors and large circuits have been named in 41 trust actions. Within the past few days, two more were filed. More are coming, the U. S. promises. Only nine have been disposed of—settled, dismissed or decision given.

This map shows the geographical spread of actions pending.

trade practice program under present conditions?

2) Will the Dept. of Justice really try to block a practical, effective solution of trade practice problems?
3) Would a Code (any Code) solve the existing situations?
4) Do exhibitors (and distributors) prefer to settle disputes and grievances on unreasonable clearance and overbuying to deprive a competitor of pictures by:
   a) Mediation and voluntary agreement?
   b) Enforceable decisions of an arbitration board?
   c) Lawsuits, intervention of public prosecutors, boycotts and reprisals?

Clearance Standards

5) Is there any fair, impersonal, and practical standard for clearance between theatres?
6) Do exhibitors want a simplified exhibition contract?
7) Should short subjects, newsreels and trailers be a part of every product deal?
8) Would exhibitors prefer to get trailers direct from each company or through the medium of a complete service from a trailer company?
9) Will buying combines solve the buying problem of the individual exhibitor?
10) Do we want the Neely Bill, or any other law to prohibit and prevent any distributor from offering better prices and terms in order to induce the exhibitor to buy more than one picture?

Non-theatrical Problem

11) Should non-theatrical showings of theatrical motion pictures be curbed and confined to non-competitive situations?
12) Should radio competition of motion picture talent and material be curbed?
13) What should be done about double feature competition, give-aways, premiums, lotteries, cut-rate admissions, etc?
14) What can exhibitors do about the music tax extortion by ASCAP? Why doesn't the Government prosecute its four-year-old anti-trust suit against ASCAP?
15) Should exhibitors in this country refuse to show any propaganda pictures favoring either side in view of the present European war and the expressed determination of this country to keep out of it?
16) What can exhibitors do to strengthen their defenses against the coming onslaught of state legislation, singling out the theatres for drastic regulation, special taxation and admission taxes?
17) What organized and unified effort should be directed by exhibitors and exhibitor organizations to combat the the adverse publicity against the industry?

The bulletin also commended Warner Brothers for offering an individual trade practice program.

"This is a great step forward," the bulletin says, "in the face of the present confusion and dismal outlook. Every responsible exhibitor who is sincerely interested in bringing order and fair dealing into our business should give it every encouragement."

"There are indications," it continues, "that some of the other companies, if properly encouraged to do so, may voluntarily modify their sales policies in such a way that many of the trade practice proposals will be accomplished."

Mr. Kuykendall pays tribute to the distributors' efforts to reach some solution.

"The distributors' committee has not been dissolved," he said, "and a practical solution to at least part of our problems may yet be found through earnest effort of those who are working toward these ends."

No MPTOA Convention

There will be no MPTOA convention this year. "Uncertainties within and without the industry" are assigned as the reasons.

The RKO offer of an optional arbitration clause in contracts was defined by H. M. Richey, company director of exhibitor relations, in an address to the New Jersey Allied last week, thus:

"RKO has delayed any announcement of its future course on code provisions because of its conviction that, while a restatement of the trade practice provisions of the code to which we and our theatres have already subscribed might be desirable, we know of no plan where the arbitration provisions of the code can accomplish their purpose, unless it be a uniform plan subscribed to and put into effect by the combined industry. Particularly does this apply to problems of over-buying, clearance, etc. While optional arbitration between the company and its customers is desirable in case of disputes between the two, it does not solve the problem where a third party is involved.

"We feel it is much more desirable to make a class and brand of product that satisfies, and to treat our customers with understanding, and thus make even that type of arbitration unnecessary. There will be included in our new, shortened contract an optional arbitration clause which the exhibitor can sign if he so desires."

from the records, and to have the case dismissed.

It is expected the case will last about two weeks longer. Master in Chancery Edgar Eldredge, before whom the testimony has been presented, is then expected to give his conclusions to Federal Judge Woodward.

Two Other Actions Wait

Two other suits, against substantially the same defendants, await this decision. One is that by 101 independent theatre operators; the other is by Frank Ford, Evanston exhibitor.

It is anticipated that, if the Government, in the present case, proves that the consent decree of 1932 has been violated, and its ends are achieved; that is, the enforcing of that decree; the basis for the other suits having been dissolved, they may be dismissed.

The clearance system in Chicago—allegedly giving Balaban and Katz a product monopoly—is the chief point of criticism.

Resumption of the case on Monday will see approximately 20 attorneys representing the defendants—an indication to observers that the defense will be vigorous.

New season product sales in the Chicago area are static; independent exhibitors, especially, are trying to hold out till the resolution of the case. They anticipate great clearance practice changes, if the Government wins.

It was expected, after the admission by Mr. Eldredge last week that the record shows no case against them, that RKO and Universal might be eliminated from the Government case.

Trial Set for September 26th

Trial of the suit by the independents against the same defendants has been scheduled for September 26th. It will probably be postponed, inasmuch as attorneys for the defendants are now engaged in the contempt suit by the Government, and because the outcome of this suit will bear on the independents' suit.

Defense attorneys in the New York anti-trust action, by the Government against the majors, filed affidavits on Tuesday urging Federal Judge John C. Knox to defer his decision on the Government's application for trial calendar preference.

Willard McKay, attorney for the Schine circuit of upper New York State, which is being prosecuted by the Government, along with the majors, for violation of the anti-trust laws, filed a motion for a bill of particulars in Buffalo Federal Court, on Tuesday.

In Newark, the Quemos Theatre Company, former operator of the Mosque theatre there, prevented last week the dismissal of its $3,500,000 suit against the majors.

The suit, expected to have a fall hearing in federal court, charges restraint of trade.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Production Notes

If production activity means anything, Hollywood is at peace with the world—at least those parts of it wherein the community believes its distribution branch can continue to sell pictures. The threatened strike flopped, a war started, and Labor Day holiday intervened; still Hollywood started 10 pictures and finished 14. That's about par for any first week in September in normal times.

Columbia launched "Renegade Trail," a western, which will feature the Charles Starrett-Iris Meredith team. Monogram began work on "Scouts of the Air," fourth in the "Tailspin Tommy" series, with Dennis Moore added to the feature cast. Republic's new work is "Jeepers Creepers," a comedy which will present Roy Rogers with the Weaver Brothers and Elviry. Universal started "Little Accident" with Baby Sandy, Hugh Herbert, Richard Carlson and Florence Rice as the top performers. Warners gave "Invisible Stripes" the starting signal. It will feature George Raft, William Holden and Humphrey Bogart, with a heroine yet to be named. As we write this, word comes from Universal that work on "Destry Rides Again" is now underway. It will mark the return of Marlene Dietrich to the screen and present James Stewart, Charles Winninger, Mischa Auer and Brian Donlevy.

Two pictures were started at Paramount. Martha Raye, Charles Ruggles, Joseph Allen, Jr., William Frawley and John Hartley will be featured in "Farmer's Daughter." Ellen Drew, Robert Paige and Judith Barrett head the "Strange Money Cast."

"Rebecca" was started by Selznick International. Lawrence Olivier, Joan Fontane, Reginald Denny, George Sanders, Phillip Winters and Gladys Cooper are the principals. 20th Century-Fox, after a day or two of delay, put "Blue Bird" before the cameras. Shirley Temple is the star. Spring Byington, Eddie Collins, Sybil Jason, Nancy Kelly, Gale Sondergaard and many others also will be seen in it.

Three studios divided nine of the 14 completed pictures. The Warner trio includes "Roaring Twenties," "We Are Not Alone" and "State Cop." Paramount checked "Diamonds Are Dangerous" off the active list and the two color productions, "Dr. Cyclops" and "Untamed." "Rio," "The Man from Montreal" and "Galloping Kid" are Universal's three.

Two pictures were finished at 20th Century-Fox, "High School" and "The Simple Life." Columbia wound up "Beware, Spooks" and MGM completed "Fast and Furious." RKO-Radio concluded "Allegheny Frontier."

Candidates for Fame

Every year, as the new season gets under way, producers assemble regiments of new acting talent. The producers know, by experience, that much of their raw material will fail to develop. Yet all the seedlings are candidates for fame; they will be the crop from which it is hoped a few stars will be harvested. This year, in contrast to the last few years, there are only one or two foreign importations among the hopefuls; the majority are of domestic stock. Some are utter novices. Some are recruited from the stage. Quite a few already have tested their wings in pictures.

Columbia's hunt for an unknown to play the lead in "Golden Boy" struck a promising lode. Not only was William Holden uncovered, but Richard Fiske and Robert Sterling were staked out. Warner Brothers recognized Holden's promise by borrowing him for "Invisible Stripes." The company has placed under contract Linda Winters, whom Charlie Chaplin discovered, and now feels that Iris Meredith, after completing her rudimentary training with Charles Starrett in westerns, is ready for bigger things. The company also is training Stanley Brown and Lorna Grey.

From the looks of things at the moment, MGM, which a year ago specialized in foreign imports, is going to place its main dependence on already established names. Yet executives there are going to make sure that Rand Brooks, Alice Eyland, Jo Ann Sayres, Mary Beth Hughes, Ann Morris and June Pressier are properly fittted to fill in if any replacements are necessary.

Paramount looks optimistically upon its "Golden Circle" membership. Ellen Drew, Susan Hayward and Judith Barrett already have risen above the common level. Joseph Allen, Jr., Muriel Angelus, Tom Coley, Virginia Dale, Betty Field, William Henry, Evelyn Keyes, Janice Logan, Joyce Matthews, Betty Moran and Robert Preston are being kept active. Supplementing the elite group, Paramount of course has Charles R. Rogers' discovery, Linda Ware. It is anticipated that Susannah Foster, another 14-year-old girl who has been kept under wraps, will be acclaimed when she is seen and heard in "Victor Herbert." Then it has Peter Hayes, now in "What a Life," Richard Denning, Albert Dekker recruited from the stage for "Dr. Cyclops," John Hartley. The company believes it has a real sensation in 4-year-old Carolyn Lee, whom audiences went for in a big way at the "Honeymoon in Bali" previews.

RKO-Radio is setting great store by the winners of Jesse Lasky's first two "Gateway to Hollywood" talent quests, John Archer, Alice Eden, Robert Stanton and Virginia Vale. It is confident that Linda Hayes, who was in "Conspiracy," Katherine Adams, a "My Fifth Avenue Girl" player, Beth Dynes and Diane Hunter, to be featured in "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," will prove to be something more than experiments.

The prize discovery at 20th Century-Fox unquestionably is Linda Darnell, who was outstanding in "Hotel for Women." She, and Brenda Joyce, now featured in "The Rains Came," the much publicized Mary Healy and Dorris Bowdon, who had a part in "The Young Mr. Lincoln," but has a bigger one in "Drums Along the Mohawk," will be the ones upon whom the studio will concentrate.

Universal presented a promising pair, Billy Lenhart and Kenneth Brown, in "The Underpup," from which the nugget Gloria Jean was mined. Similar success is anticipated for Robert Stack and Lewis Howard, who will be seen in "First Love." Robert Cummings drew as much attention as Ann Sothern in the past year and he, with John Sutton, who has attracted attention by his work in the presently filming "Tower of London," will be given plenty to do in the coming season.

Eight aspirants have aroused more than ordinary enthusiasm at Warners. Executives feel that in John Payne, Eddie Albert, Jane Bryan, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Lya Lys, Dennis Morgan, Margot Stevenson and Maris Wrixon they have good stock with which to fortify the star roster.

Walter Wanger discovered 19-year-old Ruth Terry singing on the New York stage, signed her to a contract, gave her a feature role in "Send Another Coffin," and is including her in his future production plans. Likewise he took on Broderick Crawford, who, although he had been around Hollywood for some time, had gone almost unnoticed until "The Real Glory."

From the ranks of community theatre players Hal Roach rounded up John Hubbard and Victor Mature. Both will be seen in "The Housekeeper's Daughter," and both have become fixtures on the Roach contract list.

Almost alone, in that she is an importation, Swedish Ingrid Bergman, brought over by David O. Selznick for a lead role in "Intermezzo—a Love Story," convinced the producer that she should be signed to a permanent contract. Selznick's other new probable star is Phillip Winter, a stage graduate who will be seen in "Rebecca."

Following the preview of "Everything's on Ice," Sol Lesser announced that the 6-year-old skating marvel, Irene Dare, would be starred in a group of pictures. Meanwhile, Producers Pictures Corporation, headed by Ben Judell, will make a series of westerns, "Sage Brush Family Trails West," in which 13-year-old cowboy champion Bobby Clarke will be starred.

TROOPS PREVIEW ARMS FOR GOLDWYN

Soldiers equipped with the latest fighting equipment took over a sector of near-Hollywood Monday night. Advancing east from Beverly Hills, a full company of anti-aircraft coast artillerymen from Fort McArthur captured Warners' Beverly theatre to the wild cheering of hordes of civilians who were ogling glamorous motion picture stars entering the house to see the press premiere of "The Real Glory".

Attendance of the soldiers at the initial showing of the Goldwyn picture was the result of a suggestion made by officers and soldiers at the fort, some of whom saw service against the Moro nation—the theme of the picture.

CANADIANS OFFER USE OF SCREENS

last Thursday, before permits to reopen were granted, attention had been called to an increase in the amount of drinking in London, as a consequence of the lack of more "innocent amusements." The editorial recalled David Lloyd George's comment, in the war of 1914, to the effect that "drink is doing more damage in the war than all the German submarines put together." The editorial added that "we will fight none the worse for an occasional glimpse of Ginger Rogers, and even the voice of Deanna Durbin will not distract us from our duties." "Madrid," the "Standard" also said, "watched Charlie Chaplin while Franco was beating at the gates of the city, so why not here?"

A joint deputation of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association and the Kinematograph Renters Society, with each represented by its president, had called on the British Home Office last week to protest the closing of theatres.

Quota Suspension Talk

The reported intention of the Government to suspend the quota called forth protests from British producers and labor representatives, and a provision was considered likely to be made to safeguard some measure of production and employment, even though the present legislation will probably be virtually suspended.

Last Saturday, producers and labor representatives met with the Board of Trade, and further consultations were scheduled for this week. It was virtually promised that conditions would not be allowed to duplicate those during the last war, when the U. S. "captured" the British film market with its product.

The first of the new British propaganda films is now believed to be in work at the Denham studios, starring Merle Oberon and Ralph Richardson.

In addition to the Denham studios, other outlying studios such as Welwyn, Shepperton, and Ealing are continuing to operate with, of course, greatly reduced staffs due to the calling of many to the colors.

However, in France, production is virtually at a standstill, and the demand for films is curtailed due to the early closing of theatres.

Indications that operations of distributors in France were not far below normal came this week in a telephone message from Ben Miggins, Twentieth Century-Fox European manager, to Irving Maas, foreign service manager, in which Mr. Miggins reported that the company was maintaining near normal service in 60 per cent of the Paris area. Gaps in the office personnel are being filled by women.

In Mexico it was reported that the strengthening of the peso since the outbreak of the war had been of considerable benefit to American distributors there.

Western Canada

To date no effect other than the taxes has been felt of Canada's declaration of war with Germany so far as motion pictures are concerned on Canada's Pacific coast.

Last weekend found all theatres enjoying good business with grosses, in most cases, at least equal to those of the same period last year.

On the Pacific Coast no general instructions have been issued for blackouts or other emergency measures in event of air or other raids, suggesting that this eventuality is not considered of any consequence.

Uncertainty in Business

There is a general feeling of uncertainty in all lines of business as to the probable effects of Canada's participation, it is reported. Suggestion is made in some quarters that the country's part will be more in the supply of materials and food, than in men. If such is the case, industry may hum in the production of war supplies, more than offsetting the curtailment of ordinary overseas export trade, on which Canada depends so largely. British Columbia, Canada's most western province, has been a large supplier of basic products, from the mines, field and forest.

The general uncertainty of business may be expected to restrict somewhat the production of commercial films, whose volume has been steadily mounting, particularly in the 16 mm. field, during recent years.

No plans have yet been made public for the production of propaganda films, though facilities are available in Canada for such purpose. Associated Screen News of Montreal has a Dominion-wide organization, and could have crews on the job in any section of the country.

Newsreel crews are now known to be shooting stories of defense activities. Similar negative could be made available to the Canadian government for both 35 mm. and 16 mm. prints. If sizeable training camps are established on the scale of 1914-18 war time, there will probably be a large demand for 16 mm. entertainment film for camp showing.

So far, theatre distribution and exhibition on the Pacific coast is watching the trend of events, while retaining its optimism for "business as usual," it is said.

Theatres and Screens Offered

The Anti-Protection League of Canada, sponsored by the Independent Theatres Association, has offered the use of its members' theatres and screens to the Government, and independent exhibitors are prepared to screen any film for patriotic purposes, such as the furtherance of war loans or for recruiting purposes.

Famous Players Canadian Corporation has not altered its slogan for the Fall selling campaign. The slogan, "Fall Time is Movie Time," is being launched in more than 200 houses.

The Dominion Government has appointed a Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and indications are that the sales tax may be raised from eight to 10 per cent. This would affect imports of films, advertising accessories and theatre equipment.

The immediate installation of emergency lighting systems in all Ontario theatres has been ordered by O. J. Silverthorpe, chairman of the Board of Motion Picture Censors and director of the theatre branch. Mr. Silverthorne said that a panic might easily result, due to present unsettled conditions, if the ordinary lighting system failed. Theatres have until September 30th to comply with the order; with the emergency equipment to be approved by Government inspectors.

Amusement Tax Doubted

The Ontario legislature will meet September 19th to vote upon war measures, but the Honorable Harry Nixon, provincial secretary, has said that resumption of the amusement tax is not contemplated for the present. During the last war, Ontario had adopted a ticket tax measure.

Such anti-Nazi films as "Professor Mamlock," "The Oppenheim Family" and "Alexander Nevsky" have been withdrawn from circulation in Moscow in order to avoid friction with the Germans, it is reported.

Finesse

Observers of the increasingly complicated politics of the motion picture in its international arena were this week regarding with a certain sardonic interest a "situation" growing out of the recent Venice Film Festival, Italy's annual competition for the art of the screen.

It seems that motion picture relations between America and Italy being what they were, and are, the American producers leaned a willing ear to "suggestions" from British and French that it would be just as well not to submit entries in the Venice competition.

So it came that American pictures did not go to Venice. But,—who would have guessed it—six French and four British pictures were submitted.

Thereby it came that the American-Italian film situation was left in cold status quo, and colder, and with America getting none of the attentions for its wares which might make Italy, even if not getting them, want them the more. Meanwhile, France and Britain had no competition from pre-eminent Hollywood. The technique is sometimes called "continental".

Reissues Are Set On War Topics

That the second "World War" will leave its mark on the American motion picture theatre was indicated this week as major and independent distributors put plans into work to revive or reissue films which by virtue of their war themes become highly topical.

In addition to the 43 films with war or related subjects now available or in production, as reported in last week's MOTION PICTURE HERALD, Universal, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Grand National, Jewel Productions and Astor Pictures have definite plans for reissues, remakes or revivals.

Universal, next week, will release "All Quiet on the Western Front," so re-edited that the company will bill it as the "uncensored version" of the film. In a trial run which started last Friday at the St. Louis theatre, St. Louis, the picture had grossed three times the normal week's take three days after opening, according to a Universal announcement. The same company's "The Road Back" will be similarly brought up to date and then released.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer plans a new version of "Journey's End," while Astor Pictures is now shipping out new prints on three Howard Hughes' reissues, "Cock of the Air," "Sky Devils" and "Hell's Angels."

Grand National will again set for release its "23½ Hours Leave."

RKO reports that the March of Time two-reel subject, "Inside the Maginot Line," is being re-booked; while Jewel Productions is reissuing its "Forgotten Men" under the title of "It Can Happen Again."

Monogram will release J. J. Milstein's "Fight for Peace," which has a commentary by Hendrik Willem Van Loon, a new picture.

Principal Films is releasing "The Dead March," produced in 1937.

New York Court Views "Ecstasy"

The appellate division of the New York supreme court in Albany on Monday reserved decision on the appeal of Eureka Productions, Inc., for a discontinuance of the ban on the exhibition of "Ecstasy" in New York State, in the film's revised version. It was the second time the appellate division had viewed the picture. At the court showing in September, 1937, the banning of the film by Irwin Esmond, censor, and Frank P. Graves, commissioner of education, was upheld.

Henry Pearlman, attorney for Eureka, told the court that the picture had been materially revised since its rejection by the court two years ago, with the objectionable scenes, in which Hedy LaMarr (Keisler) swims in the nude, as well as cabin and hose scenes, had all been toned down or eliminated. Mr. Pearlman said that the state motion picture division was "reading" meaning into the film, which was not intended or reasonable.

Charles A. Brind, Jr., appearing for the Board of Regents, said the new version did not remove the objections of the censors. He quoted the court decision in which Pennsylvania judicial bodies recently upheld the ban on "Ecstasy," placed by the Pennsylvania Board of Censors.

Mr. Pearlman's brief stated that the film had been shown in Boston "in the original, without objection," Massachusetts, Washington, D. C., New Jersey, California, Connecticut, Missouri, Florida, Nevada and many other states and denied that the film in its present form was "obscene."

Loew Office Manager Honored

Anna D. Ellmer, office manager of the Loew's New York advertising and publicity departments, and a veteran of 25 years' Loew service, was guest at a testimonial luncheon Tuesday, in the Hotel Edison, New York, by her co-workers. It was Miss Ellmer's 25th anniversary with the company. She received a desk set. Among the 40 present were Oscar Doob, Ernest Emerling, Eddie Dowden, Art Schmidt, Gene Murphy, and Pete McCarthy.

Sullivan Trial Dismissal Denied

New York Supreme Court Justice Felix Benvenga has ordered the libel suit by Walter Wanger and Walter Wanger Productions for $1,000,000 against Ed Sullivan and the News Syndicate Company, Inc., to be brought to trial. On this Tuesday he denied the defendants' motion to dismiss the case.

A San Francisco federal judge, A. F. St. Sure, has uphold, in a recent ruling, the right of an individual to sue broadcasting companies and sponsors for invasion of privacy.

"NO ART RIVALRY AMONG NATIONS"

The hope that scholarship and art might be preserved and that they might take their place as a significant aspect of international amity was stressed Monday at the opening meeting of the first international congress of the American Musicological Society in New York. The war caused the delegates from France and Germany to be absent but otherwise the congress had a full complement of delegates and guests.

In a letter to the congress Romain Rolland, French novelist and musician, wrote: "In the field of art there is not —there should not be—any rivalry among nations. The only combat worthy of us is that which is waged, in every country and at every hour, between culture and ignorance, between light and chaos. Let us save all the light that can be saved! There is none more refulgent than music. It is the sun of the inner universe."

Oregon Theatre Plans For Fall Announced

Oregon theatre men are planning to announce, in the near future, construction plans for the last quarter of 1939. Among the changes will be the operation of the Orpheum Theatre of Portland by the Sterling Theatres, Inc.

Built by Pantages, the theatre was operated by RKO and later, by Hamrick-Evergreen. Under the Sterling corporation, the house will offer vaudeville and screen attractions.

Condemn "Leading Citizen"

Two labor organization actions against Paramount's "Our Leading Citizen" has been taken in New Haven and in New York. The executive board of the New Haven Central Labor Council passed a resolution condemning the film as unfair to labor. The executive board of Local 16, United Office and Professional Workers of America also passed a resolution condemning the film.

Lenwal Productions, Inc., have started shooting on a feature in Jamaica, British West Indies, tentatively titled "Daughters of the Isle of Jamaica." Arthur Leonard is the producer of the film, which is based on a story by George Twillinger. George O. Walbridge, II, is president and treasurer of the company.

Fleischer Adding Artists

More than 50 young artists will be added to the Fleischer studio staff as soon as they have completed preliminary training at a Miami art school, bringing to more than 600 the number of persons employed in production of Paramount's "Gulliver's Travels," color cartoon version of the Jonathan Swift classic.

French Cinema Center, Inc., will distribute "Aux Jardins de Murcie" and "L'Or dans la Montagne" in the United States.

Defer Hearings On Atlas Plan

The European war having unsettled market conditions, the hearings on the Atlas Corporation's plans to underwrite $1,500,000 of new RKO common stock, have been suspended for "two weeks or a month," George W. Alger, special master, announced in New York last Friday.

The Atlas offer was to have been accepted by the court and the company on August 29th, and was to have expired on that date; however, it was not withdrawn; and it was said by lawyers this week that Atlas was "marking time" to gauge the effects of the war on the motion picture industry and RKO.

Atlas Corporation officials refused to say whether the expiration was final.

Paramount and Lucas-Jenkins Continue Negotiations

Negotiations for a renewal of the deal by which Lucas and Jenkins operate 38 theatres in Georgia and Alabama for Paramount which were discontinued last weekend will be resumed either in New York or in Atlanta, possibly next week.

Arthur Lucas, head of the operating com pany, has returned to Atlanta from New York. William Jenkins is remaining in New York for a few more days. The operating agreement has been continued in force since its expiration last July, pending the outcome of the renewal negotiations.

Revive Vaudeville Policy

Harry Kalmine, general manager of the 68 Warner theatres in the Tri-State area, said this week that the Stanley, Pittsburgh, soon will return to a vaudeville and picture policy.

Schlom Quits Republic

Herman Schlom, associate producer at Republic for the last three years, has asked for and received his release from contract and will leave the lot. Inability to get together on satisfactory terms was given as the reason for Mr. Schlom's departure.

Seek Tax Reductions

Six motion picture distributors in New Orleans have asked the Orleans parish board of liquidators to reduce their property assessments for 1939 state tax purposes. Each are assessed at $50,000 but the distributors point out that these assessments are based on the cost of producing a picture in Hollywood and "not on the worth of the film of the agencies themselves."

Bell Moves to Hollywood

Russell Bell, head of the Monogram art department, has transferred his offices to the studio in Hollywood. Mr. Bell was tendered a luncheon last week, before he left for a motor trip to Hollywood, by executives of the company.

Orson Welles' first picture assignment for RKO, on which he will serve as actor, writer, director and producer, will be "Heart of Darkness," story by Joseph Conrad.

Rulers of the Sea

(Paramount)

Maritime Melodrama

Dependable producer-director Frank Lloyd here supplies showmen with a fit companion picture to his two great sea successes: "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "The Sea Hawk," films distinguished alike in trade history as production masterpieces and box office triumphs.

Exhibitors basing their exploitation campaigns on promiseful reference to these past achievements may proceed in complete confidence that the Lloyd hand has wrought as solidly and surely this time as before.

Mr. Lloyd's present offering may be counted upon, additionally, to satisfy the special interest in maritime affairs prevalent just now as a result of the news about what's happening to the merchant marine on the high seas. "Rulers of the Sea," a screen play and story of manifest authenticity by Talbot Jennings, Frank Cavett and Richard Collins, deals with the rivalry between sailing vessels and steamships a century ago, culminating in the first steam crossing of the Atlantic in 1838. It is timely material impressively presented, honest entertainment expertly set forth.

In common with most big pictures based on historical record, this film stresses its factual aspects more powerfully than the personal story told. Uncommon in every way, however, is the powerful performance of Britain's Will Fyffe as the Scottish engineer who lives for his beloved engine and dies by it. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is compelling as the sailing man who aids the inventor; Margaret Lockwood is charming as the daughter the young man marries and George Bancroft makes the hard-bitten sea captain a powerful character. So do Montagu Love, David Torrence and others add to the sum total of a finely balanced acting and directing job. But it is the Fyffe portrayal that stands out as the picture passes and remains in memory afterward.

Previewed at the Carthay Circle theatre, Hollywood, where a distinguished audience representing the profession and the press expressed appreciation in unmistakable terms.—WILLIAM R. WEAVER.

The Real Glory

(UA-Goldwyn)

Historical Adventure

"The Real Glory" is a romantically treated documentary historical story that culminates in many minutes of actionful excitement. It is another demonstration of Samuel Goldwyn's embarkation on a new adventure, unique even for him, and never permitting those fetters which chain rivals to routine to shackle him.

There's love interest, which at times attains the plane of heroic devotion, in the story. Still love is a secondary quality. The comedy in the theme is limited and the one who supplies it meets a tragic end. Pulse tingling thrills, suggested in dialogue and situations, but very real in actuality, provide the picture's prime entertainment quality.

The historical incidents that inspired the story never were well known. If they were, they have been generally forgotten. Fundamentally, "The Real Glory" details how the peaceful majority of the Philippine Island natives, terrorized by superstition and the marrow-melting fear of savage Moros, attained a national unity.

Especially, from a commercial viewpoint, the ageous, one indecisive, officers of the American army, the daughter of one, and the natives, who became the Philippine constabulary, turning to things which have a more meaningful significance.

Especially, from a commercial viewpoint the picture offers dependable Gary Cooper, Andrea Leeds, who has attained a measure of popularity since "Stage Door," David Niven, now very much a subject of popular attention because of recent picture accomplishments and the fact that he may have to go to real war any day, Broderick Crawford and Vladimar Sokoloff, as draw names.

While the author, Charles Clifford, on whose novel the story was based, has no screen story prominence, the screen playwrights Jo Sterling and Robert Presnell have accounted for many stirring photoplays. Director Henry Hathaway's name means something because he directed "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," "Souls at Sea," "Trail of the Lonesome Pine" and other profitable pictures.

While fear of "Alipang's" Moros sickens the timid natives, the quick killings of the two commanding officers panic their successor, "Captain Hartley," yet stiffen the determination of the medical officer, "Canavan" (Gary Cooper), and Lieutenants "McCool" and "Larsen," to wipe out the enemy of civilization.

Previewed at the Beverly theatre, Beverly Hills, Cal., the audience, in which invited guests and a detachment of regular U. S. Army soldiers predominated, sat quietly through the proceedings until the slambang action of the last two reels stirred them up. They applauded wildly when the lights went on.—GUS MCCARTHY.

The Day the Bookies Wept

(RKO Radio)

Comedy

This farcical race horse story is sturdy, rough woven comedy. In less nervous days than these "The Day the Bookies Wept" would probably be considered ridiculous. But its audience amusement value rated a high assayal in the estimation of a mixed crowd observing the preview. The whole thing is a case of anything for a laugh and the sillier the anything the better.

Laugh provoking lines and situations tumble over one another as the hilarious story proceeds at a giddy pace. Wisely, writers Bert Granet and Robert Jeske provided screen clowns Joe Penner, Richard Lane, Tom Kennedy and Thurston Hall, working with Betty Grable and Bernardene Hayes for feminine embellishment, with type characterizations and dialogue. With Director Leslie Goodwins holding only a light rein on them, they went gaily about the business of providing amusement.

Thirsting for revenge on bookies, taxi drivers headed by "Firpo" and "Brophy" decide to buy a horse and condemn "Ernest" to be its purchaser and trainer. The horse is always a happy last, but when sweetheart "Ina" learns he is a glutton for beer, she provides him with a barrel of it. After he consumes it, he runs better than Man o' War ever did and the bookies weep copiously.

Honeymoon in Bali

(Paramount)

Comedy Romance

It can be accepted as a certainty that between now and its release date Paramount will ignite a lot of red fire and shoot resounding salvos of superlatives to make the public at large "Honeymoon in Bali"-conscious. But, in advance, it seems to the writer that it would be a good idea to get out the thesaurus and look up all the synonyms for smartness. It would be well to do this for, if you believe the word of others or happen to see a pre-release trade showing, you'll probably want to stand outside your theatre and shout to adult passersby to come in and see "Honeymoon in Bali." You may wish that you could take each one by the hand and drag him in to see it. You'll find use for those synonyms then.

Difficult as it was to take our attention away from the screen, we watched the audience watching the preview. The result of watching the picture and the patrons is conviction that "Honeymoon in Bali" will royally entertain sophisticates, smart folk, pseudo-smart folk, the moderns, even the hillbillies and almost everybody else who wants to be amused.

It's a fresh, new and surprisingly different love story, intended for mature audiences. The sense of dialogue of the character actor Akim Tamiroff sums it up. It's the love story of a "guy," "a gentleman" and a business woman who wishes to remain mistress of her own destiny. But for something more comparative than descriptive, go back a few years. Remember the original "Holiday," which E. H. Griffith also directed. That picture set a standard which rival directors since have been striving to equal. Mr. Griffith's "Honeymoon in Bali" sets a new standard.

The picture is lavishly produced in ultra modern settings. Fred MacMurray and Madeleine Carroll, together in "Cafe Society," are the stars and Allan Jones is the other man. Miss Carroll is the sophisticated, beautiful, love-smart girl of the story. MacMurray is the debonair yet relentless young lover. Jones is the suave and polished man of the music world, a gentleman who knows when he's licked. Then there is Osa Massen, the cunning other woman in MacMurray's life, besides Akim Tamiroff in a delightfully unique comedy role for him, Helen Broderick and four-year-old Carolyn Lee, who several times legitimately steals the show from her elders.

Virginia Van Upp's screen play, which combines stories by Grace Mason and Katharine Brush, is a satin smooth job of writing. Her zippy dialogue, the way she brings her characters together and the situations in which she involves them are eye and ear openers that make little action necessary. It's a new high for Jeff Lazarus, producer.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Hollywood, saying that the audience was satisfied is putting it mildly.—Gus McCarthy.

Heartbeat

(French Motion Picture Corp.)

French Peasant Family

A French importation, this Marcel Pagnol production is one more attempt to make a rather trite theme interesting. It doesn't succeed in either story or production values.

Based on Jean Giono's novel, "Un de Baumugnes," the film details the story of a French peasant family. The daughter of the house, swept off her feet by the village roué, runs away with him to Marseilles and degradation. When "Saturnin," the faithful family helper, finally finds her and takes her and her out-of-wedlock child home, the reception is mixed.

The mother receives her with open arms, but the father hides her and the child in the cellar lest the villagers discover the family's disgrace. Although she is shut off from the outside world and further guarded from any visitor by her father, a young man, who met the girl but once, seeks her out and convinces the father of his honorable intentions.

Reviewed at the Little Carnegie Playhouse, New York. A small afternoon audience viewed the unfolding of the drab story in silence.—Paul C. Mooney, Jr.

The End of a Day

(Juno Films)

"Stage Door" Exit

Whereas the American rendition of the Shakespearean sophism that "all the world is a stage," as voiced in "Stage Door," pictured a bevy of budding Bernhardts poised for a hopeful entrance into the world of make-believe and grease paint, a domain where "angels fear to tread," this distinguished French importation views with a realistic and debunking eye the last act exit of a group of aged Gallic thespians, housed in an old actors' home and waiting amid their memories and off-stage performances for their final curtain call.

The production is headed for enthusiastic acclaim from those sections of bilingual picture patrons who raved about previous French successes, "Mayerling," "Grand Illusion" and "Un Carnet de Bal." There is an exceptionally well penned collection of superimposed English titles to help translate the witty lines.

Julien Duvivier's directorial imagination is manifest throughout.

Actors playing characters from their own profession have an histrionic field day. The trio of male leads, each name a stellar fixture in French acting circles, offers a beautiful example of individual and group work. Special commendation should be given to the moving musical background.

Cleverly has M. Duvivier manipulated the strange assortment of characters and persuasively does his band of players follow his instructions.

A specially invited audience attended the evening premiere of the film at the New York Filmarte theatre, which was sponsored by a gallery of famous actor names for the benefit of the Actors' Fund of America. In sympathy with the cause and the plot, the gathering rewarded the film with its respectful if biased attention and applause.—Joseph F. Coughlin.

Produced by Regina. Distributed by I. E. Lopert, Juno Films, Inc. Director, Julien Duvivier and Charles Spaak. Cameraman, Christian Metras. Music, Maurice Jaubert. Sets, Jacques Krauss. English titles, Herman Weinberg and Milton Doushkess. No. P.C.A. Certificate number. Running time, 94 minutes. Release date, October 1, 1939. Adult audience classification.

The Housekeeper's Daughter

(Hal Roach - UA)

Murder Comedy

There's no defining the Hal Roach comedy touch and less denying it. This is a comedy directed by the producer himself in rare form, a comedy of murders and gangsters and reporters such as never was approximated save in part by Warners in their "Slight Case of Murder," and this is funnier and, sometimes louder. Showmen can tell the customers that if they don't think a sequence of murders can be a completely efficacious cure for war jitters, melancholia, economic ennui or plain washday blues, they'd better come and see.

Adolphe Menjou and William Gargan carry the brunt of the comedy for quite a stretch, as a pair of free drinking reporters. Donald Meek comes in somewhat later as a dyspeptic city editor, and Marc Lawrence joins on as a gangster nobody takes seriously. Joan Bennett lets out the emotional stop slightly as a good girl fresh from the rackets and John Hubbard makes a bit of history for himself as a wealthy young man who wishes himself into the reporting profession and blunders into a series of phoney scoops that turn out to be real and get him all but killed. The whole affair winds up in a skyrocket duel culminating in a happy solution of seemingly insoluble difficulties and every-

Rian James and Gordon Douglas whipped up an adroitly jointed screen play from material found in a novel by Donald Henderson Clarke. Two Bright Boys

(Universal)

Comedy Melodrama

Behind the insouciant title of "Two Bright Boys" Universal has a delightful comedy melodrama of wide appeal. It is a story of the Texas oil fields told from the standpoint of a widow, and a boy's struggle against an oil baron seeking to steal their property. On to the scene come a glib English forger and his son, both of whom live by their wits. They complicate and then fix up matters, and change themselves in the process.

The title roles are played by Jackie Cooper and Freddie Bartholomew. They are supported by Melville Cooper, Dorothy Peterson, Alan Dinehart, Willard Robertson, J. M. Kerrigan, Eddie Acuff, Hal K. Dawson, Harry Worth and Eddy C. Waller.

The original screenplay by Val Burton and Edmund L. Hartmann is concise and contains unusually effective dialogue. Joseph Santley directed the Burt Kelly production.

Public Hobby Number One

(Paramount)

Postal Paragraphic

Although opinion may be divided as to just what is "public hobby number one," it is the contention of this Pargraphic that such an honor should go to the fad of stamp collecting. Whether this conclusion is logical or not, it must be admitted that the philatelists comprise a large cross section of the country's population and any screen subject devoted to this avocation should be welcome news to the stamp sections. In addition to the coverage of the field, the material has been given extra attention by the inclusion of special scenes showing the manufacture of government stamps, an experience made possible through the cooperation of the United States Secret Service, the Post Office Department and the Bureau of Engraving. As stamp collecting recognizes no financial, cultural or gender barriers, the appeal of the material is practically universal. Wise words are sounded in the commentary on the business of stamp gathering and production.—Running time, 11 minutes.

BROADWAY GROSSES CONTINUE UPWARDS

Theatres on New York's Broadway continued over the weekend to show an upsurge in business over recent weekends with Twentieth Century-Fox's "The Rains Came" leading the way. At the Roxy, where the film opened Friday to the accompliment of a cloudburst, the film is reported by the company to be rivaling the grosses of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Jesse James" and is expected to set an all-time high for the house. The attendance for the first four days neared the 100,000 mark.

"The Star Maker" at the Paramount started its third week Wednesday and Paramount says the film is drawing the biggest attendances of the year at that theatre.

"The Old Maid" at Warner Brothers' Strand theatre is starting its sixth week with record attendances reported.

Columbia's "Golden Boy" on Thursday started its second week at the Radio City Music Hall with excellent business reported for the first week.

A Desert Adventure

Grantland Rice Sportlight

Episode two detailing further adventures of Ken and Walt Wilhelm finds the bow and arrow brothers giving additional evidence of their skill and daring, first evidenced in "Death Valley Thrills." The horseplay that the boys put on in their first installment is offered again, together with conclusive evidence by way of the slow motion camera technique of their adeptness with the blow gun and the dart. An exciting, suspenseful sequence is shown when one of the men in the act of bagging a wildcat slowly backs into a none too cordial rattlesnake. An arrow well aimed from the string of the other brother's bow removes the threat to the Wilhelm family. The business is different and is handled with a sound sense of what it takes to keep an audience interested.—Running time, 10 minutes.

The Bill of Rights

Historical Color Featuret

Following the color subjects dealing with the history of the United States that have met with so much success comes another in this series entitled "The Bill of Rights." In Williamsburg, Virginia, several American patriots protest against King George's high handed decrees against the colonists. The colonists meet secretly at Raleigh's Tavern in Virginia and prepare the first rough form of the Bill of Rights. Patrick Henry fires the patriots into action against the British representatives in America and forces them to leave the colony. After a long struggle among themselves, the colonists finally incorporate the Bill of Rights in the federal constitution. An excellent color subject on one phase of the history of the United States.—Running time, 20 minutes.

Grantland Rice Sportlight

A Grantland Rice Sportlight about the deep and the snaring of some of its finny residents offers a celluloid catch of superior film fare in excitement and entertainment. The initial field of casting is in the waters off the coast of Guaymas, Mexico. It is in this locale that the camera is credited with photographing for the first time the spectacle of a school of whip ray fish performing their pattern of leaping far out of the water. A quick change centers the fishermen in the district of Cat Cay off the shoreline of Florida. A tuna tournament is being held and a quartet of champion reelmen is shown landing some big ones. The material is easy bait for hooking the amateur and professional fisherman. For those who interest in fish is limited to the table, the first rate camerawork and the general atmosphere of the rod and reel contest should compensate.—Running time, 10 minutes.

In "Five Times Five," they have the inevitable birthday party with Doctor Allan Roy Dafoe, but this time they have another famous guest in the rotund personage of Alexander Woollcott and his voice, as narrator, adds much to the enjoyment of the film. SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS OF PRODUCT pers send reporters and photographers to the Girtch home and frame him into posing with a hammer about to beat his wife. Nothing but trouble follows, but during the voting, by a freak turn of events, Girtch beats out his opponent and wins the election. By this time he doesn't want the job and sends his application explaining the whole story to the Grouch Club. An entertaining comedy with many amusing asides.—Running time, ten minutes.

One Against the World
(MGM)
Passing Parade

A chapter from the progress of medical practice is portrayed in this installment from the Passing Parade group. Particularly concerned with the case of one Dr. Ephraim MacDowell, medico who settled in the district of Danville, Kentucky, around the beginning of the nineteenth century, the story is told of the first major operation performed in medical history. What makes the case more spectacular is the detailing of the opposition and local superstitions that the doctor had to surmount. The subject is especially good in painting this atmospheric business. The tribute depicted to Dr. MacDowell's bravery and skill should be worthwhile for the average audience to witness, if for no other reason than to realize the great advances made in surgical practice. —Running time, 11 minutes.

Slapsie Maxie's
(Vitaphone)
Broadway Brevity

"Slapsie" Maxie Rosenbloom, after having feature parts in "Going Places" and "Each Dawn I Die" as well as in other pictures, returns to star in his own two-reel subject. The first locale is Max's night club on the Coast. Here Max entertains his customers with a burlesque of Harry Richman that is A-1 in comedy. At the club he discovers the amazing footwork of Johnnie "Scat" Davis and trains him to become a fighter. The final sequence is the championship fight between Johnnie and the champ in which Johnnie wins with the aid of Maxie on the sidelines.—Running time, 17 minutes.

The Story That Couldn't Be Printed
(MGM)
Passing Parade

Always appropriate but particularly so in these days when the freedom of the press is an uppermost subject of discussion, this Passing Parade item becomes important screen material for any audience. Concerned with the history of Peter Zenger, pre-Revolutionary War printer and newspaper publisher, the picture highlights the sequences of his story. Zenger was persecuted, arrested and tried for publishing reports concerning the crookedness of His Majesty's colonial representative in his township. Zenger was acquitted by the stirring last minute appeal of his attorney and from his acquittal came the beginnings for the inclusion in the American Constitution of the freedom of the press clause. The subject is made to order for school showings and the oratorical delivery of Zenger's lawyer should produce loud applause from any general gathering.—Running time, 11 minutes.

WHY THE BRITISH GOT SHOWS BACK

Indicative of the desire of the British people for motion picture fare was the sign posted by a London theatre before theatres in neutral zones were allowed to reopen.

The sign read: "Closed. The nearest cinema open is at Aberystwyth, 239 miles away."

No records were kept as to the number of Londoners who attended the Aberystwyth showing.

The Bookworm
(MGM)
Color Cartoon

A hodgepodge of literature and fantasy in this color cartoon serves to brew bright and fairly amusing pen point entertainment. The three witches from "Macbeth" need a worm to finish off their devilish stew and the "Raven" from Edgar Allan Poe volunteers to supply the girls with their missing ingredient. Then follows the chase business with the black winged bird pursuing a harmless bookworm. However, some righteous fictional and not so literary personages, from "Paul Revere" down to the Boy Scouts, prevent him. The animation of many classical and popular story characters should stimulate interest from general audiences, particularly the book reading divisions. At one spot, however, the Bookworn comes upon a volume entitled "Art Studies" and his reaction to the pages is of the ogling, smirking peepshow character. Perhaps this will be over the heads of the younger element.—Running time, nine minutes.

Swing Styles
(Vitaphone)
Variety Program

Vitaphone's latest variety program is an assemblage of many artists. The Frazee Sisters sing and Charles Troy and Zoe Lynn dance to the musical accompaniment of the Adrian Rollini Trio, the Milt Herth Trio and Tito and Swingette. This is one of the better subjects in the musical variety programs.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Auto Antics
(MGM)
Our Gang

A junior edition of the Indianapolis Speedway auto racing classic is run off in this Our Gang subject. The heart interest behind the contest is the fact that the kids need to win the five dollars in order to obtain a license for their canine pal. Previously, Butch, the local tough, squealed to the neighborhood dog snatcher that the mutt carried no permit, in order to remove the hound from watching the kids' machine. The menace does some sabotage work on the Gang's car but he cannot tinker with the children's ingenuity and spirit of fight. Consequently, the youngsters are the victors, the dog gets his license and the villainous rivals get a good ducking in a pond. The humor setup is naturally pointed to the soapbox derby, and the kids play the situations up to the hilt to make this Gang contribution one of the best to date—Running time, 10 minutes.

Nevada Unlimited
(RKO Pathe)
Reelism

In this Pathe Reelism the sparsely settled state of Nevada is the subject of a camera study. Once, before the discovery of the Comstock Lode, the state numbered less than 1,000 inhabitants and even today it is the least populated of all the states, due in part to the arid or semi-arid country. The Government is now reclaiming much of the land through Boulder Dam. Chance games have been legalized in Nevada, which is considered a "wide open" state. The camera also explores Nevada's most publicized city, Reno, the city of divorces. Produced by Frederic Ullman, Jr. Supervised by Frank Donovan.—Running time, 8 minutes.

Popular Science, J, 9-1
(Paramount)
Interesting

A variety of the latest scientific improvements for this period of progress is briefly inspected in the current number from the Popular Science category. The newest use of cotton is revealed as material for the laying of new roads. For the women there is a tantalizing peek into a modern and mechanically up-to-the-minute kitchen. A visit is made to a British hospital and medical school for the training of feminine medicos. The air minded will be interested in inspecting the workings of a giant streamlined Pacific clipper. A bit of madcap humor is injected by the demonstration of an inventive genius' contraption that utilizes the energy of gum chewing to maintain a private and automatic cooling system in the nature of a cranial fan. Color vivifies the proceedings.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Remember When
(Vitaphone)
Minstrel Show

Complete with end-men in their usual gaudy costumes an old time minstrel show is produced in an old fashioned saloon. During the course of the evening's entertainment The Eaton Boys sing, The Three Wiles dance, Joe Sodja plays the banjo and Rags Ragland performs in a comedy skit about baseball. An interesting gay 90's program—Running time, 20 minutes.

Ecuador
(Paramount)
Color Cruise

Down to the South American country close to the Equator goes the travel-wise camera of this Color Cruise number. The usual items for screen globe trotting are included and number shots of the mountainous country, its town life, churches, gardens and market places. The people of the land are shown in their picturesque habits and costumes, especially in arranging a child betrothal. Audiences with a grain of wanderlust in their collective makeups should enjoy this vicarious excursion into a strange land.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Pack Trip
(RKO Pathe)
Reelism

A Pathe Reelism, this subject concerns a horseback tour from a ranch through the beautiful Sun Valley in Idaho. The party puts up for the night by a stream. The guides prepare supper for the weary travelers and set up the tents. The most interesting feature is the country itself.—Running time, 9 minutes.

HUGO RIESENFELD DIES; MUSICIAN OF THE FILMS

Contributed to the Rothafel Tradition at Rialto and Rivoli of Broadway

Hugo Riesenfeld died, after a long period of ill health, at his home in Hollywood September 10. He was in his sixtieth year. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mabel Dunning Riesenfeld, and their daughter, Janet.

Mr. Riesenfeld was an important contributor to the motion picture as a composer and conductor, and by way of encouragement of improving standards of both production and exhibition. Through his years on Broadway he was the foremost musical figure of the motion picture. He came to Broadway as the musical director for the Rialto theatre, under the regime of the late Samuel L. Rothafel, and soon extended his attentions to the Rivoli. He was an important component of the Rothafel organization and succeeded Mr. Rothafel as the managing director.

Under Riesenfeld tutelage there arose an array of the musicians subsequently to come to fame on screen and radio, including Erno Rapee, Nathaniel Finston, Emanuel Baer, and David Mendoza.

In the Rothafel Tradition

In his earlier years in the service of the Rialto and Rivoli, Riesenfeld contributed importantly to the Rothafel tradition and the uplifting of the status of the screen theatre. It was Mr. Riesenfeld and his associations which brought the names that the Metropolitan Opera has made famous to glamour the motion picture presentations, including Adolph Bolm, ballet master; John Wenger, set designer, and Josiah Zuro.

As a theatre director Mr. Riesenfeld was among the first to advocate long runs in metropolitan presentations. He continued his directorship of the Rialto and Rivoli after they were taken over by Paramount and for that organization included supervision of the Criterion.

For years he was known about the motion picture world as "Dr." Riesenfeld—and through no intent of his own. It chanced that one day Mr. Rothafel was examining a copy of the Rialto theatre house program and meditated on the fact that it proclaimed that the organist at that theatre was Dr. Firmin Schwinnen. It irked Roxy to consider that the organist was decorated with the swank of a doctorate while the head of his musical organization was just plain Hugo Riesenfeld. He sent for Hugo forthwith.

"Have you ever been to school—a university?" Roxy demanded.

"Yes, a few," Hugo responded, "including the University of Paris," etc., etc.

And So It Was—For a Time

Roxy called the publicity department on the telephone, immediately and heatedly. "Hereafter it will be 'Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld.'" And so it was and Hugo could do nothing about it, for a long time.

On that day when word came to the Rialto-Rivoli organization that Roxy had resigned, Hugo's first act was to call that same publicity department.

"There will be no more 'Doctor' Riesenfeld, please—effective now," he stipulated firmly. "I'm tired of having everybody at the Lambs club ask me what to do for a cold."

HUGO RIESENFELD

From the Old Vienna

Mr. Riesenfeld was a native of Vienna—the old Vienna that was—and began his musical career there in his boyhood. He became concert master at the Vienna Opera house under Gustav Mahler. He came to the United States in 1907 and was concert master at Oscar Hammerstein's Manhattan Opera House, continuing there through 1911. Next he spent years as a conductor with Klaw & Erlanger and in 1915 became conductor for the Century Opera company, going thence to his post at the Rialto.

Overlapping and ensuing upon his career in the motion picture theatre Riesenfeld scored many silent, and later sound, pictures, including notably "The Covered Wagon," "Humoresque," "Beau Geste," "Old Ironsides," and "Tabu."

Beyond most musicians of high status and accomplishment, Hugo enjoyed an abundant sense of humor, both keen and robust. He insisted, to the alarm and annoyance of contemporaries, in calling a violin a fiddle—and he had fiddled his way to fame.

Schine Brokerage Suit Dismissed

A suit for $35,000 brokerage fees against Meyer Schine, Louis Schine and the Schine Enterprises Corporation, claimed due for the purchase by Schine Enterprises of four Rochester theatres, was dismissed this week by J. Sidney Bernstein, New York supreme court justice, on the ground that the plaintiff, Carl E. Erikson, had failed to state a cause of action.

Mr. Erikson recently brought suit against the Schines and Fenyvessy Enterprises, Inc., claiming that the latter had retained him in May, 1937, to procure a purchaser for five of its theatres.

Auten Plea Denied

Application by Harold Auten for an examination before trial of officers of Societe Pathe Cinema, S. A., was denied this week by J. Sidney Bernstein, New York supreme court justice. The application was made in connection with Societe Pathe's action for $350,000 which it claims is due it from distribution revenues on certain of its pictures. Mr. Auten has entered a counter-claim against the company for $17,5000.

Settle Tampa Suit

A suit over rent on the Tampa theatre has been settled by a decree of Florida Circuit Judge Parks, holding that the theatre could not deduct as operating expense the cost of operating Bank Night and Screeno, outlawed recently by the Florida supreme court.

Files Damage Suit

Hugh Herbert has filed suit in Los Angeles for $67,500 damages for injuries he claims he received in an auto collision December 20th. He charged that a truck owned by Consolidated Film Industries struck his car.

New Goulding Contract

Edmund Goulding, director, has been awarded a new long term contract by Warner Brothers. He is currently directing Paul Muni's latest starring film, "We Are Not Alone," based on the novel of the same name by James Hilton.

Charles Loewenberg Dies

Charles Loewenberg, 52, who handled exploitation for Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal and other companies in Chicago, Milwaukee and elsewhere, died at his home in Cincinnati September 7th.

William H. White

William H. White, 69, who had appeared in many musical comedies and operettas in New York and Boston, died September 7th in New York. He was a native of Weymouth, Mass.

Kathryn Kidder

Mrs. Kathryn Kidder-Anspacher, 72, wife of Dr. Louis Kaufman Anspacher, dramatist and lecturer, died September 7th in New York. She was known to the stage of an earlier day as Kathryn Kidder.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

CHARLES DARNTON, writing from Hollywood, observes the vicarious resuscitation of the good old two-a-day vaudeville in "Babes in Arms," which films the plight of variety people when the screen foreclosed on their means of livelihood, and he takes the occasion to reminisce a bit on some of the old vaudevillains.

Haughty they were, too, he remembers, giving classic proof of their attitude in Irene Franklin when she straightaway canceled her booking at the then great Broadway Palace rather than share top billing with Sarah Bernhardt. For her part, the prudent Sarah, unduly skeptical of vaudeville's financial standing, refused to stir a leg unless paid daily in advance —and in gold. So it was that every afternoon $1,000 in shining metal went clinking to her dressing room, where the thrifty French actress counted it herself.

Many anecdotes were retold by members of the "Babes in Arms" cast sitting around at M-G-M swapping yarns of the vaudeville that was. For one, there was that day when Duffy and Sweeney failed to show up for a matinee performance at the Palace. Frantically the manager telephoned their hotel only to be told by an exceedingly drowsy Mr. Duffy, "Don't worry, we'll telephone our act over to your theatre."

Equally unpredictable was Johnny Stanley. A vaudeville comedian, he also wrote material for George M. Cohan, who kept him on his weekly pay roll. George M. had neither seen nor heard from Stanley for 10 or 12 well paid weeks when he happened to run across him on Broadway.

"Johnny!" cried George M. Cohan. "How's the kid and how're things going?" throwing his arms about the long-lost one's shoulders and slapping him on the back.

"What is this?" austerely demanded Stanley, drawing away. "A touch?"

Radio, No. 1 competitor for public attention, is now taking credit for increasing the nation's milk supply, citing the results achieved by Robert Adams, down at New Bern, North Carolina, who, two years ago, installed a radio in his dairy barn for milking-time concerts.

But it was the milker, not the cow, who steps up the supply.

"The music," said Mr. Adams, "does not increase a cow's milk production, but it does bring the rhythm of happiness to the milker and that increases the output because he turns in a better job."

Tightwad, Mo., tried to have its name changed to Edgewood but didn't succeed. Love, Ark., has become Ash Fat.

In these days of bargain-hunting, United Artists' copy writers are out to convince the movie theatre prospect that he stands to get a lot for his money in "Four Feathers."

"Not one feather," shouts their poster copy, "Not two feathers . . . Not three feathers . . . BUT FOUR FEATHERS!"

All of the endless precautions taken these days on all sides militaristically reminds of the letter Albert Deane, of Paramount's foreign sales publicity department in New York, received from the British branch, last July, on the matter of still photographs blown-up to large size. Said the letter:

> "We should like to know at your convenience about the possibility of renaming, for invoicing purposes only, the 40x60 Blowups. In these sinister days, the name Blowup could be interpreted by the Customs officials over here as something of a slightly explosive nature.
> "We have always referred to the Blowups in this country as Giant Coloured Enlargements. Would it be possible, without causing any inconvenience at your end, to refer to them as such when sending future supplies to this country."

Down in the Ozark Mountain country of Pineville, Missouri, Uncle Jake Mathis admits that maybe his hay wasn't pitched or his corn shucked but, gol darn it, he had put a stop to galoots running through the cave those picture folk made famous in the Twentieth Century-Fox movie "Jesse James."

It was his cave and there wasn't enough hard cash in Pineville to buy him off, he said.

He threw up a barricade around the entrance several days ago and just "sot down" behind it, much to the embarrassment and chagrin of Pineville citizens who had been reaping a handsome income from the tourist trade.

It was the cave where Tyrone Power, as Jesse James, hid out from the law and a lynching party. It had been a potent magnet for tourists.

Uncle Jake's grievance wasn't against the citizens, he said, but against the tourists who, "gol dang them, didn't know how to behave." Some of them scared his mules. The mules bolted and threw him into the creek that skirts the cave entrance.

"People didn't used to act like that, not until those picture takers came down here," said Uncle Jake, who, though seventy-six, can handle a shotgun or pitchfork expertly.

"I know they say I got a gun and clubs and that I chase people with a pitchfork," he said. "But it's my property, the stream and all, and I won't be bought off or scared off."

Washington is taking such an interest in business codes and conduct these days—not forgetting the motion picture. Only recently the Federal Trade Commission effected trade practice codes for the putty manufacturing industry and the infant's and children's wear line. Then they turned right around, as if to show off their diversity, with trade programs for the ripe olive industry, sardine canners and curled hair people.

The more esthetic of theatricals in New York will please note that the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo will open its annual engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House on or about Tuesday evening, October 10th. One of the numbers will be a surrealist ballet by surrealist Salvatore Dali. He's the young gentleman who kicked in the Fifth Avenue department store window of Bonwit-Teller after he had worked all night on a surrealist display therein and the management changed it, to his dissatisfaction.

MR. FLOYD ODLUM'S Atlas Corporation, known in the motion picture business as one-half owner of RKO, is also generally known to have quite a portfolio of stock-and-bond certificates in other lines—assets $60,000,000. But, not generally realized is the wideness of diversification of Mr. Odlum's portfolio interests.

For example, his Atlas, at the last accountant's counting, had $1,500,000 worth of barges running up and down the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers, and large chunks of sugar (Utah-Idaho Sugar Company); fruit (United Fruit); radiators (American Radiator); cigarettes (Philip Morris); and 125 different blocks of railroads, power and light, gas and electric, oils and petroleum, machinery and equipment, department store, aviation and automobile issues—a neat little package.

Comedy Romance

Novelty and comedy will be the things to play up when it comes time to exploit "Eternally Yours." Basically, the story, a product of the combined headwork of Gene Towne and Graham Baker, is comedy romance that runs into many complications. But the whole thing is laid against the weird world of magic. Many baffling illusions, all performed without the aid of camera tricks, will be featured, and as the whole conjurer's list of tricks is exercised, there will also be a dab or two of mystifying mind-reading.

Sketchily the story will picture what happens when a young woman attends the magician's performance to question him about her approaching marriage. Instead of marrying the man she intended, she weds the magician. Becoming his assistant she accompanies him on tours, but his escapades with other women and the interfering relatives and friends force a divorce. The distraught magician searches for her, finds her the night she marries her first choice, and by tricks and ruses keeps bride and groom apart until he convinces the divorcee that he still loves her.

Loretta Young will be seen as the girl. David Niven, recently featured in "Dawn Patrol," "Wuthering Heights" and "Bachelor Mother," is the magician and Broderick Crawford is the other man. The comedy crew of Hugh Herbert, Billie Burke, Zasu Pitts and Raymond Walburn have been given plenty of opportunity to function, and C. Aubrey Smith, Virginia Feld and Eve Arden have important parts.

Tay Garnett, who did such comedies as "Joy of Living," "Stand In" and "Love Is News," is the director.

Abe Lincoln in Illinois

(RKO Radio)

Personal Biography

There have been many biographies of Abraham Lincoln: he has been the central figure of numerous novels, plays and motion pictures. The factual biographies have been the occasion of many controversies; the legends that have grown up about the man, though founded in many cases on reality, have, nevertheless, taken on the guise of fiction. The RKO-Radio production of "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," based on Robert E. Sherwood's stage play and adapted by him for the screen, will endeavor to give an accurate description of the man from the time to went to Illinois as a lad of 21 years to the day he left Springfield to become the president.

While the author made use of the prerogatives of dramatic license, the story told will trace the Lincoln career as the majority of historians agree it transpired. Though events and associations, the influence of which culminated in his election to the presidency, will be accurately and authentically detailed, the real meat of the story will concern the man himself. It will not present Lincoln as a superman or a demigod, rather as a moody, indecisive, inconsistent, melancholy, lonely backwoodsman with the soul of a dreamer who feared responsibility and dreaded public attention, and a man who, in all honesty, did not want to be president.

Fact, and legend born of fact, it appears, have been combined to evolve the theme. Thus it will show the young Lincoln eager to study law. His voyage down the Mississippi brings his first antipathy toward slavery and is the beginning of his affection for Ann Rutledge. His later business failure and the death of Miss Rutledge drive him to a moroseness which is relieved by his entry into state politics and his initial platform brushes with Stephen A. Douglas. Ensues his romance with Mary Todd, romantic and political rivalry with Douglas, election to congress, retirement from public life which was followed by prosperous years.

Then, as dissension between the North and South builds to the danger point, Lincoln returns to politics. Defeated by Douglas for the Senate, Lincoln nevertheless wins national recognition. Nominated for the presidency by the Republicans, he defeats Douglas for the office. With cheers ringing in his ears, Lincoln leaves for Washington, meanwhile smiling at the friends and neighbors he never will see again.

The role of Lincoln will be played by Raymond Massey, who played it in the stage version. He is probably best remembered for his parts in "The Hurricane" (the island governor), and "Prisoner of Zenda." Two other members of the stage cast, Howard daSylva and Herbert Rudley, will be seen. Other parts will be taken by a carefully chosen group of screen and stage players. Gene Lockhart will be seen as Douglas and Ruth Gordon, one of the stage's foremost actresses, as Mary Todd. Mary Howard, last in "Nurse Edith Cavell," will be Ann Rutledge. Others prominent are Dorothy Tree, Harvey Stephens, Minor Watson, Alan Baxter, Maurice Murphy, Louis Heydt, Clem Bevans, Harlan Briggs, Elizabeth Risdon, Charles Middleton and Roger Imhoff.

The picture is being produced by Max Gordon, who presented it on the stage, and Harry Goetz. It is being directed by John Cromwell, who directed "Algiers," "Prisoner of Zenda" and the earlier "Of Human Bondage," "Spitfire" and "The Silver Cord."

Release date: November 24, 1939.

Here I Am a Stranger

(20th Century - Fox)

Family Melodrama

Quite a list of important names will be available in "Here I am a Stranger." For instance, there will be Richard Green, whose three latest pictures are "The Little Princess," "Hound of the Baskervilles" and "Stanley and Livingstone," and Brenda Joyce, Darryl Zanuck's latest screen find, whose debut picture is "The Rains Came." Then there will be Richard Dix, who has made screen history from "Cimarron" to "Man of Conquest." They are the principals. Gladys George and Roland Young are the featured players. The support includes Katherine Aldridge, Russell Gleason, George Zucco, Edward Norris, Richard Bond, Henry Kolker, Jan Duggan and Minor Watson, and others.

The basis of the production is a story by Gordon Halherbe which appeared recently in McCalls' Magazine. The screen play is credited to Milton Sperling, who did "Return of the Cisco Kid," and Sam Hellman, whose latest work was the "Frontier Marshal" screen story. Direction is in the hands of Roy Del Ruth, who did "Tail Spin" and "My Lucky Star" for 20th-Fox last season.

Romance and sacrifice, a story of broken homes and regeneration are the keystones of the theme. In fact, three stories, all cohering, will be told. One concerns a mother who divorces her lovable but irresponsible husband and remarries; another concerns their son, who grows to manhood, rediscovers his real father and helps rehabilitate him. The third is that of the man who found himself in his son's friendship and affection.

Release date: Sept. 29, 1939.

Torture Ship

(Producers Pictures Corp.)

Melodrama

"Torture Ship," first production of Producers Pictures Corporation will inaugurate the newly formed company's series of thrill-action melodramas. Already nationally advertised the picture will be given further institutional exploitation upon and after its release date.

As in the case of all new companies, it is to be expected that in this every effort will be made to insure that the picture's thematic, production and technical qualities will be of such a grade as to create a market for future releases.

The screen play, prepared by George Sayre, who has many exciting action stories to his credit, was suggested by one of Jack London's most widely read novels, "A Thousand Deaths." In this circumstance exhibitors automatically have a readymade exploitation asset. Its substance is melodramatic action, gripping situations, romance and thrills galore during a bizarre voyage of an ocean going yacht. Directly it concerns the unsuccessful experiment of a medical scientist to cure dangerous criminals by the injection of serums. Revolt and mutiny bring on horror from which the hero rescues an innocently implicated girl as the surviving criminals are returned to custody.

Featured names available are Irving Pichel, Lyle Talbot, Jacqueline Wells, Anthony Averill, Sheila Bromley with the supporting troupe including Russell Hopton, Eddie Holden, Wheeler Oakman, Adia Kuznetzoff and Stanley Blystone. The picture is being directed by Victor Halperin.

Release date: October 15, 1939.

The Escape

(20th Century - Fox)

Melodrama

For the entertainment of melodrama devotees "The Escape" will picture a slice of life as lived in those crowded tenement sections of New York in which previous pictures have shown us, live some good people, a few with whom we may sympathize and a lot who are thoroughly bad. Thus the picture will be what is called a character and action production. Consequently, we will have a fine young policeman who joins the force to avenge the death of his policeman father; the jailbird-gangster; his sister whom the young cop loves; the honest, hardworking father; the poor courageous woman and her ailing daughter, who, of course, has to be secretly married to the jailbird, and a flock of street gamins who, adventurously, become involved in criminal goings on. Everything will look pretty black for everyone for a while. There will be robberies, killings and others bits of inhumanity as well as the battle in the dark. But those who should get their just desserts will get them and those who should be handsomely rewarded will be so recompensed.

To supplement the regular attractiveness of the theme and the fast breaking production detail which will amplify it, exhibitors will have the name value of Kane Richmond, Amanda Duff, June Gale and Edward Norris, all studio contract employees; Henry Armetta, Frank Reicher, the juveniles Scotty Beckett, Jimmy Butler and Roger McGee, and sundry others.

Robert Ellis and Helen Logan prepared the original screen play, which Ricardo Cortez, maker of "Inside Story" and "Chasing Danger" is directing.

Release date: To be determined.

The Telenews theatre, San Francisco, was scheduled to be opened sometime this week. The theatre is operated by Pacific Coast Newsreel Theatre Corporation. Ellis Levy has been named manager. The Telenews will be devoted exclusively to showing of newsreels and selected short subjects.

Joseph Q. Riznik, of the Call-Bulletin, Hearst newspaper in San Francisco, has joined Columbia to adapt two stories, one his own book, "Girl of the Gayway," with an exposition setting, and "March of Crime."

The Ohio censor board reviewed 593 reels in August, and ordered 17 eliminations. The previous month, from 452 reels, it eliminated nine items.

Pictures Free of Distortion Asked

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

That pictures produced in the Americas shall not distort history is the gist of a resolution fathered by Manuel Arocha, Venezuelan Minister to Mexico, which was unanimously adopted by the 27th annual international convention of Americanists, students of all phases of American affairs, held here. Minister Arocha was the Venezulean delegate to the session, which was attended by about 400 other representatives of the United States, Mexico, other American and some European countries.

"Efforts must be made to prevent motion pictures from making ridiculous caricatures of outstanding figures in public life of American countries as this will dangerously influence the opinion of this and other generations regarding history, besides serving to discredit the people who shaped our nations and our nationalities," the resolution read.

Oil Question

Mexico with the aid of the government of California is planning to present her side of the oil question in the form of a picture, says an official Mexican Government announcement. Charles A. Page, private secretary to the Governor of California, is here making arrangements for the picture, which, says the announcement, will involve Paul Muni, Ralph Bates and George Stevens. The statement asserts that a $30,000 fund has been gathered to finance the film which is intended to "counteract the calumnious and perfidious campaign against Mexico that some American oil companies are waging."

Press "Juarez" Action

Although Warner Brothers won a point in the controversy involving "Juarez," in which Porfirio Diaz, Jr., son of the late president of Mexico, claimed the film defames his father, the plaintiff has asked for an injunction from the Mexico City district court, to upset the federal prosecutor's rejection of the plaintiff's complaint. He claims his charges are justified and that he has an abundance of proof to substantiate them.

Air Shipments Gain

Air express shipments nationally for June totaled 71,527, an increase of 28 per cent over June, 1938, the Railway Express Agency reports. The motion picture industry is a large user of air express. Gross revenue for June, this year, was up 34 per cent. Shipments for the first six months of the year totaled 392,679, an increase of 23 per cent over the 1938 period.

Williams Acquires Theatre

K. Lee Williams, president of the theatre company bearing his name in Oklahoma City, Okla., has acquired the American theatre at Wilburton, Okla., from John McGinley, who will enter the oil business. The Williams circuit is also building a new house at Fordyce, Ark.

ACTORS' FEDERATION REFUSES TO DIE; 7,500 STUDIO EMPLOYEES TO VOTE

Whitehead's Aide Hints Organization May Find a Home with CIO, Attacking Federation in Amusement Field

The peace on the "actors' front," a week-old peace, achieved only when the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees agreed with the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, upon dissolution of the American Federation of Actors, faced disruption this week when officials of the Federation not only gave no signs of surrender but said they would keep operating and might even join "another" labor unit—meaning John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations, which has been attacking the American Federation of Labor-IATSE-AAAA domination of the entertainment industry, from Hollywood to New York.

Hints at Home Outside AFL

Speaking in the absence of Ralph Whitehead, AFA secretary, who has been ill, Harold Koenigsberg, his assistant, this week told newsmen that his organization was not being liquidated, because the members did not want it so; and he hinted that the now orphaned unit might find a home outside the AFL.

Still ill, Mr. Whitehead advised his membership by letter on Tuesday that "the battle is not over by any means" and that the federation's executive council had decided to fight for control of actors.

This insurgent sentiment was confirmed by Abraham Halprin, attorney for the actors' federation, who said that it never had recognized the settlement between the Four A's and the IATSE.

Under the terms of this settlement, the IATSE gave up its charter to the AFA, and the Federation was to dissolve voluntarily, giving its membership over to the American Guild of Variety Artists, a unit set up some months ago by the Four A's, after it had expelled Mr. Whitehead and his AFA union.

Sophie Tucker Silent

Sophie Tucker, who had been president of the AFA up to the week of its expected dissolution, refused to say at mid-week whether she still considered herself an officer. She did not resign. She had been reinstated by Actors Equity, a Four A's unit, on the expectation that the Federation would dissolve. Its continued operation, and her refusel to disavow it, might again bring about her expulsion from Equity, and another crisis, in which she would be supported by the remaining AFA members, and be attacked by AAAA units, and the IATSE.

The American Guild of Variety Artists this week reported that about 3,000 former members of the actors' federation had joined, under the settlement terms, which provided for their transfer without payment of dues, and without discrimination.

However, the AFA, before the conflict, had claimed about 15,000 members; and Variety Artists officials said this week that the enrollment of these was slower than had been expected.

While the threat of CIO to the control by the American Federation of Labor was considered to have been weakened somewhat in the settlement last week of the threatened fight (it had been rumored that the Four A's might withdraw from the AFL to join the CIO) and to be strongest on the Coast, where the United Studio Technicians Guild battles the IATSE in a National Labor Relations Board election, Mr. Lewis' organization is attempting to invade the amusement business in the East.

The CIO has granted a wide charter to the United Theatrical and Motion Picture Service Employees, in the New York City area. The new union already has petitioned the State Labor Relations Board for recognition as the bargaining agent in the RKO New York houses, and in the Rugoff and Becker circuit. True to the CIO's "vertical union" philosophy, the Service Employees union takes in projectionists, stagehands, operators, doormen, porters, and cashiers. Its hope for progress is said to lie in the smaller, independent houses. Most theatres in the New York territory have contracts for projectionists, with Local 306, an IATSE affiliate, and many are negotiating with the Theatrical Agents, Managers and Treasurers Union, the treasurers of which already have broken away and joined the IATSE. The motion picture division of this union favors affiliation with the IATSE.

The break-away of the TMAT treasurers from the parent union was effected two weeks ago, and has aroused resentment among the officers of the union, who are expected to appeal to the American Federation of Labor convention, in October.

O'Connor Heads Treasurers

The treasurers have been given an IATSE charter, and the officers who have been elected are Walter O'Connor, president; George Ashby, vice-president; James J. Murphy, secretary; and Morrie Seamon, business agent.

The TMAT also has appealed to the State Labor Relations Board. A hearing was scheduled for this Thursday, but observers predicted that the board, because of its policy of referring labor's inter-union disputes directly to the parent union, would place the matter before the AFL.

Negotiations of the TMAT with various New York legitimate theatres have been hampered by the defection of the treasurers. It also was considered likely that the organization would reorganize, dropping from its name the final "T" designating treasurers.

This week and last, committees from each of the Four A's components were working on a "one big union" plan to simplify assessment of dues, and to facilitate emergency action for all unions.

The first issue of the parent actors' union newspaper, "The Actors' News," appeared on Monday of this week, with Edward Harrison as editor. It contains news of the settlement of the strike, of growing membership for the AGVA; a note of jubilation in the victory over the IATSE "stagehands"; and a plea by Lawrence Tibbett, president of the American Guild of Musical Artists for "one big union."

TELEVISE INTERVIEW ON CLIPPER'S FLIGHT

Mrs. Ogden Reid, of the New York Herald Tribune, and William Van Dusen, of the Pan-American Airways, were interviewed Thursday from the National Broadcasting Company's television studio in New York, on the first flight over the North Atlantic route by the Yankee Clipper, which started from Port Washington, L. I., early in July.

This was the first description of that flight to be televised.

Hollywood Workers Will Determine Whether CIO-Favored Technicians Guild or IATSE Will Represent It

Approximately 7,500 Hollywood studio workers will vote in the Gilmore Stadium, there, next Wednesday, to elect, as their bargaining agent, either the United Studio Technicians Guild, or the IATSE. The guild is reported favored by the CIO; and the Alliance is an affiliate of the AFL. The election is under the National Labor Relations Board.

The date of the election was fixed at a conference in the offices of William Walsh, labor board attorney. John Gatelee, Lew Blix and Frank Strickling represented the IATSE; A. H. Peterson, the AFL; and Howard Robertson and H. I. Besbeck, the guild.

Bioff Refuses

IATSE locals had asked William Bioff, known as Alliance president George E. Browne's personal representative on the Coast, to represent them in negotiations. He first declined, saying that since he had "withdrawn voluntarily" from union activities, he feld "reluctant" to assume them again but later accepted the chairmanship of a negotiating committee for 11 locals.

The IATSE has been expelling its members and officers known to have guild sympathies.

Mr. Robertson, president of the guild, said the expulsions meant nothing "because there won't be any IATSE here, after the election."

He added that he would charge the producers with violations of the Wagner Labor Act, if they refused to employ the expelled men.

Carpenters Win Raise

Studio carpenters have won a 10 per cent wage increase, retroactive to September 1, it was revealed last week. The raise was the result of the meeting, in Newark on August 25th, of the representatives of the "Big Four" unions and the producers, on possible renewal of the "basic agreement." The next meeting will be on December 5th, it is said.

In Boston, a strike by the IATSE theatre union against the M. and P. Theatre Corporation houses has been settled, with partial victory for all. There will be no closed shop, but there will be no discrimination against union members. Union scales, in varying degrees according to theatre location, have been granted.

The financial report of the Laboratory Technicians' Local 702, made public in its organ, "The Magazine," reveals that the union treasury's receipts stood at $5,839 above expenditures in the past year, ending July 31st.

Conferences in St. Louis between operators of the O'Fallon and Bremen theatres and two IATSE unions, the Local 6 and 2A, were expected this week, following the return, from his honeymoon, of Clarence Kaimann, North St. Louis theatre owner.

In Detroit, the projectionists' local 199 last week renewed contracts with Co-operative Theatres and with members of Allied theatres. There are wage and overtime increases, retroactive to September 1st.

The New York chapter of the American Federation of Radio Artists will meet, in annual session, at the Edison hotel, on September 28th.

With the addition of 18 theatres in the past year Ontario theatres now total 372.

CASEY MINIMIZES THREAT OF CIO TO GAIN FOOTHOLD IN HOLLYWOOD

Producers' Representative Says New Guild Is Too Small to Exert Much Influence; Doubts Support of National Units

Pat Casey, labor contact for the major producers, leaned back in his chair on a recent morning at his offices in 1600 Broadway, New York City, and put out his right hand—with the thumb down.

Mr. Casey was summing up the chances of John L. Lewis' Congress for Industrial Organization in Hollywood. Some observers have thought that this group of "vertical unions" might enter the industry in a large way through the new United Studio Technicians' Guild. The guild is supported by CIO harbor unions, claims a large membership among Hollywood crafts workers, will battle for certification as their agent in forthcoming National Labor Relations Board elections, and openly challenges the domination in Hollywood of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

Five-Year Pact Signed

Mr. Casey returned to New York awhile ago, from the coast, where he sat in on the conferences which resulted in the signing by the producers and the IATSE of the five year closed shop agreement, patterns on wage and hour conditions in the basic agreement between producers and the big union groups. He had been besieged by pleas from the technicians' guild not to let the agreement be signed without the NLRB election; and it now appears that, though the agreement is signed, the upward adjustment of wages and rectification of conditions awaits the election, to be held within one month.

"There will be no C.I.O. domination of the industry; nor even its representation by a powerful union," Mr. Casey said.

Sees IATSE Victory

"I think the IATSE will win the election," he added. "I think the Guild is too small; I think its membership is small, and that it has very little money.

"Remember this; that it is not supported by the CIO; it is backed in a small way by the harbor unions in Los Angeles, which are CIO. But the national CIO is not going to back it until it wins the election, if it does. The CIO wouldn't risk a defeat in prestige for such a small unit," Mr. Casey asserted.

"The fact that the USTG has no money leads one to believe that they have no membership," Mr. Casey continued. "Sure, they have a lot of cards—but the treasury is the tip-off.

"Anything May Happen"

"If 12 or so union fellows go on the street and give people cards to sign, and the cards are free—those people will sign. Naturally. There are a lot of men in Hollywood playing both ends against the middle, and hoping to be on the right side when that side wins. Sure, they'll sign.

"But with it all," Mr. Casey said, "I don't think the USTG has half the members it claims, and I think it claims about 3,000."

Mr. Casey then added this qualification:

"Of course," he said, "no one can really tell. When you come to a secret election, anything may happen."

The protests which the USTG made repeatedly against the "closed shop" agreement of the producers with the Alliance, were untenable, Mr. Casey indicated, and put it this way:

"If the CIO wins the election, what do you think they'll ask for?"

The Alliance has not presented any wage and hour demands, though the five year pact is signed, Mr. Casey said—it is waiting for the NLRB election.

The IATSE will re-enter the basic agreement, Mr. Casey feels; its reentrance also awaits the NLRB election.

(The IATSE withdrew last year from the basic agreement with the studios, after the local IATSE unions demanded autonomy. Representatives of the four other big international unions met with Mr. Casey and other producers' representatives last Friday in Newark, New Jersey, to discuss renewal of the basic agreement. They adjourned without result, and are expected to meet again after the NLRB elections.)

Living costs have not risen appreciably in Hollywood, during the past five years, Mr. Casey observed. In remarking about Hollywood conditions, he noted that about 75 per cent of the organized workers were members of the American Federation of Labor—and that, therefore, the chances of the CIO lay, not in the organized workers, but in the large number of unorganized. Los Angeles has many open shops, he noted.

The Screen Actors' Guild will never affiliate with the CIO, Mr. Casey feels. The rumor that it might was a consequence of the jurisdictional fight which the actors' organization, as part of its parent, the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, has been having with the American Federation of Labor and the Alliance.

Confer on Sales Drive

Nine independent managers conferred with C. L. Theuerkauf, Seattle branch manager for Universal, on the details of the Universal exhibitors sales drive.

William Holden, star of Columbia's "Golden Boy," is currently on a personal appearance tour which will include New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Detroit and Chicago.

Skouras Awards Total $75,000

National Theatres managers by the end of this year will have received an available maximum of $75,000 in cash awards for business increases under a system whereby the circuit shares profits with employees.

A total of $25,000 was distributed in the Spyros Skouras Showmanship Campaign which ended July 5th. In the fourth annual National Theatres drive which started last week, $25,000 will be distributed to district and theatre managers and another $25,000 has been set aside as bonuses for exceeding quota.

Last year the circuit gave away $15,000 in the Fall business drive. The present campaign started September 3rd and will continue 16 weeks to December 23rd. Thirty districts in the six divisions are competing and awards will go to the 12 high ranking districts and their house managers.

Up to this year National Theatres conducted its business increase drives on a divisional basis. It has been found, however, that campaigns conducted on the smaller district unit basis are more effective. Intensive supervision is applied from the home office and a committee in contact with the field.

The committe includes H. C. Cox, treasurer; Sumner Gambee, vice-president; Edward Zabel, William T. Powers, J. J. Sullivan, Milton Hossfeld, Irving Barry and Aubrey Schenck.

Middlesex Open All Year

The Middlesex Theatre, in Middletown, Connecticut, which formerly was darkened during the Summer, is now open all year, and is the "A" house of the town. The Capitol, which is also under Morris Pouzzner's operation, will increase its schedule from three days a week to a full week, with the opening, this Fall, of Wesleyan College.

Ralph DePalma Corporation has been licensed with 1,000 shares of stock at Albany, N. Y., to conduct a motion picture and theatrical business. Directors are Ralph DePalma, John B. Mezey and Walter Van B. Claussen.

Sidney Toler, who succeeded the late Warner Oland as "Charlie Chan," in the Twentieth Century-Fox detective story series, has been signed to a long-term contract to continue in the role indefinitely.

Jefferson Pictures, Inc., has been chartered at Albany, with Al and Joseph Rosen and Mabel Hudson as directors. Capitalization is $30,000.

Rufus LeMaire, executive assistant to Pandro S. Berman at RKO, has resigned. He was an executive at Universal before joining RKO.

THE PUBLIC

IS BEING TAUGHT TO DEMAND More Light

MORE LIGHT is the slogan of the day. From newspapers and magazines, the lecture platform and the school, the public is being taught the sight saving value of plenty of light.

Put your theater in step with this upward trend in light intensity. It has popular appeal. People like to enter a theater in which they can see their way to their seats. And they can do just that in the many theaters that are now equipped with high intensity projection.

Think this over if you still have low intensity projection. Those first minutes of blindness result from the low level of general illumination necessitated by lack of light on the screen. Don't let poor lighting drive your patrons to other theaters. Install Simplified High Intensity projection and attract that growing body of theater-goers who appreciate plenty of light.

33 STORIES PURCHASED IN AUGUST; PLAYS BRING $760,000 IN 1938-39

Universal Adds Five Originals; MGM Buys Oscar Wilde Story; Originals Again Account for Most Acquisitions

Fourteen producers purchased 33 stories and plays for use in the new season's product, in the final month, August, before the production year got under way.

Far less than the number bought in the same month last year, when 20 producers acquired 93 properties, the month's purchases nevertheless represent a substantial increase over the 26 bought in July.

Universal Leads

Universal led the list with five acquisitions, all originals; while Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, United Artists and Producers Pictures had four apiece. The MGM purchases included two originals, a book and a French film; UA had two originals and two books, and Producers Pictures had four originals.

For the 13th consecutive month, originals led all other types of material bought; accounting for 58 per cent of all properties with a total of 19 out of 33 purchases.

Among the outstanding acquisitions were "The Canterville Ghost," a short story by Oscar Wilde, bought by MGM; "Battalion of Death," an original by John Monk Saunders, purchased by Paramount for a reported $25,000, and "Dynasty of Death," a novel by J. T. Caldwell, on munitions manufacturers, purchased by Walter Wanger.

The Purchases

The month's purchases, with all available production credits, follows:

AND SO GOODBYE, original by Mildred Cramm and Adele Commandini, purchased by Lee Garmes.

BABAR, novel by Jean de Brunhoff, purchased by General Film Company.

BATTALION OF DEATH, original by John Monk Saunders, purchased by Paramount.

BLACKOUT OVER EUROPE, original by Jo Swerling, purchased by Samuel Goldwyn (United Artists).

CANTERVILLE GHOST, THE, novel by Oscar Wilde, purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

CISCO KID, THE, character from novel by Sydner Porter (O. Henry) to which rights were acquired for use in two films based on stories written by staff writers.

DYNASTY OF DEATH, novel by J. T. Caldwell, based on munitions barons, purchased by Walter Wanger (United Artists).

FOR ALL OF OUR LIVES, novel and McCall's magazine story, by Ursula Parrott, purchased by Columbia for Eastern production.

FORBIDDEN ISLANDS, original by Maurice Tombragel, purchased by Universal.

FORGOTTEN GIRLS, original by Martin Mooney and Alex Gottleib, purchased by Republic.

FORTY LITTLE MOTHERS, French scenario and films, purchased by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for Eddie Cantor, from National Pictures.

FOURTEEN UNCLES, original by Bertram Block and Peter Arno, purchased by Arcadia Pictures.

War Subject

GOOSE STEP, original by Shepard Traub, purchased by Producers Pictures. The film will be titled "Hitler, the Beast of Berlin."

Film Companies Have Bought 32 Stage Plays in 1937, '38 and So Far in '39; 14 Plays Sell for a Total of $760,000

Thirty-two stage plays have been purchased by film companies in 1937, 1938 and 1939 to date through the facilities of the Dramatists Guild. These plays have lasted three weeks or longer on Broadway. Plays which are unproduced or do not have a run of at least three weeks may be purchased outside the Guild.

In the 1938-39 season, motion picture companies paid a total of $760,000 for 14 plays, compared to a total of $700,000 for 12 plays during the 1937-38 season. The average price during the more recent season was $54,285 per play, while during 1937-38 it was $58,333.

$100,000 Average for 17 Plays

Prices paid for individual plays are not released by the Guild because film companies insist that their own publicity offices be permitted to handle these aspects of play purchases.

In pointing out that the present mimimum basic agreement between the film companies and the Guild on the purchase of stage plays has not restricted the purchase of motion picture rights, the Guild says that in the 1936-37 season, the first in which the agreement was operative, $1,750,000 was paid for 17 plays, for an average price of over $100,000 apiece.

Negotiations for modifications of the present agreement have been under way for some time among J. Robert Rubin, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vice-president; Sidney Fleisher, Guild attorney; Luise Sillcox, executive secretary of the Guild, and Jake Wilk, Warner Brothers' story editor.

The Titles

A list of the plays purchased during 1937 and 1938, and in 1939 to date, follows:

A tendency towards "real life, social problems, history and biography" is seen in original film stories by Alice Ames Winter, of the community service of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Among the originals cited by Mrs. Winter are "Ruler of the Seas," "Geronimo," "Victor Herbert," "Intermezzo," "Hollywood Cavalcade," "The Roarin' Twenties," "Swanee River," "Brigham Young" "Little Old New York" and "The Dictators."

Epstein in New York

Jack Epstein, Universal manager for Mexico, has arrived in New York for a short conference with J. H. Seidelman, vice-president in charge of foreign affairs, on the new Universal product and its distribution in Mexico. Mr. Epstein has been associated with Universal for 13 years, the last nine in his present post.

Building Houston Theatres

Four new theatres will be constructed in Houston, Tex., in the near future. Interstate Circuit is erecting one to cost $125,000; Hugh Potter will build one at an estimated cost of $100,000, which will be managed by P. P. Scott of Dallas; W. V. Ratcliff will build a $60,000 house, and Gass Theatres Corporation will erect the Studewood at a cost of $25,000. R. W. Glass formerly operated in Dallas.

Alliance Franchise

Popular Pictures, owned and managed by Ben Rogers with headquarters at 48 Melrose Street in Boston, has secured the New England franchise for the Alliance Films Corporation's program of 12 features for 1939-'40. The first release is "Dead Men Tell No Tales," starring Emlyn Williams.

Bettinson Representing Rialto

Ralph Bettinson, Hollywood representative of Pathe Pictures, Ltd., of England at Monogram, has been appointed Hollywood representative of the British film company, Rialto Productions. Rialto releases through Pathe in British Isles.

Set Warner Club Elections

The annual election of the board of governors and officers of the National Warner Club, Inc., will be held at the Warner home office September 30th. Delegates from all branches of the club will take part in the election.

George A. Crouch has been elected president of the Warner Club of Washington, D. C., John J. Payette continues as honorary president of the club, which is affiliated with the national organization of Warner Clubs. Harry E. Holmeyer, Fred Thomas, Fred McMillan and C. E. McGowan were named vice-presidents; Nat B. Browne, secretary, and George Larkin, treasurer.

Charles Ryan has been elected president of the Warner Club of Chicago. The board of governors now includes James E. Coston, Mr. Ryan, Alex Halperin, Larry Stein, Tom Gilliam, Henry Herbel, H. W. Wheeler, H. A. Turrell and I. H. Barron.

Command Performance

Joe E. Brown has received an invitation for the "command performance" sponsored by King George and Queen Elizabeth for the annual cinematograph Trade Benevolent Fund October 18th in London. The comedian, whose latest film is Paramount's "$1,000 a Touchdown," said he will attend if screen and radio commitments permit.

Closes "Sudan" Deals

Mitchell Leichter has closed deals on "Sudan" with Jack Adams for Texas and Oklahoma; Majestic Film Exchange for California, Nevada, Arizona, New Mexico, Hawaiian Islands and Alaska, and Tom Branon, Atlanta, for nine southern states.

ASCAP Plans Free Concerts

A music festival, free to the public, to be held at New York's Carnegie Hall, is planned for the week of October 1st to 7th by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, holder of copyrights on music played in theatres, over the radio, and in places of public entertainment. Film and radio personalities will be featured.

Announced in New York by Mayor Fiorella La Guardia on Sunday as "a monument dedicated to art and to peace," and designed to offset "the gloom of European events," the concerts will present works of the Society's members presented by a variety of orchestras, to embrace American music from "symphony to swing." Included are two concerts by the Boston Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky; a presentation of light operas by Frank Black; an evening devoted to the creative works of Negro composers; an evening devoted to Symphonic Jazz, Melody and "Swing," with Paul Whiteman and his orchestra, Benny Goodman and his band and Fred Waring and his orchestra and choir; an evening devoted to band music, presented by Edwin Franko Goldman's Band and others, and an evening devoted to popular songs written by composers of the Society. This will feature Rudy Vallee and his orchestra, and some of the leading composers will sing and play some of their own works, such as Irving Berlin, George M. Cohan, Richard Rodgers, Cole Porter, and others.

"There's going to be no profiteering on sorrow and anxiety," Mayor La Guardia said. "I know of no better way to get this message across than through music."

The cost of the program, which is estimated at several hundred thousand dollars, will be met by the Society as a method of observing its own 25th anniversary. Tickets will be issued by ASCAP in the order in which requests are received at its New York office in Rockefeller Center.

Finish Yiddish Film

Production on "Mirele Efros," Yiddish drama, produced by Roman Rebush for Credo Pictures, has been completed at the Film Art studios under the direction of Josef Berne.

Krieger Opens Office

Louis Krieger, who entered the motion picture business 31 years ago but has not been active in the industry for several years, has opened an office in Pittsburgh for International Pictures Distributing Company.

Reese Promoted

Carl Reese, Republic salesman, has been appointed manager of the Omaha office of Republic Pictures. Formerly, Mr. Reese had been with Fox for 10 years and with Universal for 12 years.

Lowe in Johannesburg

A. A. Lowe, managing director for United Artists in South Africa, has arrived in Johannesburg and formally opened the company's offices there, which will be the headquarters of United Artists operations in the territory.

WANTS BRAIN POWER MASSED AT STUDIOS

To the Editor of the Herald

Let us call this "What the Motion Picture Companies Don't Do for Me." I would like to take this opportunity to put in my two bits worth on just what is the matter with the motion picture business today.

I believe the story emanated from some MGM executive's office, to wit, "That there is nothing wrong with the motion picture business but what a good picture won't cure."

That is true, but who is doing what about it?

Every company in the business is screaming big budgets and wanting more money for the new season, this in the face and eyes of one of the most serious motion picture slumps since 1932. They promise great money making productions. You have to mortgage your house to pay some of the film rentals. Then, what happens? Eighty-five per cent of approximately every contract you play is inferior, stereotyped junk and you can't make enough on the other 15 per cent to pay the loss on the junk, let alone pay the said mortgage off. It seems to me that the film producers should take time off to think that the saturation point of peak film rentals was reached in the 37-38 film selling season, so why try to cram down the throats of the little fellow prices that are prohibitive.

Why not concentrate in their production department the brain power they are concentrating in their selling departments, figuring out new tricks to take more money from the exhibitor?

If the chief concentration was on making good pictures, the prices would adjust themselves. I imagine we are all a little sick of the usual guff, such as "Our Greatest Season in History" or "greatest budget ever," etc., etc. Why not a plain statement of fact, plus an emphasis on fair prices to all. I am sure the result would be amazing, as I know I am an average exhibitor and if I am making a fair return on my investment, I am sure I, as well as every other exhibitor, would push the product he is selling a little harder.

This is a bad condition and reflects itself on the entire industry. I say to you, producers, quit trying to hold us up with prices that are spelling suicide for the entire film business. Try and get closer to the men who have their problems in exhibition and make your price policy more elastic, so that your own men in your branches can regulate from year to year the price increase or decrease, as they are in closer touch with the individual.

This idea of setting a national policy of prices is as antiquated and ridiculous as dressing for summer weather at the North Pole, just because it might be July.

To give you an idea of what I mean, let me cite a case that happened to me. A year and a half ago, a major catastrophe happened in my town. A coal mine that had operated 31 years, employing hundreds of men, closed. I was buying an ——— contract at the time, and told the salesman I could not pay as much for the ——— as the year previous. He wired the information to his New York office. The answer that came back was absolutely amazing in its sympathy and understanding. (Quote): "Absolutely will not take a penny less than last year and will you please tell us what a coal mine closing down has to do with the price of ———." That, my friends, is complete understanding of the conditions that might exist by your average company official.—Fred Curtis, Managing Owner, Tepee Theatre, Thermopolis, Wyo.

Bromfield at Mansfield for Premiere of "Rains Came"

Louis Bromfield made a trip to his home town, Mansfield, Ohio, to help in the exploitation of the picture from his novel, "The Rains Came," for its world previere there simultaneously with the first showing of the picture at the Roxy in New York.

The picture played in two theatres for the Mansfield opening last Friday night. More than 3,200 persons crowded into the Ohio theatre and the Madison theatre for a showing at advanced admission prices.

The little town of Mansfield staged a regular Hollywood opening night with lights and a banquet at the Mansfield-Leland hotel preceding the screening. Mr. Bromfield was guest of honor at the dinner and was introduced to the guests by Mayor Harry M. Hunter. The banquet was attended by 278 of the town's leading citizens. In his speech Mr. Bromfield heaped praise on Mansfield and said it was the best home town any man could have. He also praised Darryl Zanuck for the faithful reproduction of his novel.

Hickey Gets Publicity Job

Duke Hickey, former trade writer and editor, who has recovered after an illness of almost two years duration, has been appointed by Johny Mednikow, in Chicago, to handle special publicity, advertising and exploitation of "When Germany Surrendered," rights to which Mr. Mednikow holds for Illinois, Michigan, Indiana and Missouri. Mr. Hickey was for more than a decade an exploitation man in the field for Universal.

LEE NEWBURY HEADS NEW JERSEY ALLIED

Advisory Board To Head Southern California ITO; Two Groups Set Dates

Two exhibitor meetings, one in the east and one on the coast, were concluded this week and two more, one in the south and one in the midwest, were set for the week after next.

In the east, Allied of New Jersey concluded a three day convention at Atlantic City electing Lee W. Newbury of Belman, president, to succeed George Gold, Newark, who was elected a director for one year. On the coast, the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California meeting at Los Angeles abolished the offices of president and directors and created an Advisory Board to govern the policies of the organization.

R. H. (Bob) Poole, business manager, was made executive director, while Albert A. Galston, past president; Jack Berman, R. D. Whitson, Mrs. Jenne Dodge, C. A. Ferry, Al Gore, H. W. Bruen and Mr. Poole comprise the Advisory Board.

Two Set Dates

The Tri-State Theatre Owners set September 24th and 25th in Memphis and the Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan set September 27th and 28th in Milwaukee as their convention dates.

Other officers elected by New Jersey Allied include Maurice J. Miller of Passaic and Ralph Wilkins of Pitman, vice-presidents; Harry H. Lowenstein of Newark, secretary, and David Snaper of New Brunswick, treasurer; Harry H. Hecht of Passaic, Mrs. Helen B. Hildinger of Trenton, Harry Kridel of Newark, Jacob Unger of Hillside, and Mr. Gold, directors.

A product survey among members showed very little change from last year in the film rental charges, except that more percentage deals were being demanded. The membership saw dangers in additional major companies producing trailers. Members contended that this service should be left to trailer companies.

A complete report of past officers at the Southern California ITO convention was unanimously approved by the membership, which gave the new board "complete authority to continue the fine progressive policies established by the association during the past year."

A statement on the trade practice agreement and local situation concessions, promised by William F. Rodgers, co-chairman of the distributor-exhibitor negotiating committee on the code, was not received because, ITO officials said, Mr. Rodgers lacked time.

Tri-State Owners Set Convention

The Tri-State Theatre Owners, an affiliate of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America, embracing Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee, will hold its convention at the Hotel Gayoso in Memphis, September 24th and 25th, according to R. X. Williams, Jr., president.

The Tri-State directors will meet September 24th at the hotel immediately prior to the opening of the regular sessions. A golf tournament will be a feature of the entertainment phase of the convention. M. A. Lightman of Memphis, chairman of the board, is in charge of the program.

Wisconsin ITPA To Meet September 27th

A variety of problems, including film buying and unhealthy competition from free shows and 16 mm. films, are expected to be discussed at a two day meeting in Milwaukee September 27th and 28h of the Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin and Upper Michigan, Inc.

Exhibitors in the area have done little film buying with few contracts for new product reported closed. New officers for the ensuing year will also be named at the convention.

Republic Closes Five Product Deals

Republic Pictures has closed deals with the Schine circuit and the Publix-Great States circuit, covering 75 theatres in Illinois and Indiana, for 1938-'39 product. The Schine deal covers 122 houses in New York, Ohio, Maryland and Delaware. The deal was closed in Gloversville, N. Y., with James R. Grainger, president, signing for Republic, J. Meyer Schine, Louis Schine, George Lynch and Louis Goldstein acted for the circuit.

Republic has set "Man of Conquest" in the Panama territory with bookings at the Tropical in Panama City and the Rex at Colon.

Republic has closed a new season product deal with Warners Pacific Coast theatres.

Republic has closed a contract with the Minnesota Amusement Company, operating 80 theatres in Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin.

Leroux Acquires Rights

Leroux Film and Trading Corporation, New York, has closed a deal for the North and South American distribution rights to "La Route Heroique," which is being produced by the French SIPEC company in Paris.

Peerless to Make Series

A series of action melodramas, calling for a maximum of eight and a minimum of six pictures, will be produced for the state rights market by Peerless Pictures, Inc., it was announced this week by Sam Efrus.

S. J. Francis, who recently acquired the Monogram franchise in Omaha, has moved the exchange to new and larger quarters on Film row. He also operates the American Distributing Corporation, handling films and portable equipment.

UA Production Called at Peak

With the coming half year conceded to be the "most important" in years, United Artists shortly will reach the highest peak of activity in 20 years, Murray Silverstone, chief executive of the company, said over the weekend, in New York.

Six of the United Artists' pictures are in front of the camera; five are completed and this week were awaiting release. Four more are in release.

Among new productions in work are "Rebecca" at Selznick International; "Send Another Coffin," Walter Wanger, and Samuel Goldwyn's "Raffles." Charles Chaplin has begun rehearsals of his tentatively designated "Production No. 6"; Alexander Korda's "Thief of Bagdad" is nearing completion and Hal Roach is well along with production of "Of Mice and Men."

Completed productions include Selznick's "Intermezzo"; Goldwyn's "The Real Glory"; Walter Wanger's "Eternally Yours"; Hal Roach's "The Housekeeper's Daughter," and Korda's "Over the Moon."

New season pictures already released are Wanger's "Winter Carnival," Korda's "Four Feathers," Edward Small's "The Man in the Iron Mask" and Goldwyn's "They Shall Have Music."

Approves Beacon Lease

John C. Knox, federal judge, this week approved a four-year lease on the Beacon theatre, New York, by the Beacon Theatre Corporation for an annual rental of $40,000. The Beacon was formerly operated by the Beacon and Midway Corporation which filed a petition in the United States district court in New York for a reorganization in May, 1936. Under the terms of the lease payment of rental is guaranteed by subsidiaries of RKO, Loew's Inc., and Skouras Theatres Corporation.

New Michigan Houses

The quarterly report of Allied Theatres of Michigan reveals that seven new houses have been added in Michigan. They are the Rainbow, Detroit; Albion, Albion; "B," Charlotte; New Century, Coopersville; Flatroc, Flat Rock; New Garden, Garden City, and the New Milan, Milan. Two theatres in the state are reported closed, the Wolverine and Times Square, both of Detroit; six houses upstate and one in Detroit changed hands in the period.

Collins in Legion Post

Tom Collins, nephew of the late M. E. Comerford and an official of the Comerford circuit, has been nominated without opposition for post commander of the Koch-Conley American Legion post.

The Dearborn theatre in Chicago, operated by Jones, Linick and Schaeffer, is the latest addition to the Allied Theatre group, according to Jack Kirsch, Allied of Illinois president.

A Yiddish film, "A Brivele der Mamen," released by Joseph Green's Sphinx Film Company, opened at the Waldorf theatre, New York, Thursday.

Warner Stars at Palomar Opening

Several Warner Brothers stars and featured players were to have attended the opening of the Fall season at John Danz's Palomar theatre in Seattle this week when the Warner-First National product has its initial showings there. "The Old Maid" will be the screen attraction.

Included among the players expected to appear are Hugh Herbert, Gloria Dickson, John Payne, Ronald Reagan, Dennis Morgan, Claire Windsor, Lya Lys, Jane Gilbert, William Lundigan, Jean Parker, Maris Wrixson, Seila Bromley, Lucille Fairbanks and Nanette Fabares.

Post Foreign Rights

Post Pictures Corporation will continue to handle foreign rights to the single reel color short subjects, "Popular Science" and "Unusual Occupations," produced by Jerry Fairbanks and Robert Carlisle. The agreement covers the 1939-'40 output on the two series.

Set Distribution Deal

J. H. Hoffberg, president of the J. H. Hoffberg Company, has closed a deal with Sam Nathanson, general sales manager of Coast Pictures Corporation, to handle Hoffberg's entire program in Southern California and Arizona. Coast Pictures was recently organized by Mr. Nathanson, formerly with Columbia; Maurice L. Fischer and Irwin E. Meyer.

Griffith Circuit Personnel Changes

The Griffith Amusement Company has made the following changes in personnel in cities that it operates theatres: E. R. Slocum, operator of the El Caro theatre in El Reno, Okla., has taken charge of all Griffith theatres in that city including the Criterion, Empress and Royal in addition to the El Caro, which the circuit acquired from him. Mr. Slocum has become a Griffith partner in El Reno.

Kenneth Blacklidge, who had been managing the El Reno theatres, has been transferred to Okmulgee, Okla., where he is now city manager for the circuit in charge of the Yale and Orpheum theatres. Turner Morrisett, city manager in Claremore, Okla., in charge of the Yale and Palace theatres there, has resigned and has been replaced by Calvin Council, who formerly managed the Wellington, Tex., theatres for the circuit.

W. L. Turk, city manager at Sunray, Tex., has been transferred to the Wellington theatres. Charles Oliver, assistant manager at Pampa, Tex., for Griffith, has been promoted to city manager of the Sunray, Tex., houses.

Ritter Continues Tour

Tex Ritter is continuing his personal appearance tour through the South and West, in which he visits Alliance, Ohio; Parkersburg and Moundsville, W. Va.; McConnellville, Nelsonville, Chillicothe and Galipolis, Ohio; Martin, Ashland and Cynthiana, Ky., and Ironton, Ohio. He returns to Hollywood and the Monogram studios September 20th.

Of 27 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in the past two weeks 19 were approved for general patronage, five were listed as unobjectionable for adults and three were cited as objectionable in part. The films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "The Adventures of Sherlock Holmes," "The Angels Wash Their Faces," "Babes in Arms," "Charlie Chan at Treasure Island," "Death Rides the Range," "Everything on Ice," "Fighting Gringo," "Flight at Midnight," "In Old Monterey," "Konga, the Wild Stallion," "The Man Who Dared," "Nancy Drew and the Hidden Staircase," "Nurse Edith Cavell," "Oklahoma Frontier," "Perpetual Sacrifice," "She Married a Cop," "The Television Spy," "Torchy Plays with Dynamite," "The Under-Pup." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Blackmail," "Dust Be My Destiny," "News Is Made at Night," "One Hour to Live," "The Witness Vanishes." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "Midnight Menace," "Royal Divorce," "The Women."

Loew Shifts Ad Men

Gene Murphy of the Loew's circuit advertising and publicity staff, is now handling newspaper contacts for the New York circuit and Loew's State advertising. George Sharf, who has been handling the State, has been placed in charge of Brooklyn newspaper contacts and Loew's Metropolitan publicity under Edward Dowden, Brooklyn publicity director.

Pathe History Reviewed In Brokerage Survey

Josephthal and Company, New York brokerage house, in a statement this week on the current financial position of Pathe Laboratories, Inc., reviews the history of the company, which was formed in February, 1939, to take over the business and assets of Pathe Film, with the exception of that company's holdings of du Pont Film Manufacturing Corporation stock, in accordance with a plan for segregation of assets approved by stockholders.

At the present time, according to the statement, Pathe Laboratories, is engaged in developing and printing motion picture films. It holds a five year contract running to January 1, 1942 to handle exclusively all news printing, negative developing and rush work of Pathe News, Inc. Another contract with Monogram extends until April, 1943. In addition the company does work for some of the small independent motion picture producers.

The statement said that to expand Pathe's sources of income the management has endeavored to expand by manufacturing or distributing other products which would utilize its present laboratory and negative printing facilities. The statement listed the miniature movie camera called "Movie Viewer" and the "Pathe Film Recorder," an automatic, high-speed document camera for microfilming loose sheet papers of various sizes, as new developments to be exploited.

Second Series of Meetings In Kent Drive Are Begun

The second series of branch meetings for the S. R. Kent sales drive for Twentieth Century-Fox was begun in Los Angeles a week ago with Herman Wobber, general sales manager, and M. A. Levy, Minneapolis district manager and drive leader, conducting the rally.

The meetings will wind up at the New York exchange September 19th. Division and district managers will accompany Mr. Levy on his visits around the country. Mr. Wobber will attend the sessions at San Francisco, Portland, Salt Lake City and Denver.

William J. Kupper, western division head, will join Mr. Levy at Denver, and W. C. Gehring and William Sussman, division managers, will accompany him in the central and eastern sections, respectively. The meetings will be attended by sales staffs, bookers and ad sales managers, with staffs from two to four exchanges present.

Cosmic, Friedman and Documentary Formed

New incorporations at Albany, N. Y. this week were: Cosmic Theatrical Agency, Inc., 200 shares, no par value, directors Tony Kobrin, Max Tepperman, and Albert Leving; Documentary Film Productions, Inc., motion pictures, by John W. Cosgrove, Edwin Lindgren, and David Jackson; and Friedman Theatrical Enterprises, Inc., Newburgh, authorized to issue $100,000 of capital stock. Directors of this organization are Theodore J. Friedman, of Suffern; Harry J. Friedman, of Newburgh; and Rose Friedman, of the Bronx. Papers were submitted by Joseph Friedman. of Catskill.

Jack Cohn To Tour South American Cities

Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, plans a tour of the company's South American exchanges in the fall. He will be accompanied by Joseph A. McConville, foreign manager. The two will go first to Buenos Aires to attend the company's convention there, in October.

Following that session, Mr. Cohn and Mr. McConville will undertake an extensive tour of the Columbia Latin American America offices, visiting Rio de Janeiro, Montevideo, Caracas and other Latin American centers.

The South American trip marks a final stage in a series of visits by Mr. Cohn to the company's exchanges in foreign countries. He recently toured offices in England and France.

Paramount Trailers To Start January 5th

Paramount's announcement last May, at its sales convention, that it would with the new season start producing its own trailers, which up to now have been produced and distributed by National Screen Service, was followed Tuesday by a decision to make the first Paramount trailer available for the feature to be released January 5, 1940.

In the announcement it was stated that the company believes that a trailer planned, made and distributed by the men who make the pictures can be packed with more showmanship, more originality, and more right-on-the-picture selling power than a trailer made any other way. Paramount plans to issue two styles of trailer for each picture, a De Luxe trailer for first-run houses and a regular trailer for subsequent runs.

Free Films Hurting Wisconsin Theatres

Wisconsin exhibitors are searching for some means of controlling the showing of free 16 mm. films by outdoor amusement parks, resorts and even dairy and ice cream stands. While producers and distributors claim they have no jurisdiction over these films, state exhibitors in resort territories are finding the competition serious.

One exhibitor operating theatres in a town of 5,000 population reports at least seven resorts and parks in his area showing free films and attracting as many as 25,000 persons. Competition from jackrabbit operators in Wisconsin has always been bad but this added opposition presents a serious problem for exhibitors.

AT&T Reduction on Leased Wire Rate

The long lines department of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company announced this week that it had filed a new rate schedule with the Federal Communications Commission, reducing charges for certain of its private line services. The reduction will total slightly more than $1,000,000 a year and is filed to become effective on September 16th.

The security business, it was announced, will be the chief beneficiary of the proposed new rate setup, but it will also affect some industrial companies and transportation services. Some 700 to 800 clients of the long lines department will gain by the reduction. Muzak wired music uses the service.

Batsel Completes Tour of Midwest

Max C. Batsel, RCA Photophone's chief engineer, has returned to Camden, N. J., from a tour of several midwestern cities where he visited more than a score of exhibitors and circuit operators to obtain their viewpoints on the practical operating phases of motion picture sound recording and reproducing.

"The research and development laboratories have been making better and better recording methods available to the industry," Mr. Batsel said, "and they have matched these advances with comparably improved reproducing equipment for the theatre, with which to pass on to the public the full measure of entertainment which Hollywood puts into the music and the dramatic sound effects of the modern motion picture.

"I found that some exhibitors are not getting anywhere near the full entertainment value out of their pictures or their sound equipment. Often, when the sound in a picture begins to work up to a dramatic climax, they turn down the volume, either out of ignorance or because their obsolete reproducing equipment does not have the power. Either way, all Hollywood's efforts to advance the art with effective, dramatic sound are stopped at the very point of sale to the public."

WPA Writers Project Continues in New York

The Federal Writers Project, which, according to Congressional decree, was to dissolve by September 1st unless sponsored locally, will be continued next year in New York State outside of New York City, under the sponsorship of the Bureau of State Publicity of the State Department of Conservation. One of the Project's works is a bibliography of the motion picture business, being compiled in conjunction with Iris Barry of the Museum of Modern Art Film Library.

The main effort of the New York State Writers Project has been devoted to the preparation of "The Guide to the Empire State," the manuscript of which is reported to be in the "pre-final" stage before publication.

Film Industry Hearings On Belgian Trade Treaty

The motion picture industry, in common with other business, will have an opportunity to file briefs in support of or in opposition to tariff concessions as proposed in the new trade treaty with Belgium which will be negotiated by the U. S. Department of State. The committee for reciprocity information has set September 16th as the closing date for filing briefs, and has announced that hearings relative to the new treaty will begin October 2nd.

On the list of products to be negotiated on are sensitized but not exposed or developed motion picture film having a width of one inch or more, and photographic films sensitized but not exposed or developed having a width of less than one inch.

Ray Higdon has been retained by Partnership Theatres, Inc., Dallas, Tex., as contact man in an expansion program. At present he will work in Arkansas, but his activities will include Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Arizona.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

BLONDIE and BLONDIE MEETS THE BOSS: Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake, Larry Simms—We used these two pictures on bargain nights to get them introduced but are promoting the rest of the Blondie series to better and bigger nights. For real entertainment for all the family you can't beat them. And we were afraid of them. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 28-29.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

CLOUDS OVER EUROPE: Laurence Olivier, Valerie Hobson, Ralph Richardson—Entertaining programer. Pleased generally. The title will draw too. Running time, 70 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

FLIGHT TO FAME: Charles Farrell, Jacqueline Wells—A very good action picture for a dual bill. Saved our face as we double billed it with "Storm in a Teacup."—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GOOD GIRLS GO TO PARIS: Melvyn Douglas, Joan Blondell, Walter Connolly—A clever little comedy with Walter Connolly the whole show. Was well received but will not stand extended runs. Running time, 78 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Richard Barthelmess, Thomas Mitchell—Another top picture from Columbia. However, we had too much competition to rate it. Jean Arthur and Cary Grant turn in fine performances and I am sure everyone is glad to welcome Richard Barthelmess back. If your patrons like aviation epics out of the ordinary, they will go for this one. Running time, 127 minutes. Played September 1-2.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

SMASHING THE SPY RING: Fay Wray, Ralph Bellamy—Fine for any situation that likes action. Played it on weekend with western. Did average business. War tension reacted on box office.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

First National

ANGELS WASH THEIR FACES: "Dead End Kids," Ann Sheridan, Ronald Reagan, Bonita Granville, Frankie Thomas—This picture is a decided disappointment if one is to compare it with "Angels with Dirty Faces," and since the title would suggest a comparison, it should have been a much better picture. However, we did above average business on Sunday and Monday but our patrons were expecting it to measure up to "Angels with Dirty Faces." There are some amusing situations but the payoff comes when they dig up laws as "spitting on the sidewalk" and "bowling on Sunday" to catch the tough crooks who would shoot to kill at the bat of an eye. It looks like silly, childish stuff to me. Ronald Reagan is coming to the front and gives a smooth performance. Ann Sheridan is supposed to be the "oomph" girl but she has a hard time showing much "oomph" in this atmosphere. Warner Brothers have the edge on other producers on such shows as this and they make it believable in spite of weak story. It has its amusing situations and some exciting scenes, but you will hear your customers trying to compare it with "Angels with Dirty Faces" and the answer is "No, that fine picture is hard to beat!" Running time, 86 minutes. Played August 27-28.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

CONFESSIONS OF A NAZI SPY: Edward G. Robinson, Francis Lederer, Paul Lukas—I was kind of disappointed in the picture and the majority of the patrons were, too. It was drawn out and while it was fairly interesting, there wasn't enough to it to round out the story. No one walked out but there were a lot that didn't care for it. I think a better job could have been done on the material they had to produce it with. Running time, 100 minutes. Played August 11-13.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

COWBOY QUARTERBACK, THE: Bert Wheeler, Marie Wilson, Gloria Dickson—A little early for the football season but the picture has its funny moments and the usual weekend crowd got a big kick out of the comedy.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DARK VICTORY: Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald—This picture was very well taken and drew extra business. The acting of Bette Davis is superb. Running time, 106 minutes. Played August 25-27.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

EACH DAWN I DIE: James Cagney, George Raft, Jane Bryan, George Bancroft—Here is a swell picture that will stand up in any spot. True, it is one of those gangster and penitentiary pictures that Warner Brothers have flooded our theatres with, but it is definitely a much higher type picture. It is sordid, brutal and cruel but it will hold interest from beginning to end. James Cagney gets better with every picture and he and George Raft turn out excellent performances. The jailhouse scenes, which constitute most of the picture, are the best I have ever seen on a screen and all the supporting players handle their parts to perfection. You can't go wrong on this one. It has box office appeal outside and customer appeal inside. I could not say many nice things about "Angels Wash Their Faces" but this powerful and frank melodrama certainly deserves all praises. Hats off to Warner Brothers for this one! Running time, 92 minutes. Played August 29-30.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

EACH DAWN I DIE: James Cagney, George Raft, Jane Bryan, George Bancroft—One of the best of the Cagneys from Warner.—B. C. Brown, Vernon and Temple Theatres, Viroqua, Wis. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—We did a very nice business on this picture for two nights, then ran into one of those championship soft ball games and the third night was just a washout. The picture pleased about as good as any but Metro slapped percentage on this after allocating at flat rental.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—This may be heresy but on this series, although they do business, they are getting into a rut and liable to bog down, if they don't get away from the stereotyped scenarios that have been the last three pictures. Base story and here it is; check me, if I am wrong. Stone gets into financial difficulties, pulling out okay at the last moment. Mickey falls in love and does a lot of mugging and believe it or not, the man to man stuff is getting slightly raspberry. There is just the deadly sameness to them and the audience is beginning to realize it. However, they have not slipped yet. But, I don't see how Metro can continually use this same old routine and keep the Hardys on top.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Good picture; good business. Played August 30-31.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

BAD MAN OF BRIMSTONE: Wallace Beery, Virginia Bruce, Dennis Morgan—Played in place of "Broadway Serenade," and while we didn't break any house records, it saved us a loss on the other picture. It is still about as good as any of the big outdoor epics, and if you can get a print, I would say book it. —Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

BROADWAY SERENADE: Jeanette MacDonald, Lew Ayres, Frank Morgan, Ian Hunter—Feature had its points but very few. The songs were up to standard but nothing to go with them. This girl is not much of a draw without her old screen sweetheart, Eddy. Could have done better with another Tarzan picture. Running time, 112 minutes. Played July 23-24.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore—Not as good as the first but it took well. Seems to me that there could and should be more action in these. They sort of saunter along from one situation to another and never get any real action sequence as the general public visualize a hospital. Running time, 88 minutes. Played July 30-31.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—Don't expect this to lift the mortgage but it's a swell show. The magazines give it a good boost but Metro's trailer will kill it for you. If I were playing it again, I wouldn't run the trailer. Everybody reads the movie magazines and they have been full of praise for this picture. Run it any time. Running time, 114 minutes. Played August 23-24.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—A very artistic production that held interest from beginning to end. It pleased generally. Played August 27-28.—B. C. Brown, Vernon and Temple Theatres, Viroqua, Wis. General patronage.

HARDYS RIDE HIGH, THE: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Not so good as "Out West with the Hardys" but still very good entertainment. Mickey, as usual, is a riot and all other members of the cast give an excellent performance. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 11-13.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

IT'S A WONDERFUL WORLD: James Stewart, Claudette Colbert, Guy Kibbee, Nat Pendleton—James Stewart gets better in every role he plays and he was plenty good to start. Claudette Colbert is very good while Guy Kibbee and Nat Pendleton never fail to furnish the comedy. Goofy story but pleased. Running time, 96 minutes. Played August 25-27.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

KID FROM TEXAS, THE: Dennie O'Keefe, Florence Rice—We ran this bargain night and what a bargain. Good any time. Plenty of action and loaded with comedy. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 22.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

LADY OF THE TROPICS: Robert Taylor, Hedy Lamarr—Classy. The lady has "oomph." Picture entertaining. Extended runs in any spot and it's clicking. Running time, 68 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

LADY OF THE TROPICS: Robert Taylor, Hedy Lamarr—We did only fair with a big bally on Hedy, and while the picture isn't so much a record breaker, we did have a lot of favorable comments on the most beautiful star in pictures. Metro have their sights set pretty high, seemingly thinking that there is just as much business as ever and they can't change. You can do all right with this one, if they'll allocate it right, but don't pay top prices.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LET FREEDOM RING: Nelson Eddy, Virginia Bruce, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Guy Kibbee, Victor McLaglen—Very fine picture which did not draw the rural patronage we thought it should. You'd be surprised the number of people who do not come to see a Nelson Eddy picture because they think he is going to sing some of those operatic numbers. This picture had a wonderful ending which all Americans should see at this particular time. Running time, 87 minutes. Played September 1-2.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

LUCKY NIGHT: Myrna Loy, Robert Taylor—Excellent entertainment with plenty of comedy, which is what they want. Myrna Loy is one of the best stars on the screen and Robert Taylor is always good. Very good supporting cast. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 8-12.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LUCKY NIGHT: Myrna Loy, Robert Taylor—A fine show that was well liked. It has a few dead spots but there is enough else to please most everyone. Lots of good laughs and comedy situations. Running time, 83 minutes. Played August 13-14.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

LUCKY NIGHT: Robert Taylor, Myrna Loy—Weak story which was well played but did not draw worth a darn. In fact, was the weakest Sunday-Monday program in weeks. Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 27-28.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

MAISIE: Ann Sothern, Robert Young—Tops in comedy with Ann Sothern coming into the niche she so richly deserves. Very, very good for a short run. Running time, 74 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MAISIE: Ann Sothern, Robert Young—Excellent. Have had requests from people who missed it to have it back again and it only played five days ago. The picture just has everything. Running time, 75 minutes. Played August 20-21.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

TARZAN FINDS A SON!: Johnny Weissmuller Maureen O'Sullivan—There is no need to go in length on the box office merits of this picture. If you haven't run it, grab it, give it your best playing time, go heavy on the advertising and your customers will do the rest! It's a box office natural for any town, large or small. Running time, 82 minutes. Played July 23-24.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

TELL NO TALES: Melvyn Douglas, Louise Platt —This one surprised me. It turned out to be a swell little mystery story with action and suspense. Very fine mid-week or Friday-Saturday picture. Running time, 68 minutes. Played August 15-17.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

TELL NO TALES: Melvyn Douglas, Louise Platt —Here is a dandy little program picture. Lots better than most of the big specials. Melvyn Douglas at the head of a large newspaper does a very nice job as an amateur detective. The story is interesting and will hold attention of the theatregoers from start to finish. Running time, 69 minutes. Played August 25-26.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

WOMEN, THE: Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, Paulette Goddard, Mary Boland, Joan Fontaine—This picture is slow starting and the action is slow but there are some of the best lines in it that any picture can boast of in the past few years. Rosalind Russell practically steals the show and if you can sell the title, the picture will satisfy. It's plenty long, so cut out the shorts. Played September 3-5.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Monogram

MYSTERY OF MR. WONG, THE: Boris Karloff, Dorothy Tree—Not as entertaining as the first Mr. Wong picture. This series seems to go pretty well here. They aren't big but they certainly hold your interest as well as having unusual plots. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 28-29.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

Paramount

HERITAGE OF THE DESERT: Donald Woods, Evelyn Venable—Above average western that did a fair business. Most people remember the original story of this but it wasn't the show it could have been. Played it double bill and got by nicely. Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 21-22.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

INVITATION TO HAPPINESS: Irene Dunne, Fred MacMurray—An entertaining B picture that got by nicely. No extended runs. Running time, 95 minutes. —W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN: Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes, Rochester—I may be a little late reporting on this picture as we ran it in July. Top billing should have gone to that colored boy, Rochester, who packs a wallop in every scene and steals the show from Jack Benny, although I must say after his bad break in "Artists and Models Abroad," Jack Benny proves himself a much better actor with more amusing situations. In my opinion, Dorothy Lamour does not sing as well as she did and a lot of my patrons back me up on this. We did a good business on this picture and I repeat, watch this Rochester boy because he knows his stuff! Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 27-28.—Mrs. W. A. Wight, Rex Theatre, Konawa, Okla. Small town patronage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN: Rochester, Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes—Note the heading of the cast. Well, that tells the tale. His stooge took the ball away from Benny and made a touchdown. Yes, sir, that's what he did, and hence it was a good picture with Rochester committing plain larceny.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN: Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes, Rochester—Good picture; good business. Rochester steals the show. Played August 27-28.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SOME LIKE IT HOT: Bob Hope, Shirley Ross, Una Merkel, Gene Krupa and His Orchestra—Played with "Charlie Chan in Reno." Made a fairly entertaining program. They won't walk out.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Towne, Maine. General patronage.

SOME LIKE IT HOT: Bob Hope, Shirley Ross, Gene Krupa and His Orchestra, Una Merkel—Produced for the younger generation. Sadly disappointed in Bob Hope in this picture as he usually does well here. However, Gene Krupa helps a lot. Business way below average. Running time, 64 minutes. Played August 30-31.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa, Rural patronage.

UNMARRIED: Buck Jones, Helen Twelvetrees—Buck Jones fans were surprised and pained to find him cast as a prize fighter instead of a western star. Just a program picture. Played September 1-2.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

Republic

BLUE MONTANA SKIES: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, June Storey—They seem to keep coming to these Autrys, proving that he is popular.—B. C. Brown, Vernon and Temple Theatres, Viroqua, Wis. General patronage.

THREE TEXAS STEERS: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Carole Landis —Everyone seemed to like this. No raves. Played during war tension, which reacted on box office.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

FISHERMAN'S WHARF: Bobby Breen, Leo Carrillo, Henry Armetta—Bobby Breen is no good in this town at all. The fishing fleet was in and a few of them turned out and walked out. Didn't do any business; played it straight percentage and they got the lowest rental I have paid this year. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 18-19.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

STORY OF VERNON AND IRENE CASTLE, THE: Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire, Edna May Oliver, Walter Brennan—While not as lavish or spectacular as other Rogers and Astaire productions, it's good entertainment. If you can get 'em inside, they will talk it up 100 per cent. The oldtime songs everyone enjoys. Running time, 93 minutes. Played September 3-4.—R. A. Moore, State Theatre, Clarence, Iowa. Rural patronage.

TWELVE CROWDED HOURS: Richard Dix, Lucille Ball—Poorest business in years. Did not make film rental. Just poor B product. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 24.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

BOY FRIEND: Jane Withers, Richard Bond, Arleen Whelan—Not up to the last couple of Withers pictures. It got a lot of laughs and still beat any Shirley Temple show I have seen. This little gal has what it takes and is well liked and we can use more of her. Running time, 72 minutes. Played August 4-5.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

BOY FRIEND: Jane Withers, Richard Bond, Arleen Whelan—Hardly up to Withers standards but did some extra business at the box office. Running time, 72 minutes. Played August 25-26.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN IN RENO: Sidney Toler, Phyllis Brooks, Ricardo Cortez—Played with "Some Like It Hot." Made a fairly entertaining program. They won't walk out.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN IN RENO: Sidney Toler, Phyllis Brooks, Ricardo Cortez—A good picture that pleased a bargain night crowd and worth a date on your off nights. Patrons seem to like Toler about as well as Oland, but the series never was a record breaker for us.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

FRONTIER MARSHAL: Randolph Scott, Nancy Kelly, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes—This is a good picture that pleased but we couldn't get many in to see it. The price made us use it on a single bill and on Friday and Saturday but this class of patronage is noticeable by its absence. Takes more than a "Frontier Marshal" to get them in.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

FRONTIER MARSHAL, THE: Randolph Scott, Nancy Kelly, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes—A better than average outdoor picture. Played too soon after the other big outdoor pictures and against "Each Dawn I Die." Both did well, however.—B. C. Brown, Vernon and Temple Theatres, Viroqua, Wis. General patronage.

HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, THE: Richard Greene, Basil Rathbone, Wendy Barrie, Nigel Bruce—Didn't know so many people read books till we played this. They liked it and they came out to see it fairly well, considering the weather. Running time, 80 minutes. Played August 9-10.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

IT COULD HAPPEN TO YOU: Gloria Stuart, Stuart Erwin—Willie, get the hammer; there's a fly on baby's head. Running time, 68 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

NEWS IS MADE AT NIGHT: Preston Foster, Lynn Bari—A mighty good programmer that is just full of action and comedy. We used it on a double with "Waterfront" and had plenty of stuff to please a small Friday and Saturday crowd. Played September 1-2.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

NEWS IS MADE AT NIGHT: Preston Foster, Lynn Bari—Just another picture; not strong enough to stand alone. Played August 29.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RETURN OF THE CISCO KID, THE: Warner Baxter, Cesar Romero, Lynn Bari, Henry Hull—A good Friday-Saturday or bargain night picture but definitely not a Sunday picture. That was our mistake. Fox didn't sell it to us for a Sunday picture but it has entertainment value and you'll need about three shorts to fill out a program. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 27-28.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

RETURN OF THE CISCO KID, THE: Warner Baxter, Lynn Bari, Cesar Romero, Henry Hull—Picture is pretty fair but wish I had played a good Gene Autry instead. Would have done twice the business and realized more profit. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 22-24.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

RETURN OF THE CISCO KID, THE: Warner Baxter, Lynn Bari, Cesar Romero, Henry Hull—Not a bad little picture. Enjoyed by all who saw it. Did not do so well because of Burt County Fair at Oakland. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 23-24.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

ROSE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Al Jolson—I would not say better than "Alexander's Ragtime Band" but will say just as dog-gone good. Enjoyed by the young as well as the older folks. We sure would like to see a lot more of Al Jolson in the future. Running time, 71 minutes. Played August 27-29.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

United Artists

I MET MY LOVE AGAIN: Henry Fonda, Joan Bennett—Although on old picture, it really isn't bad. Have seen much worse films. Henry and Joan make a nice little team. Running time, 78 minutes. Played August 30-31.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

STORM IN A TEACUP: Vivien Leigh, Rex Harrison—Brother exhibitor, if I ever gave you an honest tip, "don't play this one." They don't come much worse. So bad I was ashamed to meet our customers. Made customers one week and lost them the next week. Such film waste is a detriment for the film industry. Don't ask us what we did because we didn't do. The trailer was enough. If it were a free show, I doubt if they would come in, even to get away from their mother-in-law.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

STAGECOACH: Claire Trevor, John Wayne, Andy Devine, George Bancroft, Thomas Mitchell, Louise Platt—Very good show that would have been just as good if it would have been twenty minutes shorter. Not enough action for the length. Running time, 96 minutes. Played September 1-3.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Rural and small town patronage.

TRADE WINDS: Fredric March, Joan Bennett, Ralph Bellamy, Ann Sothern—An entertaining picture that did not deserve the beating it took at the box office. Took a nose dive that left my poor dog, Michael, wondering where the next bone was coming from. Fredric March is a forgotten man so far as my patrons are concerned. Joan Bennett is very good but the real star is Ann Sothern. That girl is headed for stardom. She is even better in this than she was in "Maisie." Pleased the very few who came. Running time, 95 minutes. Played September 1-3.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WINTER CARNIVAL: Ann Sheridan, Richard Carlson, Helen Parrish, Robert Armstrong—Sheridan may have "oomph" but the picture didn't. It is very poor and the chill wind not only blew over Dartmouth,, it blew over the audience, and they hurried out of the storm through the exits.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

WUTHERING HEIGHTS: Laurence Olivier, Merle Oberon, David Niven, Geraldine Fitzgerald, Flora Robson—Split decisions on this. The elite were enthusiastic and the common run not so certain. In fact, they were very doubtful if it was worth their money. The acting is tops and the recording just so-so. It is very heavy and no comedy relief. And I am frank in saying that it is not a picture that has much chance of doing business the second day in a rural town. That was true here.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

Warner Brothers

DEVIL'S ISLAND: Boris Karloff, Nedda Harrigan —Well, this held up to average for mid-week but the trailer drove people away instead of increasing business. They put all the gruesomeness they could find in the trailer and the people are not looking for that these days. Running time, 62 minutes. Played August 30-31.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

DODGE CITY: Olivia de Havilland, Errol Flynn, Ann Sheridan, Alan Hale, Bruce Cabot, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—Nothing can be added to the many favorable reports that have appeared. It was a small town natural for us.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HELL'S KITCHEN: "Dead End Kids," Margaret Lindsay, Ronald Reagan—Excellent entertainment for my crowd and thoroughly enjoyed by all. Many complimentary remarks, which helps in these days of depression in our line. Play it by all means. Running time, 80 minutes. Played September 7.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

HELL'S KITCHEN: "Dead End Kids," Margaret Lindsay, Ronald Reagan—This time it's hockey and what a game. About on a par with their best efforts. Some like them and on a bargain night this picture really pleased.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT NICE: Dick Powell, Ann Sheridan, Gale Page—Powell didn't sing enough for most people. They said they wanted to hear more from him. The picture has lots of laughs. There is pep most of the time and most everyone will get a kick out of it. Running time, 91 minutes. Played August 6-7.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

SECRET SERVICE OF THE AIR: Ronald Reagan, John Litel, Irene Rhodes—An excellent action drama with several old time airplane shots that made this picture one that was well taken by the audiences. Running time, 61 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WATERFRONT: Dennis Morgan, Gloria Dickson, Marie Wilson—This new boy has some good looks and ability but the rough spots need smoothing off. The picture has action and that is what it takes to please the weekend patrons, if you can get them in. We can't—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

COUSIN WILBUR: Our Gang—Better than most of the recent Gang comedies.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DARK MAGIC: Robert Benchley—This is one of the good Benchley shorts. He buys his kid a lot of parlor tricks but they don't work so good.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DOG DAZE: Our Gang—The usual Our Gang laugh riot. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

DUEL PERSONALITIES: Our Gang—A good comedy but this series is getting a trifle worn and threadbare. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GIANT OF NORWAY: Passing Parade, No. 7—Entertaining.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

GOLDILOCKS AND THE THREE BEARS: Cartoons—We have set this twice, have advertised it, then Metro pulled it out and substituted. That don't make us any friends and what a disappointment to the kids.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HAPPILY BURIED: Musical Comedies—Excellent two-reel musical. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HOLLYWOOD HOBBIES: MGM Miniatures—Pretty good but I couldn't make my patrons believe that a new-born colt could be so frisky.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

HOW TO EAT: Robert Benchley—Entertaining single reel. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LITTLE GOLDFISH, THE: Cartoons—Excellent.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SEAL SKINNERS: Cartoons—My patrons cannot see these sepia cartoons after the wonderful cartoons. No good.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

TINY TROUBLES: Our Gang—Metro went back to the old midget gag for this one but it is very good. Drew a lot of laughs and they all enjoyed it. Running time, 10 minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

WANTED: NO MASTER: Cartoons—Wanted: no more of these sepia cartoons. Not worth the electricity it took to run it.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WHILE AMERICA SLEEPS: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—A short on the spy ring activities in this country that should be repeated if you have already run this one. Excellent. Running time, 18 minutes. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YANKEE DOODLE GOES TO TOWN: Passing Parade, No. 6—An excellent reel and timely.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

DATE TO SKATE, A: Popeye the Sailor—Good Popeye and if you have ever learned to skate, you will appreciate it. Running time, six minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

FROLICKING FROGS: Grantland Rice Sportlights

—Some of the ladies didn't like frogs but the subject is very fine and interesting. Running time, eight minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

PARAMOUNT PICTORIAL: No. 12—Interesting filler.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

UNUSUAL OCCUPATIONS: No. 6—Entertaining.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BROTHER GOLFERS: RKO Pathe Sportscope—No entertainment value. Fancy having to pay for such bunk to entertain educated people. Running time, one reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

CLEAN SWEEP, A: Edgar Kennedy Comedies—Kennedy is always good for laughs. This one is average and they like it. Running time, 16 minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

CRIME RAVE: Leon Errol Comedies—Little better than the average from this company. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME: No. 12—This is the best in a long time. Our patrons are getting very tired of the war subjects in March of Time this year.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

POINTER, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—A fair Disney cartoon.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SEA SCOUTS: Walt Disney Cartoons—A perfect picture cartoon.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

TALENT AUCTION: Nu-Atlas Productions—Good single reel. Running time, one reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

UGLY DUCKLING, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—Next to "Ferdinand the Bull," this is one of Disney s best cartoons. Lots of laughs. Running time, eight minutes.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

GANDY THE GOOSE IN DOOMSDAY: Terry-Toons—Better than some cartoons but still not up to average short subject entertainment. Running time, seven minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

GANDY THE GOOSE IN DOOMSDAY: Terry-Toons—Color cartoon that is quite good. Based on a fable, it goes well with everyone. Running time, seven minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

GANDY THE GOOSE IN G-MAN JITTERS: Terry-Toons—Just another cartoon. Why don't some film company make a few good comedies. These animated affairs are a waste of time and money. Running time, seven minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

HOUSEWIFE HERMAN: Terry-Toons—This is a very poor cartoon. The kids wouldn't even stay to see the second showing. Running time, eight minutes.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

HUNTING DOGS: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—If you have any hunters or dog lovers, this will go over big. Running time, 11 minutes.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

HUNTING DOGS: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Men will like this reel on trailing dogs.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: Unquestionably the best.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

OLD FIRE HORSE: Terry-Toons—Good black and white cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

TEMPEST OVER TUNIS: Magic Carpet Series—Would be OK if you have plenty of short subjects with it. Running time, 10 minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

YOUTH IN THE SADDLE: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—For horse lovers, very good. Running time, 10½ minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

Universal

GOING PLACES: No. 63—This is a trip through the Adler Planetarium of Chicago and is a very dry subject for a small town. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HAWAIIAN CAPERS: Mentone Musical Comedies—Very poor. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STRANGER THAN FICTION: No. 63—Very good with plenty of diversification. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

BLUE BARRON AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Another band act that seemed to please.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CLYDE LUCAS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Most of these Melody Masters are okay. Some have enough variety to be different.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

GOLD RUSH DAZE: Merrie Melodies—A good colored cartoon and worth a date.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

KNIGHT IS YOUNG: Hal LeRoy—Another one from Vitaphone that isn't so good. Got quite a few remarks on how fine the shorts were but when we came to this one it let the program down again. Running time, 18 minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

LITTLE PANCHO VANILLA: Merrie Melodies—One of the cutest cartoons we have ever run, including Disneys. If your audience know anything about Mexicans or their language, they'll get a big kick out of this. Running time, seven minutes.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. Small town and country patronage.

MERLE KENDRICKS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Just fair.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MINUTE FROM DEATH, A: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Good as any of these True Adventures. Will make you sit up and take notice in spots.—Mayme P. Musselman Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MIRACLES OF SPORT: Color Parade—The print on this was so bad that we only tried to run it one time, then canned it and shipped it back. Would have been all right if we could have kept it in the machine.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

NAUGHTY BUT MICE: Merrie Melodies — Good cartoon in color.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

NIGHT WATCHMAN: Merrie Melodies—Good color cartoon. These cartoons are one place where Vitaphone really do us some good. Running time, six minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

PORKY AND TEABISCUIT: Looney Tunes—A good cartoon that pleased the kids.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

PORKY AND TEABISCUIT: Looney Tunes—One of the best black and white cartoons this season. Running time, six minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PORKY'S MOVIE MYSTERY: Looney Tunes—Good black and white cartoon.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RAY KINNEY AND HIS HAWAIIANS: Melody Masters—Very fine. Play it. Orchids to Warners.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

ROBBIN' GOOD: Vitaphone Varieties—A good expose of the crooked gamblers, and worth a date.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

ROBIN HOOD MAKES GOOD: Merrie Melodies—Another colored cartoon that did fill in some running time. Kids like these and after all they rate some consideration.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SEEING SPOTS: Broadway Brevities—Very ordinary. Running time, 20 minutes.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SMALL TOWN IDOL, A: Broadway Brevities—Be sure to date this one. It will bring back a lot of memories and it really is funny. All about the movies of Mack Sennett days. It will do you good to hear them laugh at this old timer.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

SNOW MAN'S LAND: Merrie Melodies—A clever little cartoon that was well received. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STAR DUST: Benny Davis—Have had no luck with most of Vitaphone shorts in black and white. Running time, 16 minutes.—G. R. Borden, Jr., AM-BC Theatre, Blaine, Wash. General patronage.

TAX TROUBLE: Vitaphone Varieties — A very good Grouch Club. Plenty of laughs for all. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

THUGS WITH DIRTY MUGS: Merrie Melodies—A very good cartoon with plenty of laughs. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

TWO SHADOWS: Broadway Brevities—Just fair entertainment. Print on this not so good. Running time, 18 minutes.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

WITNESS TROUBLE: Vitaphone Varieties—Just ordinary. Running time, 10 minutes.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Serial

Columbia

SPIDER'S WEB, THE: Warren Hull, Iris Meredith—We have just run the ninth episode and are using it on bargain night, so get them back each week. They make plenty of fun of this serial but go to see it on that account. Think maybe they are right.—Mayme P. Musselman, Princess Theatre, Lincoln, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Cedric Worth, screen writer; Robert Richards, former managing editor of the March of Time radio program, and Peter Lyon, radio writer, have been added to the staff of The March of Time, according to Louis de Rochemont, March of Time producer.

UNIVERSAL NET IS IMPROVEMENT OF $1,743,102 FOR NINE MONTHS

Pathe and Telephone Company Both Show Profit; Paramount Votes Dividend, Twentieth Century-Fox on Preferred

In the midst of the war news came the announcement this week that Universal Pictures earned a net profit of $989,955 for the nine months ending on July 29th of this year.

Two other corporations, allied with and in the motion picture industry, Pathe Film Corporation, and American Telephone and Telegraph Company, issued financial figures, Pathe disclosing less profit this year than last, and the A. T. & T. showing an improvement over its income one year ago.

Taking a "long view," and citing "the present uncertainty of revenue from foreign markets," the directors of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation passed the dividend on the company's common stock. However, they voted a dividend of 37½ cents per share, on the outstanding preferred.

The Universal figures were for the consolidated profit, after all charges, but before federal income taxes. They were contained in a letter by J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, to the stockholders.

$1,743,102 Improvement

The figures represent an improvement of $1,743,102 over the same nine months in 1938 and an improvement of $2,126,964 over the same period in 1937. In 1938, the company had a loss of $753,107; in 1937, a loss of $1,136,968.

In 1936 the company showed a loss of $812,473 for a similar period. The new profit figures represent an improvement of $1,802,469.

Dividend on Preferred

At the same time, the company's directors voted a dividend of 37½ cents per share for the third quarter of 1939 on the outstanding preferred stock, payable September 30th to stockholders of record on September 18th.

The Pathe Film Corporation financial report shows a decline in net profits, thus: $35,310 for the six months ended June 30th, 1939, against $51,679 for the same period in 1938.

The consolidated income account for the six months, compares with previous years, as follows:

	1939	1938	1937
Income from film development, rents, etc.	$173,477	$483,974	$705,436
Costs and expenses	201,475	511,956	680,057
Operating loss	$ 27,998	$ 27,982	*$ 25,379
Other income	71,501	80,821	84,224
Total income	$ 43,503	$ 52,839	$109,603
Interest, etc.	8,193	1,160	5,054
Net profit	$ 35,310	$ 51,679	$104,549

*Profit.

The A. T. & T. report shows a large improvement for the seven months of this year up to July 31st, amounting to a net income of $80,673,486, against $75,881,172 a year ago. This includes dividends received from subsidiary and other companies.

Directors of Western Electric on this Tuesday voted a dividend of 75 cents per share on its common stock. This is payable on September 30th, this year, to stockholders of record on September 22d, 1939.

The directors of Paramount Pictures, Inc., on Tuesday declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 per share on first preferred stock and the regular quarterly dividend of 15c per share on the second preferred stock. These dividends are payable on Oct. 2, 1939, to stockholders of record at the close of business on September 22, 1939.

Marcus Loew's Theatres, Ltd., in Toronto, operating Loew's Yonge Street and leasing the Uptown to Famous Players Canadian Corporation, has declared a further payment of dividend arrears on the preferred shares of the company, the latest distribution, payable September 30th, being the interest of 3½ per cent for the half yearly period ending June 30, 1937.

Columbia Films' Consolidated Statement for 53 Weeks Period

Columbia Pictures, in the 53 weeks ended July 1, 1939, showed a net profit of $2,046.76, after provisions for federal and other taxes, as reported in MOTION PICTURE HERALD last week. The company's consolidated statement of operations and earned surplus account follows:

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

ABOUT THE WAR

One member writes that, in an endeavor to bring war-curious patrons away from their radios to the theatre, he is using the house p.a. between breaks to announce important moves on the European front. The service is carried in newspaper copy and, according to the Round Tabler, is appreciated by his patrons.

At this stage of the conflict, obviously, the war is crowding everything else off the front page. It can be reasoned that the newness of the situation has created a desire for spot news and the manager who aims to satisfy it is merely doing his job.

There are also those who say that folks are looking to the theatre for entertainment to relax from the menace of what is happening overseas. They argue that the manager can contribute importantly to that relaxation by soft-pedaling within reason aspects of war that do not concern his immediate program.

There can be no arbitrary regulation to fit every theatre. How much of it is to pass under the general heading of entertainment will be determined by the individual situation. At the present, it would seem a safer bet to restrict war stuff to the screen.

It was a tremendous storm that hit New York in the late afternoon of the opening day of "The Rains Came" at the Roxy. And immediately, the office wits declared it an exploitation stunt on behalf of the picture. Which prompted Gert Merriam to declare that if it was, the timing was perfect, since the rains came only during the supper show at the theatre.

SALVAGING LOST GROSSES

That his situation is a 15-cent fourth-run, dependent mainly upon return dates, is not the reason why Woodrow Praught is praised here for his profitable handling of the Empress, in Rochester, Minn. The bow is extended to the manager for the ingenuity used in presenting his wares within the confines of a tiny budget without cutting in on the other Minnesota Amusement houses in the same spot. Instances of these exploitations are detailed elsewhere in the pages to indicate the Round Tabler's precision in this direction.

It is expected that business missed on a date in one situation often will be picked up by a subsequent-run playing the same program. Praught's showmanship is distinguished for salvaging from a potential patronage of transient trade those extra grosses that otherwise might completely be lost to the local theatres.

BOXOFFICE FOR EVERYONE

Whether or not the weather at this writing points to it, the recent all-star benefit games announce that football is once again in the sport spotlight. Which is not set down as a reminder to knowing theatremen that pigskin tieins are now in order. By now, a lot of boxoffice hookups are in process of arrangement. As reports arrive on what they are and where, the members will be told.

Increasing interest in the professional game and continued popularity of the amateurs, college and high school, make football the Number One publicity tiein on the sports page of every newspaper. No matter what size his community, the manager who realizes this interest can declare himself in.

COMPILED BY A THEATREMAN

Any volume that eases the business of keeping readily understood theatre records is obviously to be welcomed by the many exhibitors who seek a simple and airtight system. Thus, your Chairman is pleased now to put in an honest plug on behalf of "Theatre Management Record and Annual Tax Register", compiled by Ted Sullivan, Quigley Publishing Company comptroller, and distributed by this organization.

In addition to being a fancy figure-man, Mr. Sullivan is a kind of "rare bird", by instinct and experience a showman who knows all the bookkeeping answers. That should be recommendation enough.

Round Table In Pictures

At right are the managers of the Chakeres-Warner Theatres who met in Springfield, Ohio, to attend a two-day convention presided over by Phil Chakeres, general manager, with Mike Chakeres, city manager, in charge of the program. Speakers included Frank Collins, district manager in Ohio, and Charles Fry, contact manager.

Fifty of the cards reproduced below were distributed around Miami by Alfred Weiss, Jr., as advance on "Bachelor Mother" at the Olympia. Cards good for admissions had to be presented at the boxoffice by a red-headed girl and could not be rolled or folded in any way. Another street bally used by Al was man in dress suit and top hat pushing bannered perambulator.

Entire front of the Colonial Theatre in Detroit was converted into cell effect by Manager B. V. Samuels for his date on "Blackwell's Island". Consisting mostly of 30 by 40 inch black-and-white blowups, title letters were silhouetted against a simulated brick wall. Scene stills were also profusely spotted. . . . Novel lobby display two weeks ahead of opening of "The Man in the Iron Mask" was created by Round Tabler William Waldron at the Hollywood Theatre in East Orange, N. J. Cross-sabres and shield were planted at base of blowup with suit of armor and accoutrements at left.

Selling local lumber company on the idea of building a bungalow in the lobby of Loew's in Houston, Texas, Homer McCallon, publicist, proceeded to plant blowups of stills from new season hits inside the house. Doors at each end permitted patrons to walk through the display. Total cost to theatre-man was for carpenter's time.

An "Upside-down Man" street gag was used by Round Tabler Billie Popham for his engagement on "Wrong Way Corrigan" at the Roxy Theatre in Saskatoon, Sask., Canada. With feet protruding from the top of a 24-sheet sandwich sign, and walking on his "hands" with head hanging down, the man covered business districts and wherever crowds congregated.

Chief stunt in advance of "Maisie" at the Princess in Sioux City, Iowa, was the street bally illustrated above by Warren Butler. Girls distributed visiting cards to passersby reading: "For the grandest show you've ever seen, make a date to see 'Maisie' ".

Stunt conceived by Maurice Gable of the Boyd in Philadelphia for "The Wizard of Oz" is reproduced above. Costumes were promoted from the Studios and the group toured the town distributing heralds. Colonel Casper, shown in the photograph, actually worked in the production.

Contacting the Hella Temple Shrine in Dallas, Louie Charninsky at the Capitol got them to hold a special show at his house for ladies and kiddies of the Shrine. In the foreground may be seen Louie on hand to greet his guests. Cost was met by organization.

Summer Campaign Raises Grosses At Fourth-Run House

The Empress, in Rochester, Minn., a "C" situation depending mainly upon repeat dates during the summer months, enjoyed a successful season nevertheless, according to Charlie Winchell, Minnesota Amusement ad head, who reports highlights of the summer merchandising campaign executed by Manager Woodrow Praught, and aimed directly for new business from transients.

Since the theatre does not afford a cooling plant, Praught overcame this handicap by giving the house the effect of coolness especially out front. Lighting, in and out, was in keeping. Effective, also, was a price campaign, featured by a two-dollar rubber stamp marked "Attend the 15c Empress Theatre Tonight" with which the doorman stamped paper bags, meal checks, etc., mornings before house opened. The price angle was also emphasized with the use of dollar-bill cellophane covers used for distribution to patrons in change. Covers were marked: "This dollar will buy 6⅔ adult admissions to the Empress Theatre, approximately 13½ hours of perfect summer entertainment." The reverse side contained dates on coming attractions, the low admission price again emphasized.

Mailing Service Offered

Visitors were further encouraged with a lobby "Guest Book," card inviting out-of-towners to sign names and addresses. Copy also announced that cashier would on request furnish free postcards to be mailed back home. Address side contained theatre greetings with reverse left blank for message. Additionally, and at cost of few passes, Praught tied in with local shopping news to run on front-page list of coming attractions and to offer passes to readers whose initials correspond with those of any pictures listed.

Fronts Draw Transient Trade

The Round Tabler leaning heavily upon his front to attract transients, did very well with "Heart of the North" by transforming the lobby into a trading post background, the effect heightened by use of real bear skins, deer antlers, etc. Under canopy was suspended a bannered canoe and real paddles used in the lobby panels. Entire cost, including painting of salvaged material, came to some twelve dollars. House-to-house distribution of flashy heralds also aided.

"Boys' Town Is Coming Back," the campaign theme for the return of that date, was used in many ways, as circular stickers, on window cards, in ads. Ingenious was typewritten copy on the picture enclosed in regular eight by ten frames and suspended from the canopy right in the path of passersby. It received a surprising amount of attention, says Woodrow. "Submarine Patrol" return date was sold by tieing in with recent sub disasters in front and in ads. On "Too Hot to Handle," Praught hung a regular window shade out front with small card below inviting passersby to "pull down for a present surprise." Copy on shade told about picture.

MANAGERS ANNOUNCE BULLETINS OF WAR

As is to be expected, theatremen are employing various devices to tie war news to their programs. In Washington, Ind., A. J. ("Kal") Kalberer has promoted a radio from local dealer over which important reports are announced, but only during breaks. The tiein has helped keep grosses up to normal, "Kal" says.

In South Norwalk, Conn., Al Hamilton promoted the Empress into the special edition, announcing the war, of the local Sentinel, the only daily in that sector to put out a Sunday issue for the occasion. Hamilton bought 500 copies for distribution at the theatre, in return for front-page box plugging first-run newsreel war pictures. Al also delivered papers in surrounding towns.

Many Ingenious Gags Employed by Leighton

Novelty heralds on "Four Feathers" were distributed by Bert Leighton of the Grand, in Lancaster, Pa. in the form of firecrackers. Rolled and wrapped in red cellophane the words "It's Dynamite" in bold letters showed through. On opening, herald contained cut of scene still together with picture copy, title, cast and playdates.

Another good stunt used by Leighton on "Miracles for Sale," was a miniature floating lady illusion working all day in front of the theatre. Display was a small cabinet with glass front and back so that the curious could look right through. In the middle, apparently unsuspended was a cutout of a girl lying on a small couch, girl continually floated through the air in a circular motion. Apparatus was borrowed from a local baking company who used it for advertising purposes.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Visitors Snapped at Fair Invited to "Name Only"

A tieup with the Ohio State Fair, asking visitors to identify themselves and worked out with the aid of the Columbus Citizen, highlighted the exploitation arranged by Manager Harry Schreiber, of the Palace, in Columbus, for his date on "In Name Only." Run daily in the cooperating paper were blowups of photographs of some of the Fair's visitors and to those identifying themselves, guest tickets were awarded. The paper in return devoted a daily news column to the stunt, large banners were spotted around the Fair grounds for the entire week crediting the theatre, attraction and playdate, and Station WKKC carried a special daily half-hour broadcast in connection with the contest.

Street Broadcast Featured

Other features included a man-on-the-street program over WCOL which asked the question: "What should a woman do who suddenly discovers she is a wife in name only?" This 15-minute program was broadcast day in advance and continued opening day, in this connection passes also were presented to those participating.

"Loew Moviegoer" Published by Bell Is Self-Sustaining

Already established firmly in the attentions of the capital city's theatre patrons is "Loew's Moviegoer," distributed gratis to patrons of the Capitol, Palace and Columbia theatres in Washington, originated, published and edited by Ray Bell, Washington Loew Theatres publicist. It is being printed by the Daily News and the format is the same as that tabloid. Size runs eight pages. 25,000 copies are printed each two to three weeks, while distribution is accomplished principally by ushers in each of the three houses, supplemented with distribution of four to five thousand by magazine counters of local five-and-tens.

Ratio of three pages of ads to five of editorial content is to be maintained, object is to be self-sustaining, thus only enough ads to defray cost are sought. Space is based at $25 the full column including the usual agency commission. Cost per issue averages $300. Two initial issues have each been self-sufficient. Bell does not publish until there is ad space to defray full cost. Publicist has himself solicited ads from merchants who have been cooperative in the past, and one of the town's largest laundries will occupy back page either every issue or every other issue. Ray is now working on six-month and year contracts.

Guest Columns Regularly Featured

Bell writes all local stories plus editorial column. Other material is obtained directly from major studios. M-G-M and the Loew home office are regularly shooting in material especially designed for the publication. Each issue also has a guest column contributed either by local critic or person of prominence. Publication also features contests with either theatre or producer providing prizes. For instance, in next issue Bell will feature "My Son, My Son" casting contest for which United Artists is donating ten copies of the novel.

Bell is lining up several capable writing youngsters at nominal cost who will periodically do research work for original articles. While mats are obtained from the studios, Ray desires to use original engravings wherever possible.

Trailers will announce each issue, suggesting that patrons ask ushers for free copy when leaving the theatre. One-sheets are stationed in each lobby, readers mailed to drama editors and three radio commentators have likewise discussed the publication on their programs.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Van Dyck's Lobby Artist

Lobby stunt arranged by Manager Eric Van Dyck for "These Glamorous Girls" at Loew's 83rd Street, New York City, was artist in lobby week ahead of opening painting oil portraits of Lew Ayres and Lana Turner. In addition, the finished drawings were offered to the two best entries submitted on a one word title for Lana Turner, such as "Oomph Girl," etc., etc.

Leand Inaugurates Baseball Party For Revere Youth

Conceived by Harold Leand of the Revere Theatre, in Revere, Mass., was a slant to send as many local boys as wanted to go, to a big league ball game in nearby Boston, permission secured from Bob Quinn, president of the Boston Bees to bring the boys in free. Cooperation of the Revere Journal was sought by the theatreman and received. It then became solely a matter of transportation to get the boys to the game and back. The Revere and Boulevard Theatres, another unit in the same circuit, started things off with a contribution equivalent to the cost of four buses with the paper donating two, local organizations, service clubs and city officials following suit.

Coupon was run in the cooperating paper for boys to fill out, giving credit to the theatre as co-sponsor. Parents' permission had to be given by signature on the coupon, which boys brought to either theatre. Registration was then made and each lad given a numbered bus ticket, said tickets being numbered to enable Leand to keep a check on the number of buses which would finally be required. Publicity emphasized that boys did not have to buy an admission ticket to the theatre to register.

Leand Writes Publicity

To insure the theatres getting a fair break in the newspaper publicity, Harold wrote all the newspaper stories as per agreement with the paper. From a local market, Leand promoted bags of popcorn, and since he was over-subscribed on buses, additional funds were available for other goodies for the kids.

Day of the game, boys met at the two local theatres, where an amateur contest was held in order to keep them quiet while waiting time for departure. Passes were awarded to participants. Prominent men acted as chaperones, and entourage was led by police escort as they paraded through all parts of the city. Buses, needless to say, were properly bannered. At the end of the game all boys were checked back into the buses and all declared it a banner day, so much so that it has already been decided to make it an annual event.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Street Bally and Contest Aid Wright on "Million"

Teaser bally was used by Erle Wright before leaving Schine's Paramount for the Strand, in Syracuse, as an advance on "I Stole a Million." Man dressed in shabby clothing crouched in doorways with his face hidden. As forlks approached he displayed a cardboard sign on which was printed "They hunt me like a beast of prey because I stole a million." For window contest, money bags were planted stuffed with fake money, guest tickets went to those coming closest to guessing amount contained.

On "Leading Citizen," Wright arranged for the Mayor's office to appoint a committee to select the leading citizen who was presented with the Bob Burns plaque, arrangements were handled through the Chamber of Commerce.

Blondes Race Brunettes In Advance of "Name Only"

A foot race against time and obstacles between a dozen beautiful blondes and as many attractive brunettes was the climax to the exploitation campaign arranged by Manager Don Cottrall at the Chief Theatre, Colorado Springs, for "In Name Only." Race was between neighboring resort cities to determine whether a blonde could outdistance a brunette or vice versa. All contestants carried cards reading "Racing to see" etc. etc. and stunt was covered by local newspapers.

Other features included distribution of heralds to auto camps, restaurants, filling stations and other tourist gathering places crediting the attraction, theatre and playdates. Special attractive window displays were secured, numerous spot announcements, in additional to lobby and hotel displays.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Relative of Houston Guest at "Conquest"

Reported by Perry Spencer, director of publicity for Republic Pictures of the southeast, is the campaign executed on "Man of Conquest" by James Howell, manager of the Riviera Theatre, at Knoxville, Tenn. Additional newspaper coverage was secured through the invitation extended to a cousin of Sam Houston, a local city judge. Relative was invited to the opening and much was made over the event. Papers also devoted a front-page spread to Richard Dix as Houston and another page on the "Fall of the Alamo."

Station WROL got into the spirit by running a man-on-the-street broadcast, guest tickets to those correctly answering questions pertaining to the picture. Numerous book windows were secured, mill district was canvassed with catchy heralds, and display of old and up-to-date guns were featured.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Tree Stationed in Lobby Aids "On Borrowed Time"

Carrying out the theme of "On Borrowed Time," Manager Henry Sutton at the Regent, in Pittsburgh planted a tree in his lobby two weeks ahead spotted on which were seven snipes which carried appropriate tiein copy. Also stressed by the theatreman throughout his campaign was the fact that the picture should be seen from the beginning. Postcards were mailed to doctors and nurses, trailer was run three weeks ahead stating that because of the unusual theme and ending no one would be seated during the last 15 minutes and in front of his house, Sutton pasted a 24-sheet with two arrows pointing to it.

Exploitation Briefs Here & There

Before transferring from Schine's Hippodrome to the Glove, in Gloversville, Manager Lou Hart on "East Side of Heaven" tied up local milk company for some space ads tying in Sandy and the picture. In addition, dairy distributed milk bottle hangers, which they paid for, and gave away ice cream at the theatre on a lucky number gag.

On "Four Girls in White" a teaser campaign was engaged in by Wayne Sweeney at the La Porte, in La Porte, Ind. Preview was held for nurses, the morning ahead of opening, any local nurse invited to attend in uniform if desired. For his street stunt, Sweeney dressed four girls in nurses uniforms and had them cover downtown area with appropriate tiein copy.

Highly laudatory letter over the signature of Fred E. Forry was sent out by him for the engagement of "Young Mr. Lincoln" at the Colonial Theatre, in Lancaster, Pa. Appealing to American youth and educators, the theatre man sent his letter to a special list, urging them to see the picture and recommend it to their friends.

For his showing of the golf short "Smooth Approach," William Briemann, at the Ambassador, in Baltimore, sent special letters of commendation to the secretaries of various clubs around Baltimore and the vicinity urging each of those addressed to bring the short and the bulletin enclosed to the attention of their membership.

On "Only Angels Have Wings," Frank Shaffer, Dixie Theatre, Staunton, Va., printed up several thousand tinted heralds which were distributed and inserted in the Sunday Washington Post, and given to factory workers. Throwaways were made up with special permission received from local newspaper to use their masthead. Mailing list was covered by postcards which were sent from New York, local restaurants aided by plugging the date on their menus and special lobby display was set up for the occasion with scene stills, cutouts, etc.

Anyone passing the Broadway in Baltimore couldn't help but know that "Wuthering Heights" was opening, since Manager Robert Marhenke pasted a 24 sheet to the sidewalk in front of house and then varnished over it. Bob planted it two days ahead and during run where it drew much comment from his patrons.

Some additional newspaper publicity was garnered by Mike Carroll of the American Theatre, in Bridgeport, Conn., when he recently arranged for a local aged woman who had never seen a movie to be guested by him at the opening of "Wuthering Heights." Papers took up the stunt and wrote human interest stories in all of which the theatre and picture were prominently mentioned.

Chicago Warnermen Report Activities

Numerous are the activities engaged in by the various managers in the Herbert Wheeler-Charles Ryan sector of the Warner Theatres in Chicago and below are detailed some of their doings.

To exploit "On Borrowed Time," Manager Fred Reeths at the Sheboygan, in Sheboygan, Wis., the first big mailing list of the summer to all the lake cottages and surrounding country was put out, using the theatre special list to appeal to the class trade. In addition, on opening day a fur fashion show was staged with the cooperation of local dry goods company. Special invitations, radio advertising and telegrams on the morning of the opening were sent out.

Arranged for by Marlowe Conner, at the Rhodes in Chicago was a lobby display of Mexican mementos from the collection of a local merchant and used in advance of "Juarez." In addition, the Paul Muni plaque was on advance display in window of cooperating merchant, later moved to the theatre lobby during run of picture.

Sedlack Holds Archery Contest

Contacting local archery range, E. Sedlack at the Shore, in Chicago for "Return of the Cisco Kid," sold them on the idea of having a target made up with picture of Warner Baxter and title of picture. A card was placed next to the target offering passes to those hitting a bullseye. Archery sponsor was supplied with seven passes a day, four days in advance.

On "Union Pacific," Manager R. O. Dunn at the Orpheum in Hammond, Ind., secured the cooperation of local paper on a classified ad page contest. Idea was to have the readers pick out the stations along the "Union Pacific" route, the names of the stations being hidden among the classified ads. Winners received guest tickets.

Field Dresses Staff for "Conquest"

Renting a frontiersman costume which was donned by house usher, J. P. Field, at the Grove in Chicago sent the lad out with rifle and back sign selling "Man of Conquest." Usher visited all soft ball game courts and covered business districts and other spots where crowds congregated. Field also sent a letter to local librarian selling the idea of having her patrons read the story of "The Life of Sam Houston, Savior of Texas" and then see the picture at the Grove. This was secured in exchange for two passes to the librarian.

While for "Ex-Champ," Field promoted show store in his neighborhood on a stunt whereby guest tickets were given to every father and son purchasing shoes at a certain time on a certain day. Picture was well tied into the stunt.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Spieler Sells "Rapture" for Johnson

Borrowing a stuffed pachyderm from a localite, Don Johnson planted the animal outside the Vic Theatre, in Indiana Harbor, Ind., as his advance on "Dark Rapture." Mounting it on a base which was covered with artificial grass, the elephant created plenty of attention during run of picture. Opening night, man in tropical uniform performed with a whip and continued a spiel about the show.

Rules for the Quigley Awards

Awards are now voted on single exploitations and not on complete campaigns as formerly. This includes goodwill and institutional ideas as well as those on pictures.

Each Quarter is divided into two-week preliminary contests.

Winners in each preliminary are appointed Fortnighters.

Entries of Fortnighters in each Quarter are judged for Quigley Quarterly Plaques, Medals, Citations.

Quarterly Plaque, Medal and Citation Winners are appointed Quartermasters.

Entrants registering the best records of Quigley Plaques, Medals and Citations in the four Quarters will be eligible for the Grand Awards judging.

There are no classifications of population or situation. Everyone starts from scratch.

Every theatreman everywhere is eligible to compete.

All product is eligible — features, shorts, serials. Also stage shows, amateur presentations, etc.

More than one idea may be included in one entry but Preliminary Awards will be voted for best individual idea.

No fancy entries are necessary. With the usual "evidence", submit brief description and "reasons why" an entry should be considered.

At this writing, two two-week Fortnight periods still remain in the Third Quarter, the ending of which is set for October 14th. It is to be kept in mind that, with everything else equal, theatremen who score more often in the Fortnighters will receive greater consideration in voting the Quarter-Master Awards.

It Takes Lots of Savvy to Operate a Theatre

Which Is Indicated in Addresses by Schine-men at the Recent Convention

The most important meetings at the August managers' conference of the Schine Theatres in Gloversville, had to do with intracircuit discussions on vital phases of operation. Pithy talks were made by home office heads and men in the field. From verbatim reports recently received is set down in part what the boys had to say about what, as follows:

by LOUIS GOLDSTEIN

Head Booker, Home Office

It is recognized that intelligent booking is our life blood, consequently, very great thought and discussion is given to every picture before it is booked. Every feature picture and a large number of shorts are screened in the private screening room at home office.

A committee consisting of Mr. L. W. Schine, George Lynch, all Bookers, and the Publicity Department, usually eight of us, look at each picture and hand in a confidential written report. These reports are then studied and thoroughly discussed before a single booking is made. No one man's judgment is taken or acted upon. We try in every way to book the product in such a way as will give maximum results. When we are in doubt we try out a picture in five or six spots to get the public's reaction before booking it generally.

After all this is done each Booker gives each individual situation close study and consideration based upon these discussions plus past experience and upon what the picture has done elsewhere in towns of similar kinds.

Big ballyhoo emanates from the source of the film production but the reputation of the theatre depends upon the local theatre manager.

Merchandising the theatre therefore seems one of the natural business efforts any theatre man would put forth. If the name of the theatre itself has gained real prestige, the manager operating it has something upon which he can bank for patronage come great films or poor ones.

The theatre must be regarded as a community institution, just as the City Hall, bank, civic center, etc. This needs the constant build-up by aggressive showmanship to sell the theatre itself as an attraction. Prestige and a loyal following of resident patronage is what keeps the successful community theatre operating profitably even when the screen attractions do not have a star or story drawing power.

The theatre realizes its greatest business building efficiency when it is tied up intimately to the community through constant cultivation of the neighbor to neighbor spirit in its publicity advertising and public relations.

by JIM LEVINE

District Manager in Ohio

It is an indisputable psychological fact that if you leave people standing for any length of time with their tickets in their hands, the urge upon the more impatient ones to leave the theatre and use their tickets some other day is much greater than if their tickets have been already taken from them. Furthermore, less impatient ones seeing the others leave, will often also leave, because of mass psychology.

It is more important, therefore, to try to get as many people past the doorman as you possibly can by moving the doorman out further into the lobby than where he normally stands. We would call this "position No. 2," and where you have a double set of doors, it would be at the outer set. In some of our theatres, there are three sets of doors (or two sets with considerable space between the inside doors, and where the doorman usually stands) so that the doorman can even take up a third position if necessary. By moving him from his normal station to the second position, and finally out to the third position, most of the patrons waiting in the lobby will have given up their tickets and are thus less liable to walk away. Even though we have received the money at the box-office the first night, we lose on subsequent nights if people buy tickets, walk away and use the tickets later. In other words, we get only one admission instead of two.

Says Keep Line Moving

Another psychological fact is that people are usually satisfied to stand even for long periods if the line is moving, be it ever so slowly. People willingly stand in line for two hours or more to see the General Motors Exhibit at the World's Fair just because the line is always slowly moving. It's the same in the theatre. The Manager and floor staff should use all their ingenuity to keeping the lobby standees moving even if they let in only two patrons at one time in short but frequent intervals. This can be usually accomplished by posting an usher at the entrance to the foyer. As soon as he sees a few people being ushered to seats, he will open the door and admit two more people to stand in the foyer. At the same time, this usher can announce in a pleasant voice that "seats will be available shortly" or some other reassuring message to those still standing outside.

I am not interested in mere artistry, but in the showmanship which makes money for the theatre. If you cannot get back with a profit every dime you spend on the effects we discuss, do not use them. Don't spend company money to gratify your own artistic ambitions, or only to get what looks good when reported in the trade paper. The only test of practical showmanship is the box office. This is cold turkey, but we like it sliced that way. Any other slicing would be just baloney.

The better a showman you are, the more you can do with less money. It is the way you use your show-sense rather than the way you spend money that counts. Some of the most attractive effects are gotten with pennies. Some of the dullest have been the most expensive. Spending is no substitute for show-sense.

Every holiday or local celebration gives you an opportunity for showmanship. At such times your patrons are in the mood of the holidays. They will respond to appeals that are focused on the sentiment of the occasion. Your community is anxious to celebrate in the spirit of the holiday and it is the theatre that gives the right setting. On patriotic holidays, besides displaying the flag or bunting or insignia, you can have some patriotic number on your program—even if it is only a soloist. The enjoyment of a program is enhanced by this timeliness.

It is your duty to analyze your business and prove that a change is necessary, if you think it is. Do not, however, suggest changes just because you have a hunch that a change would be better. You have got to back up your arguments with cold, logical facts. This can only be done if you learn to intelligently analyze your business.

You must learn to draw conclusions from the figures available. You have enough records in the theatre to give you the necessary data on past experience and by making comparisons of comparable periods, you will be able to intelligently diagnose any trouble you may have.

For example, three months ago, you may have had a change of policy from a 3-2-2 to a 2-2-2-1. To analyze the results of the new policy, it is necessary to figure out the average business each day that you have done since the inception of the new policy and compare it with the average daily business for the same period before the change, taking into consideration, of course, any natural seasonal fluctuations. You will then be able to see over a respective period what effect the policy has had on each day's receipts and form your conclusions accordingly.

Analyze your attendance. Study the hourly box office statement. Don't just be a manager of a theatre. Develop an analytical mind. Don't be satisfied with the surface impressions. Dig down into the guts of your business and discard from your mind all non-essentials.

PAST "FORTNIGHT" EXPLOITATIONS

Forester Hosts Organization Heads At "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" Opening

Dressing the old telegram gag up and wording it in a sincere and convincing manner, Eddie Forester, at the Omaha, in Omaha, Nebraska, addressed his message to the heads of approximately 200 small groups such as sewing circles, bridge clubs, etc., copy reading "Critics have said 'Goodbye, Mr. Chips' is the greatest motion picture ever produced. Knowing your organization is interested in good things, we wish to say that this very human masterpiece starts at the Omaha on blank date. This telegram admits yourself and one as our guests on the opening day." Telegrams were timed to dovetail right in after Forester's private screenings. In addition, a 15-minute gratis broadcast was received over WOW by the Better Homes editor, who was one of the invited guests.

Prison Implement Exhibit Planted By Lampe for "Each Dawn I Die"

Implements used by convicts of the Onondaga Penitentiary in attempted and successful escapes from imprisonment were obtained from the superintendent by Gus Lampe for display at the Keith Theatre, in Syracuse for "Each Dawn I Die." Attached to each article was a self-explanatory card. Entire exhibit was placed in display case in front of theatre with large card reading: "Look! Here are some of the methods used to escape prison. See how George Raft escapes to freedom in," etc., etc.

Permission was received to park two wrecked cars on the streets three days ahead with copy: "When two runaway cars collide, it's like Cagney meeting Raft in," etc. Usher dressed in convict's garb with tiein back copy paraded streets, and a turn table with amplifier was planted in front of theatre playing a record of an angry mob, giving the same sound effect used in the picture's prison rioting scenes.

Cowen Builds Atmospheric Front As Advance on "Frontier Marshal"

A complete false front selling the western thrills and also emphasizing the name Tombstone was built by Wally Cowen for his date on "Frontier Marshal' at the Princess Theatre, in Modesto, Cal. 24-sheets of Randolph Scott and Nancy Kelly were mounted over the title, also cut from a 24-sheet and mounted atop marquee. This was lighted by large spotlight each evening. An usher hidden behind a cutout fired blank shots throughout the day and at each break of show.

Through the cooperation of Station KTRB, a "Man on the Street" broadcast was held and 12 spot announcements were secured gratis. Teaser campaign was launched in the newspapers, heralds were distributed within a radius of 20 miles, window cards distributed throughout business district and lucky numbered badges were distributed to kids, guest tickets to those holding numbers corresponding to those posted in lobby.

"MILLION DOLLARS," SAYS JIM REDMOND

The terms of the policy were not revealed in his report, but it's Jimmie Redmond, the ground-covering publicist of the Bonham in Fairbury, Neb., who claims promotion of a million-dollar insurance on the limbs of the winner as buildup for a beautiful legs contest on behalf of "Million Dollar Legs". Tiein was good enough to land page one in the local dailies.

In addition to the respectable amount of "gam" coverage, the lucky damsel also received a complete wardrobe from twelve cooperating merchants who plugged the deal in ads and windows.

Search for "Miss Washington" Instituted by Kalberer

Through cooperation of the Washington Herald, A. J. Kalberer, manager of the Indiana Theatre, in Washington, Ind., held a contest on his stage to choose the local "Miss Washington." With the judging done according to points, popularity, beauty, figure and poise each meriting 25 points, all contestants were graded accordingly. Local prominents acted as judges, with Mayor Hugh Cox officially crowning the winner on stage and bidding her good luck in her competition in Michigan City. Girl was presented with gifts promoted from merchants, and was guested by leading hotel and provided with expenses for herself and chaperone paid by the cooperating paper for a three day trip. Paper involved carried daily stories and art work ahead and during life of contest.

Booking Special Athletic Films Tomber Puts on "Sports Night"

A special show, dubbed "Sports Night" was recently staged by Stuart Tomber at the Fargo, in Sycamore, Ill. All local organizations were contacted to publicize the event, p. a. announcements were made at meetings and posters were erected at parks and golf courses. The shorts booked by the theatreman for the occasion included baseball, swimming, golf, fishing, dogs and hobbies. For the evening, a Chicago newspaper sports editor was invited to act as master of ceremonies, introducing all the leading sports figures of the counties who were also guests of Tomber's. Sports merchandise was promoted from merchants and awarded as door prizes.

The recent AP wire story in the Boston papers about the bridal couple whose honeymoon came to a dead end in Bali with the groom said to have succumbed to the lure of that country's fascinating "topography," was used as a reprint in herald form by George Kraska at the Fine Arts Theatre in Boston to perk up added interest in the re-run of "Lagong," the Bali story filmed in that spot some years back by Henri de la Falaise.

Gooch Features Campaign On Theatre's First Birthday

The Uptown Theatre, in Bath, Maine recently celebrated its first anniversary and Manager Francis Gooch staged a birthday party at his matinee. Through promotion effected with local dairy, the theatreman received enough ice cream for distribution to all attending. Opening gun was fired in the house program, entire back page of which was devoted to a teaser ad on the party. These were distributed through regular mailing list, at the theatre and with parcels at 12 stores which tied in on the event.

Special "anniversary week" window cards were posted about town, and featured on the marquee during the week, stage announcements made and a special kid show arranged for the younger element. Special letters were also mailed to each person who had submitted a name for the theatre in the contest held before opening.

Board of Trade Brochure Prepared By McKibbon for Visitors to City

Since Russell McKibbon, manager of the Famous Players Royal Theatre, in Guelph, Ontario is Chairman of Publicity for the local Board of Trade, he recently created a four page brochure, which was made available by the Board to visitors. With the front page carrying banner, "Welcome to Guelph," inside spread was devoted to list of places of interest. Much goodwill was created through the theatreman's efforts on behalf of the Board.

Hotel Cooperates with Wright On "Hotel for Women" Date

Tying up with one of Syracuse's hotels, Erle Wright before leaving the Paramount for the Strand there arranged for guest tickets to "Hotel for Women" to be given to the first 50 women dining on given nights. Stunt was played up in lobby of the hotel and roof garden broadcast. Planted in selected bars and cafes were cards directed to men only carrying a list of telephone numbers, to those identifying their numbers guest tickets were distributed. Through tieup effected with local shoe store, imprinted lucky number theatre ticket stubs were available, hosiery going to winners. And for restaurant distribution small envelopes containing spices were available with copy on outside reading: "The spice contained in this envelope is mild compared to" etc., etc.

Newspapers Cooperate with Vennett On Advance Publicity for "Union"

Local papers of Bath, Maine, were generous with their stories when Manager Frank Vennett of the Opera House recently went to South Boston to be on hand to greet the stars who arrived on the "Union Pacific" train. Since the theatreman was playing the picture a few weeks later, the timely publicity aided to ushering in the engagement. Photos were also planted showing the manager with various celebrities and stressed in stories was the fact that Joel McCrea, the male lead, was due to visit relatives in Bath.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com.-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com.-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

Dear Sirs:

We are happy to report that since installing your very beautiful American Bodiform Theatre Chairs in our theatre last April, business has picked up generally and seems to be holding up now that the hot weather has come.

We sincerely believe these restful chairs have been the best things for results at our box office we could have acquired. We have even broken our house record on one occasion since renovating.

Your service was good and the installation very satisfactory -- thanks again.

We remain

Very truly yours

AMERICAN Avion THEATRE CHAIRS

MR. IRWIN'S letter is typical of the many enthusiastic comments we are receiving from theatre managers in all parts of the country who have installed American Bodiform chairs.

Many theatres have broken their box office and economy records by reseating with American Bodiform chairs.

DESIGNED FOR AN INDUSTRIAL NEIGHBORHOOD

THE general exterior and auditorium views above are of the Burton theatre which W. E. Lyon has built and is operating in an outlying section of Flint, Mich., where many workers in the Flint automotive plants have their homes. Plain of treatment and simple of plan, and employing for the most part materials readily and economically available locally, it exemplifies effective low-budget designing adapted to such industrial areas and to many a small town. Designed by George S. Hawes, Flint architect, the Burton is of cement and cinder block construction, with cinder block veneer as the auditorium wall finishing material. . . . Except for a shallow mezzanine supported on piers immediately above the standee area, seating 66, the Burton has a one-floor plan; the total capacity is 675. The standee area is partially enclosed, forming a shallow foyer about 10 feet deep, off each side of which is a toilet room. This foyer is centrally approached through an enclosed lobby about 12 feet deep, having the ticket booth on the right side, and the mezzanine is reached by one staircase just inside the foyer entrance. The seating area, with rows spaced 32 inches, is 72 feet deep from last to front row. Distance from last row to screen is 93 feet. . . . The cinder block veneer is applied in 4-inch thickness, with pilasters of the same material forming panels. The block is tinted with casein paint in graduated shades of rose; modest ornamentation is added in the form of a floral design in each panel, a blue, yellow, green and brown geometric figuration along the cornice, and deep rose striping at the pilaster edges. The ceiling is finished in $\frac{1}{2}$-inch Nu-Wood tiles, laid on sheetrock in tan and ivory tones to form a basket-weave pattern, with which is harmonized the soffits of diffusers suspended below the outlets of the ventilating system. Nu-Wood board faces the parapet of the mezzanine, but otherwise the standee partition and mezzanine rear wall are finished in hard plaster painted light rose, while the proscenium arch is of plaster painted deep rose with ornamental shading in tones of blue. The screen curtain, controlled from the projection room, is gold plush, the valance and side drapes blue damask. Blue mohair covers the chair backs; the seats have tan leatherette, while standards are of modern stripe-and-panel pattern in blue, red and yellow. The aisles, as well as the foyer, are carpeted with a Velvet weave in a modern sunburst pattern of yellow, brown and rose on a blue ground. Auditorium lighting is provided entirely by aluminum urns at pilasters, four to a side (the standee area, or foyer, has three square buff-colored glass bowls set against the ceiling). . . . The front of the Burton is faced in ceramic glazed tile, the field color buff, the trim in chocolate brown and pale green. The marquee, and the vertical sign integrated with it in design, are painted the same colors, while green neon outlines the sign letters, and

Drive-Ins Have Come, but Airdomes Are No More

THE OPEN-AIR theatre of yesteryear, where patrons sat on hard wooden seats, fought insects, and hoped it wouldn't rain, seems to be no more. The drive-in has supplanted it to some extent, but diligent search has failed to unearth one old-fashioned "airdome" anywhere in the United States. Even St. Louis, where once they flourished, finally denied them her patronage.

The drive-in seems not to have killed the airdome, for it died in most locations before the drive-in arrived. In many parts of the country it died before air-conditioning arrived. Nor does the advent of sound appear to have been a very important factor in its disappearance.

The facts seem, according to fairly unanimous opinion of old-timers throughout the land, that the airdome was never too successful, requiring as it did duplicate equipment and seating, and involving difficulties of booking. It staggered along, stumbled, rose to its feet again, fell and once more revived. The last decline seems to have synchronized with the advent of depression, and there was no recovery; exhibitors felt that the same investment in air-conditioning served the public more satisfactorily and was far more likely to show a profit.

reen and yellow neon provide sign and arquee trim (additionally, buff incanescent lamps border the marquee top nd bottom). The marquee soffit is lighted y 15-watt incandescent lamps, the platelass display cases by two fluorescent amps at each side of stainless steel rames. Entrance doors are of white pine nd plate glass, doors to foyer of varished, natural color birch in flush panel onstruction. The lobby is finished in plaser, the walls painted tan, the ceiling white, nd the floor is terrazzo. . . . Outside the uditorium, the Burton is heated by con-ector type radiators set into the walls, ehind shields, but the auditorium is sup-lied heated or cooled air through a cen-al attic duct; exhaust is at the fascia of ne screen platform. Coils carry either hot ater, or water from the city mains, which procured from deep wells and reaches ne coils from a cooling tower at a temerature usually below 55° F.

Flicker Seen as Still a Projection Problem

SURPRISINGLY, perhaps, in this era of perfected projection, flicker is still a problem to engineers. Careful study seems to indicate that the intensity of modern screen illumination may help make visible (and objectionable) percentages of flicker that pass unnoticed with older, dimmer forms of screen lighting. Such at least is the conclusion which Lorin D. Grignon, Paramount studio technician, sets forth in a paper which has just become available through publication in the Journal of the S.M.P.E.

Irregular burning of the projection arc remains one important flicker source, apparently. Mr. Grignon also feels that shutter action might be improved somewhat if a sufficiently elaborate series of tests were to be carried out. Cameras, set-lighting, developing and printing techniques, and background projection, are cited as factors occasionally contributing to the existence of some degree of flicker.

Modernization Trend Is Upward in Chicago

THE CHICAGO area will see a strong increase in building and remodeling beginning this fall, according to plans completed by major exhibitors, with Warner Brothers and B. & K. circuits in the lead. Executives are well satisfied that business conditions warrant broad expansion, and declare only an unexpected development in the war situation could alter the present program.

About half a million dollars were spent in the area during the summer on remodeling and re-equipping. In addition, five new theatres were constructed. Improvements effected during the summer months featured reseating. About the largest single remodeling project was that which the Indiana-Illinois circuit carried through, at a cost of $50,000, in reconstructing their Lex theatre in Chicago.

Total construction and remodeling during the summer fell to about 30% less than corresponding months of last year, a drop which is expected to be wiped out this fall, with a total gain for the year of 1939 as a whole.

Sound Improvement Not Taken Full Advantage of

EVEN TODAY, with modern sound equipment, there are exhibitors who are not getting full entertainment value out of their sound, Max C. Batsel, chief engineer of RCA Photophone, said in a statement issued on his return recently from a tour of inspection through midwestern states.

Mr. Batsel finds that, having installed modern equipment, some few showmen fail to realize how greatly its possibilities differ from those earlier installations, and order volume turned down when the sound in the picture begins to work up to a dramatic climax. They possibly proceed on the basis of habits formed in operation of their old apparatus, he pointed out, which very likely could not reproduce the volume peaks of modern recording.

A Means to Check Noise Passage Through Floors

THOSE WHO wonder how they can economically place a bowling alley, billiard parlor, a dance hall and such enterprises, over or under a theatre without having the noise go through floors and ceilings into the theatre—and inquiries show that there are operators who do—will be interested in a new development just announced by the Wood Conversion Company of Minneapolis (well known in the field for their product, Nu-Wood).

With their method, balsam-wool is incorporated in standard building construction by means of special spring-steel clips and ordinary furring strips. The wool is spread over the surface, then the clips are nailed to the furring strips and nailed to the sub-surface through the insulating medium. The design of the special clips eliminates metallic contact, by way of the nails, between furring strip and sub-surface, thus maintaining the full absorptive power, it is stated, of the insulation. The outer surface, ceiling or floor, is nailed to the furring strips in the usual manner.

Sound transmission is declared to be reduced by 50 decibels, an amount representing practically complete stoppage of sound under usual conditions.

Air Purity: How to Attain It—
—Air-Motion: How to Control It

¶ The first of a series on air-conditioning equipment, this article continues the group of "plain talks" on air-conditioning begun in the April 29th issue, which now turns to the mechanical facilities for maintenance of the Effective Temperature representing comfort conditions in the theatre

EDITED OUT

■ In manuscript, Mr. Boester did not begin his article as it is published. His introduction was something of an aside. Nevertheless, although removing his introductory remarks from the article itself, we certainly did not drop them in the wastebasket. Here they are, deleted but, further than that, unedited:

"Before discussing what types of equipment will efficiently maintain desired Effective Temperatures, the writer cannot help pointing out to you readers the merit of the preceding articles in this series, describing what Effective Temperature means in relation to comfort, and how it is obtained through the simultaneous control of air-motion, air-heat and air-moisture.

"It seems probable that nothing in the history of air-conditioning that has been written or spoken has been as much in point as these articles, not only to you in the theatre business, but also to air-conditioning engineers all over the country.

"There is no question but that the articles heretofore published are a very intelligent and capable presentation, in non-technical language and approach, of just what happens when we air-conditioning engineers endeavor to provide patron comfort in your theatres—and I should think that, as readers, you would clamor for republication of them in booklet form so that you might have them handy as a guide to the comfort of your patrons."

Mr. Boester did not know that there has been, all along, a tentative plan to make the entire series available in booklet form.

As for Mr. Boester himself, his previous contributions to Better Theatres will be recalled. He is a St. Louis engineer who has made a special study of theatre air-conditioning and ventilation, and he has made a number of original contributions to its technique.—G. S.

By CARL F. BOESTER

IN ADDITION to the treatmen or conditioning of air by controlling air motion to provide for heat deficiency and air moisture deficiency during the period of winter operation, and by controlling air motion, removing excess air heat and excess air moisture during the summer cycle, there is also—in either cycle—the essential of air purity. This article will briefly discuss air-purity and, in more detail, air-motion, as well as the mechanical equipment required to accomplish and control these two objectives.

The treatment of air, in order that it may truly be called "air-conditioning," consists of four functions, or steps, controlled simultaneously. In this latter statement the word simultaneously is very essential. Unless the functions of purifying, circulating (air-motion), heating or cooling, and humidifying or dehumidifying (depending upon the season of the year) are accomplished simultaneously, the air is not really conditioned according to the standards set up by the engineering societies composed of members engaged in air-conditioning engineering.

¶ AIR PURITY

As a starting point it is well to consider, first of all, the matter of air purity. Air purity can be broken up into two classifications:

(1) Removal of dust and similar foreign material in the air, and

(2) Removal of objectionable odors.

The first of these is accomplished mechanically, but the removal of odors cannot be fully accomplished mechanically, physically or chemically. There is just one true way really to remove all unpleasant odor after it has tainted the air, and that is to dilute the foul air sufficiently with fresh outside air and so render the odors unnoticeable.

Odor Elimination

The only way to keep the air pure and fresh is to change the air in the theatre entirely at frequent intervals and thus keep down the odor concentration that results from smoking, body odors, etc.

It should be remembered that odors very materially irritate patrons to the point that they frequently get headaches and may leave the theatre, attributing the headaches to weak eyes or to "flickering" of the picture, when in reality the irritation is caused by a disagreeable odor affecting the nerves controlling the sense of smell.

In order to keep objectionable odors down to a minimum it is essential that approximately 25% of the total air being circulated and distributed to the theatre by the air-conditioning equipment is fresh outside air. If smoking is permitted, this quantity must be increased to a minimum ratio of at least 50%, and in some cases as much as all outside air will be necessary for desirable conditions.

Filtering Out Dust

The other important matter relating to air purity is that of filtering out dust and similar foreign matter. There are several ways of accomplishing this, one of which is with the conventional air washer. This does a very thorough job, but this type of equipment when used in connection with other equipment essential to the conditioning of air increases the first and operating cost of the entire system rather substantially.

The other method of filtering is that of using standard type filters, with which most of you are familiar. These usually have dimensions of 20x20x2 inches and are usually mounted in a frame, with a sufficient number of them to insure a low velocity of air through them. Many filters are made of spun glass fibers held in place by metal or cardboard frames. Sometimes other materials such as cardboard, hog's hair, wood shavings, etc., are used for filtering. Such filters are known as the "throwaway" type, and after they have accumulated a quantity of dust they are discarded and replaced with new ones of the same type.

There are also filters of the same general characteristics which are known as the "permanent" or "cleanable" type, which are constructed of a series of layers of wire mesh or screen, each layer of which consists of mesh diminishing in size. This

Building for Family Trade at Low Prices

¶ An Exhibitor Tells About His Theatre

R. J. Hiehle has been in the theatre business in Parkersburg, W. Va., for the last thirty years. He began with air-dome (long before the time of drive-ins!) and has had, in all, five different motion picture exhibition properties. Today he operates the Hiehle and Burwell in Parkersburg, the Burwell being less than a year old. Parkersburg, a city of 45,000 with a viscose plant as its principal industrial establishment, has four other theatres, two of them Warner houses, the others independent. Proudly bringing the new Burwell to our attention, Mr. Hiehle was asked to tell about it, and he does in the following columns.—THE EDITOR.

THE BURWELL theatre in Parkersburg is one of the newest and also, we think, one of the finest in West Virginia. Located as it is, outside the business district of the city, it was designed for the more exacting needs of a strictly neighborhood theatre, with emphasis placed on appeal to family groups—the women and children—at admissions of from ten to twenty cents.

The design of the building, both inside and out, is in the modern trend. The front is stucco over hollow tile. The theatre being outside the business section, it will escape the smoke and grime that usually pervades such areas, so it was thought entirely prudent to employ light colors and the more delicate shades for the color scheme. With this in mind, we had the stucco pure white, and this is relieved with bands of black and with a black base course of enameled brick. The marquee, which is studded with varicolored stationary and chaser lamps and also illuminated in neon, is golden buff in color with a blue and red trim.

Instead of at the front (where it is usually found), Vitrolite structural glass was used in the Burwell entirely inside. The cashier's booth is in black Vitrolite with chromium mouldings (for the comfort of the cashier—an important point if you want to build up a smooth-running staff—the booth is well ventilated and has an electric heater). The two pairs of entrance doors are blue to match the marquee and have large circular plate glass panels. These are effectively outlined with chromium mouldings.

Lobby and Foyer

Vitrolite is liberally used in the entrance lobby, which is a small but amply sized room leading directly into the foyer. The walls are entirely in three shades of gleaming Vitrolite—black from the floor to a point about 5 feet above, then deep yellow for 2 feet, then 1 foot of blue, then yellow again to the ceiling. The Vitrolite is applied with chromium mouldings, and chromium three-sheet display frames are recessed in each side wall. Directly over the top of each frame, the name Burwell appears, cut in mirror glass and making an effective ornament. The lobby floor is pink Tennessee marble with rubber mats recessed in traffic lanes.

The foyer is sufficiently large to accommodate any reasonable between-show crowd, and the lounges and toilet rooms for both sexes are directly accessible from it. The foyer floor is covered with a Crestwood Velvet carpet having a modern pattern giving a bubble effect in maroon, rust, tan and gold shades, which shades harmonize with the tones of the plaster walls and ceiling. The business office and the heating and air-conditioning machinery room, as well as the projection room, are on the second floor and are reached by means of an ornamental wrought iron stairway from the foyer.

The toilet rooms have marble tile floors and painted walls and ceilings. The women's quarters include a lounge with plaster walls in old rose, ceiling in off-white, and carpeting of a Wilton weave in a modern straight-line pattern in black and gold on a blue ground. The furniture is of stainless steel.

The Auditorium

The auditorium, which has no balcony, seats 800. It is approximately 52 feet wide and 90 feet long. There are four exits from the auditorium leading out on to well paved, lighted sidewalks—they make it possible to empty the house forward and avoid the confusion of mixing the outgoing with the incoming patrons and therefore to get a quick turnover between shows.

The side walls of the auditorium are untinted acoustic plaster above a dado of brown hard plaster edged with three bands of walnut. Spaced along the upper part on each side are three large sunbursts which have red central figures illuminated by concealed lamps in bracket fixtures. A stepped cornice runs all along the ceiling, blending the gray of the walls with the cream color of the ceiling.

The ceiling, finished in hard plaster, is flat except for a center plaque, or rib, running the full length of the room and concealing the air outlets as well as acting as an air diffuser. This is painted deep red underneath, and in addition to this and red of the sunbursts, red is the color of the velour seating upholstery (which has a pin stripe in gold) and also appears in the carpeting, which is of the same pattern and coloration as that in the foyer. The sidewall indirect bracket fixtures supply all of the auditorium illumination; the circuits are controlled by dimmer. The chairs have spring-edge seats and padded backs; most of them are 20 inches wide, while row spacing is 36 inches, which today must be considered as not too much if we are to provide the comfort and convenience that the public has come to associate with motion pictures and expects as a matter of course in any well-appointed, modern theatre.

Charles W. Hiehle, son of R. J. Hiehle, who manages the new neighborhood Burwell, while his father handles downtown Hiehle theatre.

We provide clean, filtered air which is cooled in summer with water from our own well, which may be lowered in temperature as necessary by means of a Carrier compressor. The well can give about 70 gallons per minute. Heating is by hot air; the fuel used by the heating plant is natural gas.

Soil conditions were such that a basement was inadvisable, so we placed the machinery and heating plant on the second floor together with the projection room and the business office.

The building was erected by Mr. Nelson Burwell, who did his own contracting and superintending of the job. Accordingly, the cost of the entire outlay comes to about $75,000, fully equipped.

Tell 'Em About Your New Equipment, New Furnishings—They're Interested

● Showmanship doesn't end with selling the picture—you have a theatre to "sell" too. And it's full of things that appeal to modern interests—and that provide grand possibilities for exploitation

By F. LOUIS FRIEDMAN

ARE YOU putting in new chairs? Hold a preview for them. Getting new projection? Tell the world about it. New sound? Pre-sell your patrons so they'll know what you're doing to give them the best for their enjoyment.

Such secondary exploitation of new, more comfortable chairs, modern projection, or better sound, and of other improvements, can be made as resultful for you and as profitable as a successful campaign on a picture.

Just recall the publicity "breaks" the French Line got several years ago when the Normandie made its maiden voyage. Front page stories, eight-column streamers, newsreel shots, radio broadcasts, photographs galore—all were turned into publicity that was literally worth hundreds of thousands of dollars. Analyze such publicity and you'll see that basically the entire campaign was shrewd and intelligent exploitation of new equipment.

Or, take the gleaming chromium-trimmed Pullman exhibit at the New York World's Fair. A constant stream of curious and fascinated visitors troops through these modern cars, eager to examine and learn about the newest in streamlined trains. Many of the people in these crowds may never ride on a Pullman. Certainly the great majority are not particularly mechanically minded, nor do they aim to be. But here is an exhibit that does "sell" the public because the entire display is an example of brilliant showmanship, exploiting new equipment and doing a superb job of it.

Attractive Lobby Displays

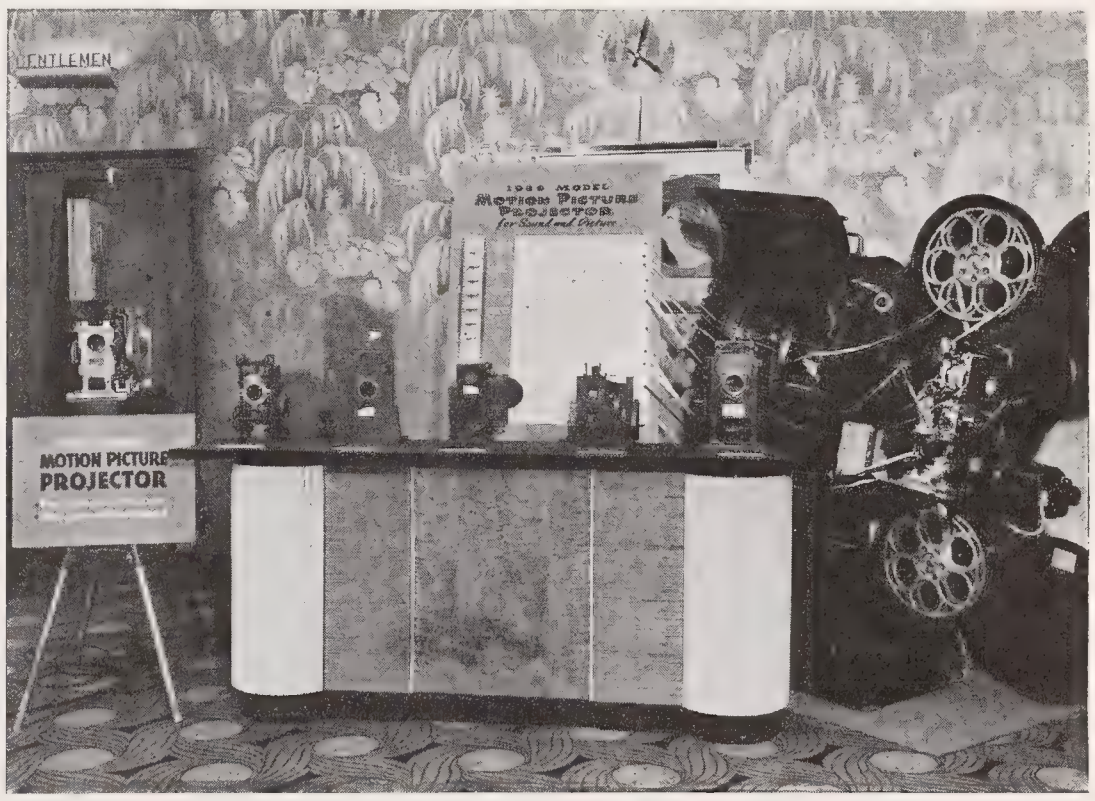
Recently an astonishing show of interest was displayed by Chicago theatre patrons when the manager of the theatre held a lobby preview of new projection equipment about to be installed. So much curiosity was evoked by the appearance of the new projectors in the lobby that the management found it worth while to assign a competent staff member to explain the operation of the new equipment to attentive and genuinely interested patrons. The same response was achieved on several occasions elsewhere.

Such intelligent equipment exploitation has definitely proved its possibilities as a goodwill medium for any theatre. Building goodwill of this kind is valuable. It creates talk—and you know what word of mouth advertising means to your theatre.

Not long ago an important circuit house in the Middle West put over a smart campaign on new chairs about to be installed. Several of the chairs were spotlighted in the lobby, and an informative sign was placed nearby, urging every patron to try out the seats. The customers of the theatre, attracted by the inviting look and obvious comfort of the chairs, sat in them, if only to satisfy their normal curiosity. The result was that the theatre got a host of good breaks, with pictures, in local newspapers, while the theatre's patrons were even more completely "sold" on the theatre management's eagerness to have every patron enjoy the pictures in the greatest comfort.

What does it take to get publicity for new sound, new chairs, new projection—even a new screen? You need no more than what any smart exhibitor already has in full measure—showmanship. Showmanship, imagination, ingenuity—and some little work.

The manufacturer of the new equipment you buy, or the supply dealer who sells it, if he is alert to your needs and is publicity-wise, can give you many a tip. Available, in fact, are prepared pressbooks, news stories, newspaper mats and tie-up ideas that will help you in dramatizing the publicity and goodwill angles of the new equipment you install in your house or your projection room.



Take, for example, projection lamps—the so-called "Simplified High-Intensity" type, let us say. Perhaps you look upon their purchase as a sort of necessary evil. Without imagination, they are just a mass of metal and parts put in the projection room and forgot about.

That's one way of doing it. But there's another and better way—a way that will get valuable publicity for your theatre and make your public conscious of the money you have invested to give them a finer, more enjoyable picture on the screen.

Exploitation Copy

Before the new lamphouses are actually installed in the projection room, have your supply dealer put them on display in the lobby of your theatre. Hang up a sign

Getting a Better Break on Power

¶How an important circuit conducted its successful campaign to cut current charges

By L. E. POPE

FROM PROJECTION ROOM TO EXECUTIVE'S CHAIR

L. E. POPE

L. E. Pope, purchasing agent of Fox Midwest Theatres, became a projectionist for the Reid, Yemm & Hays circuit at Duquoin, Ill., in 1919, while he was still attending high school. However, he left the company in 1924 to study electrical engineering for four years. In 1928, when sound came in, the combination of his theatre experience and electrical training impelled Mr. Pope to return to the show business, and he again became associated with the Reid, Yemm & Hays circuit. In 1929, Fox took over the circuit, and in 1930 Mr. Pope went to St. Louis to handle purchases and sound service. In 1932 he was transferred to Kansas City as purchasing agent, and when, in 1933, Fox Midwest did away with its St. Louis purchasing department, Mr. Pope took over the whole job. In addition to purchasing, he is in charge of all construction, engineering and maintenance.

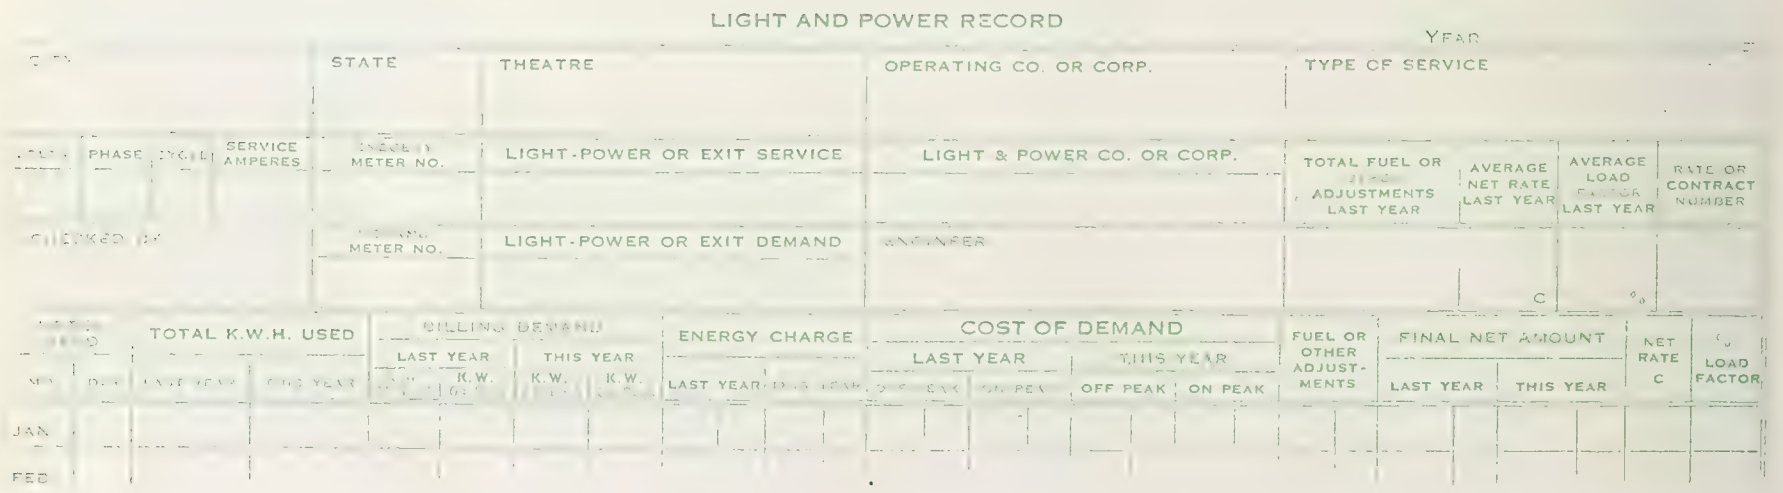
OUR EFFORTS at Fox Midwest to lower electric power costs developed out of our checking into various phases of operation to see what could be done in each phase to reduce costs without lowering operating standards. Although this had been done for some time, we decided to check into several items that had not been thoroughly checked previously, and we found our light and power, which is a major item, to have many possibilities in the direction of practical economy.

It was necessary in many cases to check rates available with various public service or commerce commissions in each state in which we operate, also to check with the offices of the various light and power companies, in most cases finding a more suitable rate available. We also checked previous bills, not so much for errors in the bill itself, but to give us more accurate statistics so that we could see at a glance where our light and power was costing too much, determining where a saving could most likely be made. We checked the demand charts and other data that had not been available to us before, as charts of this kind are not included with the average billing setup of power companies. We thus had before us a comparison of all consumption and demands on all meters by year and month.

Exhibitor Must Take Initiative

Most power companies are well organized and have a separate department for each phase of their operation, handled by experts, and no doubt it is their problem to get as much as they can for what they sell. In many cases they hesitate to offer the best rate available, but when various rates are checked with their offices and with the public commission, and a better rate is found, they do not hesitate to place us on a better rate, stating that any rate that our load consumption will qualify us for is available at all times. But in very few cases do they suggest this change of their own accord.

We were able to make reductions in several towns by various methods. Some of them were obtained by combining the light and power on one meter where rates for the combined service would show a saving. By relamping, changing various equipments and purchasing new equipment more suitable for the rate available, we effected great savings in many instances.



Occasional Peak Loads

In some cases, where we would contact the power company prior to using a much heavier load for a short period of time, they would eliminate the peak demand due to the fact that it was not a common occurence. As a rule peak demands set a basis for figuring the entire month's bill, and in a few cases they set a basis for figuring the entire year's bill; thus without the cooperation of the power company, a great penalty is imposed for a slight increase in demand for a very short period of time.

Most power companies contend that excess load costs them money, thus making these excessive demand charges just; however, I have found that they are wont to penalize you if you find a means of eliminating the peak loads (which they contend they do not like!), and in some cases have asserted, after eliminating these peaks, that they were losing money and that this additional current consumed is the portion of the load they like best!

By elimination of peak loads I do not mean cutting off the equipment, but operating it from a different source, such as Diesel natural gas, or some other type of engine which has proved to be a source of sav-

NEWS OF THEIR ACTIVITIES REPORTED FROM ALL SECTIONS AND BRIEFLY TOLD

The new Ritz theatre, seating 850, has opened at Union, S. C., with J. D. LUKER as general manager. The house is operated by All States Theatres, Inc., which, according to reports, contemplates establishment of a circuit in South Carolina.

Lew Williams Theatres, Inc., have opened a new house at Ashdown, Ark., according to K. LEE WILLIAMS of Oklahoma City, Okla., president. JERRY CALLAHAN is manager of the new theatre.

Williams Theaters are also spending $5,000 to remodel the Palace in Fordyce, Ark. Changes will include a new marquee and sign, rebuilt foyer with the addition of two lounges, reseating the auditorium, and the moving of the projection rooms from the center to one side.

The American theatre in Oakland, Calif., has been remodeled and will be reopened shortly by the Blumenfeld circuit under the name of Esquire.

JOHN ANDERSON, until recently owner of two theatres at Fort Morgan, Colo., is leaving for California with his family, to make his home there. J. C. PARKER of Dahlhart, Tex., purchased the Fort Morgan houses.

KEN BUTTERFIELD, formerly manager of the Fox, Strand and Rialto theatres in Marinette, Wis., has been named manager of Fox's Myers and Beverly in Janesville, Wis., succeeding RUSSELL LEDDY. Mr. Leddy has been transferred to Green Bay, Wis., to manage the circuit's Orpheum.

The Fairmont Amusement Company, an AL PICKUS corporation, has acquired the 496-seat Annex, in New Haven, Conn. The house has been closed for complete reseating and renovation. The Modern Theatre Equipment Company will install new projection equipment and International auditorium seating. RCA has been awarded the sound contract. Mr. Pickus also operates the Stratford in New Haven.

Finds Fan Turning Backward; Stops Patron Walkouts

BRISTOL, N. H.—"It was a hot midsummer night. Despite the fact that we have a modern pressure ventilator, the air in the theatre was stifling," said William L. Lydston, manager of the Bristol Theatre here. "I had eight walkouts during the evening and had called Boston for a ventilation engineer.

"When our Altec man, F. A. Brown, called at the theatre, I told him my troubles.

"After checking the ducts and dampers, Brown crawled into the fan room. A few minutes later, the cool air began pouring into the theatre, and the system has worked perfectly ever since.

"Brown explained that he found the fans turning in the wrong direction—someone must have changed the leads—and that he had our electrician reverse one leg of the 220 volt 3 phase supply, thus restoring proper rotation and blower speed.

"We were saved the expense of having a ventilation expert come up from Boston, and the theatre patrons were comfortable again. What our Altec man did was certainly 'service over and above the contract'."

Porcelain Enamel for Fronts Today

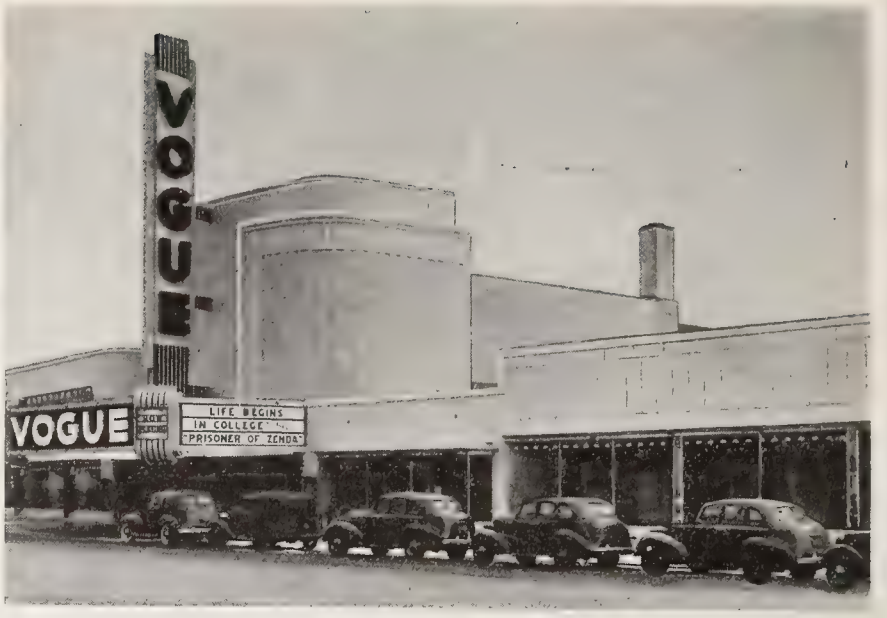
• Outlining developments in a material truly ancient that give it broad applications to modern treatment of the theatres

The front of the Vista theatre at Storm Lake, Iowa, in the design of which K. Z. S. architectural porcelain enamel was used in two tones—wine-color and ivory—to enliven the entrance area and to form a colorful central panel of a brick facade.

USE OF porcelain enamelled iron sheets for the facing of theatre fronts, once confined to low-cost treatments, is today widely accepted by theatre architects as a result of extensive improvements that have been effected in this material. While the practice of coating metals with vitreous enamels is actually as old as the Stone Age, the traditional methods, followed until recently, resulted in a certain crudity of texture, color and finish. Modern investigations have now made available, in the output of all leading makers, enameled sheets highly immune to mechanical damage and to the effect of acid fumes, which are supplied both in textural effects and in flat finish. They boast a great variety of colors (all permanent), and such flexibility in application that the material is both highly versatile and very conveniently handled.

Advantages afforded by enameled fronts include strong attention-compelling properties, minimum maintenance (the surface is nearly self-cleaning and never needs painting), medium cost, a very high degree of permanence, and a flexibility of mounting which not only makes installation inexpensive but permits simple alterations.

It is perhaps remarkable that the most important single improvement produced by modern study of enameled metal surfaces revolves around a reduction in the thickness of the enamel layer. The thinner that layer, it has been found, the greater will be its permanence and immunity to physical damage. The vitreous layer applied to metal today is likely to be only about 1/6th as thick as that used ten years ago, and enormously more resistant to stress and compression as a result.



Differences of Types

Other improvements involved the development of metal alloys that have substantially the same coefficient of expansion and contraction with temperature change as the enamel itself, permitting the use of large sheets of the material for outdoor surfaces without risk of climatic damage. An acid-resisting formula used for the top coat of enamel protects against unfavorable atmospheric conditions in industrial areas.

A full understanding of the nature of enameled metal sheets requires recognition of the fact that the term, enamel, is commonly used today to designate two entirely different surface materials. As applied to surface finishes which are painted, or painted and baked, enamel is a substance embodying gums, resins, oils—that is to say, organic or vegetable materials, natural or synthetic. The enamel here referred to has nothing in common with those substances. It is composed entirely of mineral constituents of extreme permanence, and can be described with sufficient accuracy as a sheet of extremely thin, opaque, colored glass, fused onto the metal surface at very high temperatures. A hammer blow may possibly chip it, but (this is the essence of the most important modern improvement) the thinner it is, the less likely it is to chip, and today's enamel is as thin, and therefore as chip-proof, as the opacity of the best available pigments will allow. Too thin a coating would be semi-transparent.

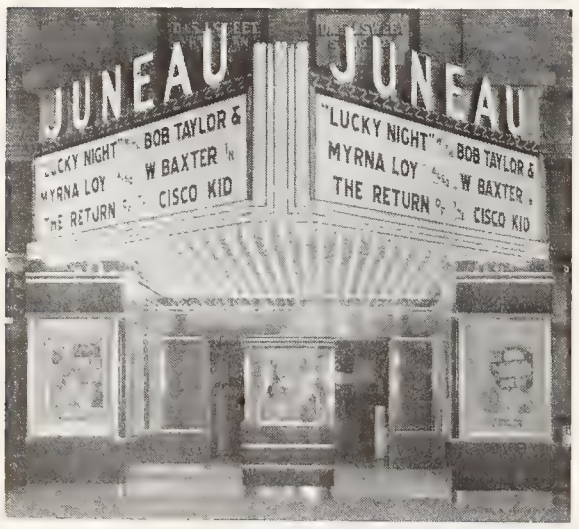
The materials which are fused to form the vitreous coating are essentially those minerals used in glass-making and the ceramic industries: feldspar (aluminum silicate), cryolite (sodium aluminum fluoride) and fluorspar (calcium fluoride). The pigments are metallic oxides (iron rust is one) which are as permanent as enamel itself. The cryolite helps to contribute the needed opacity.

The iron backing material is by no means an ordinary iron or steel sheet. It must maintain the same coefficient of expansion as the enamel, even at the high temperatures of manufacture, which run up to 1700° F. It must be capable of being drawn, formed, embossed or punched. It is first shaped, then provided with the fluting, reeding, louvers and so on that may be required, then "pickled" in hydrochloric acid to produce a perfectly clean surface which under the microscope shows the individual crystals of the metal. The ground coat of enamel, which includes so-called adherence oxides for firmer enamel-to-metal bond, is then applied and fused to the surface at a temperature of 1500° F. or higher. Two subsequent coats are then applied and fused on, each at lower temperature, so that later firing will not loosen any coating already applied. The final coat is acid-resistant.

Decorative Effect

Different colors can be used in the three coats, if desired, providing (by means of stencils) three-tone color effects. The iron may be corrugated vertically, horizontally or diagonally before enameling, to produce a dull or matte effect, where this is preferred to gloss. Narrow corrugations and fine crimped patterns can be accentuated by spraying a blending color at an angle before firing; one side of each corrugation picks up the blending color while the other side shows the base color, resulting in a two-tone appearance. The resultant sheets will consequently present a relatively dull finish (in any color or combination of colors), but if not crimped or corrugated they will be as highly reflecting as glass, producing a brilliantly striking effect both in daylight and by floodlighting.



In many though not all applications, the iron side of the sheet is backed with insulation board or other material. The sheets may be flat or pan-shaped, or specially shaped to meet architectural requirements for surface or trim. Large name-sign letters are built up of strips of porcelain enameled iron.

Installation and Maintenance

Mounting is effected by various methods. It involves screwing, clipping or clamping the sheet edges to mounting clips, studs or channels which in turn are screwed or bolted either to furring strips or directly to structural members of the building. Consequently the sheets are very readily mounted over an existing surface for remodeling, and at low cost. Mountings of completely concealed type are common. Maximum sheet size in current practice is about 3′ x 5′. Any sheet can commonly be removed without disturbing others, and at very little expense or trouble. Consequently, where joints are overlapped instead of being caulked, as is sometimes the case, it is often possible to shift a number of sheets in such a way as to produce a new effect by changing the ornamental pattern. Entire porcelain enamel fronts have been removed from one building and installed on the facade of another.

Maintenance involves nothing more than washing down with soap and hot water. Gritty cleaners are not needed or desirable except for dealing with coal tar smoke or other obstinately adhering grease. Washing down may in fact be needed only rarely or not at all. The surface has been found to be to a considerable extent self-cleansing when exposed to normal weather conditions.

Porcelain enamel finish is now also available in structural units, capable of bearing loads, which consist essentially of faced concrete blocks. These are set in a mortar bed and joined by stonesetters in the usual manner, constituting a sturdy wall of normal structural utility, which presents a porcelain enamel surface.

Modern Ideas for Theatre Lounges from Other Fields

JUST AS THE motion picture theatre has given other fields ideas for architectural and decorative treatment (as witness the way hotel lobbies, cocktail lounges, restaurants, and even stores, are being got up these days), so the theatre can borrow from outside its own special precincts. And when it comes to the furnishing of lounges, even the home is not to be excluded as a source of ideas (indeed, perhaps the designers of things for the home are pretty good guides to what Mr. and Mrs. Gus Q. Public are going for).

A difference is of course the advisability of providing the theatre with furnishings that can stand hard usage. But that consideration as well as homey comfort and charm is adequately taken care of in furniture such as that illustrated in the "living room" exhibit pictured here. To be especially noted is the use of sectional pieces which can be arranged as chairs or settees, providing flexibility that permits occasional rearrangement of a lounge to freshen it up. In foyers and standee areas, sectional pieces also are readily adaptable to available spaces, which may vary considerably in width, as between doorways, aisle entrances, and so on.

The furniture illustrated is of the modern bleached wood type which is moderately priced, rich-looking, neutral in coloration so as to blend with any colors and patterns in soft fabrics or leatherette. In fact, its lightness and clear texture actually have a "softening" effect on simulated leathers.

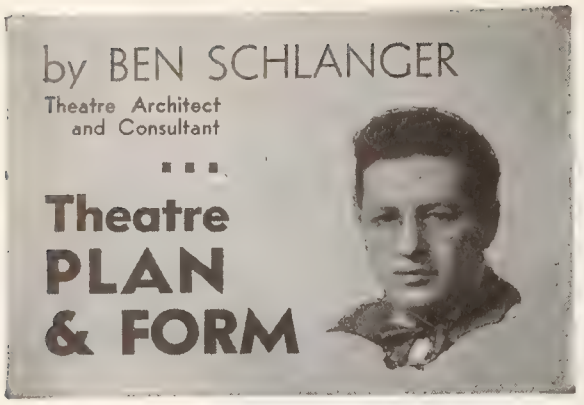
Sectional pieces and other furniture of "wheat"-finished birch, and (right) a lounge at the New York World's Fair (see text).



The pieces shown are of birch wood given the "wheat" finish which has become increasingly popular. This furniture is also available in the darker maple finish, and other finishes may be arranged for. Many types of tables, tabourets, etc., are included. The single table pictured beneath a mirror is shown especially as a piece adapted to the small anteroom leading into a women's toilet room, in theatres not having a full-sized separate lounge for women. To protect such tables, the tops may be inexpensively covered with a material like Formica.

It should be pointed out, however, that metal tables in a satin finish are not out of place with chairs and settees of bleached wood, with the top either in an amber or similar light shade, or in a color matching the ground color of the upholstery.

For the theatre that can "go modern" without pulling its punches, there are several ideas in the picture of the lounge of the Venezuelan building at the New York World's Fair. With both bleached wood settee and built-in seat covered in light Chase Saracen simulated leather, this arrangement particularly suggests the theatre space which serves as both a foyer and lounge, possibly forming an integral part of the rear of the auditorium. For the theatre "modernistic" enough, here too are suggestions for a lounge treatment of a mezzanine traffic lane to balcony seating.

BOX OFFICE LOCATION

IN MOST instances the box office appears in the outer vestibule directly facing the street. The most common position is directly at the middle point of the entrance. Recently there has been some tendency to place the box office to an extreme side position, right or left of the entrance. All these locations have merits.

The centrally located box office is inadvisable where the entrance width is occupied by three pairs of doors, or less than that number, because it splits an entranceway that cannot be allowed to appear any narrower than it actually is.

Side Location

A distinct disadvantage of the centrally located box office is derived from the fact that such a location makes it impossible to connect the box office directly to an interior space, which can be done with a side location. The benefits of having a contact with the box office directly from the interior of the theatre are obvious.

From the standpoint of appearance, it is much easier to achieve a pleasing architectural effect with the side box office, because there is more unity of the elements of the front—and the box office itself gives the effect of greater permanence, as though it actually belonged to the building. The attached box office also has a minimum amount of exposure and can be heated more easily than the island type.

Lobby Location

The idea of having the box office in the lobby, past the first set of doors, is worth considering for theatres that do not cater to transient patronage. The small town and the neighborhood theatre could add an intimate touch by adapting this idea, and it would be feasible to do so in many instances. The patron is not made to stand in the street to buy a ticket; he enters the theatre immediately, which provides a suggestion of warm welcome.

This idea may be developed by making the box office a counter, rather than a cubbyhole with a window, in which a ticket seller is caged (banks have pursued this thought quite considerably of late). In general, the lobby box office is best located when it is accessible from a control office space of the theatre. And of course with the box office inside, the lobby must be planned to provide space for persons who may be waiting to buy tickets, and this space should not be in the line of traffic.

Drapes for Rear Wall Absorption

SEVERAL inquiries have been received recently pertaining to the draping of rear wall surfaces to overcome objectionable sound reflections. The factors involved should prove of general interest, because draping is often thought of first as the most practical solution of the problem when rear wall difficulties arise in existing theatres.

While suitable draping may substantially reduce reflections from the rear wall in one theatre, it may not prove equally effective in another case. The result depends almost entirely upon the shape of the rear wall, the area exposed to sound incidence, and the manner in which the material is installed.

As far as quality is concerned, the material should be comparatively thick (such as heavyweight lined velour or equivalent material) if it is to absorb sound at this surface with any degree of efficiency. When installed to cover the rear wall it should be hung at approximately a 50% gather.

This means that in width, the amount of material used should be equal to twice the width of the rear wall, so that when installed it may be draped as indicated above. Furthermore, the material should not be hung flat against the wall, but should have an air space of from 4 to 6 inches behind it. This air space helps to dissipate low frequency reflections.

Heavyweight draping material, of this type and installed in this manner, has proved effective where the rear wall area was relatively small and fairly well broken in contour. When the rear wall is large and comparatively unbroken, the use of two thicknesses of heavyweight, gathered material will prove much more effective. When the rear wall is curved, draping is often decidedly inadequate, and the use of a highly efficient acoustical material offers the best solution.

Draping is not usually recommended for rear walls of theatres because commercial acoustical materials available are much more efficient and practical for modern use; however, it can be recommended as a temporary expedient.

—C. C. P.

FABRICS FOR WALLS

TO CONTINUE the discussion of woven materials in their relationship to the acoustical characteristics of the theatre auditorium begun in the August issue, let us consider, briefly, wall fabrics and their possible use as sound absorbents.

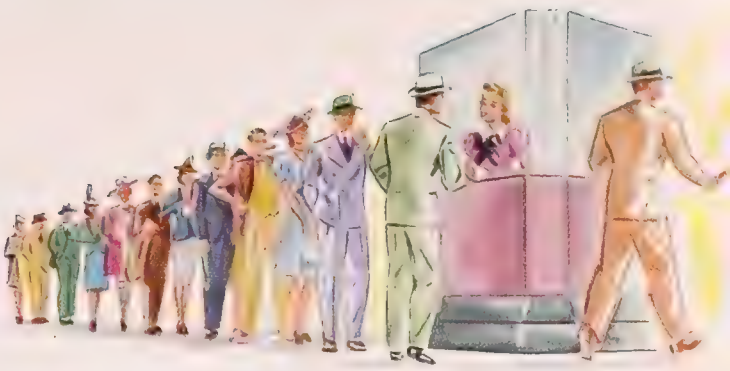
It may be stated, generally, that there are very few theatres wherein it is possible to rely solely upon fabric wall coverings for acoustical correction, without special attention being given to their methods of use and installation. This is true because most of these materials absorb very little sound energy at the low frequencies. Medium or heavyweight cotton materials, silk damasks, and velours, as well as most other fabrics, have their greatest absorption at the middle range and high frequencies.

The usual lack of sufficient absorption at the low frequencies is due to the fact that these materials do not have the structural qualities, such as density, inter-communicating cellular structure, and the resonant qualities, which normally contribute to low-frequency absorption.

Meeting Low-Frequency Needs

How, then, may it be possible to use such materials and yet achieve a desirable balance of absorption for all frequencies? Two methods which have been employed with success in a number of cases where only a small amount of sound absorption was required, are:

(1) The use of several thicknesses or layers of fabric, with intervening air spaces between them, over the particular areas to be treated.



(2) Employment of a single thickness of material, either applied directly to, or furred out over, an insulating board which has inherent resonant qualities.

The first of these methods is perhaps most adaptable to panel treatments, varying from 1½ inch to 2 inches in depth. Usually three or four layers of material are employed, arranged in such manner that air spaces from ¼ inch to ½ inch are introduced between layers of the absorbent substance.

The second method of installation is perhaps more adaptable to large plain areas without panels. A heavier fabric is usually employed in conjunction with the insulating board. This combination offers some interesting possibilities, both acoustically and architecturally, for theatre auditoriums where that type of acoustical and decorative treatment may be suitable for side walls.

A DOUBLE FEATURE

THAT DRAWS "TURN-AWAY" CROWDS

SHOW business today is a business of color, light, and eye-appeal. You can't expect turn-away crowds if your theatre looks dull and lifeless.

A colorful L·O·F Theatrefront, of modern Glass and Metal, is an investment in good salesmanship. It's like having a smart "Barker" outside your show who attracts the crowds to your place—to spend their movie money with you.

An L·O·F Theatrefront is the last word in modern design, color, beauty and economy. It increases crowd appeal—builds up your neighborhood prestige and patronage. And it reduces your cost because there is nothing about it to wear out—nothing to rot, rust, decay or peel off. Nothing to ever need repainting. Your window washer can keep it like new for years with only a damp cloth or chamois.

Here's an investment that is making money for others and will make money for you. Find out how easily an L·O·F Theatrefront can be designed for your theatre and how easily you can pay for it out of increased business. Carpeting Tricks for Small Budgets • Neither the hamlet theatre nor the ancient "opry house" need go without woven floor coverings. Where there's a will there are ways, like these . . .

By NORMAN PATTERSON

NO MATTER where the theatre is located, "some seats, a screen, a couple of projectors and four walls" are insufficient for effective motion picture presentation today. The automobile and the motion picture itself have changed all that. The little theatre at the corner crossroads of a whistling post cattle town on the edge of a windswept prairie, may cater to people living in pine shacks, but even the people of such an extremely remote place are not, as once they were, oblivious of finer things. They revel in the luxuries of the films themselves, while more than a few of them have visited larger towns, perhaps good-sized cities, and have attended theatres there. The least the theatre in their own town can do is to provide a semblance of luxury.

Then there is that pathetic vestige of another day—the barn-like "opry house," frowsily ornate. It's shabbiness reminds one of a pauperized millionaire wearing the remnants of the clothes of his hey-day.

Installing Gradually

The many, and altogether logical, arguments advanced by exhibitors in both of these categories, really narrow down to a question of initial cost. The little fellow in the remote prairie town, says, "Where am I going to get $300?" And the operator of the barn-like opera house protests, "Man, it would take about $2,500 to cover the floors of my house, at least a thousand bucks to recarpet the main floor alone!" On the surface, it seems that the day will never come when they can install or replace carpeting in their theatres.

But who said one has to buy a complete installation of carpeting at one time? Certainly not the carpet people. Buying floor covering piece by piece costs somewhat more, of course; yet, like installment purchasing of automobiles and home goods, with its carrying charge, piece-by-piece installation of carpeting offers a way to get at once what one needs, and the theatre can immediately enjoy the advantage of improved appearance—an advantage which is likely to balance at the box office the extra carpet yardage cost.

How to start? Your carpet contractor can advise you right on the scene, specifically to meet your needs. Here, however, is a suggestion or two:

For example, you could buy a 9x15-foot stock rug and place it in the center of your foyer, with the furniture around it. If a large New York "picture palace" can place a 24x36-foot rug in a 60x120-foot foyer, the same thing can be done on a smaller scale without inviting the criticism that it is makeshift. See the local dealer, and if you can work out some sort of tieup with him, that's to your advantage. The price? You can be sure that he can produce a rug to fit your purse, no matter how lean.

Then, too, if your theatre is of the kind that we here are speaking of, you may have rubber matting in the auditorium aisles which could be replaced with standard carpet runner. Rubber matting in the aisles, besides being out-of-date and barren and cheap-looking, contributes really nothing to the acoustic quality of the auditorium (see discussion by C. C. Potwin in his column on acoustics in the August issue of BETTER THEATRES). Carpet runner is reasonably priced and can be bought by the yard, one or a hundred.

Effective Combinations

Also, for example, there is the "opry house" which may have a foyer the size of the union depot, or corridors of one kind and another like a system of tunnels. These areas may have been regally carpeted at one time, but that was in the long-ago, and now the fabric is worn down to the backing, faded, making the theatre just a grand old ruin. Throw out all of it! Then get, let us say, a roll of figured broadloom—6 feet, 9, 12, 15 or 18 feet wide, as suits your layout, and in any length you can use. One strip of broadloom 6 feet long, and two strips 9 feet long, could be readily made up into a rug and be centered in the foyer according to traffic requirement (see Figure 1).

If the foyer is integral with the auditorium, center the rug on the aisles rather than on entrances from the lobby—this not only would give better balance in appearance, but it would be taking full advantage of the sound-absorption available in the fabric at points where it is most needed.

Suppose the carpeting already in the theatre is worn only in spots and that it is of an old pattern no longer readily obtainable. Count across the seams (distance between seams will probably be 27 or 36 inches). Let us say that it is 18 feet from the standee rail to the lobby doors and that the existing carpeting consists in strips 27 inches wide. That would mean eight strips. Count two strips in from either side; the remaining four strips would have a total width of 9 feet, which is a standard broadloom size. Have broadloom sewn

Re-Decorate Your Staff!

You know from experience that re-decorating your house always steps up attendance. One man tells another — and the second man comes to see for himself.

You get the same effect by putting your staff in new uniforms. Let them be gay and colorful — eye-catchers! But do not sacrifice that touch of authority which commands respect from your patrons. Keen judgment is needed to hit the right medium. Maier-Lavaty uniform designers have judgment mellowed by years of experience. And they are backed up by craftsmen who know how to convert their ideas into cloth, braid and buttons.

into the carpet to replace the central strips, then cut and sew the removed strips into the carpeting to replace the worn places, such as at the lobby doors, lounge entrances, etc. (See Figure 2.)

There are scores of such combinations that could be worked out in collaboration with your carpet dealer, and all can be adjusted to your budget. It is well to remember that this procedure enables you to fill out the sides and ends when you are financially able, with the net result that over a comparatively short period of time you wil have renewed your entire floor-covering layout.

Along with many other types and designs, there is available solid-color striped carpeting in 27-inch widths, with the differently colored bands ranging from 3½ inches to 13½ inches in width. Used in combination with solid-colored or figured broadloom, or for that matter with patterned carpeting in other weaves, interesting custom-made effects can be made well within the budget of the theatre which must cut corners or go without. These banded strips, sewn around the other carpeting to form a border, are particularly effective in combination with solid-color carpeting; they also can be used directionally and to give greater definition, therefore greater safety, to stair steps. (See Figure 3.)

Placement and Wear

Small scatter rugs are not generally advisable anywhere in a theatre since they do not have sufficient weight to stay in place by themselves; however, rugs 6x9 feet may be considered for use at the sides of a foyer or in a lounge where the traffic is leisurely and not entirely in one line. When applied to a slope, all carpeting should be fastened to the floor, and it preferably should meet any thresholds flush. When the floor covering does not extend from wall to wall, one may as well make the uncarpeted floor edge wide enough to accommodate the furniture, so as to reduce wear. If possible, shift the furniture occasionally so that patrons will cross the rug at different places, and the rug ought to be turned around now and then so that the wear is well distributed. Should the ends of a rug show a tendency to curl, dampen them slightly with water and place a weight on the curled part overnight. It is also good practice to anticipate curling by having your carpet dealer sew lead weights on the underside of the rug ends.

In all cases, start right off with a substantial carpet lining, remembering that the better the quality and the greater the weight, the longer your rug will last.

Call in your carpet contractor; or, if you have none, select one who represents a reputable carpet mill and ask him what might be done about your present situation. You will at least learn what could be done within reason, and will be able to plan for the future accordingly.

Notes on the Equipment and Furnishings Market

DISCOVERY of a manufacturer who could roll one-piece stainless steel strips of sufficient length has enabled Progressive Reeltone Company of Grand Rapids, makers of changeable letter signs, to improve the guides in which letters are inserted. Those guides, formerly of painted metal, are now improved in appearance as well as in structural qualities.

HEYER-SHULTZ, INC., of Montclair, N. J., manufacturers of metal reflecting devices, have arranged with National Theatre Supply Company for exclusive distribution rights to their complete line of all-metal reflectors. National has hitherto distributed only the 14-inch reflector used in Peerless Magnarc lamps.

PLANS for corporate and financial expansion of the Radiant Lamp Corporation of Newark, have been approved by stockholders. The company confines its activities exclusively to the manufacture of concentrated filament lamps as used in projection, floodlights, etc.

THE NEW MODEL enclosed micro-switch automatic rewind developed recently by the GoldE Manufacturing Company of Chicago, has been approved by the National Board of Underwriters. The unit features completely enclosed construction and automatic switching to stop the rewinder if the film breaks or if the door is opened.

MOTIOGRAPH projectors and Motiograph-Mirrophonic sound systems are now being distributed in the Buffalo territory by Becker Theatre Equipment, Inc., of Buffalo.

OBSERVATIONS

of the editor

. . ON MOTION PICTURE THEATRE PLANNING AS A JOB FOR THE SPECIALIST

THIS observer of facts and fancies (one might add, finagling, at least for sake of the alliteration) in the affairs of the motion picture theatre, considers himself in an unusually good position to note shortcomings among architects who attempt to work out theatre schemes. Not only do many finished theatres come to our attention, but quite a few plans, either complete or in a preliminary stage, are submitted by some of the architects of little experience in theatre planning, occasionally at the suggestion of their clients. And we work closely enough with specialists in theatre design to be aware of a certain amount of opinion among them that exhibitors should not entrust their theatre planning to architects who, no matter how well grounded they may be in their profession, have not given considerable special attention to the building devoted to the presentation of motion pictures to the public.

One could of course dismiss such protests with the objection that they are merely of selfish motivation. But that wouldn't be quite true. The experienced theatre architect can quickly see the hand of the architect not familiar with the peculiarities of this highly specialized class of building, and often indeed can he point to important features which represent only bungling. Then, too, he is confident in his knowledge of the tricks that save money—a knowledge that is partly derived from mistakes that he made long ago himself.

Compared with the total number of architects, there aren't so many architects, however, who have specialized in theatre design and interested themselves in the motion picture engineering which must advise theatre planning. These gentlemen are pretty thinly distributed over the country. Theatre operators in large cities, or circuits with headquarters in those cities, have ready access to them. But how about the guy in Ipecac, Wyoming? And in any city you get projects of which a theatre is only one element, with the promoter having his own architectural firm for the entire project, retained under conditions too suitable for him to engage another architect just for the theatre.

One answer would seem to lie in the development of more consultation facilities within the architectural profession. Seldom do you find a theatre operator willing to pay for an associate architect if his architect admits he doesn't quite know how; and certainly no architect is happy to kick in with a very substantial percentage of his fee for such service. A relatively small consulting fee, however, covering criticism and suggestions, with perhaps a working drawing of some critical detail, might not appear unreasonable.

Employing a local architect sometimes has its advantages; but the exhibitor nevertheless should have access to the required specialized knowledge. If it is not available from a local architect, either in his own office or through an associate or a consulting service, then the theatre operator has but one wise alternative: Engage the theatre specialist as his architect, no matter how distant his office. There would be no other way to be assured a genuine theatre job, speedily and at minimum cost.

Mr. F. L. Friedman of the National Theatre Supply Company's home office in New York, is a specialist in theatre equipment promotion, as is eminently demonstrated by the article he has written for Better Theatres, appearing elsewhere in this issue. And the other day he got institutionally statistical along these lines (as noted in a press release received in the mails):

National's representatives travel 3,792 miles a day; that's equivalent to a trip around the world every six days, or 56 times around every year. Making these colossal peregrinations, they buy 100,000 gallons of gasoline a year in their respective territories, not to mention oil, tires, etc. Then how about food, hotel rooms—and a bit o' beer or stronger? Plenty! Then of course they have homes and families. Concludes Mr. Friedman, "Besides maintaining the families in their towns, they leave a tidy sum each year in the towns they visit calling on customers."

We wouldn't be a bit surprised if this were propaganda, but doggoned if it doesn't make sense.

LIGHT

FOR VISION DECORATION AND SELLING

"... light is a first tool of showmanship."

Today's Directional Sign:

ADAPTATION OF the necessary directional sign to the interior design is well illustrated in the sketches reproduced above. Developed for Better Theatres by Charles C. Burton, architect and engineer for the Paramount Service Corporation, these designs provide methods which may be readily adopted; at the same time they bring out the principles of the whole directional sign problem, which is to make the sign, not an awkward, obvious appendage, but a decorative feature, part and parcel with the whole interior treatment.

In the first sketch of the upper row is a treatment for double exit doors in an existing theatre where there was only one door before. Here the light box recess of the former single door has been utilized, with its acquired off-side position made decoratively appropriate by an eccentric moulding treatment bordering the door frame and on the doors. The letters may be cut from sheet metal, lacquered black, and screwed into existing construction. Light may be provided by a lamp just below and behind the letters. (Beside each sketch is a sectional diagram indicating the physical arrangement.)

The extreme right sketch in the top row also shows an off-side treatment with mouldings; the letters may be made and affixed as in the first design. Light recesses for such signs may consist in a special box with a cove concealing a 10-inch lumiline lamp bracketed to a metallic reflector strip.

The central top design includes metal moulding around the doors, door mouldings of metal or wood, and a recessed light box carrying an 8-inch lumiline lamp.

At each side in the lower row are suggestions for lounge signs with subtle but clear identification by means of silhouettes cut out of metal and lacquered black. Such figures permit of various lighting arrangements. The figure may be flush with the door frame, in front of a shallow metal trough; but it could also be placed in front of a built-in cove painted glossy white and curved to meet the wall. Such a cove arrangement is indicated as well for a balcony sign like that shown, which employs letters like those of the exit signs.

Getting a Break On Power Costs

ing, especially on heavy equipment or loads that operate only a short time each month or a few months each year.

It pays to check into equipment the power company is using. In some cases their metering equipment is defective. In other cases their ratio transformers may be rated wrong, thus making quite a change in the billing from what it ought to be.

Where several meters are in one place of business and the demand system is used, most power companies add up the total demand of each meter, whereas one demand meter on the entire load will seldom reach a peak as great as adding all of the separate meters. In fact, most every load dovetails together where a portion of one meter load is off when the other meter is at the highest peak, and this change can usually be made at very little cost.

Data for Argument

After using several methods for the last few years to keep a record of light and power billings, loads and power factor, we drafted a form which will give us a picture at a glance of the present year's billings compared with the previous year, also comparing the demand, both on and off peak; the average cost for the current, and the load factor.

Many times a great saving can be had by obtaining a transformer bank, thus changing your billing from a secondary to a primary billing, which is available with most power companies; as a rule it will save one-third or more on the load large enough to justify primary service, and in practically every case will pay off the cost of the transformer or sub-station in from one to two years, or less.

HEATING FILTERING INSULATING

Air Purity: How to Attain It—Air-Motion: How to Control It

type is mounted in a rugged metal frame and is intended to be cleaned as frequently as necessary by the simple expedient of washing in a light oil bath. The slight film of oil remaining on the screen wire after such a bath assists in the trapping and holding of dust particles. While the initial cost is several times greater than that of the throw-away type, by simple cleaning they last indefinitely.

Self-Cleaning Filters

There is a third type of filter which is of permanent and cleanable type, but has the additional feature of being self-cleaning in that it consists of a series of cleanable type filters on an endless belt, which is rotated by a motor, and once every 24 hours the complete bank of filters is rotated through an oil bath in a tank below the filter sections. This type of equipment is usually entirely too expensive except for a very large, deluxe theatre whose owner demands the last word in filter control.

It might be well to say here that it is hardly necessary to clean filters once a day, but they should be inspected at least twice a week and, in most cases, it is desirable to clean the filters once a week. In many of the larger cities there are companies whose business it is to clean air filters and it would seem to be good judgment on the part of the theatre owner to arrange for the frequent inspection and cleaning of such filters on a contract basis. . . So much for air purity.

¶ AIR-MOTION

As has been pointed out in previous articles in this series, air-motion is a very important factor in controlling Effective Temperature, which is attained by control of air-motion, air-heat and air-moisture. Before dealing with the control of air-motion it might be well to point out what air does in the complete picture of air-conditioning as related to patron comfort. It has been well said that air is the transportation vehicle of personal comfort. Air is the medium by which heat is carried away from the body or brought to the body, as the need may be. It serves as the vehicle upon which heat rides.

Using our imaginations for a moment, let us picture a cold auditorium, the air lacking in intensity of heat. The air is then removed from the auditorium, passed through some equipment which adds heat to it, and returned to the auditorium, where it surrenders or gives up its heat to raise the temperature in the auditorium and thereby make us warm. In the summer time the reverse is true. The air, which is now supplied to the auditorium purposely lacking in heat intensity, is capable of absorbing the heat given off by our bodies, and this heat-laden air is carried back to the conditioning equipment where the added heat is surrendered to or absorbed by the equipment, then the air is brought back into the theatre to pick up more of our body heat in order that we may remain comfortable. Thus air is really the medium of heat transfer, or heat exchange, between our bodies and the air conditioning equipment. It supplies heat for warmth, or it removes heat for summer comfort.

Air Volume and Velocity

Now the degree to which it supplies this comfort is determined by the air-motion and the Effective Temperature, which, as previously described, is made up of air-heat and air-moisture. One other governing factor enters into the picture and that is air volume. The greater the amount or volume of air the greater the air velocity, and thereby the greater the air-motion. If too much air is delivered into the conditioned area, the velocity is materially increased and the air motion its speeded up to the point where we feel it in the form of drafts. There is, therefore, a limit to the volume of air that can be circulated in a theatre in order to prevent an excessive and undesirable air-motion.

For illustration, consider for the moment the winter cycle, the temperature to be maintained also affecting the air volume. If the air is removed from the room at a temperature of 72° or 74°, as shown by an ordinary thermometer; and is warmed up to 120°, it will require a certain number of cubic feet or—expressed differently—a certain volume of air heated from 72° to 120°, to maintain the desired temperature. It also is true that if we heat the air from 72° to 140°, not nearly so much air is required to carry the same amount of heat to make up the heat deficiency or to overcome the heat loss in the auditorium and provide the desired temperature. Thus you can readily see that air temperature, or air-heat, definitely affects air volume and, thereby, air-motion.

The Effect of Air-Moisture

Air-moisture (Relative Humidity) also plays a very important part in winter comfort because, as explained, our bodies lose heat by evaporating moisture from the surface of our skin, and if in the winter the air is lacking in moisture, the rate of evaporation from the surface of our skin is greater and we do not feel comfortable. It is then necessary to add a greater amount of air-heat for personal comfort. If, however, we make up this air moisture deficiency by adding water to the air, it becomes increasingly difficult for moisture to be evaporated from the surface of our skin into the air, and therefore our bodies are not cooled so rapidly. It then becomes unnecessary to keep the room at a higher temperature by increasing the air-heat. Adding to the air-moisture content of the air means that we have to provide less air-heat and that we need fewer cubic feet of air because we require a smaller amount of heat. Thus air-moisture too affects air-volume, which in turn affects air-motion through velocity (speed of air-motion). A considerable saving of fuel in the winter time is possible if we add moisture to the air, since if there is sufficient air-moisture, there need not be as much air-heat.

Seasonal Differences

Now air-motion is a very important feature—although not nearly so important in the winter operation as in summer, when an accelerated air-motion helps to evaporate some of the moisture from the surface of our skin and thereby assists in the removal of heat from our bodies. Because of this fact, about three times as much air by volume is required to provide summer comfort as is required for winter comfort. However, another reason for this increase in volume in summer is temperature difference.

To illustrate, if we are maintaining a 78° air-heat temperature (shown by the ordinary, or dry-bulb, thermometer), air above this temperature is removed from the conditioned area, and the heat (as well as the moisture) is taken out to the required degree and the air reintroduced into the conditioned area. For a number of reasons it is not desirable to reduce the air (in terms of ordinary temperature) from 78° to any less than 60° to 65° degrees.

It might also be pointed out that in many summer cooling operations there is more total heat to be removed from the air than there is total heat to be added to the air in the winter cycle to maintain patron comfort. By total heat we mean the total air-heat plus the heat this is also in the air in the form of air moisture, for, as previously pointed out, heat is required to support the moisture in the air. Because of the smaller temperature difference, or cooling range, on the summer cycle, and because of the desirability of increased air-motion to assist in the evaporation of air-moisture from the body, greater volumes of air are handled during the summer cycle than during the winter cycle. Also, greater volumes of air are required—cooled over a smaller temperature range—for the additional reason that very cold air falls at a much faster rate than the rate at which hot air rises. Cold, rapidly falling air creates an unnatural and undesirable air-motion, which is reflected in the form of chilly drafts.

Providing Air-Motion

Air-motion is accomplished by the simple mechanical expedient of circulation by fans, usually powered by electric motors. Of course, there are various kinds and types of fans that will move air and create air-motion, but there are certain requirements for successful results that make only one type—the multi-blade or squirrel cage—truly desirable in air-conditioning.

First, of all, the air must be moved silently. Therefore, the device for moving it must be quiet in operation.

The fan must also be capable of moving the air against resistance, at the least power expenditure, and with the greatest possible efficiency. This resistance is encountered in the pipes or ducts through which the flow of air from the auditorium to the conditioning equipment and back to the auditorium, is confined. Such ducts are naturally limited in size and often have numerous turns in them, which means that the fan creating air-motion must be capable of efficiently overcoming the resistance set up by the friction of the air flowing through the ducts. In order that the air be delivered to the proper areas in the theatre, the fan must be capable of discharging the air the required distances in order to provide even temperatures in all parts of the auditorium and so that air is in motion at all times.

STAGGER PLAN VALUES

[The plan revision discussed is of some special significance because it represents an effort to meet higher standards of vision in an existing theatre, and with dependence upon a mere change in the seating plan. The revision was made by Ben Schlanger, New York theatre architect, and he has prepared the following comment on it.— THE EDITOR.]

THE PLANS illustrated show the before and after seating arrangements of the Studio theatre in Philadelphia, in which vision was improved with a gain of 50 seats over the old arrangement, through a stagger plan. The existing floor slope like so many other floor slopes commonly found does not offer any better than second row vision of the screen. To reslope this concrete floor would have entailed unwarranted expense, so a stagger system of seating, using the existing floor, was adopted to improve vision.

This installation shows a justified use of staggered seating, and there are other cases where this system may be used effectively, but it must be pointed out that non-staggered seating placed on floors properly sloped is superior to staggered seating.

When staggered seating is used there are many seating positions in an auditorium from where vision may be obstructed when the persons seated directly in front lean to one side, but of course the tendency to lean to one side or the other is decreased when full vision is provided for.

The new Studio seating utilizes an asymmetrical aisle arrangement, thereby reducing the number of seating banks from three to two, which change reduced the aisle stagger lines from four to three, resulting in less loss due to stagger. This aisle arrangement also leaves more undisturbed lounging area and better traffic lines (see shaded lounge area).

Another important point regarding staggered seating is illustrated here—that correct staggering is not accomplished merely by placing seats so that the arm block of one seat is directly behind the center of the seat in front in all cases. Actually this relationship of positions varies for each seat according to the relationship of the position of the seat to the screen position. Therefore, in order to insure correct design, great care and considerable time have to be devoted to checking for correct placing of each seat, a problem which does not present itself in the case of non-staggered seating. The varying relationships of seat placements at aisle standards in the Studio theatre plan exemplifies this point.

telling the public just what the lamps are —the modern science they represent, a bit about how they do their job. Then contact your local newspaper and plant a picture of the lamphouse display as a tie-up on a series of publicity stories.

An example of already prepared newspaper publicity material on "Simplified High Intensity" lamps is submitted. While these particular news stories were originally prepared for products distributed by the company with which the writer happens to be associated, similar stories could be used for lamps made by other manufacturers. The two examples given are an advance story and an opening day story—both short, both complete, and both readable; they illustrate the method.

ADVANCE STORY:

Another "Snow White" is coming to the ———— theatre on (date) —— but this time it's new "snow-white" projection light, for clearer, sharper pictures, according to Mr. ————, manager, in announcing the forthcoming installation of powerful ———— lamps in the ———— theatre projection room.

The main feature (————) starring (————) was chosen especially to illustrate the vast improvement made possible by these new ———— lamps.

"They're the nearest thing to daylight, in my opinion," said Mr. ————. "Technicians describe these scientific projection lamps as Simplified High-Intensity type and say that their stronger, snow-white light will enable patrons of the ———— theatre to see all pictures more clearly and color features in more accurate hues.

"I suppose it's like taking a new suit to the store window so that we can see it better. In daylight you get the true color of the pattern. And in the 'daylight' of these astonishing new lamps, every picture on the ———— theatre's screen is going to be infinitely better. Scientific measurements with a photoelectric cell light meter have shown us that when this installation is completed, we will actually have 200% to 300% more light on the screen," Mr. ———— concluded.

The installation of the new ———— lamps in the ———— theatre is being supervised by the (dealer).

OPENING DAY STORY

A wedding of art and science takes place today at the ———— theatre when the smash hit (————) starring (————) will be thrown on the screen through the medium of new "snow-white" type projection lamps just installed by the ———— management.

"Light—and light alone, makes the picture on the screen," said Manager ————.

"Better projection, especially of color, demands what lamp engineers call 'Simplified High-Intensity.' Today's high standard in pictures, today's critical audiences, insist on the same caliber of projection found in the Radio City Music Hall, the Roxy, and other world-famous picture houses. Now the ———— theatre gives its patrons the very finest in modern projection.

"Not only the general theatre-going public, but all those especially interested in light—engineers, camera fans, high school and college students of physics, optometrists—will find the new projection light in the ———— theatre a thrilling experience," the manager said.

Clancy STREAMLINED Curtain Control Unit

Even the smallest theatre can now afford the safety, convenience, dependability and smooth operating features of this modern, economical, streamlined curtain control unit. Curtains can be operated and controlled from any location in the building—the projection room, back-stage, or intermediate positions. Just a touch on an electric button opens or closes the curtain smoothly and noiselessly—allowing it to fold and drape in perfect, even folds.

The complete control unit comprises a Clancy lightweight, noiseless draw curtain track connected with a Clancy utility synchronized curtain control. This unit will serve any stage—up to a 35-foot opening. For larger stages, Clancy heavy-duty units are recommended.

You should know more about this popular, low-priced unit that will give your theatre the up-to-date efficiency and appearance of the largest metropolitan playhouses. It is simply and easily installed. We furnish blueprints and detailed installation instructions.

Let us quote you on this unit—complete, ready to install in your theatre. Write us, giving the height and width of proscenium opening.

abled the designers of these (or name the make) lamps to build into their projection units every desirable feature which would insure maximum light efficiency on the screen.

The many outstanding features of the ——— lamp design led the management of the ——— theatre to select these new type projection lamps from the ——— (dealer).

But getting newspaper stories published on your new lamp equipment should not end your exploitation activities. As a further step, you might send special invitations to camera clubs and camera fans, inviting them to bring their candid cameras along for shots of scenes from the picture under the new and improved lighting conditions. Then, too, you could make a tieup with your local optometrists, asking these professional people to give an interview or write a short article outlining their own viewpoint of what better projection light on the screen means in the way of better vision and less eye strain. Invitations can also be mailed to the local high schools and colleges to students, say, in the physics laboratories, to bring out the scientific aspects of better light. And finally, the local electric company could be contacted for a congratulatory advertisement featuring the name of the theatre.

New sound, of course, has tremendous possibilities for publicity, and sound equipment manufacturers have sought to do a publicity job comparable to that done on feature pictures. When a new Simplex sound system, for example, is about to be installed in a theatre, the manager gets, in addition to a series of prepared publicity stories, other local exploitation, such as radio and sound truck announcements, special copy for programs, handouts and advertising mats. All this, of course, is supplemented further by other material which is made available, such as burgees, valences and box office plaques.

A typical announcement story on a new sound system installation, together with several radio and sound truck announcements that can be adapted to practically any situation, are as follows:

ADVANCE STORY

Negotiations have been completed for a new Simplex Four-Star (or name of other make) Sound System between Mr. ———, manager of the ——— theatre, and the National Theatre Supply Company (or other source).

The new equipment represents a definite improvement over present sound equipment in use. It is entirely new and includes many technical developments which have recently been perfected through laboratory tests and under practical operating conditions. It assures greater realism in sound reproduction, better balance of high and low tone range, and the distribution of sound throughout the theatre is perfectly uniform irrespective of where you sit. These features are all of immeasurable value to the theatre patron and to his or her full and complete enjoyment of motion pictures.

"When this new equipment is installed," Mr. ——— stated, "our patrons will be quick to recognize the wonderful improvement. There will be a very definite feeling of greater realism and the positive illusion of being present."

"New methods and standards in recording constantly being adopted by the producers in Hollywood are beyond the performance capabilities of older types of sound systems," Mr. ——— stated. "For that reason, if we are to put a sound motion picture on the screen just as Hollywood created it, we must have available a sound system equal to the exacting requirements these new standards demand.

"Following a thorough study of contemporary equipment, we unhesitatingly chose the new Simplex Four-Star sound system because it is outstanding in technical excellence and, secondly, because it is manufactured by a firm long associated in building a product for the theatre and conversant with our exacting requirements.

"This is merely another forward step in the policy of the ——— Theatre to offer our patrons the best that can be had for complete enjoyment of motion pictures."

RADIO AND SOUND TRUCK ANNOUNCEMENTS

A double feature you cannot afford to miss—opening tonight at the ——— theatre, a new Simplex Four-Star Sound System which will thrill your ears . . . plus the feature picture (name of picture), with (names of stars), all of which assure you of a brilliant and entertaining show. By all means don't miss this attraction at the ——— theatre tonight!

Here's a news announcement of outstanding interest! When the curtain is drawn tonight at the ——— theatre, you will hear along with the picture a new and marvelous sound reproduction, for the ——— theatre has just completed the installation of a new Simplex Four-Star Sound System designed to give you talking pictures with all the naturalness and realism that Hollywood created!

Space limitation, of course, precludes the reproduction of an entire publicity setup, but the examples given will serve to show what can be done. Obviously, even prepared stories need not be used verbatim, but can be utilized as a "springboard" from which the enterprising theatre manager can design and carry out his own original campaigns.

In most communities there are Parent-Teacher Associations, and in many schools film appreciation and study groups, that can be contacted with special invitations or preview announcements of the new sound, its scientific characteristics, its technical aspects and other sidelights especially interesting to those in science, physics and visual education classes.

All such exploitation, of course, is supplementary to special preview showings of the new equipment in your lobby, with a capable attendant in charge or with suitable explanatory placards.

I have touched briefly on the exploitation possibilities for your theatre of only two classes of new equipment. The same ingenuity, the same imagination and the same showmanship can, with the help of your supply dealer, make it possible for you to publicize all the goodwill angles of other new equipment such as chairs, generators, carpets, marquees, air-conditioning, projection apparatus, as well as many other kinds of improvements.

Buying new equipment of any kind is always an important move. It is equally important to capture all possible benefits for your theatre from the actual installation of new equipment and furnishings of most every class.

[The author is associated with the sales promotion department of the National Theatre Supply Company, and he has of course had much practical field experience in the exploitation of actual installations, as well as in the preparation of press-book and other material for the exploitation by theatres of new equipment and furnishings installations.]

The Practical Use of Sound Test Reels

● Development of more and more test reels has taken most of guess work out of sound equipment repairs and adjustment. Here are tips on their use

By AARON NADELL

TEST FILMS that make possible exact adjustment of sound apparatus for the best performance of which it is inherently capable are now available to theatres in greater variety than ever before. With modern equipments these reels may be considered essentially standard tools, indispensable for certain important types of work.

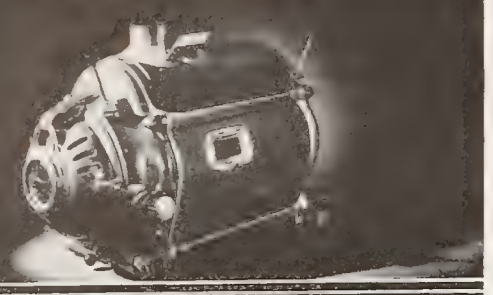
The basic purpose of most test reels is to introduce into the system sound of known characteristics, eliminating all question of variations in recording. The system, or that part of it which is under test, then remains solely responsible for the nature of the output. With some reels, the output is judged by ear. With others, used for different purposes, judgment by ear is entirely impossible, and the reel is useless unless supplemented by a volume indicator capable of measuring results in terms of volts or of decibels. Prices of such meters are reasonable—for some of the less accurate models (which are still serviceable), extremely reasonable.

Standard Recording

The simplest of all test reels is the standard recording, which is used to judge quality by ear. It is used partly because the test reel's own quality is assured, whereas that of the daily program is not; partly because when it has been played a number of times it becomes very familiar to the user, who can then instantly detect flaws in reproduction which would be much less evident to him with a strange track; partly because it is made up of types of recordings that are particularly well adapted to unveiling certain forms of equipment deficiencies; and partly because it is likely, today, to be made up of selections from the standard output of different studios, therefore indicating whether any particular product calls for special adjustments in the theatre, as well as what compromise adjustment will give the best average result with all product.

The standard recording is, in addition, used where the more elaborate forms of acoustic test equipment, referred to below, are not available. In such cases the system is set for theoretically correct results (flat response) and the test reel and critical ears decide whether that setting gives the best quality under the acoustic conditions obtaining. If not, the adjustment is varied until the standard recording sounds best, and the setting thus arrived at is noted down as being preferable, henceforth, for that system in that particular theatre.

The standard recording is also conveniently used for rough and quick comparison of the sound quality delivered by both soundheads and by both channels, if there are two. It is used for rough testing after repairs or minor adjustments to assure that everything is in perfect working order for the next show; and in houses that follow more elaborate inspection routines, it may be used before each day's show, or once a week, for general check-up.



Multi-Frequency Film

Almost equally familiar to the average theatre man is that old stand-by, the multi-frequency film. The track carries a number of pure tones, ranging from the lowest frequencies to the highest and following each other in regular succession. In some reels, all tones are recorded at exactly the same volume. In others they are not, and an announcement preceding each frequency indicates the extent of the deviation, allowance for which is duly made when the output meter reading is noted. Many of these reels begin with a short run of 1,000-cycle recording, for convenient adjustment of the meter controls. After that, the volume output at each successive frequency, as the film runs through, is read on the meter and noted down.

Unless the system has been differently adjusted, for acoustic conditions or other special reasons, output volume should be the same at all frequencies within the equipment's capabilities, because input volume was the same at all frequencies. If this is not the case, frequency controls are reset or the apparatus is examined for defects. The result of each adjustment or provisional repair is tested in the same way, until performance is correct. Where the system is one that has separate high-frequency and low-frequency output channels, each channel may be measured separately for correct performance within its appointed range.

The meter readings are often noted on graph paper by means of small dots, which are then connected by a continuous line to produce the familiar "characteristic curve" commonly used to give a graphic presentation of the performance of sound components.

Method of Isolating Cause

These tests are very helpful in isolating trouble sources. If, for example, the curve obtained from one soundhead is different from that of the other, the fault must lie in the soundheads or their connections, since the amplifying channel is the same in both cases. (Of course it is not necessary to draw an actual curve; comparisons of two columns of readings will serve the same purpose). On the other hand, if results are uniformly poor with both projectors, the amplifying channel is indicated, and isolation can often go even further. If, for example, there are both a voltage and a power amplifier, the meter can in some cases be connected to read the voltage amplifier output, thus indicating which of the two is faulty. Regular and emergency channels can be compared; also, where two channels exist individual amplifiers can be switched from one to the other and resulting differences in performance thus traced to the exact panel responsible.

These tests permit making and checking numbers of small adjustments or repairs, none of which may be important in itself, or great enough for the result to be audible; but which in their aggregate effect add up to a substantial improvement in quality. This is one of the ways in which test reel and meter are indispensable; the meter being sensitive enough to see improvements too slight for the ear to hear.

Comprehensive tests with multi-frequency film and meter should be made on every sound system at intervals no longer than six months.

Use of Frequency Loops

Short sections, or loops, of selected frequencies are used for more restricted purposes. A favorite quick adjustment is made possible by threading 1,000-cycle loops into each soundhead, running the machines simultaneously and switching sound from one to the other to compare volume level. Comparison by ear is practical, use of the output meter is preferable.

Loops or short strips of high-frequency recordings are invaluable for adjusting exciter lamp focus to give the best results with modern sound tracks. Loops of 7,000 or 9,000 cycles are used, according to the results that can properly be expected of the equipment. The output meter is connected, and focus is adjusted for maximum volume. When this is attained, focus will be as sharp as it can be made for the highest frequency and therefore optimum also for all others. The test is repeated after the adjustment has been locked down, to make certain that the fine edge of the focus has not been lost in the locking down process. For this work also the reel, or loop, can be used alone, and maximum volume judged by ear rather than by meter, but the meter is incomparably more sensitive and gives conspicuously superior results.

Lateral Alignment Test

Lateral alignment of the sound track is very efficiently checked, and lateral guides are easily and accurately set, by means of one of the newer test tracks, made available by the Research Council of the Academy of Motion Pictures Arts and Sciences. This consists of a black sound track through which no light passes, and special recordings at either side, beyond the normal track location, of 1,000 cycles toward the sprocket holes and 300 cycles toward the center. When this track is played, lateral guides are adjusted by ear until neither sound is heard: the film is then correctly positioned to avoid both sprocket hole hum and dividing line hum.

Exciter and Film Adjustment

Exciter lamp and film adjustment in a rear-scanning head (Erpi TA-7400) are best accomplished through still more elaborate use of test films. Preliminary focus of the objective lens is made by visual inspection with a 3,000- or 4,000-cycle track threaded. Readjustment for maximum level is made while running a 7,000- or 8,000-cycle film and checking with an output meter; the condenser lens-prism being then backed off to produce a meter reading 2 decibels below maximum. With the adjustments thus obtained locked down, the external slit azimuth, or rotational position, is shifted until the meter again gives maximum response. Lastly, the sound track lateral alignment is perfected with the help of another of the Research Council's special short test films, a length of double track with an accurately positioned center line. Correct projection of the center line of the track on to the center of the external slit is secured by manipulating the film lateral guides and visual inspection.

Uniformity of Illumination

A particularly important optical condition that could not otherwise be tested at all by any satisfatcory direct means, is checked easily and with extreme accuracy, through the use of still another special film. This is the uniformity of illumination across the sound track width, which can easily be impaired by a number of causes, such as slight sagging of the exciter filament. Non-uniform illumination can produce either trifling or serious deficiencies of sound quality, depending somewhat on the type of recording. Variable density and variable width, single, double and squeeze tracks all give somewhat different results with identical conditions of laterally non-uniform illumination, and quality over different portions of the same track may also vary.

The Academy's special film for testing this condition carries seventeen extremely narrow sound tracks. The first is located nearest the sprocket holes, and the seventeenth and last nearest the dividing lines, with the others spaced at equal intervals between. As the 230-foot length of film is run off, these narrow recordings follow one after another in regular sequence, each placed a little closer to the dividing lines than the one preceding, and the volume outputs are read on the meter. If illumination is uniform all the way across the sound track area, all the readings will be the same. When they are not, the exciter lamp is replaced; should this fail to clear the trouble, the optical arrangements are subjected to further inspection or adjustment according to the conditions the meter reveals.

Comparative Tests

Several of the reels referred to are used in association with each other. Thus, supposing the standard sound reel to indicate deficient quality from one soundhead, the multi-frequency reel might be used in that machine to check the nature of the trouble. In case that showed insufficient high-frequency response, it might possibly be followed by the seventeen-track scanning test to find whether uneven lateral illumination is the cause of the trouble; or by the film guide adjustment loop, or the 9,000-cycle focusing loop, as circumstances suggest. Perhaps all these films will be used before the true trouble is found; perhaps none of them will find it, but at least they will very quickly and efficiently eliminate a considerable number of possibilities and leave comparatively few for investigation by other means.

All of the test films so far described function with the help of only ear, eye or at the most a simple output meter. More elaborate aids are needed with the special recordings for acoustic tests, now also available to theatres. These are multi-frequency reels in which each frequency is "warbled" or caused to vary by 10% or thereabout, to avoid production of standing waves. A single frequency played at constant volume occasionally undergoes reflection from surfaces facing each other in such a way that the reflections are mutually reinforcing and volume is built up instead of dying away. In other words, a portion of the auditorium can be "resonant" at some one frequency. This effect may be comparatively unimportant with ordinary speech or music, in which prolonged reproduction of a single pure tone at constant volume seldom occurs, and still produce misleading results in microphone measurements. Hence acoustic test frequencies are "warbled."

The readings are taken by playing the warble reel through the screen speakers, picking up the sound with a known or calibrated microphone.

COMMENT ON PROJECTION AFFAIRS and answers to inquiries . . . By F. H. RICHARDSON

ON A POLICY OF JEOPARDIZING A FORTUNE TO SAVE A PITTANCE

IT IS PRETTY well known that a considerable number of theatre managers endowed with authority to provide the projection staff with everything that is requisite to good results, insist that equipment parts be retained in use beyond the limits of either safety or ability to produce those results.

This is of course done through a desire to reduce the cost of operation to the lowest possible limit. However, while legitimate reduction in operating expense can merit nothing but commendation, when such reduction operates to reduce income, surely it is time to call a halt. Certainly it cannot be successfully argued that equipment in a poor state of repair can possibly be made to produce results comparable in quality with that produced by equipment in perfect condition, assuming each to have the same intelligent operation.

Each year sees added recognition of the fact that projection and the projectionist is the vital connecting link between studio and the theatre patron. More and more is the industry coming to realize the fact that imperfection in projection must reduce the entertainment value of its theatre programs. True, imperfection in projection cannot alter the movement of actors appearing on the screen, but it can very seriously detract from their effectiveness as performers, besides mutilating music, garbling speech and causing eye strain.

Suppose that, in a period of a year, by refusal to honor projection room requisitions, or by delay in so doing, you have reduced overhead by $200. That is to say, it would have cost that much more to have maintained all equipment in perfect condition. That would amount approximately to 54c per day, but say that even a dollar a day is saved. Isn't a well presented picture worth a dollar a day?

Assuming equipment to be handled competently and maintained in perfect condition there will be a rock-steady screen image, well illuminated and with light well distributed. The music will be faithfully reproduced, and speech will be clear. It is reasonable that your patrons will leave with a desire to "go to the movies" again. That, to my notion, is the best exploitation motion pictures—any picture—can have.

THE PROBLEM OF SCREEN LIGHT STANDARDIZATION

FROM THE GENERAL manager of a large circuit in the New York metropolitan area, comes the following:

"May I have the following questions answered? As between different theatres there is a wide differential in screen illumination. Is it not possible to have some standard of screen brightness established, to the end that results, viewed as a whole, be improved? I have been reliably advised that all motion pictures are photographed at an illumination of 15 candle power. If this be true, it would seem that to secure duplication of the scene or thing so photographed, the theatre screen must have an equal illumination value.

"Using a Weston meter, I have measured many screen illumination values with the projector in operation; also with it inoperative and the rotating shutter in open position, finding values in the latter condition practically double that of the first named. What I ask of you is: First, what should be the minimum reading under both conditions? Second, what percentage of the light is the projector rotating shutter presumed to eliminate? Third, With different types of screen I note the reflected light values vary widely. Can you advise as to what percentage of light should be reflected back by a beaded screen?"

To answer all this in complete detail would require pages of space. Briefly, however, while it is true that all studio scenes are photographed at the same approximate light intensity, it is obvious this cannot be done with outdoor scenes, hence "all" scenes are not photographed at the same "candle power." Moreover, no projector optical system has yet been devised that will illuminate a theatre scene evenly. Between a screen center and its outer margin there is a differential of from one to five; even more in some cases. It varies widely according to the selection and adjustment of the projector optical train. Measure center and margin of a few screens and be convinced.

Obstacles to Standardization

For years engineers have been seeking some basis for standardization of screen illumination, without much success. The reasons for failure are many. What may be a very acceptable screen illumination where viewing distance is limited to, say, 50 feet, would be quite too low to enable a good view of screen image details were the viewing distance longer—say, 100 to 150 feet. An illumination quite satisfactory in a dimly lighted auditorium would be wholly inadequate in one having higher illumination. Dark auditorium decorations will permit equal viewing results with lower screen illumination, and so on through a fairly lengthy list.

A screen image is wholly a matter of contrasts in light, shadow and darkness, hence anything that will affect these values, as viewed by an audience, must be considered, and so very many things may affect them that standardization is wholly impossible unless, first, those other things be standardized. Then, too, a screen surface that will reflect a certain percentage of light today will not reflect that percentage one month from today, the difference varying widely in different locations in accordance with the amount of dirt in the air.

Measuring the Screen Light

What the reading should be would depend upon the conditions the reflected light must encounter. Measurements should be made at the screen center. At different zones of the screen it will run somewhat along the proportions shown in Figure 41 of the Bluebook of Projection.

The best rule I know of is to establish that illumination value that seems to make viewing from each auditorium center most satisfactory to a group of average people. This will establish a correct balance as between the front and rear of seating space. This may not be a "scientific" solution, but in practice it has high value. It must, however, be remembered that slowly but constantly screen reflection value decreases, and this must be taken into account, especially where the atmosphere is laden with dust, smoke, etc.

Second, the projector rotating shutter eliminates or "cuts off" a trifle more than half the light. Measure the width of shutter blades and the openings between them. Compare these measurements and you have your answer.

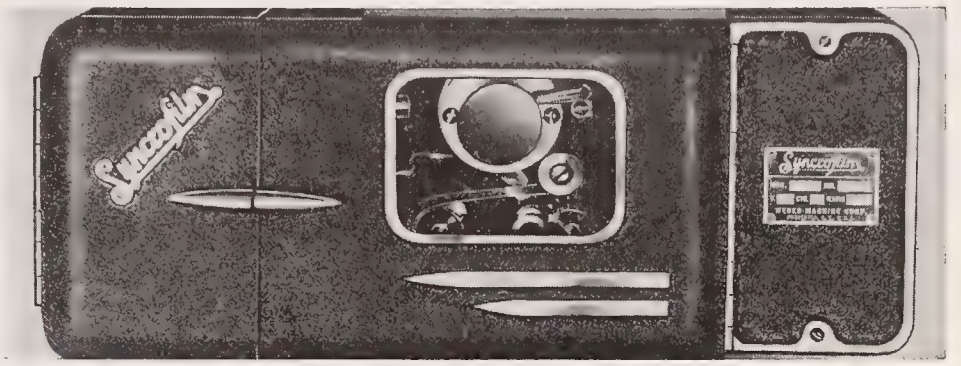
Third, as already explained, this varies with varying conditions. If a fixed measurement is demanded, I would say (backed by the opinion of the Projection Practice Committee of the SMPE) 15 foot-candles at the screen center would perhaps serve best, but—!

Then too, there is the character of the screen surface. The specular surface (beaded screen, for example), reflects a very high percentage of the light back to the auditorium central area, but less and less as the viewing angle is increased. It therefore is not well suited to wide auditoriums. On the other hand the diffusive screen reflects more evenly to all sections of the seating space. For a long auditorium that is of narrow width, the beaded screen, because of its unique properties as a directional reflecting surface, has a very special value.

HOW MANY MILES A YEAR DO YOU PROJECT PICTURES

AT A RECENT meeting of the Projection Practice Committee of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, past-president of that body, treated us to a new conception of projection. He asked, "Assuming the projection distance to be 150 feet, how far is each frame of film projected?"

He then proceeded to explain: "The usual thought is, of course, 150 feet, which is not correct. Each frame is projected 150 feet and is cut entirely off by the cut-off blade of the projector shutter. It then is projected a second time and is cut off finally by the shutter master blade, hence, since 150 plus 150 equals 300, it follows that each frame is actually projected a total of 300 feet."



When the laughs had subsided, he continued, "Following through: Since each foot of film contains 16 frames, the actual projection distance for each foot of film is $300 \times 16 = 4{,}800$ feet, and each 7,000-foot production is projected a total of $7{,}000 \times 4{,}800$, making altogether 33,600,000 feet.

"Thus we see that in a show using a 7,000-foot production each day for one year, its projectionist is very sadly overworked, since the total projection distance for the year adds up to 12,664,000,000 feet, or more than five miles around the world." Whereupon the doctor sat down, satisfied with a job well done.

REACTIONS

THE American motion picture industry this week began to act for operation in a world re-shaped by war.

Most conspicuous was the breaking down of a certain buying reluctance, based mainly on delays of trade practise decisions and influences of governmental pressures. Many exhibitors, both independents and buying offices of variously allied circuits, decided to make deals now against what they deemed a probability of a steadily increasing scale of rentals. Buyers were interested in the protection of long term deals. Sellers were cagy, not too sure what Hollywood budgets of the morrow might prove.

From Hollywood came tidings of payroll amputations, but not salary cuts. The first to fall were some of the court jesters, golf, polo and card instructors.

The West Coast and New York home offices did a bigger long distance telephone business than usual. It appeared probable that Lady Hollywood might get her allowance cut, regardless of pouts and protests.

The conversations grew hot in spots. One New York executive hung up the phone with the observation: "The whole damn outfit out there is nigger-rich, and now's the time they'll have to learn to get over it."

One acute film buyer, dealing for large interests, observed that "Hollywood, despite all we have to say about it, has brain power enough to meet emergencies and to do the job that the conditions call for. When they are driven to it, they do deliver. That has been proved often enough. They can always do a better job."

"And another thing," he added, "We must remember that this is a lucky business. As an industry it has had one break after another. Maybe it will be getting another one now. The first world war made it, for America."

MEANWHILE, the box office, nationally, was cheered no little by a marked upward trend, recovering from the summer slump and reaching figures close to the best week in February last.

This was the more especially interesting to alarmed showmen who observed that "this summer they went away from us as never before, since that slump in the silent picture days just before sound came along. They've been looking for anything else at all to do and see. Now maybe they'll come back."

Certain enough the public is manifesting a desire to buy entertainment. A scanning of Monday's reports showed that last week-end in New York a doubleheader between the Yankees and the Browns, last place club, drew some thirty-thousand admissions; in Philadelphia the opening of the professional football season drew more than forty-two thousand persons; and the finals of the tennis championships at Forest Hills played to more than ten thousand. Professional football in Green Bay, Wisconsin, drew twelve thousand, minor league baseball finals in Jersey City attracted seventeen thousand, and a game between New York's street cleaners and police took thirty thousand to the Polo grounds.

The customers want some place to go and something to see.

HOLLYWOOD declared for the continued production and delivery of the important and pretentious pictures of its recently made seasonal announcements.

It was the opinion of Motion Picture Herald's Hollywood bureau that considerably more cutting of operating costs and some reductions of personnel were yet to come, and that they could and probably would be made without impairment of the product.

Characteristically, from Hollywood came again the demand that the exhibitor increase the returns to the producer, that box office revenues be put up; that higher admission prices were advisable; and again, that pictures should get extended runs, even if they only broke even, so that the production machine might be maintained in the style to which it has become accustomed.

Some operating executives in New York were of the opinion that a long war, inhibiting the making of pictures in England, France and Germany, would tend to break down and demolish quota restrictions against American product in all the neutral nations of the remaining world market, most especially enhancing America's screen opportunity in the Latin areas.

It was further considered that if exhibition really desired to eliminate double-billing as a widespread policy, the opportunity would be made especially broad by the prospects ahead.

There was also observation, in some quarters with apprehension, that over-buying for the purposes of regional monopoly might now be made so conspicuous, especially in the light of governmental attentions, both in court and congress, as to be positively unhealthy.

INTERESTINGLY, and with national press attention, Mr. Will H. Hays, currently out in Hollywood, made his first official utterance of bearing on the Government suit and anti-trust policies. Mr. Hays spoke diplomatically of the broad cause of industry, but to his audience within this motion picture institution his expression was taken as "the opening for the defense of the majors."

Mr. Hays spoke before the Regional Trust Company Conference of the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States, but there was motion picture significance when he said: "If two or more groups are in competition and one is seeking to gain advantages over the other by Government regulation, then it is clearly not the business of the Government to take sides."

"My sober conclusion," said Mr. Hays, "is that the public

This Week

War and Pictures

Losses sustained from that part of the foreign market now engaged in war will be met by major motion picture companies by a curtailment of non-essential expenses, it was indicated this week, as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners dropped an estimated total of 1,500 people from their payrolls, primarily at their studios.

Reports on the foreign situation were made this week by John W. Hicks, Jr., head of Paramount's foreign activities, and Murray Silverstone, operating head of United Artists.

Theatres throughout England, including London, were permitted to re-open, while in certain areas of Paris houses were allowed to remain open until 10 P. M.

Paramount News scored the first "scoop" of the war, this week, by presenting the first action shots of Europe's armies.

News of the war and the industry is on page 16.

Goldwyn Proposes

A suggestion that a fact-finding committee of producers and employees examine all phases of the war's relation to the industry was made Wednesday by Samuel Goldwyn in a letter to the executives of the screen writers', actors' and directors' guilds and to Joseph M. Schenck and Will H. Hays.

REACTIONS

interest is as strictly respected and observed in business as it is in Government."

Mr. Hays spoke of Government's responsibility to business as well as to the public which business serves, with the remark that " . . . the measure of a government's value is the extent to which it is a wise and true trustee of these responsibilities which are temporarily placed upon it." Note the word "temporary." That perhaps was not unrelated to Mr. Hays' subsequent discussion of the obligations of the voter. This phase of his remarks, some of his audience felt, might just possibly be addressed to persons in Washington—which has a national election ahead.

Within the industry there appeared to be calculated significance in the fact that it was in Los Angeles and the production center that Mr. Hays elected to make his initial discussion of policy.

Arbitration

The Independent Theatre Owners of New York this week questioned major affiliated and independent circuit operators in the metropolitan area on their attitude toward arbitration offered by distributors. A registered letter sent by the organization to the Century, RKO, Loew's, Skouras, Randforce, Seider, Cocalis and Fabian circuits said in part:

"This organization has received assurances from Twentieth Century-Fox, Columbia, Paramount, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, RKO, Universal and Warner Brothers that they stand ready to arbitrate the differences arising among various branches of the industry concerning the renting and exhibiting of motion pictures. . . .

"Will you kindly examine this matter very carefully and reply to us as soon as possible regarding the willingness of your circuit to enter into such arbitration. . . ."

One Case Ends

When the defense offered no testimony, the Government contempt suit against the majors and Balaban and Katz in the Chicago area, for violation of a 1932 consent decree, abruptly concluded on Monday, in Federal Court. Both sides have until December 2nd to file briefs. A ruling is expected to seriously affect or validate Chicago's clearance system.

In the many other anti-trust sectors, action was lacking. The Schines, in Buffalo, this week secured a two-week adjournment of the Government case against their circuit.

There were continuing reports this week, of meetings between industry representatives and those of the Department of Commerce; also, of a direct appeal to the President to intercede for the majors' trade practice code, recently declared illegal by Assistant Attorney General Thurman Wesley Arnold.

The stories are on page 42.

Oklahoma Allied

The Oklahoma Allied meets next Tuesday in Oklahoma City, to hear the usual reports, to hear several prominent speakers, including a state representative and Colonel H. A. Cole, national Allied president, and to hear how legislative efforts, of the sort Allied favor, are proceeding.

Congressman Lyle Boren, Democrat, of the state, had been expected to outline his Federal measure for theatre divorcement; but the special session of Congress was expected to keep him from doing so.

State Representative George Miskovsky will detail his state chain store tax bill, probably affecting theatres.

New York Shake-Up

Thurman Wesley Arnold, special assistant United States Attorney General in charge of the anti-trust division of the Department of Justice, shifted the personnel of the New York office his week.

Berkley W. Henderson, its head, and his assistant, William McGovern, are transferred to Washington. Fred Whalen, New York staff member, will be in charge now.

The transfers are believed to indicate a curtailment in New York office activities. Substantiating this is the decision by Washington to transfer several pending New York anti-trust complaints to the supervision of John T. Cahill, United States District Attorney for the Southern district.

The Department's anti-trust action against the majors, now in progress, will remain in the hands of its New York office, it was said.

Theatre Receipts Rise

Despite Europe's military conflagration, box office receipts for key city theatres in this country showed a marked upturn in gross intake during the week ended September 8th. Total grosses for 145 theatres for this period reached $1,490,144, the highest attained since the week ending Feb. 9-10, when 147 theatres estimated a gross return of $1,494,600.

Yates Optimistic

Loss of foreign revenues, because of the European War, will be partly balanced by the motion picture industry's operating economies, and by rising theatre attendance, resulting from increased business in this country, Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, said in New York this week. Mr. Yates returned lately from a European business survey. He also announced Consolidated financial gains.

The corporation and subsidiaries received a net income for July and August, after depreciation and normal Federal taxes, of $151,416. For the third quarter ending on this September 30th, the net income will be approximately $232,000. This is equivalent to 58 cents per share on the 400,000 outstanding shares of the $2 preferred stock, he said. This compares with a net income of $218,763 for the third quarter of 1938, amounting to 54 cents per share.

Tax Collections Rise

Exceeding 1938 collections for the third time this year, August revenues from the federal admission tax totaled $1,513,468, compared with $1,425,063 in the same month last year, it was reported on September 20th by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The month's collections, however, were nearly $21,000 under the July total of $1,534,250, but the Bureau's report showed that the drop was much less than that of a year ago when receipts declined $193,000 in the same period. For the first eight months of the year, admission tax collections totaled $12,203,945, nearly $187,000 under the $12,390,638 reported for the same period in 1938.

MGM Prepares Its Own Code; U Drafts Plan for Arbitration

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, over the signature of "Leo," representing the company, announced to the trade, Tuesday, its own code of fair trade practices, and the preparation of a new form of license agreement retroactive on all 1939-40 contracts already signed. Universal is now drafting a plan for arbitrating contract disputes.

The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer statement said:

MGM reaffirms its previously announced policy of not insisting upon short subject, newsreel or trailer representation as a condition of licensing its feature productions. and to those who do lease these units the weekly payment plan is optional.

That score or recording charges will not be made on any contracts for its 1939-40 product signed subsequent to January 1, 1939.

That it will gladly negotiate for some run of its product with any properly conducted theatre, providing the acquisition of such business would not seriously affect its revenue from any prior run.

That it will recognize the desires of its customers to select days of their choice for the showing of percentage pictures where guarantees are given.

That it will respect any legitimate claim for the elimination from its contract of any picture likely to be offensive or objectionable to its customers' patrons from religious, moral or racial grounds.

Elimination Privilege

And in addition: It will offer to its customers who have leased all products offered, and who are not in material default, an increased and unrestricted elimination privilege of:

20% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is $100 or less.

15% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is in excess of $100 and not more than $250, and

10% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is in excess of $250.

Also will give full consideration to its customers' requests for the interchanging of a picture that is deemed to be unsuitable for preferred time showing.

And where a theatre's prior commitments prevent it leasing the company's entire output it will in such cases gladly negotiate for a lesser number of pictures, including those available subjects in which the theatre is particularly interested.

It will continue to provide an Optional Arbitration Clause in its contracts and will arbitrate under such provision any claims made for breach of contract.

New License Agreement

It is now preparing a new form of license agreement. A rider will be submitted for the signature of those who desire to operate under the new conditions and who had previously signed an application for its 1939-40 product.

It has no present method of adjudicating clearance disputes or those affecting over-buying, but will conscientiously review any complaints brought to its attention and will continue to lend its every effort to bring about a more harmonious understanding.

Universal's arbitration plan for the settlement of contract disputes will be available to all exhibitors buying its product, and will be added to the licensing agreement when completed.

An increase in the cancellation privilege is also being considered at Universal; Warners and Paramount having already raised the rejection privilege to 20 per cent in certain rental groups.

EXHIBITORS RUSH TO BUY AS RENTALS INCREASE; NEW TERMS SOUGHT

A WAVE of product buying for the 1939-40 season, breaking down the resistance which has been evident in the film market since the middle of the summer, is now beginning to make itself felt. The ground swell, which began several weeks ago with the announcement of the conclusion of several important contracts by large circuits, is attributed to several factors, the most important of which is reported to be exhibitor anticipation of rental increases which, it is expected, will be found necessary to balance the loss of foreign revenue.

In addition to the buying rush the expected rental increases have had a secondary result. Executives of the larger circuits are studying the possibility of advancing admission prices so as to transfer part of the extra burden to the buying public. Conferences on the possible extent of such advances are reported already well under way.

Circuit Deals Split Up

One reason for the previous delay in the completion of deals with the important circuits was reported to be the fact that the negotiations for 1939-40 circuit contracts are based on single situations and small groups, instead of the blanket contract covering a whole circuit with details, this with an eye to Thurman Arnold, assistant U. S. attorney general, who warned last week that there will be no let up in the Department of Justice war on monopoly.

Sales executives of the major distribution companies say that after an abnormally dull beginning the negotiations on contracts with circuits in the first run key spots are now in full swing. It is expected that if progress continues at the pace indicated this week most of these deals will have been concluded by early in October, clearing the way for the signing of subsequent run situations which in most cases are not considered until after the circuit contracts are signed.

An indication of buying activity is the number of circuit executives who have visited New York and the home offices within recent weeks. At present conferring with distribution chiefs in the home offices are Abe Blank, E. V. Richards, L. J. Ludwig for the Minnesota Amusement Co., John Nolan for the Comerford circuit, and N. D. Dipson of upstate New York.

Long Term Contracts Sought

Another factor in the delayed season has been the insistence of exhibitors upon protecting themselves against future rental increases by holding out for two and three year franchises at present terms. Distributors have been reluctant to enter negotiations on this basis because of the impossibility of charting an exact financial course for the immediate future. It is reported, however, that several long term franchises have now been concluded, presumably at satisfactorily higher rentals.

On their side the distributors are starting negotiations on terms which include a higher number of percentage pictures than in previous years.

Departing from the precedent of the immediate past most of the major circuit negotiations for product are being undertaken for small groups of theatres classified according to their status as first or subsequent run. The amount of additional work this method entails also has been instrumental in delaying the final announcement of completed deals. Additionally it has operated to postpone the signing of the smaller circuits and individual houses. These contracts, always later in the season than the major deals, now will not be signed, it is expected, until late in the fall.

A single instance of this has been the delay in the signing of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract with National Theatres. This circuit normally groups its 450 theatres into about six categories but this year the deal is being worked out more or less on an individual theatre basis. Similar delays have been encountered in this distributor's negotiations with Balaban and Katz in Chicago, the Warner circuit and the Mullin and Pinanski circuit in New England.

MGM's sales are reported at about the same numerical level as at this time last year with between 50 and 55 per cent of the total possibilities closed. The total for the 1938-39 season was approximately 11,000 contracts, reported close to a new high. William F. Rodgers, general sales manager, said for the record that he had noticed no signs of delayed buying. He added that his company's sales to both circuits and independents were "normal."

At RKO a sudden rush of circuits and independent exhibitors anxious to conclude their contracts at present terms as a hedge against future increases, was reported.

At Warner Brothers the major news of recent weeks was the resumption of negotiations with National Theatres and the completion of a product deal for the circuit which excludes about 45 independent situations signed by Warners in a "selling away" policy inaugurated after the breach with Fox West Coast. The new contract is said to be on a three year basis.

Calls Deals 78% Complete

Gradwell Sears, general sales manager for the company, has announced the completion of deals with 78 per cent of the total circuit possibilities. "This," he said, "is despite the fact that Warner Brothers has completely revised its contract terms for its 1939-40 features which call for higher film rentals than ever before." He estimated that at present only a few deals remained to be signed before the company attained its maximum exhibition possibilities. A sharp spurt of buying was noted, he added, after the announcement of the company's new sales policies based on certain clauses of the proposed and now defunct trade practice code.

Noting that about 6,000 contracts have been sold by Paramount for the new season, Neil F. Agnew, sales manager, promised there would be no curtailment of the company's schedule and said that exhibitors must be prepared to "exert every effort to secure the maximum results on all pictures." He added, "There should be no falling off of boxoffice receipts as long as Hollywood delivers good entertainment."

William A. Scully, head of Universal sales, said Universal was selling an unusual number of circuits for this period of the year.

At Twentieth Century-Fox it was said that better than 50 per cent of sales possibilities in the key cities and major territories had been sold to its 1939-40 program.

All Territories Affected

That the delay in buying has been country-wide and not confined to either the large circuits or to certain sections is shown in reports from all parts of the country. In

New Trends in Selling Season

The 1939-40 selling season only now swinging into full stride is marked by a number of unusual factors, most of them stemming from uncertain general conditions at home and abroad. They include:

Protracted delay in buying followed by a sudden rush to sign contracts, attributed to anticipation of expected rental increases;

The splitting up of deals with major circuits to cover details of price and run for individual theatres or groups in certain territories;

Demands by exhibitors for long term contracts in the hope that terms can be fixed at present levels;

Serious study by exhibitors of the possibilities for advances in admission prices.

CIRCUITS MAKING ONE-HOUSE DEALS

New York where the independent buying always depends upon and follows the completion of product deals by the major first run circuits, Loew's and RKO, contract signing has been protracted long past the usual dates. Independent circuit buyers say that summer business has been so poor they are in no mood to discuss new contracts until after they see how the major circuits buy.

Similar reports come from other sections of the country where independent buying waits on the conclusion of circuit deals.

In Chicago Balaban and Katz has completed deals with Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner Brothers but negotiations with other distributors are continuing. The Butterfield circuit in Michigan has contracted for MGM, Republic and Twentieth Century-Fox product.

Comerford Theatres, operating in New York and Pennsylvania, has Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal and Warner product for the new season. Durkee Enterprises of Maryland has Republic, Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists.

In Canada, Famous Players Canadian, controlling the buying situation in that territory has announced deals with Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner Brothers. The National Theatres group, comprising Fox West Coast, Fox Intermountain, Fox Midwest and Fox Wisconsin have signed with Republic, Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists, Warner Brothers, Columbia and MGM. The Warner and MGM contracts are three year franchises and all the contracts are divided so as to specify individual theatres and territories.

WAR TIME ADVERTISING . . . In the general speculation of "What's ahead?" there is much turning over of the records of the First World War period and its sequels. Interesting among them as a broad index to business reaction and public states of mind is the advertising record. The graph above is from Printer's Ink, journal of the advertising business. It is to be observed that the war of 1914 *came as a surprise to American industry, while today's World War has been long anticipated, calculated and discounted in most American commercial calculations.—T. Republic in Texas

The Griffith Amusement Company in Texas has signed with Republic for 77 of its situations and with Twentieth Century-Fox on a blanket contract. Interstate, a Paramount partner, in addition to the product of that company, has Republic, RKO and Twentieth Century-Fox. Also in Texas the Jefferson Amusement Company has contracted with Republic and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Interstate of New England so far has dated Monogram, Republic and Twentieth Century-Fox product. Ike Libson in Ohio has Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner contracts. The Maine and New Hampshire circuit in New England has signed with Republic, Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal and Warners. In the South M. A. Lightman, key circuit in Arkansas and Tennessee, has Twentieth Century-Fox and Universal product to date.

The Minnesota Amusement Company, Paramount partner in the middle west, has signed with MGM and Twentieth Century-Fox. M & P in Boston has Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner. The Notes theatres in Washington, D. C., have signel only Republic and Monogram to date and the Rome Enterprises in Maryland have Twentieth Century-Fox and United Artists.

Returning to the south and southwest, Robb & Rowley has Monogram and Twentieth Century-Fox; Thalheimer in Virginia has Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners, and the Waters Theatre Company in Alabama has Republic and Twentieth Century-Fox.

The Schine circuit in New York and Ohio has Republic, Twentieth Century-Fox, Universal and Warner Brothers and the M. A. Shea group, also operating in the east, has Twentieth Century-Fox and Warners.

Affiliated Circuits Delay

Among the major affiliated circuit in addition to the product of their parent companies, Loew's has completed deals with Twentieth Century-Fox and with Warners for its New York City theatres; RKO has signed with the same two distributors; the Skouras Metropolitan circuit has contracted for United Artists product, and the Warner circuit has signed a three year contract with MGM, with Monogram for the New England area, with Republic for seven territories on the west coast, with Twentieth Century-Fox for 250 theatres, and has completed a two year franchise with United Artists.

Additional deals include: Twentieth Century-Fox with E. E. Alger, William Benton, J. H. Cooper, Cooperative of Michigan, Si Fabian, Harris Amusement, Kallett Theatres, Lam Amusement, Lucas & Jenkins, Neighborhood Theatres, Hunter Perry, Lew Pizor, Randforce, Saxe Amusement, E. J. Sparks, TriState Theatres, Wilby-Kincey and Wometco Theatres; United Artists with Central States; Universal with N. D. Dipson; Warners with Fourth Avenue; Republic with Golden State, Publix Great States, Saenger, and T. & D.

The Kerasotes and Hamline circuits in the Chicago territory have signed with Paramount, MGM, Warner and Universal. Additional Warner Brothers contracts include those with Gibraltar Enterprises, Consolidated Amusement of Honolulu, Frisina Amusement, the Blumenfeld circuit, and Sterling Theatres. Monogram has reported deals also with Cumberland Amusements, the Forkey circuit, John Keogh, Baehr Brothers, Hall Industries, Pal Amusement, the O K Theatre circuit, the Mutual, Detroit, circuit, Farrar in St. Louis and Bendheim in Washington.

Foreign Contracts

Foreign contracts concluded include a deal between United Artists and the Amalgamated Theatres of New Zealand, whose managing director and joint owner, Michael Moodabe, visited New York recently where he also signed with Twentieth Century-Fox. United Artists also sold "Four Feathers" and "Wuthering Heights" to both the Gaumont British and Odeon circuits in England to play simultaneously in all their theatres. The terms for each film were reported among the highest ever paid for a picture in Great Britain. Warner Brothers has reported the signing of the Empresa Teatros Modernos circuit in Puerto Rico.

MAJORS ECONOMIZE TO OFFSET WAR; PARAMOUNT NEWS GETS SIEGE FILMS

Hicks and Silverstone See Handicaps Abroad Reduced; Paris and London Theatres Open; Distributors Return

In a week marked by the revelation, on Sunday, of Russia's march across the Polish border; the sinking of a $20,000,000 British aircraft carrier by a German submarine, the same day, and the virtual dismemberment of Poland, with its officials fleeing in the face of advancing tanks, planes and men; and by action which increased in severity on the western front between the French and the German forces; the American motion picture industry, recovered from its first shock at the war, drew its breath and prepared to tighten its belt, though at no sacrifice to the quality of its product.

Following on the heels of expressions from major company heads, last week, that the war would entail no lessening of quality in the coming season's product as reported in MOTION PICTURE HERALD of September 16th, came statements from John W. Hicks, Jr., head of Paramount's foreign operations, saying that the effects of the war on film distribution abroad will soon be less noticeable, and from Murray Silverstone, United Artists' chief executive, who characterized the next few months as "a crucial period for the motion picture industry," which "has a tremendous contribution to make."

All British Theatres Open

In England, meanwhile, as though in confirmation of Mr. Hicks' statement, an official decree issued by Home Secretary John Anderson opened all theatres throughout Britain; theatres in London and other populous areas having been dark since September 2nd.

Theatres in Paris, in certain areas, were also expected to be allowed to remain open until 10 P. M.

The measures which will be adopted by American companies as a means of offsetting losses from European markets without affecting product were indicated this week as major studios put economies into effect. Dismissals of studio employees, not in key positions went into effect, as it did in New York home offices in some cases, while reduced shooting time and less costly set construction were scheduled.

Twentieth Century-Fox reported that its average weekly gross in England before the war had been $200,000; in France $50,000, and in Germany between $28,000 and $30,000.

Sees Handicap Reduced

Mr. Hicks, who returned recently from a 10-week trip to Australia, New Zealand and the Pacific Islands said that "while it is too early to be able to say definitely what effect the war will have on distribution in each foreign country, I have been in constant cable communication with Paramount's foreign offices and representatives, and have found a definite feeling that present handicaps to normal film distribution abroad will soon be eased.

"Countries like Australia and New Zealand," Mr. Hicks continued, "are bound to show a tremendous rise in employment as a result of wartime consumption of their products." It was also pointed out that Argentina, Brazil and other South and Central American countries would share in the war boom, and that

JOHN DORED

"American films will come in for their share of increased revenue."

Silverstone Predicts Gains

In a statement issued over last weekend, Murray Silverstone, operating head of United Artists, predicted that the public would lose its preoccupation with war news and would "gravitate towards" screen entertainment.

"Motion pictures are a basic industry," Mr. Silverstone said. "Like any of the public utilities, they are a vital adjunct of everyday living. Indeed, they have become almost as important as the basic necessities of food, clothing and shelter.

"Recent events have proved to us that there are no conditions so forbidding as to keep people from going to motion picture theatres. We have all heard how, in the midst of attack and bombardment, theatres remained open and screen entertainment was enjoyed.

"One of the facts learned in the past two or three weeks is that the reception of news of the war is a much more cumbersome thing than was first thought. The 'flash' items, the 'stop-press' bulletins, are fewer and further between than they were just before hostilities began. It is no longer like listening to the broadcast of a prize fight with decisions of victory or defeat coming every few minutes. The armies are moving slowly, the decisive military and diplomatic acts have lost their volatile nature. The audience, for a war of attrition, is extremely small. It no longer keeps glued to the radio.

"It is conceivable, therefore, in fact it is certain, that the public, given a choice between news of the war and entertainment on the screen, will definitely gravitate towards the latter.

Cites Propaganda Factor

"Whatever the developments, whatever the results of the present situation, we also know that propaganda will play an ever-increasingly important role. Motion pictures must take their place in such a setup, but their propaganda value will remain on a high plane. The contribution of the motion pictures will be a propa-

Paramount Newsreel Films Flown Across Atlantic, Censored by England, Germany, Poland; Released Monday in New York

The first action pictures of the European war taken by an American newsreel company were released by Paramount, this week, in what was also the first "scoop" of the war.

Received late Sunday night, the films were shown on Broadway at 1:30 Monday afternoon, the Embassy Newsreel Theatre being the first to show the film, consisting of censored German and Polish material.

Indicative of the situation affecting the newsreels as regards war footage is the fact that last weekend's issues carried no material on the actual events in Europe.

Censorship Aired

Last Friday, indications of a change in the operation of the British censorship of newsreels was given in the House of Commons by Earl Winterton, spokesman for the Lord Privy Seal, who accepted the responsibility of his department for the security of censorship of the reels. There has recently been criticism of the censorship operations of the British Board of Film Censors.

Imports of news reel films into France have been exempted from the import license requirement established by the decree of September 1st, but remain subject to the exchange certificate requirement and censorship, according to the Journal Officiel.

The volume of telephone and telegraph communications since the outbreak of the war has attained the highest level in approximately 10 years, in sharp contrast to the trend at the outbreak of the last war, it has been reported. Due to the commercial nature of many telegraph and long distance telephone messages, this was seen as a forerunner to a marked business upturn in this country.

1,250 Feet of War Film

The Paramount films, which ran some 1,250 feet in length, were shipped by the transAtlantic flying boat "Caribou" to Montreal and by special plane from Montreal to Newark, arriving in New York in time for the preparation of a special release. Other prints were sent out by plane to theatres booking the reel through the country.

Included in the footage were shots of the German training ship "Schleswig-Holstein" bombarding Westerplatte fort at close range; while the bulk of the material showed the German army on the march in Poland and incidental action attendant upon the occupation of Polish cities and villages by the Germans.

The Polish material, obtained by cameramen John Dored and Harrison Forman of the Paramount staff, included considerable footage on ruins following air raids, a German plane which had been brought down and an earth mound purported to be the grave of the pilot.

Some German material depicted bombers taking off and action shots in the air of the release of bombs with subsequent explosions recorded.

All Material Censored

The reel points out that no uncensored shots are shown, and that English as well as German and Polish censors passed on it. Paramount News' editor, A. J. Richards, said that "Obganda of the spirit, a propaganda of morale. The fact is that there is nothing in our present civilization that can and has brought people together, at least temporarily, more effectively than the screen. The individual sitting in a theatre reacts to what he sees in pictures very much as his neighbor does."

"The next few months," Mr. Silverstone concluded, "constitute a crucial period for the motion picture industry. If we recognize, as we must and will, that we have a tremendous contribution to make, the screen will maintain the high vital character it has been developing for the past three decades."

Statistician Optimistic

A bright prospect for business, including, presumably, motion pictures, was seen by Colonel Leonard P. Ayers, statistician, and vice-president of the Cleveland Trust Company. In his business review for the month of September, Colonel Ayers said that "it does not seem probable that there will be any important period of declining business as there was in 1861 and 1914 when the wars began. This time recovery was under way before hostilities started, and the economic forces which were giving it impetus may be expected to carry it forward during the months that lie immediately ahead."

With all theatres in Britain permitted to reopen last Friday, houses in the West End of London, which is the theatre section, were permitted to remain open until six P. M. Elsewhere throughout the country, houses were allowed to remain open until 10 P. M. by the official order.

Reopenings had been in progress in smaller cities and in English rural areas for more than a week prior to the Home Secretary's order, but London theatres and those in other populous areas have been dark since England declared war upon Germany.

In addition, many of the larger distribution organizations have moved their headquarters back to London from the outlying areas where they had been established at the outbreak of war. The allowance by the Government of liberal gasoline allowances for commercial purposes has also eased the situation regarding film shipments. It is probable that the distributors will pool their shipping facilities in order to reduce the number of mobile units in operation.

Studying Propaganda Films

Last week Sir Samuel Hoare, Lord Privy Seal, and former Secretary of State for Home Affairs, told the House of Commons that the Government is giving close attention to the use of British studios for the purpose of producing propaganda films, and that steps have been taken to safeguard the position of the studios.

Collections are reported coming through from Germany to the American companies still operating there. The Paramount home office, last Friday, received advance payment from its Berlin office for September business, marking the first time this has taken place. Since the start of the war, Paramount has not been able to effect any telephone communication with the Berlin office. Beside Paramount, only Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Twentieth Century-Fox are now doing business in Germany.

In line with the retrenchment seen as necessary to offset lowered revenue due to the war, Twentieth Century-Fox dismissed some 300 persons from the studio and an estimated 50 from the home office recently. Lou Wertheimer, associate producer; Robert Fairbanks, construction engineer, and Aiden Roark, member of Darryl F. Zanuck's advisory staff, have also gone off the payroll, while about half of the reading department staff on the coast has been dismissed, and Nunnally Johnson, producer and writer, has gone on half-pay basis for a six months' vacation period.

It has been reported that Twentieth Century-Fox executives who receive more than $1,000 a week have accepted a 10 per cent cut.

The company's average gross in England before the war was $200,000 a week, and in France about $50,000 a week. In Germany, it had between $28,000 and $30,000 a week, with the German edition of Movietone News a considerable revenue producer.

Harry, Jack Cohn Take Cuts

At a stockholders' meeting Wednesday in New York, Harry Cohn, president of Columbia, and Jack Cohn, vice-president, each took a voluntary salary cut of 33⅓ per cent, during the period of the emergency. According to Government figures Harry Cohn's salary is $201,420 a year, Jack Cohn's $116,720.

At Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer reports of studio layoffs in the lower earning brackets, to the number of 500, went uncontradicted. After reports of department heads and individual producers had been heard, it was decided that by maintaining a constant level of production activity, instead of having a dozen films in work and then dropping to one or two, and by increased care in the preparation of product while in the script stage, economies adequate to the requirements of the situation could be effected without reducing the executive personnel or compensation.

At Warner Brothers, 400 persons were reported to have been dismissed; and the company, while resuming building of a $400,000 tank stage for sea pictures, has abandoned plans to expand its studio laboratory.

Reports from the Paramount studio indicate that 300 have been dismissed, including 10 members, or 25 per cent, of the studio publicity department. The company has also deferred "Sea of Grass" to some time in the future.

The RKO studio was awaiting word from George Schaefer, president of the company.

Some of the companies were contemplating the shortening of shooting schedules, with 30-day schedules to come down to 24 days, 24 days to 18, and 18 to 12.

CANADIAN RED CROSS ENLISTING THEATRES

Canadian theatres are expected to help the Red Cross in obtaining war relief funds and in providing entertainment for the troops. Colonel John A. Cooper, president of the Motion Picture Distributors of Canada, has been appointed vice-chairman of the War Organization Council of the Canadian Red Cross Society by Lord Tweedsmuir, Canadian Governor General.

viously, we can give no assurances that these pictures tell all the story. They are, however, presented as the first authentic battle pictures."

Other newsreels received film on the "Washington," which arrived in New York from abroad late Monday, the material being mostly from France.

Many companies are still expecting film which was reported to have been shipped some time ago; one of the newsreels reporting that there are still five shipments of film en route.

With Russia's entry into the war, increased importance is attached to such national footage as comes out of that country; all of which, in the U. S., clears through Amkino, outlet for all Russian films in this country.

Russel Muth, Movietone News European director, and Bonney Powell, cameraman who organized Movietone's coverage of the Sino-Japanese war, were scheduled to sail for Europe Wednesday on the "Washington." Gerald Sanger, the reel's editor in England, has been called to service and is awaiting assignment to active duty.

Norman Alley, News of the Day cameraman, left on the Yankee Clipper Wednesday for Europe.

Griffis Home; Reports War Delays Odeon Deal

Reporting that the anticipated acquisition of Paramount's 14 London theatres by the Odeon circuit had been delayed "indefinitely" by the European War, Stanton S. Griffis, chairman of the board of Paramount Pictures, arrived in New York from Europe, Monday afternoon, on the refugee laden steamship Washington. (Picture in Pictorial Section).

Morris and Reisman Return to New York

Sam E. Morris, vice-president of Warner Brothers in charge of foreign activities, and Phil Reisman, RKO foreign manager, returned to New York Monday from South American conventions.

A. S. Abeles, Warner manager in Brazil, arrived with Mr. Morris for home office conferences. Another passenger was Mel Shauer, producer, who spent five months in Argentina lining up production plans for two Spanish language films which he will make for United Artists release.

Wilcox, Miss Neagle At "Cavell" Previews

Anna Neagle and Herbert Wilcox, British star and producer-director, respectively, of RKO's "Nurse Edith Cavell," returned to New York this week for the premiere of the film Thursday at the Radio City Music Hall after attending special previews of the picture in Washington, Atlanta, Dallas, New Orleans, Chicago, Columbus, Hollywood and Toronto.

BRITISH FILM INDUSTRY CARRIES ON; REOPEN THEATRES, STUDIOS, OFFICES

Restrictions Gradually Removed as Government Even Advises Houses in Certain Sectors to Keep Their Audiences Inside

by AUBREY FLANAGAN

Two weeks of war find the British industry, for all its suffering from shock and general state of dither, doing its best to carry on in the face of circumstances worse than adverse.

With its activities swiftly and dramatically called to a standstill by the Government order to close all places of entertainment, its sons and daughters called to the colours, its production halted and its offices dispersed over the four points of the English compass, charges came rapidly, changes evoked by the slowly returning sanity lost in the first cataclysmic shock of September Third.

Cinemas Reopen

North, South, West and East, British cinemas again have opened their doors to the public, firstly on limited lines, then on a more widespread basis. The first decisions of Whitehall, inspired by a maybe exaggerated sense of danger, was rescinded, and the wholesale and complete closure amended to a prohibition against opening only in the most vulnerable areas, with further concessions later. The gesture has been accepted as a practical expression of the State viewpoint on the role of the film and the picture house in national emergency.

Indications, too, at the moment of writing, point to the possibility that though the Quota Act, supposed safeguard of the production industry's existence, is likely to be suspended, safeguards will be forthcoming which will prevent a recurrence of the complete inactivity suffered by British Studios during the last war.

Even the principle of evacuation, under which Wardour Street's many major organizations betook themselves to the comparative safety of Crediton, Cheltenham, Wadhurst, Gerrards Cross and elsewhere, was found more ideal than practical. Office work is returning to Wardour Street. In the head offices the desks of executives vacated swiftly and emphatically at the outbreak of hostilities, are occupied, in some cases all day, in others for part of the day. Geographical dissemination has been found the antithesis of efficiency.

Theatres Packed

A fortnight's closing of British cinemas, with its interruption of the whole process of film hire, called upon the industry to pay heavy toll. Accumulating overheads in the face of the first week of inactivity reached an estimated total of nearly $4,000,000. Employers were compelled to decide whether they should go on paying salaries or dismiss their employees. Valuable propaganda by means of the newsreel was lost. The absence of places of recreation and relaxation, though it meant an alarming increase in the consumption of alcohol, was having a depressing effect upon the public morale. Especially was this the case in the "reception areas," districts to which workers and children evacuated from the industrial and populous centers had been transferred. Rates were accumulating for buildings which were performing no function. The cinema industry was the only one against which an official prohibition was put up.

With these considerations, thought more than persuasive, a joint trade committee headed by David Griffiths, president of the Kinematograph Renters' Society, approached the Home Office with a request for cinemas to be allowed to carry on. Within two days a permit was given for cinemas to open in all save the most vulnerable bombing areas. That weekend the cinemas were full and there was little doubt that the public morale appreciated.

With the principle conceded, a further bid was made for universal openings and a Home Office meeting once again arranged. Special hopes prevailed for concessions to news theatres.

All Cinemas Open

Then on Friday all theatres throughout Britain reopened. Houses in the West End were permitted to remain open until 6 p. m.; elsewhere in London and outside the closing time was 10 p. m. The next day additional concessions were made for Sunday showings. West End cinemas previously opening at 5:30 p. m. were permitted to start at 2:30, closing at 6 p. m. The remaining theatres in the London area may start at 5 and close at 10 p. m. This means a considerable commercial advantage for the West End houses. A gross of $5,000 for each of several theatres was calculated for the first Sunday afternoon.

Distributors moved their headquarters back to the city, with 24-hour film service indicated and with trade shows announced. Liberal gasoline allowances helped film shipments.

Newsreel Censorship

Indication of a change in the operations of the censorship of newsreels was given in Commons on Friday by Earl Winterton, spokesman for the lord privy seal. His statement that he accepted the responsibility of his department for the security of censorship was taken to indicate that the newsreels were now being censored by the Ministry of Information and not by the British Board of Film Censors as formerly. The Association of Cine Technicians meanwhile had joined the agitation against the Board's censorship of newsreels and had told the Ministry of Information that it believed the trade body unsuitable for the task and that it felt that the Minisry should retain direct responsibility. It was urged that newsreels be treated as news rather than as motion pictures.

The limited opening of theatres was not without its critics. There was one camp which believed that a 10 o'clock closing was too late, and advocated closing at sunset. The complete and utter blackness of the blackout, a condition which it would be difficult for the foreign mind to assess, presented almost insuperable obstacles in the matter of transport and communication. Many patrons, indeed, rushed to get home before the blackout was at its height. Staffs, too, were involved in this rush, a rush aggravated by the cut in train and bus schedules. The Government itself appealed to patrons not to travel by car from one district to another in order to attend cinemas, in fact not to travel by car at all.

Rebate of Rates Proposed

Another school of thought, mingling pessimism with realism, considered it better in the most vulnerable of evacuated areas that some system of rebate of rates be allowed, instead of indiscriminate opening.

It is clear, too, that a revision will have to be made in the machinery of film hire, this quite apart from the question of film supply. Independent exhibitors particularly contend that a mere reduction in percentages will be of little avail, because while their takings must necessarily decrease considerably, their overheads will remain the same.

What will be the exact depreciation of film revenue as a result of war opening conditions, it is as yet impossible to assess. At the best, American distributors will be fortunate if they get a quarter of their normal takings.

Machinery was not functioning any the easier by the wholesale manner in which Wardour Street organizations evacuated themselves to the four corners of the country. Some renting organizations were as far as 180 miles apart from their fellows. Though a central KRS organization had been scratched together near London at Langley Park, it was considered doubtful whether this would operate efficiently in face of the present circumstances. Despite the provision of a general film exchange from centralized headquarters, despite even the provision of desk accommodation at Langley Park for each renter, film salesmen again were operating in Wardour Street and more than one executive returned from the country to the original market place. Scarcely a leading organization in fact but had representatives either in Wardour Street or its immediate reach.

Urged to Maintain Staffs

The question of employment and the welfare of the film trade workers was stressed by Labor Leader Tom O'Brien in an appeal to the chiefs of the leading circuits, that they maintain their staffs on their wage rolls during any ordered closure.

Studio activity is down to less than the barest minimum, though more than one valiant spirit like Gaumont British, Paramount British, Alexander Korda and Michael Balcon is carrying on, and super optimists of the caliber of Harry Cohn and David Rose announce their intention that not even the grim hand of Moloch will deter their British production activity. The Board of Trade, as already announced, considered the whole question of the future of British production and virtually promised that there would not be a complete cessation. Production of newsreels goes on intensely, and with something more than the approval of the Government, its operators, processors, and technical executives placed on the list of reserved occupations. That the newsreels will play a vital part in the functioning of the film during war time is obvious.

War had been neither unexpected nor sudden this time. For many moons past, with the

AMERICANS SEEK JAPAN RENEWAL

American film company representatives in Japan have initiated discussions with the government of that country, on a new film import agreement, to follow the one now in effect, which came after a long period in which the Japanese government did not allow importation of American films, nor the withdrawal of money. The new agreement, like the current one, is expected to define what amount, and in what periods, money can be taken from the country; and also the number, and type, of pictures to be imported.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Carrying On

In spite of the dislocation the industry has suffered by the War, British studios, in one or two locations, still show signs of determined if lingering activity. Many have been taken over for Government use, others have been acquired by city organizations and more than one has voluntarily abandoned activity; a few face the bomber and the blackout with a determination to carry on.

In this early stage of the War (this article is being written on September 8th) it is difficult to conjecture what will be the future of the production industry. A pessimistic section foresees the complete cessation of activity; another group believes that studio work will be confined entirely to inspired and propaganda films, yet a third foresees, under the wing of the Government, which may yet decree that entertainment is a National Service, a stimulus to production if not, in fact, a boom.

Stock Exchange at Denham

Pinewood is completely dark, its offices and club taken over by Lloyds. Denham still shows lingering signs of activity with promise of more to come. On its stages is at least one propaganda film being directed by Alexander Korda, with the Royal Air Force as its inspiration. Its offices house officials and staff of London's Stock Exchange. Its future may yet embrace the production of quota pictures by Columbia. MGM, having moved its furniture in, has moved it out again.

Elstree, home of ABPC, promises the continuation of activity under the aegis of Walter Mycroft, although much of its office space houses the Wardour Street personnel of the renter side.

Studio Roll Call

Teddington, Warner Bros. First National headquarters, is now the home of Warners' distributing house from Wardour Street.

Shepherds Bush has burst into renewed activity with "Band Waggon."

Walton-on-Thames has a quota picture on the floor.

Sound City may yet see the furtherance of Paramount British production plans.

Ealing sticks up its chin in the face of the future and launches production on "David Goliath."

Highbury has a film on the floor.

Twickenham, the Rock Studios, and the giant stillborn Amalgamated concern, seem destined to play a Government role in the War.

In the near future, with the industry becoming adjusted to the new circumstances, there may be a stimulus to production with renewed activity throughout the industry. Until the first shocks of war and the inevitable bombing raids from Germany are overcome, things necessarily will be a little inactive.

400 MILES TO WORK FOR FLIER-ACTOR

Four hundred miles to work and back is the flying record of Duggie Wakefield, actor-star of the Paramount British production, "Live and Let Live."

Wakefield, who has been shooting at Sound City, has also been working at Douglass, Isle of Man, 200 miles away, and has flown back over the weekend to face finishing shots which are being directed by Mario Zampi.

Wakefield arrives at Heston Airport at 8 o'clock on Sunday mornings, and is on the set ready madeup by 9 o'clock at Sound City. Early Monday morning he flies back to the Isle of Man.

The film, a wartime comedy, has been given one or two up-to-date touches, and sequences have been revised to tune it to the spirit of the moment. It will be released in this country by Paramount.

Meanwhile, "French Without Tears" has been completed and is to have a notable premiere.

Mario Zampi has four further productions for release by Paramount. These are in active preparation and will keep Sound City busy the coming weeks.

At Elstree

Associated British Studios, Elstree, insist that production will continue there in the immediate future, with work concentrating upon Edgar Wallace's "The Yellow Mask" and also upon a naval subject, "The Middle Watch."

Optimistic

One of the most optimistic production executives in the country is Walter Futter, who, co-producing with Leslie Howard, intends making "The Man Who Lost Himself," possibly on this side of the Atlantic. Leslie Howard will be the star, co-producer and co-director, the other director being Anthony Asquith, who earned credits for Pascal's "Pygmalion." Stephen Goosson, art director of "Lost Horizon," will do a similar job on the film, and the script is in the hands of George O'Neill, of "Intermezzo" and "Only Yesterday" fame.

Korda Active

Ready to dash, if the need should arise, into Denham's concreted air raid hideout beneath the sound stages, air conditioned and gas proof, Alexander Korda's unit have recently been putting the finishing touches to "The Thief of Baghdad."

Air raid warnings, luckily abortive, sent to the shelter of sandbags Conrad Veidt, Sabu, June Duprez, John Justin, Larry Butler, Alexander Korda, Merle Oberon and Tim Whelan.

Tim Whelan has taken over the direction of "The Thief of Baghdad" and has been applying the final polish to the Korda production. A hundred colored extras have been working on the Basra Bridge set on the Denham location.

Americans still at Denham (September 8th) include Cameron Menzies, director of the trick shots, Larry Butler, special effects, Bill Hornbeck, film editor, and Rex Ingram, the Negro actor.

It is pointed out that two or three months trick work will be required before the film is ready for trade show.

New Life

At Shepherd's Bush on the western outskirts of London, the Gaumont British Studios have throbbed to new life production starting on the Arthur Askey picture "Band Waggon," screen adaptation of the popular British radio feature.

In the film "Big-hearted" Arthur Askey makes his film debut with Jack Hylton and his Band and Richard "Stinker" Murdoch. Production was originally started at the Gainsborough Studios, but on the decision to close those studios plans were made to transfer operations to Shepherd's Bush. The reason is found in certain black-out restrictions and the limits they placed upon night and day shifts of studio workers.

In Production

At Ealing, ostensibly a vulnerable bombing area, Michael Balcon has insisted upon the continuance of production. Work has gone on (as of September 11th) with "David Goliath," the Paul Robeson picture, being made there for ABFD release.

At Walton-on-Thames "Money for Nothing" and at Highbury the Elizabeth Allan opus "Inquest" are continuing, further indications of the optimism which persists in British production circles.

In the shorts field such dauntless spirits as Widgey Newman, who has taken studio space at Bushey, and Horace Shepherd, busy on a two-reeler at Hammersmith, indicate the determination of British production, even under difficulties, to carry on.

BRITONS BACK TO WARDOUR STREET

shadow of conflict overhanging the country, plans had been laid, machinery set up and manpower organized, ready to operate at a moment's notice. The trade had conferred long and studiously with the authorities, determined that whatever action was to be taken should be in the common interest and with the full approval of the Government.

When the great moment came, the machinery had been set in motion. All motion picture theatres had been ordered to close, in common with all places of entertainment and public gathering. Wardour Street, pivotal center of the business, was almost completely evacuated, its firms and organizations sped to the country, North, East, South and West, its staffs either laid off or enrolled in His Majesty's Forces, or alternatively evacuated to ancient Sussex castles, to old mills in Hertfordshire, to the Chiltern Hills, to the Spas of Cheltenham, or less romantically to the studio spaces of Elstree and Teddington, to which offices had been transferred.

Machinery for the distribution of films on the reopening were set up outside the bombing areas, clearing houses opened at key points, and a new code of trade relations instituted by distributors and exhibitors jointly.

Back to the United States went American production executives to await the dawn of a happier and more peaceful day. Over the newsreel and printing business the blessing of Government approval had been hanging, a blessing expressed in macabre form by the gas masks and steel helmets distributed to major executives.

Censorship on All Films

Censorship was imposed on all films, made either for home consumption or for export. It was a voluntary censorship on the home front, but compulsory for those films made for export. Characteristic it is, too, of the British mentality that the trade was left to impose its own censorship, and the British Board of Film Censors, the industry's self created organization, to act for the new Ministry of Information. Criticisms of the Board's operations, however, soon brought the developments noted in the foregoing.

Home Office regulations were issued to the trade, governing the conditions under which picture houses would be allowed to reopen later. Though exhibitors were not expected to provide bomb proof shelters they were required to make their houses proof against splinters and blast, and to provide shelter for their staffs. A member of the staff must be constantly on the qui vive for air raid warnings, and these must be conveyed to the audience forthwith. The Home Office has, significantly, asked exhibitors to continue the show where it would not be safe to let patrons out on to the streets. Employees have been trained in fire fighting and first aid, and a fireman must be in service night and day. Stringent as are these regulations, they were accepted as eminently reasonable.

The Kinematograph Renters Society was not lax in organizing a machinery of distribution. The KRS was to go to Langley Park, near Slough, 15 miles from London, where a magnificent mansion would house its records and officers, and where stabling and garages could be easily converted to a clearing house. Film transport houses pooled their resources, and personnel, operating from an outer London center at Willesden, whence, in due course, they were to transfer their activities to Langley Park.

Bookings Set Back

Exhibitors were allowed to set back their bookings, carrying on as contracted when they reopened. Applications for transfers were unnecessary; the process was automatic. Contacts were made with, and reports made to the local KRS representative. Every can of film had been sent from Wardour Street and a prime source of danger from fire removed from the fair City of Westminster.

In future prospect is the likelihood that the Government will increasingly concern itself with a virtual paternal control of the business, with probably an active part in its production of films. There is likelihood that a Government controller will be appointed, and Sir Joseph Ball has been mentioned as one who may have plenary powers. John Grierson and Oliver Bell are, too, considered probables in any scheme of sponsored production. The Government is known to look enthusiastically on the screen as a medium of propaganda, both domestic and foreign, and whilst no film will be okayed which does not represent the national point of view, it is not improbable that pictures of a direct propaganda trend will be made by a carefully staffed organization.

HIGH TAXES SET BY NAZIS ON RADIO

As part of its program to maintain absolute control of the radio, especially broadcasts from foreign countries, the German Government has imposed what amounts to a confiscatory tax on all radio sets, according to a "New York Times" report.

On the cheapest machine that can be purchased, a machine that sells for a few dollars in the United States, the tax is $9.89 a year. The tax increases in proportion to the cost of the radio.

This information is from an official source and was transmitted by government representatives in Europe.

Foreign Exchange Control in Canada

Control of international exchange and trade has been effected by Order-in-Council of the Canadian Government in the creation of the Foreign Exchange Control Board, with Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, as chairman. Provisions of the new regulations have a direct effect upon the film distributors and theatre supply houses in the Dominion.

Meanwhile reliable sources indicate that the Ontario Government is seriously considering the restoration of the amusement tax as a war measure. A special session of the Ontario legislature opened at Toronto Wednesday. The Provincial Government's proposals may include a war tax on admission tickets, such as was done for the first time in 1916. There has been no amusement tax in Ontario for three years.

Another development in Toronto this week was the decision to hold in abeyance the further organization of the National Film Board of the Dominion Government, members of which were recently appointed by W. D. Euler, Minister of Trade and Commerce, because of the war's demands on governmental activities, it is understood.

Under the new Control Board cash payments in excess of $100 in any month either to or from the United States are now permitted only by license to be issued by authorized representatives of the board who are recognized banks and postmasters and in some instances, customs officers.

Foreign exchange activities are to be in keeping with normal commercial transactions and there is an implied decision to curb unusually large payments to head offices or others located outside of Canada, provisions being made for heavy fines and imprisonment for subversive methods.

Licenses for import or export of all goods and merchandise, as well as securities, can be done only under official permits when transactions exceed $100 in any month, while parcels to be mailed across the border must be submitted to the local post office. If they are placed in a post box the articles are subject to seizure. Provision is made for the receipt of salaries, commissions or similar claims and limited traveling expenses from a foreign head office through an authorized representative of the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

The new regulations place an immediate obstacle in the payment of excess funds by a Canadian film distributor or theatre company to a head office operating in the United States or any other country, with the exception of Newfoundland.

Slated for Information Post

L. W. Brockington, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, is slated for appointment by the Dominion Government as chairman of the National Bureau of Information, which is being established for the distribution of news of an official nature to the newspapers and radio stations of the country during the period of the war. Mr. Brockington is scheduled to retire from the CBC in November.

The Bureau has nothing to do with the office of Chief Censor in an operating sense and the censorship of films in Canada will continue to be vested in L. Clare Moyer, on the Canadian Senate staff.

"Beau Geste" Ban

Bookings of Paramount's "Beau Geste" in Ontario have been cancelled again and it is understood that further pressure has been brought to bear on the Ontario Government for withdrawal of the feature, which deals with the French Foreign Legion. The feature was recalled by the provincial censor board just prior to its scheduled Canadian premiere September 4th, but was passed by the Appeal Board, headed by Premier M. F. Hepburn, after further revision as requested by a representative of the French Government.

Another opening date in Toronto was set but this was cancelled with the intimation that the picture was not available. The Government has withheld any further announcements regarding the fate of "Beau Geste" which, incidentally, has been permanently banned by the Quebec Board of Moving Picture Censors.

To Show Foreign Films

Plans are being formulated for a season of foreign films at the Metropolitan theatre in Seattle, legitimate playhouse downtown. The pictures would be booked each week except when legitimate stage shows are scheduled. Lessee of the house would be Herbert Hosener, who last year operated the Montlake theatre, neighborhood house, on the same foreign film policy, in conjunction with his circuit of Pacific Coast theatres.

ARGENTINE PRODUCERS LOOK TO U.S. AS RAW STOCK SHORTAGE THREATENS

Institute Members Petition Government to Include Film Materials in Discussed Trade Pact with the U. S. A.

by NATALIO BRUSKI
in Buenos Aires

The declaration of war in Europe was received here in a very matter of fact way and has not yet caused any appreciable effect on the motion picture industry. However, Argentine producers, ever on the lookout for the future, have made various overtures to take care of possible effects in later stages of the war.

The principal problem that will be evident, is the matter of raw film stock. At the present time, the various studios have indicated that they have sufficient stock of negative material to last for the next eight months. By economizing in their production methods, in taking only one or at the most two takes on each scene, instead of the usually three or four takes, the film stock can be stretched for over a year. In the matter of positive stock, the studios have enough for the next year.

In Argentina it is the practice that the producer sends the raw stock to the laboratory, when he wants any printing done, the laboratories providing service only.

The principal source of raw film for the last few years has been Europe. The larger share has been held by the Agfa (German) company with the Belgium Gevaert company and the Italian Ferrania company getting a smaller share.

Agfa Holds Stock

The Agfa company has been holding its stock, pending a possible price advance, by refusing to deliver any but very small orders and these only to their regular customers. According to reports they have been accumulating a very big stock, anticipating a possible stoppage of their supply. A large part of this is in storage in the Argentina custom house as they themselves lack sufficient space.

Argentina producers, through the Argentine Cinematographic Institute, have petitioned the Minister of Foreign Relations to include in the pact now being discussed between this country and the United States the importance of raw film materials.

The one reason that United States films and United States products in general have been at a disadvantage in this market has been the lack of any commercial export and import agreement between the two countries. The European countries have been able to get the official exchange rate for their payments for materials but American importers have had to pay their imports at the free market rate. This means approximately a 20 to 25 per cent difference. Another disadvantage to American product has been the suspension of import permits in favor of the countries who have a more favorable export balance.

The local meat industry and in fact the entire population have gone a long way in discouraging the importations of United States goods on account of the exclusion of Argentina meat from the United States.

The possible cut-off of film supply from Europe presents the North American companies with the opportunity to reenter this market. The local Agfa company has made overtures to obtain its film from the Agfa company in the United States. As yet nothing has been said about the supply as it concerns the smaller raw stock companies.

It has been expressed by a spokesman of the Argentine producers that the European war may open a further market for the local films in that French films, which enjoy quite an important market, may lose their supply, thus giving Argentine films the opportunity to extend their marketable sphere.

Argentina Documentary

The documentary film "Praderas Argentinas" (Prairies of Argentina), which was produced especially for exhibition at the New York World's Fair and the Golden Gate Exposition in San Francisco, was privately shown recently to President Dr. Roberto M. Ortiz and a number of legislators and members of the higher judiciary.

RKO Convention

The RKO convention held in Buenos Aires August 31st and September 1st was presided over by Phil Reisman, head of the company's foreign department. The convention was attended by delegations from Bolivia, Chile, Paraguay and the general offices of RKO in Buenos Aires as well as the distribution branches in the interior of Argentina.

In the opening address Mr. Reisman recited the difficulties that the company had been having for the past three years but said he was happy to be able to say that in the last few months these difficulties have been surmounted. The company, he said, is in a very strong situation, financially as well as artistically, with a good lineup of story material, directors and actors.

Due to the declaration of war in Europe, Mr. Reisman was called by the home office to return immediately. He left Buenos Aires the last day of the convention and thereby missed the banquet in his honor, which was presided over by Nat Liebeskind, general manager for RKO in South America, who had arrived here a week in advance to arrange the convention.

Representation at Venice

Eight Argentine films were sent to the exposition held in Venice although only two of these films were officially sanctioned by the Argentine Cinematographic Institute, a governmental body created by the former president of the Republic.

The producers saw fit to ignore the official choice of the Institute and took it upon themselves to include some of their other productions.

Off to Hollywood

Carl-Fredrik Nelson, Swedish screen writer and director, has left for the United States and Hollywood by way of Chile, Peru and other west coast countries. In his stay of over a year in Argentina he was supervisor of production for the Estudios San Miguel.

RIO DE JANEIRO LIMITS WAR FILMS

The number of "war" films which may be shown in Rio de Janeiro, including pictures dealing with the World War, has been limited, it is reported; while daytime showing of newsreels dealing with the war has been banned. Newsreels showing the present conflict may only be shown after 8:00 P. M.

Five Home Films Shown in Brazil

by L. S. MARINHO
in Rio de Janeiro

There have been five pictures produced in Brazil so far this year that have already been presented in theatres, and a sixth, "Anastacio," is scheduled to be presented next month. There is one domestic production now in work which is titled "Romance Prohibido" (Forbidden Romance).

It is uncertain at this writing whether or not the Warner Brothers picture, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," will be permitted to be released in this country, although it seems probable that the censor board will approve its showing.

Warners are having the premiere of "Juarez" here the end of the month, and from all preparations going on it will be a gala occasion. The film is patronized by the Mexican Ambassador, who also will assist at the premiere.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Pygmalion," which received a good press here, played three weeks at the Metro theatre.

McConville To Preside At Havana Convention

J. A. McConville, foreign manager of Columbia, sailed for Havana Saturday to preside over the first convention ever held by the company in Latin America. Mr. McConville will tour Central and South America, following the Havana convention, ending up in Buenos Aires where a second convention will be held.

Before sailing Mr. McConville emphasized the fact that in spite of world conditions Columbia would go through with their heavy production budget, spending $5,000,000 more than any time in the company's history.

BEWARE HEAVY HAND OF GOVERNMENT, SAYS HAYS

Little Remains of Films But "Crass Propaganda" Under Totalitarians, Meeting Is Told

The motion picture industry, inheritor, beneficiary and trustee of the American democratic system, finds it a duty, and a welcome one, to guard that system in a world of chaos, Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, told the Regional Trust Company Conference of the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain States, in Los Angeles, on Tuesday night. Mr. Hays warned that this country must keep out of the European War, to strengthen the democratic life and to serve as a repository for civilization.

Referring to the relatively short growth of the motion picture, one of the newest arts, in 50 years, Mr. Hays termed it "distinctly the product of freedom, which encourages initiative, industry and art." Said he, in addition:

"Trustee of Entertainment"

"It owes much, indeed, to the institutions which have made such an art and industry possible. It cannot fail to uphold the torch of human liberty, wherever it may burn."

Mr. Hays remarked that it was not a "light responsibility" that the industry has as a "trustee for the wholesomeness, the decency, and the artistic excellence of the principal entertainment of 85,000,000 people every week, in this country alone."

"But we are trying every year to acquit ourselves of that trusteeship more creditably," he said.

In half a century, Mr. Hays noted, the motion pictures have developed from a crude diversion into an art, a process which in other arts has taken centuries, and without precedents, tradition, or experience it has reached its present eminence.

Propaganda by Totalitarians

Its importance as a medium of influencing the public, even if not as an art, is attested by the regard with which totalitarian regimes view it, Mr. Hays noted, and warned Americans that they "should not forget that wherever, as in Germany or Russia, the heavy hand of government has come to dominate it, the motion picture as an art has withered." "Little, indeed," he said, "has remained, except crude, crass propaganda."

As no other medium, the motion picture camera can record history, Mr. Hays noted.

"In the days that are with us now," he observed, "the enormous significance of this becomes clearly apparent. Good and evil, peace and war, construction and destruction, life and death themselves leave their record on the film. The camera has portrayed the heights of civilization. We hope, we pray, we highly resolve that it shall not record its fall.

"Those of us in the motion picture industry do, indeed, realize full well the significance of our trusteeship of this essential enterprise at this particular time."

"An element of that trusteeship," he continued, "is the transcendent duty to society now to keep the stream of world entertainment flowing—entertainment which is effective as entertainment and which at its best is inspirational. In spite of the serious loss of markets, the motion picture art-industry will do this job. It is the industry's duty, and I believe that this business and all business does well to think first of its duties and responsibilities."

Mr. Hays said the motion picture industry, first of all, was built upon American principles, and drew the following picture:

"I represent an agency," he said, "which has for seventeen and one-half years sought patiently, and, I believe, always in the public interests, to build up a successful system of industrial self-regulation with the least possible governmental supervision. It has stood ready to cooperate and has cooperated with public authority in every way, endeavoring always to maintain that proper relation which a great industry should maintain, to its government."

"The organized industry undertook this job of self-government by methods thoroughly American in character," Mr. Hays emphasized.

Taking Sides Is Deplored

Apparently referring to those groups within the motion picture industry who, with a certain amount of Governmental support, believe that federal regulation, by law and policing, is preferable to self-regulation, Mr. Hays remarked:

"If two or more groups are in competition, and one is seeking to gain advantages over the other by Government regulation, then it is clearly not the business of the Government to take sides. The power of the Government should never be used to enable one citizen to exploit another, or to give one branch of an industry undue advantage over another."

On the larger topic of American withdrawal from European affairs, Mr. Hays urged his listeners to participate in domestic politics, as the inheritors of a system which can grow better only by the participation of the informed, a system which might collapse without a numerous or intelligent electorate.

"He who refuses to use the talents given him in trust, forfeits all," Mr. Hays said. "No true American can do his duty by accepting the privileges and denying the responsibilities of citizenship."

"Someone, speaking in a happier time, referred to America as 'a great ideal in the onward march of civilization,'" Mr. Hays continued. "Today when the orderly processes of society are collapsing in much of the old world under the detonation of bombing plane and long-range gun, America more than ever represents 'a great ideal.' To an unusual degree America today holds in trust for mankind the political, cultural, and spiritual heritage of the human race. Here man, the builder, rules rather than man, the destroyer. Here scientists may still devote themselves to creative tasks, businessmen go ahead with improved methods for raising the standard of living, government officials spend their time in devising ways for government to become a more useful servant rather than a more tyrannical master of men's lives."

"God grant that through a supreme act of national will men and women of all political shades of opinion shall firmly and unitedly resolve at all costs to keep this country out of war," he said.

"Thus may we best fulfill our highest duty as trustees for civilization, for human liberty and for peace."

NEWSPAPERS LAUD INDUSTRY JUBILEE

Newspapers in every section of the country continue to editorially commend the Fiftieth Anniversary of the motion pictures, to be celebrated the first week of October as Golden Jubilee Week, and to be featured by the observance on October 6th, of the occasion upon which Thomas Alva Edison first demonstrated the practicability of his "Kinetoscope."

The Sioux Falls, South Dakota, "Argus Leader" calls pictures a "marvelous form of entertainment" and "if not the best available, certainly the most popular."

The motion picture is linked with the newspaper as one of the "two greatest bargains available to the American public" by the Record, Ravenna, Ohio.

"On its fiftieth birthday, the movie is really hitting its stride," said the Times, Chattanooga, Tenn.

"With $200,000,000 invested in the new films alone, the public should be better served than it has been in history," commented the Times-Leader, Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Boost Jubilee in MGM Press Sheet

The release this week of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's institutional press display for 1939-'40 takes cognizance of the celebration this October of the 50th anniversary of the motion picture. In its 16 sheets are constant reminders of the Golden Jubilee that is at hand, all of course serving the dual purpose of promoting MGM's forthcoming releases for the new season and boosting the jubilee.

The company is offering $100,000 in awards, open to all independent theatres in the United States and Canada, for the best advertising, exploitation and publicity campaigns conducted on MGM pictures between September 1st and January 1st, based on any first run or subsequent run picture. Entries in the contest close March 1st.

Also contained in the display are exploitation hints to exhibitors on the tie-in with the Golden Jubilee.

One idea suggested is that of getting schools and educational authorities to cooperate in a mutual plan of promoting the Jubilee idea as pictures are playing an increasingly important part in the educational advancement of students.

Revision of 'Blue Laws' Urged

The calling of a special session of the Delaware state legislature to revise the old Sunday blue laws has been urged by Attorney General James R. Morford.

The appointment of a special nine member commission to study the statutes and decide as soon as possible whether or not they should be enforced was also asked why Mr. Morford in a communication to Senator Paul R. Rinard, author of the Sunday movie bill which was recently vetoed.

In recommending that the commission ask Governor Richard C. McMullen to call a special sessions for consideration of the matter, Mr. Morford said that "the demand for the revision of these laws is so great, and such revision will so serve the public welfare and answer a real and persistent public demand that the matter of a special session should be given very serious consideration by the executive arm of the government."

Listing 2,000 blue law violators in Wilmington and Delaware in two Sunday surveys recently made by city and state police, Mr. Morford said that it would be "extremely unfortunate" if the question of revision was permitted to wait until the next regular session of the assembly in 1941.

New Theatres In Cincinnati

New theatre construction in the Cincinnati territory from September 1st of last year has been greater than that in recent years, with 15 theatres, having a total seating capacity of 10,130 seats, built or in the course of construction.

The largest project is the new Grand, in Cincinnati, with 1,500 seats. The new house will replace the old Grand Opera House, which is now being razed. The house has been leased by RKO for a long term of years.

A 700-seat house will be built on the site of the old Times-Star building in Cincinnati; while recently opened theatres include the 900-seat Kentucky, at Latonia, Kentucky; the 700-seat Mariemont, and the 600-seat Silvertone; both the latter being in suburban locations.

The new State theatre is under construc- and at Newport, Kentucky, as is a 600-seat house on Parsons Avenue, Columbus, and a 525-seat house in Eaton, Ohio. Almost ready to open is the 900-seat Elmwood, in a suburban Cincinnati location.

At Paris, Kentucky, a 500-seat theatre is being built, and work is starting on a 300-seat house at Beverly, Ohio.

Dietz Speaks at University

Howard Dietz, head of MGM advertising and publicity, was the guest speaker Wednesday afternoon at the first session of a new course on "The Cinema as Literary Art," offered by the English department of the Washington Square college of New York University. Mr. Dietz spoke on the historical importance of the course.

MAINTAINS CONTACT WITH ALL OFFICES

Joseph Seidelman, Universal foreign head, last week received a cable from Louis Foeldes filed in Budapest. Mr. Foeldes, normally supervisor for Universal at the Paris office, cabled: "Called to the colors and am now in uniform here but maintaining contact with all offices."

News Cameramen Protest "Pools"

Newsreel cameramen last week openly objected to "pooling" arrangements, participated in by their companies, in which one crew at a special event "covers" for all the newsreels.

A demand that this practice be stopped was made by representatives of New York Cameraman's Local No. 644 last week, in New York, at the beginning of negotiations with Pat Casey, producers' labor contact. The negotiations are for a new two-year contract.

The Local 644 representatives asked that newsreel companies be compelled, each to supply their own crews for all special events except those where the regulations prohibit extensive coverage.

Use of single "covering" crews in airplane flights was also protested by the union.

The union's wage and hour demands are the same as those made one year ago, at the expiration of the contract. These are for an increase from $100 to $125 weekly minimum, and increase from the present daily wage of $35 to $50, and a maximum of 80 hours for each two weeks period, instead of the present 320 hours for eight week periods.

Negotiations last Friday were snagged because of the new objections to "pooling"; another meeting was scheduled for this Friday. Indications are that the negotiations will be prolonged.

Connecticut Allied Nominations

Allied Theatres of Connecticut this week in New Haven held nominations for the election to be held there October 3d. Those nominated are Charles Repass, Crown theatre, Hartford; A. M. Schuman, Blackrock, Bridgeport, and Martin Keleher, Princess, Hartford, for president; Messrs. Repass, Schuman, Keleher and Samuel Hadelman, Capitol, Bridgeport, for vice-president; Jack Schwartz, Westend, Bridgeport, and Leo Schapiro, Guilford, New Haven, for treasurer; Lawrence C. Caplan for executive secretary, and Maurice Shulman and Dr. Jacob Fishman for chairman of the board.

Malco Acquires House

The Palace theatre, Booneville, Ark., owned and operated by E. W. Savage, has been affiliated with the Malco Theatres, Inc., circuit of Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee. Plans are made for an extensive remodeling job, including new booth equipment and seats. A new cooling system has been installed.

Film Stocks Buck Trend of Market

Film stocks have continued to run counter to the general tone of the stock market during recent days, registering gains last Friday as "war baby" leaders held steady with but few advances, with trading the lightest since the outbreak of the war; and registering mixed gains and losses, both light, on Tuesday, when the "war babies" skyrocketed as Hitler's speech was interpreted to mean no cessation of hostilities.

Last Friday, active traders remained on the sidelines as predictions were rife on Wall Street as to whether or not President Roosevelt would be able to force a modification of the so-called Neutrality Act, at the special session of Congress called for Thursday.

The market leaders in the number of shares traded last Friday were U. S. Steel, with a volume of 31,200 shares, up ⅜; Western Union, 25,900 shares, up 2¾; New York Central, 25,600 shares, unchanged, and General Motors, 22,400 shares, unchanged.

The same day, Warners had a volume of 3,900 shares, and gained ⅛; Loew's, 6,400, up 1⅞; Eastman Kodak, 1,000, up 2¼; Twentieth Century-Fox, 3,800, unchanged, and Technicolor, 3,800, unchanged.

Tuesday was the 10th anniversary of the end of the last great bull market and the beginning of the depression. From September 19, 1929, to July 8, 1932, the nadir of the depression, the New York Times average of 50 representative stocks dropped 277.92 points, or 89 per cent. From the low point in 1932 through Tuesday, the Times average gained 75.60 points, or 222 per cent.

Hitler's speech demanding peace on his own terms, or not at all, indicating a continuation of the war, caused such a sudden advance in the "war babies" that the turnover was again small, being the third smallest of the month.

U. S. Steel, with a turnover of 70,900 shares, gained 6¾; Republic, 61,300 shares, went up 2¼; New York Central, 45,200 shares, up 2⅛; Bethlehem Steel, 36,300, up 8½, and General Motors, 33,200, up 2⅛.

Indicative of the counter-tendency were Warners, with a volume of 1,800 shares, unchanged; Loew's, 2,800 shares, down ¼; Eastman Kodak, 1,300 shares, up ½; Twentieth Century-Fox, 1,300 shares, unchanged, and Technicolor, 400 shares, up ¼.

Test Suit Is Expected To End Recording Fight

Music publishers and transcription companies will shortly resolve their controversy over the use of electrical transcription on the radio, by a test suit, under mutual agreement.

The controversy involves rate provisions under Section 1E of the Copyright Act. Harry Fox of the Music Publishers' Protective Association has advised all Thesaurus selection subscribers that restrictions on the NBC Thesaurus have been removed.

Sales tax collections under Missouri's two per cent levy totaled $1,815,658 for August, compared with $1,638,460 in August, 1938. For the year to date the tax has yielded $14,650,071, compared with $13,431,806 a year ago the same period.

"BIG FIVE" FAVORS CIO TECHNICIANS; 11 UNITS CONSIDER "ONE BIG UNION"

Secretaries of Unions in Associated Actors and Artistes Discuss Pooling Resources and Actions in New York

Secretaries of the eleven actors' unions which comprise the Associated Actors and Artistes of America, American Federation of Labor holding unit for actors' unions, met on Tuesday night in New York City to further consider the "one big union" plan, long smouldering and now lighting up after the settlement of the fight between the Four A's and the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees.

The fight, which almost resulted in an national strike in the entertainment industry, revealed the desirability of pooled resources and action.

The Provisions

The plan, in its primary stage, includes the following provisions, as defined by a working committee: a single membership card; one basic dues system; autonomy of each occupational branch; merging of offices and activities in key cities, for economy; greater power for protection of members through united action; furtherance of organizational abilities, to keep control of fields now embraced and to organize new fields; a single national publicaiton, to supersede those published by each occupational group.

Expected also is the sale of the Actors' Equity Building, in New York, after the one big union is formed, and if a satisfactory price is obtained.

The paper for the Four A's already has appeared, under the editorship of Edward Harrison, in New York, and John C. Lee, in Los Angeles.

The secretaries met under the chairmanship of Mrs. Florence Marston, eastern representative of the Screen Actors Guild.

Close Arrangement Seen

A close working arrangement between the Four A's, the Alliance, and possibly, the American Federation of Musicians, was foreseen, as part of the plan of William Green, president of the AFL, for a unity of interest and action among its units of the entertainment industry, even while they retain their individuality.

Expected to attend the American Federation of Labor convention at Cincinnati on October 5th are Frank Gillmore, president of the Four A's; Kenneth Thomson, executive secretary of the actors' guild; Paul Dullzell, executive secretary of the Actors' Equity; and Leo Fischer, executive secretary of the Four A's.

Meanwhile, the status of the American Federation of Radio Actors, which, under terms of the Four A's-IATSE settlement, was to dissolve and be superseded by the American Guild of Variety Artists, remained confused at midweek. The union's offices remained in operation; a spokesman warned that night clubs which signed with the AGVA would "get into trouble"; and officials declared the union was still representing its members. Sophie Tucker, president of the AFA, faced discipline from Actors' Equity, the American Federation of Radio Artists, and the Screen Actors' Guild, for not joining the AGVA.

She was allowed by the AFRA to broadcast, from New York, on Tuesday evening; but there were reports that if she opened an engagement at the Club Versailles, in New York, still without joining the variety artists' guild, she would be penalized.

Aubrey Blair, executive secretary of the junior division of the Screen Actors' Guild in Hollywood, resigned last week, to become western states' director and organizer for the AGVA.

In New York this week, with other worries fading, the Four A's unions were turning to organization of television performers.

It was expected that the American Federation of Radio Artists, the Actors' Equity, and the Screen Actors Guild, would share this membership, under the new close relations under the "big union" idea, which apparently resolves the formerly bitter rivalries.

In New York also, the Theatrical Managers Agents, and Treasurers' union has come to agreement in principle with the League of New York theatres, a legitimate theatre organization, on a contract for three years, covering company managers and press agents. The contract was expected to be ready for signature this week.

The treasurers' terms were, apparently, left out of the negotiations, inasmuch as that group in the TMAT split away several weeks ago to join the IATSE; and the "stagehands'" unit is expected to negotiate, now, for the legitimate theatre treasurers.

In Lincoln, Neb., Roy M. Brewer, projectionist at the Grand theatre, Grand Island, was elected president of the Nebraska Federation of Labor, at its annual convention.

SEATTLE WORKERS FEAR WAR COSTS

The war enters union contracts.

Seven Seattle theatrical unions, this week negotiating with that city's theatre owners, have asked for a "war clause" in the 1940 contract.

This provides for immediate adjustment of wages if the war raises living costs abnormally.

Academy Council Appoints Standard Leader Committee

The Research Council of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences has appointed a committee under the chairmanship of S. J. Twining of Columbia Studio to consider possible revision for the specifications for the Standard Release Print Leader. The present Standard Leader was revised in August of 1936 simultaneously with the adoption by the industry of the Standard 2000-ft. Reel.

The purpose of the committee will be to study the specifications with a view to recommending changes which may improve the Standard Leader and facilitate its use by theatre projectionists. Besides Mr. Twining the membership of the committee consists of John Aalberg, Gerald Best, Sidney Solow and Ray Wilkinson.

Robert H. ("Bob") Poole, veteran California independent operator, has been elected executive director of the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California and Arizona.

Virtually the entire directorial board was reelected.

Unaffiliated Unions in Hollywood Say Vote for United Studio Technicians Guild Means "Real Democracy"

In local advertisements, Hollywood's unaffiliated "creative" unions, known as the "Big Five," went on record Monday for the CIO-financed United Studio Technicians Guild, against the American Federation of Labor's International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, in the studio election late Wednesday.

The advertisements urged studio technicians to "vote for honest unionism and self rule." "Your decision," they said, "will end dictatorship in Hollywood and will bring real trade union democracy."

Called "Chance of Lifetime"

The unions sponsoring the electioneering were the Screen Set Designers, Screen Directors Guild, Screen Publicists Guild, Art Directors Guild, and the Screen Writers Guild.

The advertisements further said that the secret election, as ordered by the National Labor Relations Board, was the technicians' "chance of a lifetime."

"A victory for the United Studio Technicians' Guild means that all guilds and crafts can be voluntarily united in a motion picture council, thus realizing a major goal of Hollywood labor, and winning better conditions for all," the advertisements said.

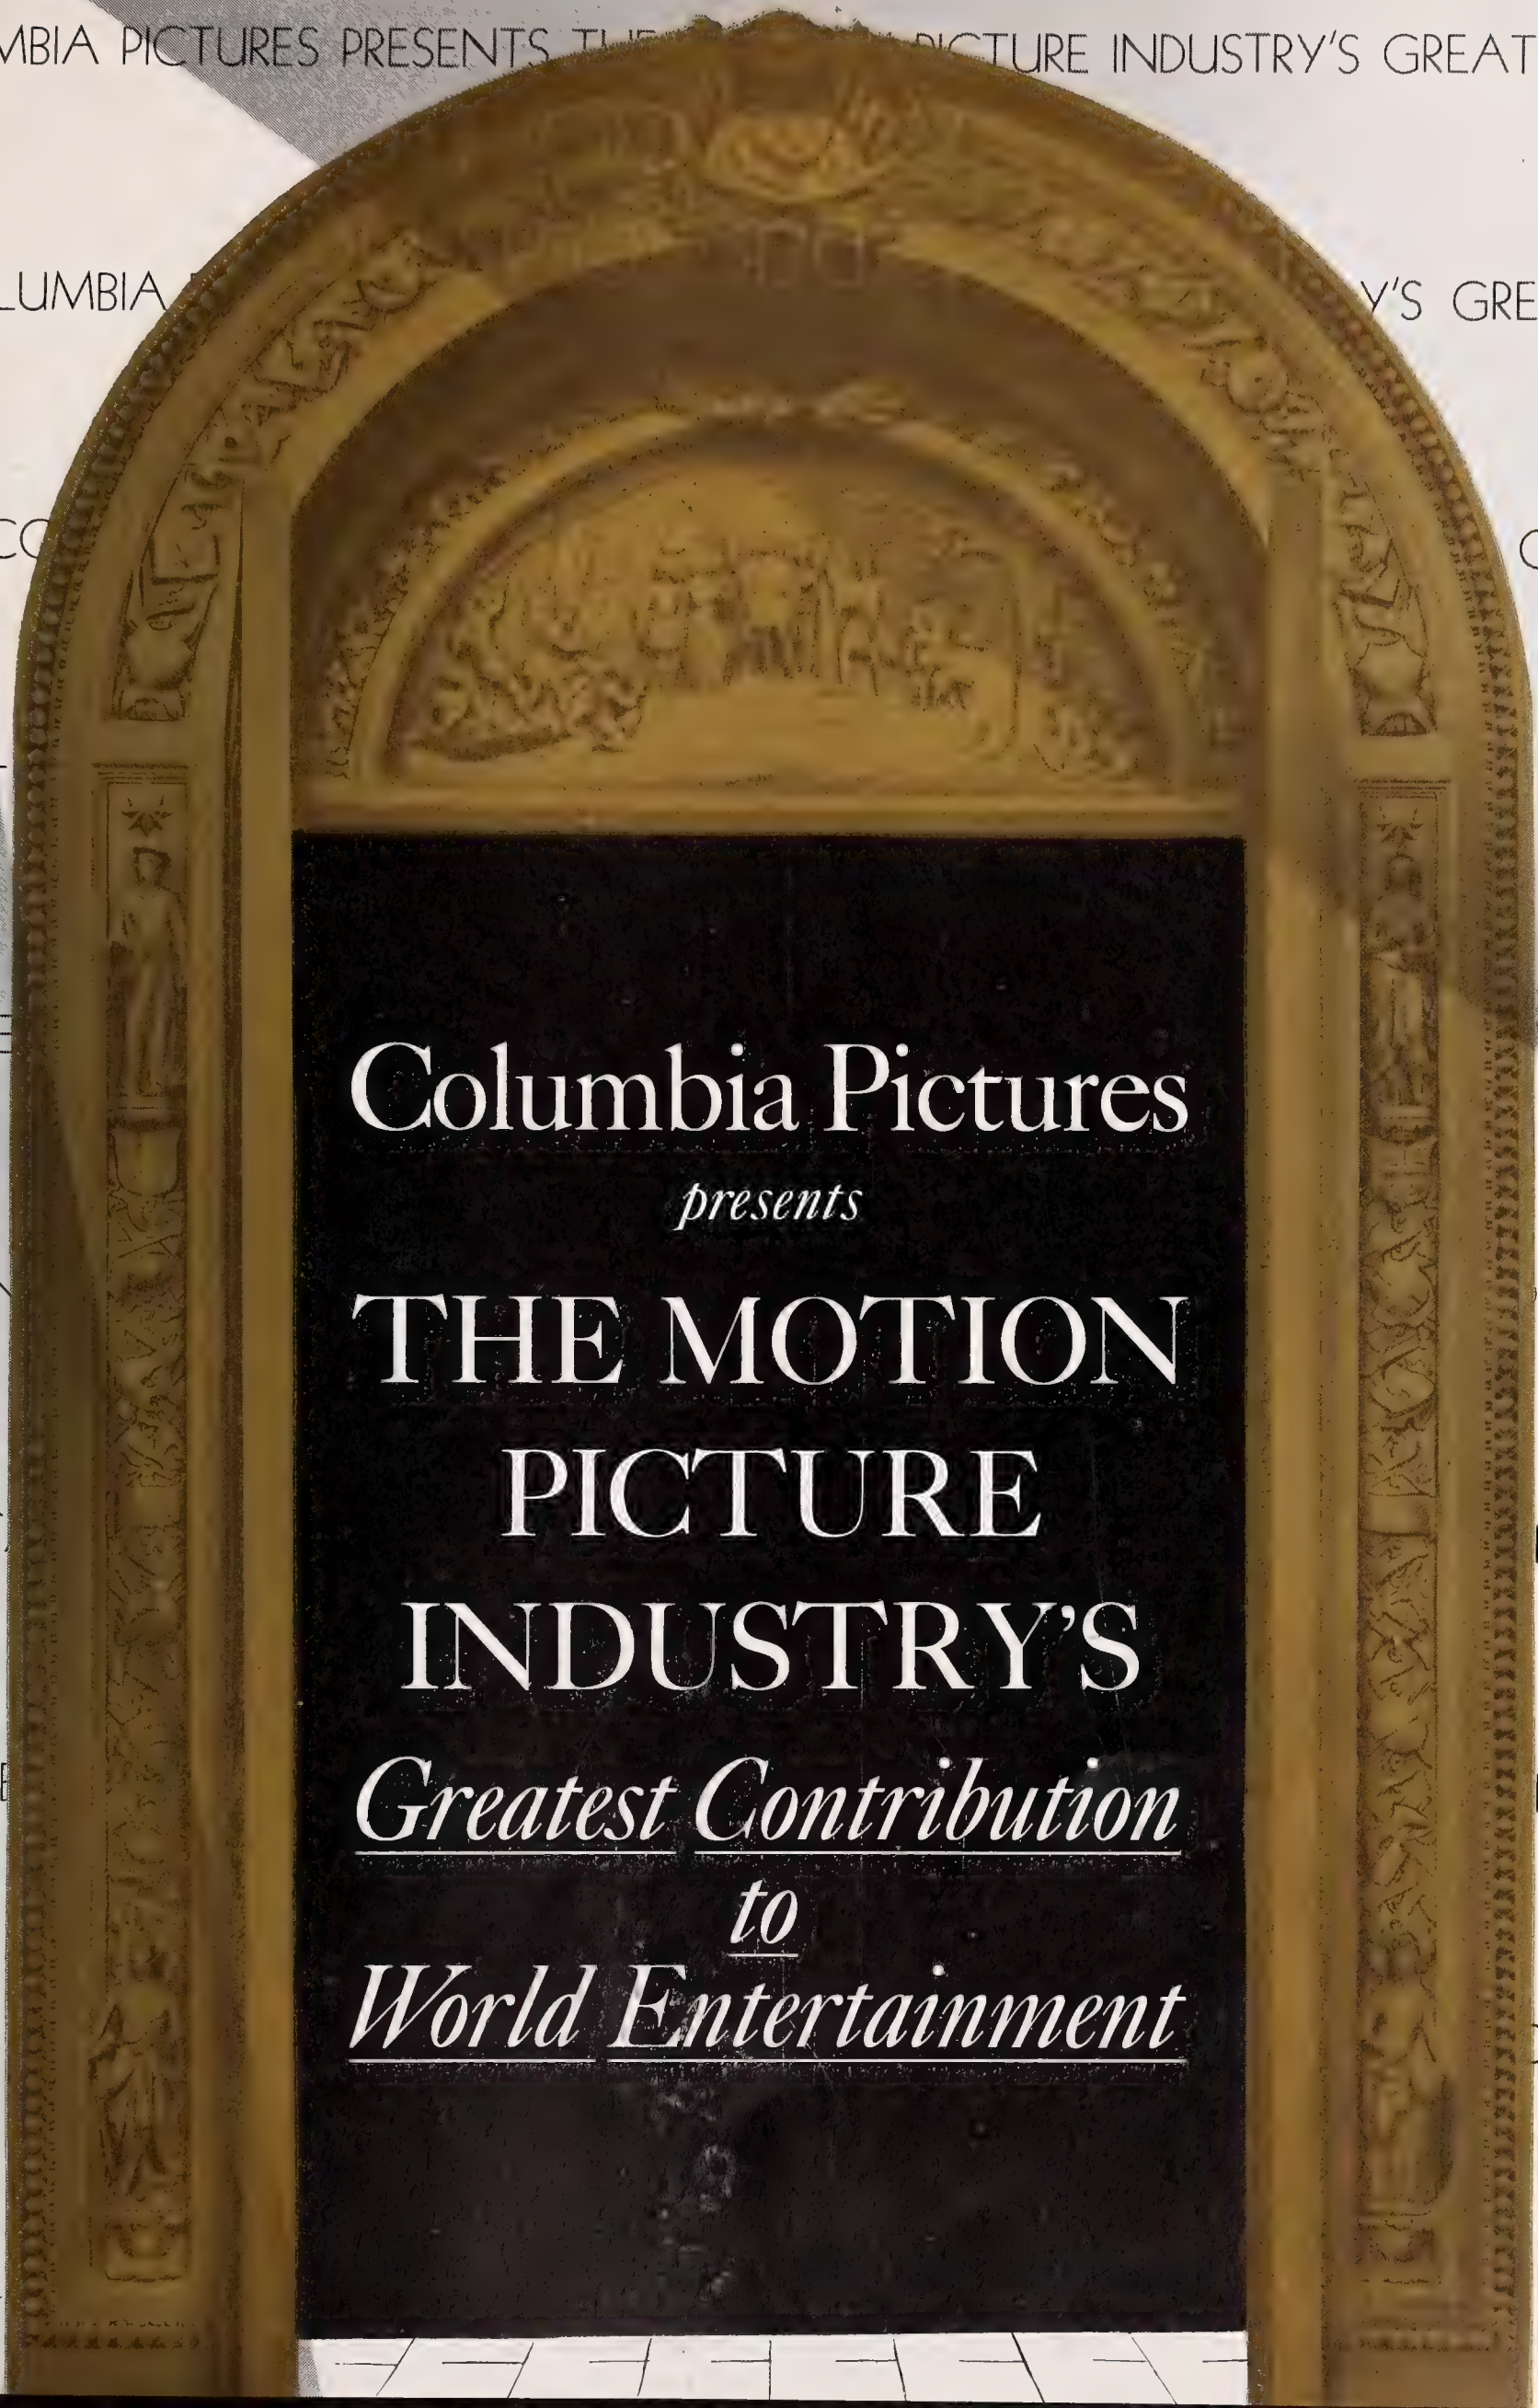
The election this Wednesday involved 7,500 workers. It was ordered by the NLRB, after the rapidly growing Technicians' Guild had petitioned for certification.

The technicians' guild did not prevent the signing of a closed shop agreement between the producers and the Alliance; but they did, by securing the election, effect a postponement of negotiations on the terms.

Up to Workers, Says Schenck

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of Twentieth Century-Fox, president of the Motion Picture Producers Association, and head of that organization's labor negotiations committee, placed himself officially on record for dealing with the Hollywood workers agency chosen legally by the workers themselves.

William Bioff, known as IATSE president George E. Browne's personal representative on the coast, and last week made head of the Alliance negotiating committee, this week said:

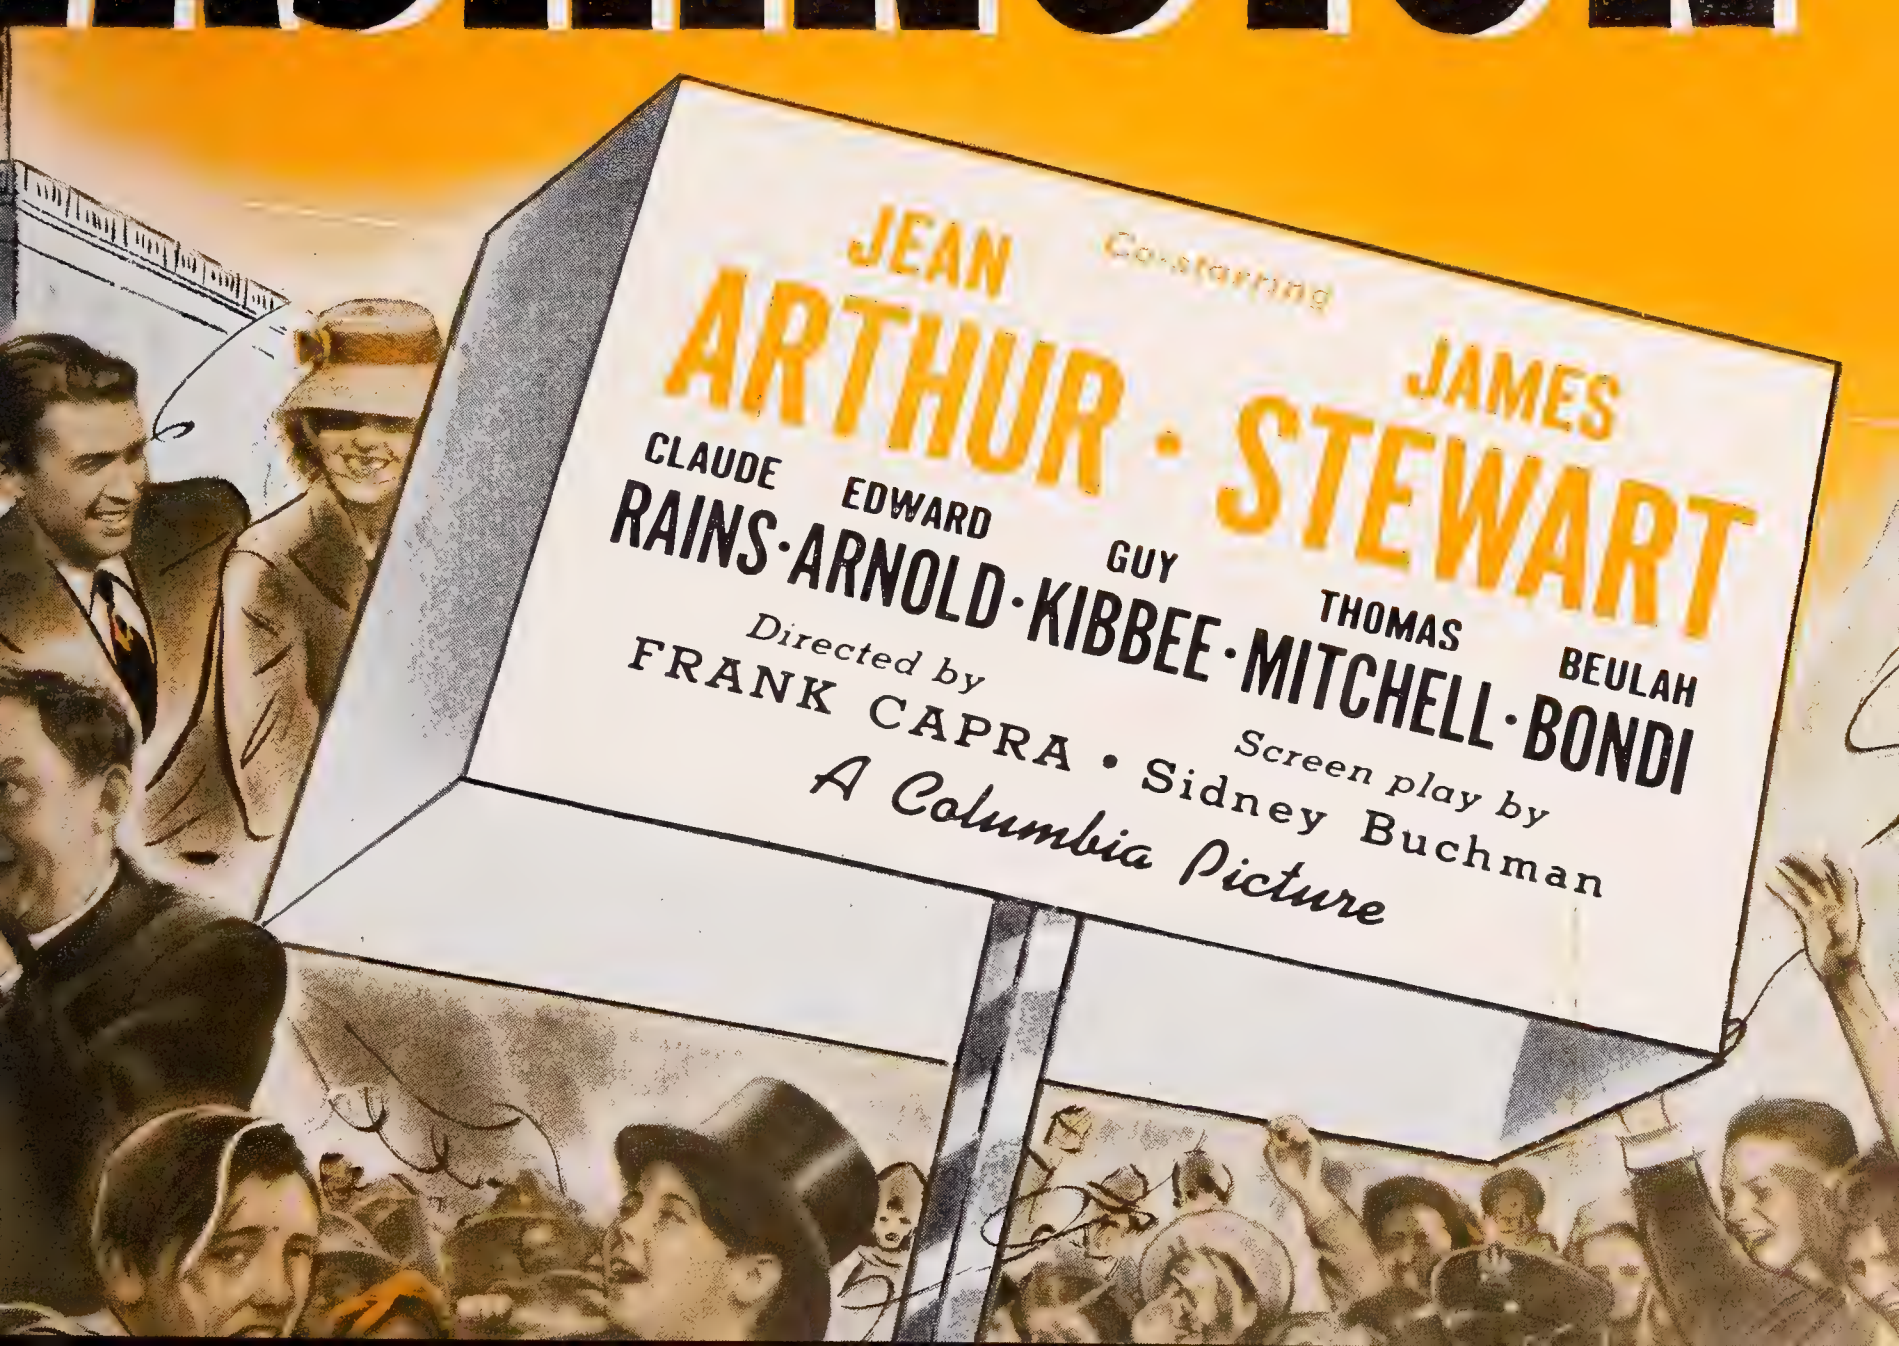


"Charges have been made recently by our enemies that the purposes of the IATSE in attempting to negotiate for wages, hours and working conditions near the eve of the forthcoming NLRB elections, is in order that the results of such negotiations would react favorably in behalf of the IATSE in such an election.

'Such propaganda," he charged, "is vicious, untrue, and typical of the source from which it springs."

Mr. Bioff last week let himself be quoted as asking for a 20 per cent increase for the members of the 11 Alliance locals he represented.

Negotiations with the producers were expected to resume on this Thursday.



The National Labor Relations Board in Washington, last week certified the Society of Motion Picture Artists and Illustrators as the sole collective bargaining agent for the artists and illustrators at Warners and Twentieth Century-Fox.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Robert Sherwood, as the author of the play, "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," which RKO is producing, is suing Twentieth Century-Fox to restrain them from exhibiting their story about Lincoln, entitled "Young Mr. Lincoln." Seems that Mr. Sherwood feels that Fox's "Mr. Lincoln" is an infringement.

All of which reminds that, in discussing other phases of the life of the Emancipator, Mr. Sherwood only the other day admitted that some 3,000 persons had written about Lincoln, and that all the facts concerning the slain President won't be known for another 27 years. Not before 1966 will Lincoln's private papers, now under seal in the Library of Congress, be available for inspection. Lincoln's son, Robert Todd, had refused for years to allow anyone to look at the papers which he had acquired when his father died, and at one time, on his farm in New Hampshire, had decided to burn these papers. He was restrained only by the intervention of Nicholas Murray Butler, who persuaded Robert to at least place them under seal for 50 years in the Library of Congress, where they can be opened in 1966.

G. F. Finck, of the Metro theatre, San Diego, Cal., who calls himself "the unconventional showman," is just that. "Let your customers know you appreciate their patronage, and if you must racket, racket intelligently," writes the exhibitor who gives cash to his customers on Saturday and Sunday nights, silverware Monday, chinaware Tuesday; dresserware Wednesday and Thursday and Mexican films Friday.

"A stiff doorman is suicide," he comments almost in the same breath as he explains how he gave away 52 second-hand automobiles—"some of which are still on the streets four years later."

He went into the theatre business from the automobile business. He sold cars back in 1916. "Those were the days when we sold them without bumpers or tops and charged $250 extra for the starter," he recalls.

"When the first sedans came out, the tops were too low for our high derbys, so we always kept caps handy. Whenever we went out to demonstrate a sedan we swapped the customer's derby for a cap."

One of the first to use giveaways, Mr. Finch created a stir with a tire matinee. Every kid who brought a tire was admitted without charge. Hundreds of tires piled up in the lobby of his theatre. Mr. Finck sold the tires for 18 cents apiece—or eight cents more than the customary juvenile admission price!

THOSE MOVIE PEOPLE

When the bells of St. Joseph's Church, in the heart of the residential district of Los Angeles, began tolling early the other morning, frightened men and women rushed out with one conjecture: "War." Hurrying to the church, they found a motion picture sound crew ringing the bells. "We're recording the cathedral chimes for Mr. Schaefer's 'Hunchback of Notre Dame' at RKO," a technician explained.

In view of that unique German-Soviet axis, it seemed reasonable to assume that the theatres playing Soviet pictures in New York and those playing German films would embrace the product of each.

For example, the Cameo, near Times Square, which plays films from Russia, taking on an occasional Nazi film, and the 86th Street Casino, in New York's Yorkville section, which has all-German film shows, playing some films from the Soviet—all for old friendship's sake.

But, no such embracings are being embraced. The Cameo management says it hasn't played any German films, and hasn't any in mind; the same, as to Russian pictures for the Yorkville Casino management.

Unruly Appendix Brings Twin Premiere for Orphan

Solarium Is Theatre When Showman Thinks Fast

A Paramount promotion project, the selection of most worthy orphans in key cities for a Hollywood trip and attendance in that city at the premiere of "The Star Maker," resulted in a dual premiere for the picture.

The other "grand world opening" of the picture, at precisely the same hour, on the same evening, was in an Omaha hospital room.

A little girl was the honored audience.

She was one of the orphans.

The child's name was Helen Bereda. She had been selected as Detroit's most worthy orphan, to be a guest of Linda Ware, Paramount star, at the "Star Maker" premiere.

Then the Appendix

She had been taken sick in Omaha, on the way to Hollywood. The illness followed a welcoming breakfast to Miss Bereda and other Eastern city orphans, by Omaha's Mayor and the Chamber of Commerce. The case was pronounced appendicits, and pronounced it was.

The other orphans went to Hollywood. Helen went to the hospital.

Ted Emerson, advertising director of the Tri-States circuit, in the Omaha zone, had run the local promotion, choosing Omaha's orphan guest. Noting the grief and fright, as well as the pain and misfortune of the Omaha girl, he comforted her, stayed at her bedside.

Then he began to enlist local dignitaries and studio stars in a "cheer-up" campaign for Helen. Wires, flowers, presents, and letters poured in.

Premiere in Hospital

Followed the idea to hold the "Star-Maker" premiere in the hospital. Helen would not have been recovered in time to attend Hollywood's premiere.

Paramount rushed a special print by plane. A fireproof booth was constructed in the hospital solarium. Sound and projection equipment was installed. Civic groups cooperated.

The screening was held, for Helen and her invited guests.

She recovered shortly after, and visited Hollywood.

Emerson, while treasuring memories of a good deed, and the letters of his friend, Helen Bereda, also this week noted that the publicity the act received, while not solicited, had been very favorable and quite large.

Plan Film Phone Service

Movie Information Service, a guide service for theatres in Brooklyn, has launched its plan for dissemination of program information through central telephone exchanges. The plan calls for central telephone exchanges operated by the company which will give all callers information about programs at any Brooklyn theatre for a 10-hour period every day.

Wanger Signs Garnett

Walter Wanger has signed Tay Garnett to direct two productions to be made in 1940. These films will follow "Eternally Yours," which Mr. Garnett has just completed for Mr. Wanger, and "Send Another Coffin," which Mr. Garnett will start September 1st, both to be released by United Artists.

Votes Sunday Films

Sunday films for Lake City, Tenn., have been approved by vote of the board of aldermen. Film performances will start at 1:30 p. m. on Sundays.

William Dover, confidential executive aide to Darryl F. Zanuck at Warner Brothers and Twentieth Century-Fox for many years, has entered the agency field as vice-president of Orsatti and Company.

ASCAP May Grant Cuts to Small Stations

The American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers may negotiate separate contracts with independent broadcasters, to reduce rates for such small units.

Paul Siegel, an attorney of Washington, D. C., who has acted for various small stations, has been reported conferring with John G. Paine of ASCAP, on this move. He was said to have told Mr. Paine that the small stations whom he represented did not want the National Association of Broadcasters to sign new contracts for them.

The Society is said to have heard this desire for independent negotiations from other small stations.

An ASCAP official last week asserted that the society recognized that independent stations send out only 40 per cent of the ASCAP music broadcast, and that their fees, nevertheless, amounted to 60 per cent of ASCAP's revenue from radio, annually.

It was said that the society, in its dispute with the Association, recognizes the justice of that organization's claim that the networks finance the experimental and developmental work of the radio industry, and that they are also building another market for music, television. But the society's viewpoint, it was stated, is that this is an inherent broadcasting matter, to be settled among broadcasters; but no argument for reduced rates for networks.

To Produce Verne Classic

Walter Wanger plans to produce Jules Verne's classic of adventure, "Around the World in 80 Days," as the most pretentious film the producer ever has attempted. The budget has been set at $2,000,000, according to Mr. Wanger, and the picture will go into work in February. Jacques Thery is working on the screen adaptation of the book, and negotiations are under way for Ronald Colman to play the leading role. United Artists will distribute the picture.

Monogram Deals Set

Monogram has closed deals for the 1939-'40 product with Pal Amusement Company, covering Georgia; Interstate Circuit in New England and the O. K. Theatre Circuit, Dallas, according to George W. Weeks, general sales manager.

Lefton Back at Work

Lew Lefton, branch manager for Monarch Pictures in Pittsburgh, has resumed active duty after being confined to a Pittsburgh hospital for an operation and treatment for several months.

Lee Stewart has returned to New York from Hollywood and will represent the Rosalie Stewart Agency in the east.

Max Gendel is handling public relations for Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's "Bowl of Rice" drive.

William Alexander, distributor, has secured the American and Canadian rights to "Blarney," Irish-made picture.

BROADCASTERS VOTE "WAR CHEST"; GENE BUCK DEFENDS ASCAP AT TRIAL

Members of Broadcasters Association Vote to Raise $1,500,000 to Become Independent of "Film Dominated" ASCAP

by WILLIAM F. CROUCH in Chicago

Saying they were ready for action, members of the National Association of Broadcasters last Friday, in convention at the Palmer House in Chicago, gave their unanimous support to a plan to free themselves from the "motion picture dominated" American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Without dissension, the association's members, 300 strong, voted for establishment of a plan to raise $1,500,000 with which to start their fight against the ASCAP group, who, they charge, control the music industry.

No Controversy at Session

That the groundwork for the establishment of such a plan has been carefully prepared by Neville Miller, president of the Broadcasters' Association, was evident. The resolution to form a corporation for the sole purpose of creating a music supply for radio and other interested parties, free from ASCAP, was passed without controversy. Broadcasters were unanimous in their approval to fight ASCAP with their own money.

The plan for creation of a music pool in competition with ASCAP was developed by Sydney M. Kaye, attorney, in cooperation with the Broadcasters' copyright committee. This corporation, tentatively named Broadcast Music, Inc., will sell 100,000 shares of stock to broadcasters at $5 a share, though the par value is $1. The other $4 will create an immediate surplus for its operations. Allocations of stock to stations will be made on the basis of their 1937 payments to ASCAP. Thus, a broadcaster who paid ASCAP $1,000 in 1937 will invest $500 in Broadcast Music, Inc., of which $100 will be for 20 shares of stock and $400 will provide needed working funds. This $400 will also give the stockholder a license to play the corporation's catalog of music, this license to be issued for the minimum period of one year.

Seven Directors

Broadcast Music, Inc., will be administered by seven directors: Mr. Miller, president of the association, who will also serve as president of the corporation temporarily; Walter J. Damm, Station WTMJ, Milwaukee, representing newspaper-owned stations; John Elmer, WCBM, Baltimore, representing independents; Edward Klauber, of CBS, and Lenox R. Lohr of NBC, representing networks; S. R. Rosenbaum, WFIL, Philadelphia, independent network affiliates; and John Shepard III, Yankee Network, Boston, representing regional networks. Everett E. Revercomb will act as temporary secretary.

Broadcast Music, Inc., will do everything within its power to develop a catalog of worthwhile music, through cooperation with Hollywood studios which are not affiliated with ASCAP, by cooperation with recognized composers and by encouraging promising talent in every conceivable way. One independent leader said that the work of recording companies and others already has made it at least partly independent of ASCAP.

President Miller opened the meeting by explaining that it was an emergency session of the entire industry. The association was organized 17 years ago, he said, to solve the copyright problem, now costing radio $4,000,000 a year, regardless of the amount of music used, yet the situation has become aggravated instead of improved.

"Any thinking broadcaster," he said, "has been forced to the realization that radio, like any other industry, must control its raw materials. We have made a sincere, but futile, attempt to reach an agreement with ASCAP. Since this organization is a virtual monopoly, and is in a position to dictate any terms, our salvation lies in fighting while we have the wherewithal."

Calls ASCAP Income $6,000,000

The composers' society's total annual income is $6,000,000, Mr. Miller said, radio being called on to provide two-thirds of it. The motion picture industry supplies the greater portion of the other third. However, it was stated that the film industry was able, through its ownership of music publishing companies, to get a large part of this money back. Demands on radio have grown more severe each year, with ASCAP refusing to give serious consideration to the industry's petition for a "per use" payment for music, Mr. Miller added.

George Norton of WAVE, Louisville; John Elmer of Baltimore; Mark Etheridge of Louisville and S. R. Rosenbaum of WFIL, Philadelphia also spoke regarding the new plan.

Radio Called Responsible

While the broadcasters do not expect that the formation of this music corporation will enable them to do without ASCAP entirely, it will give them a weapon, they believe, to use in negotiating the sort of deals they desire. It is thought by many broadcasters that in a year the radio group will have enough music to be independent from ASCAP if necessary. It is claimed that radio is responsible for the success of new music on a wide scale and that ASCAP, when it realizes this, will be more tolerant in its demands.

The formation of the corporation is expected to take at least 30 days.

Another resolution adopted by the association was in regard to the neutrality situation, and urged that in self-regulation "the members of the NAB will exercise the greatest possible care in the use, preparation and transmission of broadcasts, dealing with the war, to the end that these broadcasts will conform with and support this declared public policy."

Code Effective October 1st

The association's recently adopted code will go into effect October 1st.

Adopted at the Atlantic City convention, the code requires that radio stations shall provide free time for discussion of controversial public issues in such a way that conflicting viewpoints in public matters will have a fair and equal opportunity to be heard.

The code also requires that news broadcasts be factual and without bias or editorial opinion. It also provides that children's programs be based on "sound social concepts."

Where Find It? Asks Buck

Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, said in New York:

"They have a perfect right to form their own group."

He added, however, that most of the composers, authors and publishers were members of the society and said he wondered where the new group would find its music.

Tells Court at Lincoln That Dozen Lawyers Would Have Been Required to Collect What the Society Gathered

It would take a dozen lawyers, "fighting tooth and nail," to collect the royalies which the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers has collected in Nebraska alone, Gene Buck, president, declared Monday from the witness stand in federal court in Lincoln.

Mr. Buck was the principal witness as the society sought to have declared unconstitutional a Nebraska law passed by the 1937 legislature which outlaws associations of composers and authors which seek to collect royalties.

An Old Procedure

Under questioning by Louis Frohlich, New York, attorney for ASCAP, Mr. Buck told of the creation of the society in 1914. He told of the fight to get the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, cabaret operators and phonograph companies to pay royalties to composers and authors, who, before 1914, seldom collected a cent for their efforts.

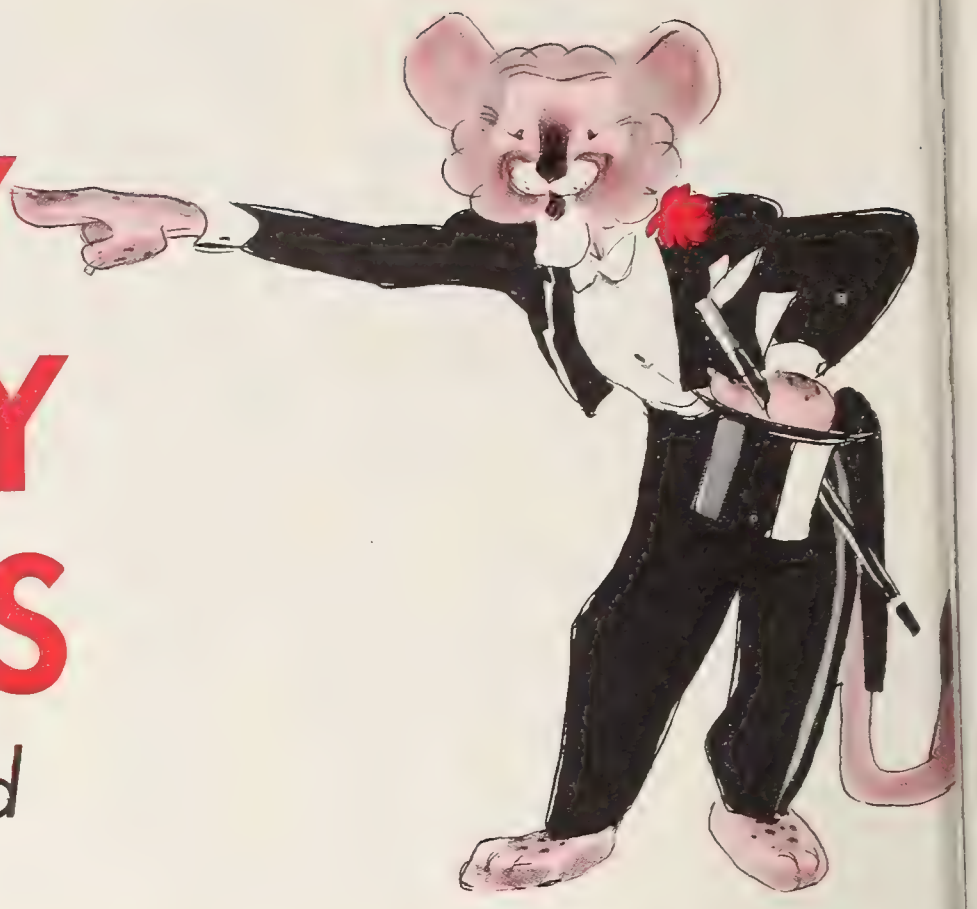
Part of his testimony was to show that the various users had continually tried to get amendments to the copyright laws to save them from paying fees to ASCAP. Broadcasting, he testified, has been the latest inroad of a mechanized world into the musician's life. He said radio had cut music sales 70 per cent and cut the life of a hit tune from two years to six weeks.

He testified that the society had collected from 391 Nebraska users $68,789 in 1938, $54,474 in 1937 and up to June 1, 1939, over $38,000.

Before testimony began, the 15 lawyers and other interested parties convened with the judges. It was decided that jurisdictional matters could be stipulated and the main question would be whether ASCAP is an organization within the definition of the law in question, whether it is a monopoly and if so whether the law outlawing it is constitutional.

Prompted by Protest to Rancher

Aiding William J. Holtz, Omaha, special state's attorney, was Andrew Bennett of Washington, D. C., counsel for the National Association of Broadcasters and former special U. S. attorney in charge of the now dormant anti-monopoly suit against ASCAP.



Others who testified briefly were T. J. Tepoel of Omaha for the society, Herman Finkelstein, New York attorney for the organization, and John Riddel, assistant attorney general, for the state.

The state began its defense Wednesday following conclusion of ASCAP testimony by John G. Paine, general manager of the society. Appearing for the state were Joseph Mollac, president of Nebraska Amusement Men's Protective Association, and John J. Gillin, Jr., manager Station WOW and national association director.

They testified that their present relations with ASCAP were "unsatisfactory but that without ASCAP music they would have to curtail."

The anti-ASCAP measure was brought about after a protest to Senator Frank Brady, an Atkinson, Neb., rancher, by one of his constituents, who ran a dance hall. When Mr. Brady drew the bill, he did not mention ASCAP by name, but let it be defined by the wordage which says there shall be no music combinations for fixing prices.

THE FRIENDLY COMPANY REAFFIRMS its previously announced policy of:

Not insisting upon short subject, newsreel or trailer representation as a condition of licensing its feature productions, and to those who do lease these units the Weekly Payment Plan is optional.

That score or recording charges will not be made on any contracts for its 1939-40 product signed subsequent to January 1st, 1939.

That it will gladly negotiate for some run of its product with any properly conducted theatre, providing the acquisition of such business would not seriously affect its revenue from any prior run.

That it will recognize the desires of its customers to select days of their choice for the showing of percentage pictures where guarantees are given.

That it will respect any legitimate claim for the elimination from its contract of any picture likely to be offensive or objectionable to its customers' patrons from religious, moral or racial grounds.

AND IN ADDITION:

It will offer to its customers who have leased all product offered, and who are not in material default, an increased and unrestricted elimination privilege of:

20% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is $100 or less.

15% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is in excess of $100 and not more than $250 and

10% elimination of features licensed where the average rental is in excess of $250.

Also will give full consideration to its customers' requests for the interchanging of a picture that is deemed to be unsuitable for preferred time showing.

And where a theatre's prior commitments prevents it leasing the company's entire output it will in such cases gladly negotiate for a lesser number of pictures, including those available subjects in which the theatre is particularly interested.

It will continue to provide an Optional Arbitration Clause in its contracts and will arbitrate under such provision any claims made for breach of contract.

It is now preparing a new form of license agreement. A rider will be submitted for the signature of those who desire to operate under the new conditions and who had previously signed an application for its 1939-40 product. That all may have a full knowledge of the complete contract, each is requested to read the new agreement when submitted, thoroughly and carefully.

It has no present method of adjudicating clearance disputes or those affecting over-buying, but will conscientiously review any complaints brought to its attention and will continue to lend its every effort to bring about a more harmonious understanding.

Its established policy of supporting its satisfactory customers, the fair method of designating pictures and other relationship with the trade is so well known that it is not believed necessary to reaffirm that which by performance over many years is so well established.

It seeks the continued support of its customers and acknowledges its debt of gratitude to those who have in the past expressed their confidence in its policy by their uninterrupted patronage.

B & K RESTS IN FEDERAL CONSENT DECREE CASE

Schine Action Postponed Two Weeks; Judge Knox Agrees to Delay New York Trial

The Government's contempt case, in Chicago, against Balaban and Katz and the majors for violation of a 1932 consent decree, was concluded abruptly, on Monday, in federal court, when Robert Golding, defense counsel, rested its case without offering testimony.

Edgar Eldredge, master in chancery, granted until December 2d for the filing of briefs. His recommendations, after this is done, and after oral arguments on the law, go to Federal Judge Woodward, who will rule.

Upon the outcome of this case rests the disposition of several other suits by independents against the circuit and the major distributing companies. The ruling on this case will affect the whole Chicago clearance system.

Conspiracy Charges Waived

Mr. Golding, in his surprise move, pointed out that the Government had waived charges of conspiracy against the defendants, and that it was now merely a matter of interpreting the consent decree, an interpretation which would not be affected by defense testimony.

In legal chronology, the case now takes this course. The Government is granted 30 days from conclusion of the case to submit its findings of fact, conclusions of law, and supporting briefs. The defense then has 30 days after receipt of these papers to serve the finding and conclusions. The Government then has 15 additional days to prepare reply briefs. If oral argument is necessary, Mr. Eldredge will set a date.

Schine Trial Postponed

In Buffalo, the Government anti-trust trial against the Schine circuit was postponed, on Monday for two weeks, both sides agreeing. Arguments for dismissal, made by the defense, had been started before Federal Judge John Knight.

Last week, in New York, Frederick Wood was retained by the Schines as a special defense attorney. Mr. Wood is of the firm of Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine and Wood.

Willard McKay is the regular Schine attorney, and is serving with Mr. Wood.

In Dallas, Texas, L. L. Dunbar, independent exhibitor, is suing the Interstate Circuit, and Karl Hoblitzelle, its president, for damages of $54,443, in federal court. He charges Interstate induced majors to force him to raise admission prices, and had caused a ban on double features with which he had made most money.

Westway Argues Defense Motion

In Baltimore, the Westway theatre, plaintiff in an anti-trust suit against the majors and the Edgewood theatre, is arguing the defendants' motion for a bill of particulars.

In the New York anti-trust action by the Government against the majors, John Knox, federal judge, last Friday agreed not to rule on the Government request for a trial calendar preference, until the question of replying to the interrogatories had been resolved.

The defendants, by agreement with the Department of Justice, have until October 7th to answer or object to, the 68 comprehensive interrogatories on the history and trade relations of the companies.

A new New York anti-trust suit, filed several weeks ago in the state supreme court, will be discontinued there and filed again in federal court, according to Morris Bohrar, attorney for the defendant, Mobeel Enterprises, Inc., in the action against the Century Circuit, Warners, Paramount MGM, RKO, and United Artists. The suit charges that the Mobeel theatre, the Glenwood, in Brooklyn, was unable to obtain product after the opening of a Century house, the College.

Gary Action in October

In Chicago, the Gary Theatre Corporation suit against the majors, Warner Theatres, and Balaban and Katz is to start in early October.

Answering the Griffith Amusement Company's request for a clarification of charges, the Government, this week, in its anti-trust action against that circuit, filed a brief with the Federal District Court clerk's office in Oklahoma City.

Attorney General Frank Murphy was expected to confer this week or early next, in Los Angeles, on the case now being prepared by his assistants on charges of irregularities in the income tax returns of top executives, on the growth of the Fox Film Corporation into the Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and on the rumored "racketeering" in Hollywood labor unions.

Museum Entertains Members Of Musicological Society

The Museum of Modern Art, New York, entertained the members of the International Congress of the Musicological Society last Friday. Following a luncheon on the penthouse terrace of the Museum a film showing of special musical interest was held.

The program included Van Eyck's "Adoration of the Mystic Lamb," with a score of 15th Century melodies; "A Nous La Liberte," songs and background music composed by Georges Auric; "Les Trois Petits Cochons," French version of "Three Little Pigs," and "Colour Box," an abstract film in which the design was composed to fit the music.

New York Regents Reverse Censors on "The Harvest"

The New York Board of Regents five-man reviewing committee last week approved, without deletions, the French film, "The Harvest," which had been previously banned as immoral by the state censor board.

The French Cinema Center, Inc., appealed to the Regents from the board decision.

It is one of the first times that the board's decision has been overruled so decisively.

Bellman Is Manager of Republic Buffalo Office

Jack Bellman, eastern district manager for Republic, has been assigned as manager of the Buffalo branch in the first move of a realignment whereby the company's six district managers will be given branch or home office assignments. The Buffalo office recently was taken over by Republic from the franchise owner and is one of five operated directly by the company. Nat Marcus, who has been manager in Buffalo, returns to the sales staff.

District managers who were due in New York this week for home office conferences, beside Mr. Bellman, include Max Roth, Chicago; William Benjamin, St. Louis; Grover C. Parsons, San Francisco; Harry LaVine, Philadelphia, and Clair Hilgers, Atlanta.

Producers Pictures' New Studio Is Nearly Ready

Producers Pictures Corporation's "western studios" at Prescott, Arizona, will be ready for production by the end of this month, according to Bert Sternbach, its general manager. At the plant, Ben Judell plans to produce eight pictures starring "The Sagebrush Family"; eight westerns, starring Tim McCoy, and eight "Tales of Billy the Kid," featuring George Huston, radio star.

George Bricker is adapting "Buried Alive" for the screen, for the company.

It was announced that Bobby Clark, 13-year old cowboy star of "The Sagebrush Family" series, will make a personal appearance tour, after completion of the second picture.

Films Show First Actual War Scenes

Paramount Wins Scoop; Material Censored

First action shots of the European war were received by Paramount News late Sunday night and shown on Broadway at 1:30 P. M. yesterday afternoon.

The material ran about 1,250 feet and consisted of censored material of German and Polish origin. The shipment was made by the trans-Atlantic flying boat Caribou to Montreal and by special plane from Montreal to Newark, arriving in New York in time for preparation of a special release.

The Embassy Newsreel theatre was the first to show the film yesterday afternoon. The house was packed and standees crowded the rear of the auditorium but there was no demonstration of any kind during the showing of the first action film of the war to reach America.

The footage included shots of the German training ship, Schleswig-Holstein, bombarding Westerplatte fort in Danzig at close range, which were probably the most outstanding pictures in the release. The bulk of the material is confined to shots of the German army on the march in Poland and incidental action attendant upon occupation of Polish cities and villages by the enemy. The Polish material included considerable footage on ruins following air raids, a German plane which had been brought down and an earth mound purported to be the grave of the pilot. The Polish shots were obtained by Cameramen John Dored and Harrison of the Paramount staff and were passed by the Polish censor

PARAMOUNT NEWS!

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

This and Some Future Weeks

Hollywood isn't making pictures now in that free and easy way to which the prosperity of 1936-1937 accustomed it. But Hollywood has reiterated its resolve to make the big pictures it listed in the 1939-1940 product announcements.

There have been retrenchments in Hollywood. The exigencies of the day have made possible the polite firing of a lot of political hangers-on and unrequired Christmas tree adornments. Of course, in the shooting a few innocent bystanders were killed. In the main the losses were the adjuncts to overhead costs that meant so much money spent without the appreciable evidence of any profitable return to anybody but the departed. Closer scrutinies of material and personnel matters very surely will result in further casualties.

Still, Hollywood will continue to make pictures. It has to.

Nine Films Start

While Paramount said that almost half its 1939-1940 product had been completed, was in the work or was ready to go at once, a recapitulation of last week's picture making activity, which totaled nine starting films, was featured by 20th Century-Fox's launching of five. In this studio the personnel was reduced by 400, including 11 in the publicity department. Two of the pictures require money to produce. "Daytime Wife," a romance-drama, will feature Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell, who was in "Hotel for Women." Sonja Henie is the star of "Everything Happens at Night," and Ray Milland, borrowed from Paramount, and Universal's Robert Cummings will be featured. "The Adventurer," which is a "Cisco Kid" story, was started with Cesar Romero, Marjorie Weaver, Virginia Field and Robert Barrat as the feature names. Amanda Duff, Lynn Bari, Donald Woods, C. Aubrey Smith and June Gale will be seen in "The City," which is a remake. Names in "The Man Who Wouldn't Talk" are Erik Blore, Renie Riano, Onslow Stevens and Douglas Wood.

A Series Picture

Universal started a series picture, "Vigilante War," with Johnnie Mack Brown, Box Baker, Fuzzy Knight and Frances Robinson as principals. For Columbia distribution producer Larry Darmour began work on "Illicit Cargo," which has Jack Holt as the star, with Irene Ware, Eduardo Cianelli and Dick Purcell in support.

MGM's "Judge Hardy's Son" will feature the regular cast and that should be enough for anybody's money. Kay Kayser's name leads all the rest in RKO-Radio's "That's Right, You're Wrong;" music with a story, obviously, but with Adolphe Menjou, May Robson, Edward Everett Horton and Lucille Ball on the roster.

Four pictures were finished. Paramount had two of them, as did Warner Brothers. "Four Wives" is the sequel to "Four Daughters" with the same principal cast save for John Garfield. Personalities with which to create added excitement for the vividly titled "Gambling on the High Seas" are Wayne Morris, Jane Wyman, Gilbert Roland, William Pawley and Roger Pryor.

Barbara Stanwyck, Fred MacMurray, Beulah Bondi and Elizabeth Patterson will be in Paramount's "Remember the Night," William Henry and Louise Campbell in "Emergency Squad."

LINCOLNIANA RECORDINGS

So that valuable historical and personal data regarding Abraham Lincoln which have been unearthed by author Robert E. Sherwood and the studio research department might be available to schools, societies, biographers and study groups, the RCA-Victor company has completed an album of recordings of RKO-Radio's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

A romantic scene, Lincoln's speech from his law office, the prayer sequence and the entire program of debates with Stephen Douglas have been preserved on wax.

Name News

After many years, D. W. Griffith again has become active in the field of motion picture production. The credits for "1,000,000 B. C.," which Hal Roach will direct, will bear the legend "Produced by D. W. Griffith."

Paramount has returned "Geronimo" to production for added scenes.

"Down to the Sea in Ships," an Elmer Clifton story, has been acquired by Twentieth Century-Fox as a possible future vehicle for Linda Darnell. When made as a silent the story helped Clara Bow climb to screen fame.

Warners have given Brenda Marshall a prinpal role in "The Sea Hawk." Michael Curtiz will direct with Errol Flynn starred.

MGM plans to start "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep" within two weeks with Joan Crawford and Clark Gable featured. The picture, which Frank Borzage will direct, has a $1,000,000 budget.

William C. DeMille, brother of the more famous C. B., has written his picture career reminiscences in a book bearing the title "Hollywood Saga," which will be published next month.

On the strength of his performance in "Balalaika," Walter Woolf King has been signed for a role in MGM's "Broadway Melody of 1940."

Paramount Production

Six new pictures are slated to go into production at Paramount within the next month. In addition to the two pictures which went before the cameras earlier in September, "The Farmer's Daughter" and "Strange Money," the studio will start "Road to Singapore" Saturday with Bing Crosby and Dorothy Lamour featured.

Five pictures are listed to start in October. No cast has been set as yet for "Triumph over Pain," which Henry Hathaway will direct, nor has the personnel for "Opened by Mistake" been selected. Tullio Carminati, Madeleine Carroll and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will be featured in "Safari," which starts on October 2nd. Director Louis King will start "The Way of All Flesh," October 11th, with Akim Tamiroff, and Jack Benny's new comedy, "Buck Benny Rides Again," gets under way a week later.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public.

What a Life

(Paramount)

Teen Age Trouble

For quite some time there has been a "feeling" that Paramount had a "clicker" in "What a Life." The "feeling" is a certainty now, after the preview. It's a high school boy story. The appeal may be summed up tersely. It's simple and human. If your audience has a heart it should, as the prievew crowd did, laugh gleefully and cry without shame as it follows the story of the adventures of "Henry Aldrich," who wasn't a bad boy but was blamed for all the bad things that happened in his school. The production, rich in its blending of exciting comedy and heart-warming pathos, is all-family entertainment.

"Henry" is the goat; "George Bigelow" is the hypocrite. They steal "Henry's" sweetheart, "Barbara," when she changes into a glamour girl from an ugly duckling. "Henry" is blamed for putting a lighted candle under the teacher's chair, for starting a fight. "Henry" finds it hard to get his lessons and that leads to his doing a bad thing, "cribbing" a history exam and lying about it. That makes him the first suspect when the band instruments are stolen. But "Henry" has two good friends, "Mr. Nelson," a teacher, and "Miss Shea," in the office. They get him out of the scrape, meanwhile seeing that the boy who committed the theft, "George," is made to shoulder the blame.

When youngsters see "What a Life," it simply will be a case of repeating their own school experiences, with all the thrills, joys and heartaches. For adults it's a chance to live their own teenage years again.

Jackie Cooper, in a part that carries him back to his performance in "The Champ," is "Henry." Betty Field is his girl. James Corner is the boy who makes "Henry's" life what a life. John Howard and Janice Logan are his kindly friends, Vaughan Glaser is the hard boiled principal, and Kathleen Lockhart the tough teacher. Hedda Hopper is the boy's mother and Lionel Stander the cock-sure detective.

The invisible crew, producer-director Jay Theodore Reed, screen play writers Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder, who adapted the Clifford Goldsmith play and made it glow with sympathetic touches in dialogue, situations and characterizations, share equally with the players in the picture.

Commending word-of-mouth advertising can be expected from those who see the first showings of "What a Life," but in a more direct way exhibitors can capitalize on the name of Cooper and his fellows, the popularity of the play as well as that of the "Aldrich Family" radio program in exploitation.

Previewed at the Village theatre, Hollywood. Seldom have we noted a preview audience so thoroughly enjoy a picture.—Gus McCarthy.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Produced and directed by Jay Theodore Reed. Screen play by Charles Brackett and Billy Wilder. From the play by Clifford Goldsmith. George Hippard assistant director. Hans Dreier and Earl Hedrick film editors. Photographed by Victor Milner. P.C.A. certificate number 5247. Running time, 75 minutes. Release date: Oct. 6, 1939. Dancing Co-ed

(MGM)

Comedy with Music

The prime appeal of "Dancing Co-ed" is to America's youth of both sexes. Partly a collegiate story and partly a dance and music frolic for jitterbugs, this Edgar Selwyn production stars Lana Turner, Richard Carlson and Ann Rutherford. It features band leader Artie Shaw and shows off Roscoe Karns. Leon Errol, Thurston Hall and Walter Kingsford in character roles. It is directed by Sylvan Simon. The screen play by Albert Mannheimer is based on a story by Albert Treynor which appeared in the American Magazine. In the story, picture producer "Workman" plans for a smash film blow-up when a feminine star is unavailable. Press Agent "Drews" stages a contest in all the nation's universities to find a substitute, and plants "Patty" in a freshwater college to be a surefire winner. School loyalty, love from the dynamic campus editor, "Braddock," plus other complications muddle things up, with the result that the final contest, presided over by Artie Shaw, chooses "Eve," "Patty's" student guardian, as the surprise winner of the film contract.

Light, gay and never to be taken seriously, "Dancing Co-ed" is frivolous amusement, the showmanship of which must be directed at youth.

Sky Patrol

(Monogram)

Aviation Melodrama

This third in the series of Tailspin Tommy features starring John Trent is beneficiary of contemporary events focusing public attention on the exportation of munitions from the United States to elsewhere. Dealt with here is the sumggling of guns and ammunition from a point in the southwest, by means of hydroplane, to a ship 20 miles at sea. The smugglers are detected and ultimately disposed of by the hero and other members of the U. S. Army sky patrol, melodramatically and perhaps more realistically than if a million dollars had been spent to embellish the operation.

Milburn Stone, Marjorie Reynolds and Jackie Coogan, the last-named sharing attention with the star, contribute able performances. Joseph West and Norton S. Parker supplied a commonsense screen play based on the Hal Forrest cartoon strip. Howard Bretherton, directing for associate producer Paul Malvern, held a tight rein on proceedings throughout, accomplishing thus a considerable suspense. Special effort is made to interest the youngsters, a final dialogue passage amounting to a definite announcement of the next film in the series.

Babes in Arms

(MGM)

Musical Comedy

"Babes in Arms" is one of the finest pieces of entertainment ever to come from Hollywood. It is musical comedy at its best. A vehicle for the talents of Mickey Rooney, it displays him to his best advantage. A story of comedy and pathos, it expresses them to an exemplary degree. And it is tuneful.

Taken from the Richard Rodgers-Lorenz Hart Broadway hit of the same name, this MGM production tells simply the story of an unsuccessful "comeback" attempt of a group of vaudeville "oldsters" and the success of their youngsters in a musical comedy. Jack McGowan and Kay Van Riper adapted the book to fit the special talents of Rooney, No. 4 money making star of the Herald-Fame 1938-39 poll of exhibitors. Co-starring is Judy Garland, last seen in "The Wizard of Oz," and an able companion. Busby Berkeley, whose name had become synonymous with film musicals, directed this with the same touch that made his Warner spectacles successful. It is further appropriate that Arthur Freed, song writer, should have this as his first production task.

Supporting Rooney and Miss Garland are Charles Winninger, Guy Kibbee, June Preisser, Grace Hayes, Betty Jaynes, Douglas McPhail, Rand Brooks, Leni Lynn, John Sheffield, Henry Hull, Barnett Parker, Ann Shoemaker, Margaret Hamilton, Joseph Crehan, George McKay, Henry Roquemore and Lelah Taylor.

Two of the Rodgers-Hart songs, "Babes in Arms," and "Where or When," are used with Freed, Nacio Herb Brown, Harold Arlen and E. Y. Harburg supplying others.

Previewed at the California theatre, Huntington Park, Cal., this reviewer seldom has seen an audience so enthralled during the unfolding of a picture. Thunder Afloat

(MGM)

Wartime Navy Adventure

Thrilling production effects and lusty comedy are the entertainment and commercial substances of "Thunder Afloat." Timely because of the manner in which its story parallels events presently happening, it teems with that brand of robust adventure sought by patrons who like sensationalism on the screen.

The clash 20 years ago between hastily assembled fleets of sub-chasers and German U-boats which invaded the Atlantic coastal waters is the background for the personal melodrama.

Against that authentic historical panorama is told the story of a robust tug-boat captain, "Jon Thorson," who considered the war a personal brawl because the enemy had sunk his beloved "Susan H," and the private war he waged with rival tug skipper, "Rocky Blake," who had been made his superior officer.

With war excitement to stimulate first interest in "Thunder Afloat," the picture also makes available the name values of Wallace Beery, Chester Morris, Virginia Grey, Douglas Dumbrille, Regis Toomey, and many others. Based on a story by Ralph Wheelwright and Harvey Haislip, both of whom saw service with the sub chasers, the stirring screen play was prepared by Haislip and Wells Root. Producer J. Walter Ruben had the active cooperation of the Navy Department and thus authenticity is assured. George B. Seitz' direction keeps things moving at a rapid clip all the way.

Previewed at the Village Theatre, Westwood, Cal., the audience which had been led to expect a whole lot of spectacular entertainment, was not disappointed.—Gus McCarthy.

Betrayal

(World Pictures)

Romance in Venice

"Betrayal" is a French picture of Russia in the reign of Catherine the Second, and localed for the most part in Venice. It tells the story of the pretender to the throne, "Elizabeth, the Second," and "Count Orloff," favorite of Catherine at the Russian court, who is sent to Venice to get rid of the "upstart" pretender but obviously doesn't. Instead the "Count" and the pretender carry on a romance that eventually leads both to the scaffold.

The film, a rather uninspired treatment of the romance theme, is notable chiefly because of its contrast in production outlay compared to other French films of recent years. A costume piece, it is handsomely mounted and rivals some Hollywood films in that respect. The star of the film is a 15-year-old girl who appears older than her years. Her name is Annie Vernay and it is likely she will be heard from further. Pierre-Richard Willm plays the "Count" and Suzy Prim "Catherine of Russia." Direction was by Fedor Ozep.

Reviewed at the Little Carnegie Playhouse, New York. The audience appeared to enjoy the film although not in stentorian tones.—Paul C. Mooney, Jr.

Kid Nightingale

(Warners)

Farce

Warner's "Kid Nightingale" is as blithe a farce based on the prize fight business as has been made in Hollywood. It tells the story of a lad who fights to sing and vice versa. Tangled up with avaricious promoters who stage "setups" throughout the country because the lad is attractive to women, the lad finally leaves the game after an opera bouffe championship match.

John Payne, personable young singer who succeeded Dick Powell as Warners' popular melodist, and Jane Wyman, young actress whose buildup has been a gradual process, share the top cast positions and are supported by Walter Catlett, Ed Brophy, Charles D. Brown, Max Hoffman, John Ridgely, Harry Burns, William Haade, Helen Troy, Winifred Harris, Lee Phelps and Frankie Van. Charles Belden and Raymond Schrock wrote the screenplay from a Lee Katz story.

It was the first direction by George Amy, former film editor. Mark Hellinger was Bryan Foy's associate producer.

An idea of the farcical content may be had from the hiring by the managers of an orchestra to play "Listen to the Mocking Bird" when "Steve" knocks out his opponents.

Call a Messenger

(Universal)

Comedy Drama

Showmen who announce this as a merger of the Dead End Kids and the Little Tough Guys in behalf of a good time to be had by all will be well within the limitations of ethical exploitation. Billy Halop and Huntz Hall of the first group join with four of the second as junior toughies diverted from a life of crime by a stretch of service in the Postal Union personnel, and they do a nice job of it without overstressing humor, crime, virtue or any of the customary ingredients. The several good names also at hand for billing purposes are listed herewith, all representing good performances.

Produced by Ken Goldsmith and directed by Arthur Lubin from a tight screen play by Arthur T. Horman, based on a plausible story by Sally Sandlin and Michel Kraike, the film is neither tremendous nor trivial, mighty nor meagre, but a sanely, sensibly constructed item of product combining sound story points with able performances, all set against evenly satisfying backgrounds supplied by Universal's unfailingly successful art director, Jack Otterson. It is suitable for any type of audience in any locality.

Life Begins for Andy Panda

(Universal)

Lantz Colored Cartune

A "blessed event" comes to the Panda family and jubilation reigns both in the parents' home and in the surrounding forest neighborhood. The newcomer is a cute trick and with the years continues to blossom forth as a pleasing Panda personality except for one disturbing trait of character. The makeup deficiency centers in the youngster's craving for newsreel notoriety. The urge to be in pictures almost results in a family catastrophe but the fellows of the forest rally to rescue papa Panda. In spite of the near tragedy caused by this juvenile craze for publicity, little Andy still has the urge to be in the public eye but daddy cures his offspring of his dangerous inclination by firmly whaling his baby bottom. The cartoon cutups are brightly highlighted in gay colorations. Dubbed-in human voices finish off the animated business to effect a pleasing and pretty pen point picture. Running time, 8½ minutes.

Filming the Navy
(20th Century-Fox)
Newsreel Cameraman

This is one of the Adventures of a Newsreel Cameraman series and tells in stirring and dramatic fashion the part the Navy plays as the first line of defense of this country. The photography is outstanding. The battle fleet is shown plowing through a high sea, preparing for combat and engaging in a mythical war. In peace time the technical aspects of the film, which are first rate, would be the only consideration in a review of the subject, but with another European war an actuality the film has also an aspect of propaganda, which, whether intended or not, is there. Running time, 10 minutes.

Snuffy's Party
(Universal)
Lantz Cartune in Black and White

Similar in sense to the saying that "no one loves a fat man" is the sad side of the social scene of the skunk. Take for example the animated instance of Snuffy Skunk. He was a good fellow, tried hard to please, but all his efforts to be gracious met with disturbing sniffs from his friends. When the poor animal, who apparently had never heard of the right kind of soap to use, gives a birthday party for himself, all the hungry horde attend. The party manners of the guests would seem to smell as bad as their host does. They lock him out. A dam in the vicinity breaks and the house is threatened with inundation until Snuffy faces it. Then it retreats. The guests, penitent, don gas masks. and felicitate Snuffy on his natal day. All of which may serve as a fable for the youngsters but it's not the best entertainment. Running time, seven minutes.

The Violin
(French Cinema Center)
Violin Study

The French Cinema Center has imported into this country a prize-winning short subject of the Paris Exposition, "The Violin." The subject opens with an off-screen description of the instruments in the string family and the tones produced by each. Then the audience is taken to the workshop where the violins are handmade by master craftsmen. Jacques Thibaud, famed violinist, gives a selection on his Stradivarius. An interesting film for music fans.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Silly Superstition
(Universal)
Lantz Cartune

The thesis of this Lantz laugh effort is to prove that superstitions are silly stuff. Aside from the incredibility of such far fetched beliefs, the cartoon effort in debunking the popular potents of ill luck as the black cat, walking under a ladder and the fateful day of Friday, the Thirteenth, partakes of the silliness of superstitious slogans. Although logic is the last factor to be asked in the composition of cartoons, the business of the miniature effects a boomerang on its avowed purpose and the results of the action would seem to postulate the conclusion that there may be some ounce of reality and reason in holding that ill luck follows the breaking of superstitious canons. Anyway little Blackball ventures forth on a black Friday with the avowed purpose of making faces at misfortune. The laughs and the joke fall on the rash lad and the finis of the argument and the subject may lead the credible cartoon customer to believe that there may be something in this superstition stuff.—Running time, seven minutes.

CAN AVOID WAR, SAYS MANUFACTURER'S HEAD

A statement of the National Association of Manufacturers issued by its president, Howard Coonley, in New York, Tuesday said:

American industry hates war.

War destroys lives. War wrecks homes. Economic chaos and years of crushing depression are its inevitable aftermath. It imperils representative democracy. Free institutions are among its early victims. Ultimately no one can escape the ruin of war.

American industry wants peace. Peace is the life blood of progress. Peace must be the national objective.

Industry's position on this matter has been stated repeatedly and there must be no misunderstanding about it.

The United States can stay out of war.

Emotionalism can betray us into war.

A public will to peace, coupled with wise public policies and affirmative action to this end by our government, will keep us out of war. A fatalistic attitude that war is inevitable for us is absurd. It presupposes that America cannot conduct itself intelligently to preserve peace and its own interests.

Old War Films Being Reissued

With the Second World War re-creating a favorable market for war-theme pictures, the motion picture companies continue to dust off their old prints for re-issue. As reported in MOTION PICTURE HERALD last week, approximately 10 features and shorts were being thus released. This week, there are announcements of more re-issues.

Twentieth Century-Fox is re-issuing "Road to Glory" and "The First World War." The first picture was originally released in 1936, and stars Warner Baxter, Lionel Barrymore and Fredric March. Darryl Zanuck produced it. The second picture is a compilation of clippings from the archives of the belligerents in the last World War. Truman Talley produced it.

World Pictures Corporation is re-issuing "Le Grand Illusion," French-made war film starring Eric Von Stroheim and Jean Gabin. This was released here in 1938.

Paramount is to produce "Army Nurse."

The New York Globe this week was showing "Torpedoed," a Film Alliance release.

N. Bernard Freeman, managing director for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in Australia, has been elected president of the Australian Motion Picture Distributors' Association. Mr. Freeman takes over the position left vacant through the resignation of Sir Victor Wilson, who has been officially retained in the temporary post as consultant to the association.

Murphy to Speak At Coast Banquet

Frank Murphy, United States attorney general, will be the principal speaker at the banquet of the Motion Picture Democratic Committee at Beverly Hills Monday night.

The principal function of the banquet will be to honor the producer of the picture, which in the committee's opinion has contributed the most to the ideals of democracy.

Those expected to attend included Melvyn Douglas, as toastmaster, James Roosevelt, Dashiell Hammett, chairman of the committee sponsoring the award; John Ford, vice chairman; Miriam Hopkins, Frederic March, Franchot Tone, Dudley Nichols, Donald Ogden Stewart, and others of the film colony. The event will be broadcast over the NBC-Blue network.

Theatre Owners Ask Concessions

A resolution was passed this week by the board of directors of the Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina asking distributors doing business with exhibitors in the Carolinas to put into effect trade practices embodying the following points:

Twenty per cent elimination; non-forcing of shorts, trailers, newsreels and accessories; elimination of all score charges; price allocation to be stipulated with notice of availability, and full protection against non-theatrical competition.

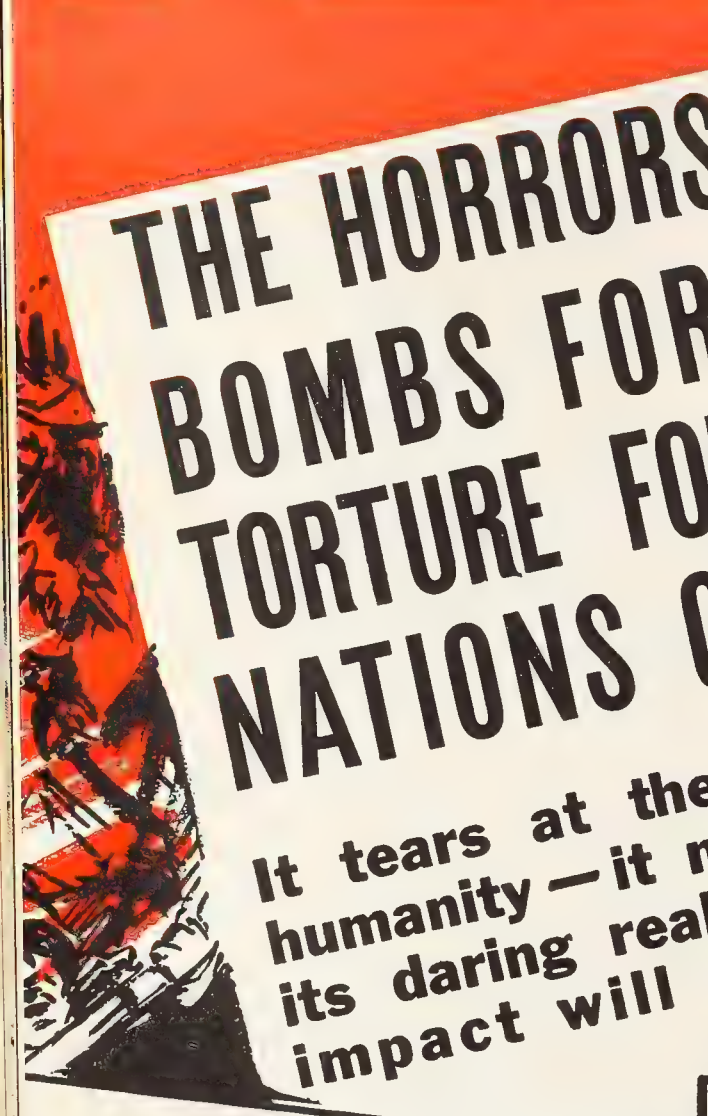
It was stated that many exhibitors in that territory, under the belief that the privileges of certain fair trade practices would be granted, have bought products for the 1939-40 season, and as a consequence are overbought unless these privileges are granted.

Commonwealth Managers Convene Sept. 27th

The Commonwealth theatres of Kansas City will hold their annual "King of the Sun" convention and outing at the Osage Beach Hotel, Lake of the Ozarks, September 27th and 28th. The chief topic of discussion will be the company's 14-week fall and winter campaign which ends January 6th.

Winners of the 1939 summer campaign were Rex Barrett, Columbia, Mo.; D. E. Fitton and Doyle Branscum, Harrison, Ark.; Raymond McKittrick, Harrisonville, Mo.; M. B. Smith, Garden City, Kan., and Lee Miller, Ashland, Kansas City, Mo.

In his annual report to Professor James C. Egbert, director of the university extension division of Columbia University, Dr. Russell Potter, director of the Division of Motion Picture Study, recommended the discontinuance of all brands of "political censorship" of films. Included in the recommendations of the report was the suggestion of the abolition of the New York State Board of Censors. Dr. Potter delivered the opinion that "the division opposes political control of moving pictures on the grounds that it is un-American, inevitably and wholly stupid in its administration and an unfair hidden tax on the producer, the exhibitor and the public."



Columbia Pictures has signed Claude Binyon, writer, to a three-year contract. The writer, with Paramount for the last six years, has been assigned to work with the Wesley Ruggles unit.

SCHINES LIST 39 POINTERS NEEDED TO GET COMMUNITY KNOWLEDGE

Circuit Management Provides Chart for Analysis of District, Ranging from Laws to Forms of Competition

The Schine Circuit is circulating among the managers and assistants of its 150 theatres in New York, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Kentucky, a chart analyzing almost every conceivable point to be considered by an exhibitor or house manager in gaining a knowledge of his community to further strengthen his box office with steady support.

39 Pointers

Thirty-nine different "pointers to community knowledge" are listed by the Schine management for analyzing a community or neighborhood from which a theatre draws its patronage, ranging all the way from laws, regulations and local ordinances with which a manager should have a working knowledge, to the various forms of competition, within and outside of exhibition with which he should also be familiar.

While directed in this instance to the Schine managers, much of the information contained in the chart may be adopted by any exhibitor and adapted to his operation.

The circuit points out that there is much more to this subject than knowing the population of the town in which the theatre is located and approximately how far the potentialities extend into the rural territory.

Selection of Appeal

"Knowledge of a particular community," they say, "determines the selection of the appeal that will be emphasized in selling a particular attraction, the investment necessary in advertising campaigns for adequate coverage most economically achieved, admission prices, starting hours of programs and many other operating details.

"Cooperative advertising activities are used to their fullest extent only when the manager has full knowledge of the community. Agencies for developing goodwill toward the theatre as a local institution demand knowledge of the community. Local holidays and local events which offer opportunities for making attractions and their merchandising more effective, demand complete knowledge of the community," continues the Schine advice to managers.

"Long residence in any situation is not necessarily required," says the management. "In fact, unless some systematic effort is made to build up knowledge of your community as it affects theatre operation, even long residence might not serve the purpose."

The 39 "pointers to community knowledge" which the managers are advised to study and adapt to their operation are as follows:

General

1. Local holidays and occasions—the date, spirit and extent of the celebration—facts which will hamper theatre attendance—facts which can be used to increase theatre attendance.

2. Local ordinances, such as these—

(a) Restricting the distribution of heralds and printed matter on the streets.

(b) Restricting house to house distribution of heralds and printed matter.

(c) Prohibiting automobile windshield stickers.

(d) Restricting the placing of doorknob hangers.

(e) Restricting temporary electric signs.

(f) Governing the employment of minors—age—hours of labor—Board of Education requirements, etc. (recall insurance policy restrictions regarding losses occasioned by the employment of minors involved contrary to law.)

(g) Regulating sidewalk standees.

(h) Governing parking.

(i) Regulating permits for street parades, ballyhoos, etc.

(j) Regarding assignment of police or firemen in their theatres.

(k) Regarding the admission of minors.

(l) Regarding starting hours and closing time of performances.

(m) Building law regulations as to exits, standees, temporary lobby construction, emergency seats in aisles, house alterations, etc.

3. Local personages prominent in the social, political and business activities of the communities.

4. Attendance records as to stars, types of pictures, etc.

Civic Pride

5. Local civic pride and what determines it, such as industrial, commercial, scenic, climatic educational assets.

6. Principal industries and products manufactured.

7. Advertising of local products which in turn advertise the community.

8. Agencies for employment.

9. Labor, skilled and unskilled—type of work—working conditions—pay days—employee organizations, etc.

10. Is the community specialized or diversified in its industries—peak periods—unemployment periods—wage scales.

11. Population by wards and districts—number of families—type of families—average income of families.

12. Tourist visitors—the seasons—what brings them to the community.

13. Centers of population within easy travel distance of the theatre—outlying communities, etc.—newspaper mailing lists—other advertising coverage—R.F.D. for outlying sections.

14. The shopping district—shopping days—special sales—markets.

15. Nationality and racial characteristics.

16. Schools—as to location, type, school organizations—influential personages, Churches—as to location, type, church organizations—influential personages.

17. Libraries—library reports showing type of fiction preferred—magazine circulation and preferences—fan magazine circulation.

18. Musical preferences—sales at music stores—radio numbers most popular—hotel orchestra programs.

Newspapers, Competition

19. Newspapers—coverage—type of readers—reliability and reputation—physical appearance of news columns and advertising columns and feature and special articles—attitude of national advertisers and local advertisers—editorial policy—cooperation—amusement page—composing room services—personnel—cooperative activities—advertising rates.

20. Clubs and societies—purpose—type of membership—character of activities—meeting days—(include Chamber of Commerce, Rotary, commercial, civic, fraternal and social organizations, American Legion, Boy Scouts, camera clubs, dramatic societies, etc.)

21. Outdoor advertising—rates for full and partial showing—boards available seasonally—local shops—sniping—trolley transfer points, etc.

22. Climate—how extremes of temperature affect living and business—possible weather competition—how this competition can be met—seasonal changes.

23. Theatre location—accessible by trolley, automobile, bus line, etc.—transportation schedules—car line transfer points—parking facilities—parking regulations—visibility of theatre front, etc., passersby traffic—nearby sources of possible drop-in trade, such as factories, markets, public institutions, department stores, etc.—night street crowds, etc.

24. Government—date of election—chart showing positions, names, and terms of officials—functions of government that concern the theatres, such as Departments of Health, Police, Fire, Licenses, Employment, Social Welfare, etc.—movements that have strong local following for general welfare rather than for partisan motives—Sunday amusements—censorship, etc.

25. Competition—every possible form of competition which might affect theatre attendance, such as dance halls, beaches, amusement parks, athletic contests, circus excursions, club meetings, legitimate theatres, etc. In each case, consider dates, type of advance advertising, class of patronage attracted, possibilities of typing in theatre campaign, possibilities of counteracting competitive attention.

26. Opposition theatres—history of competitive house—why it is losing patronage—why it is gaining patronage—details of operation, such as admission price, maintenance, service, sound, ventilation, program starting hours, advertising mediums, product used, protection, type of patronage, patrons' attitude toward the theatre. Are motion pictures shown in schools, clubs, churches, department stores, hotels?

QUACK! QUACK! IS DISNEY JEALOUS!

The flighty and usually harassed figure of Walt Disney's Donald Duck took on a pontifical air recently as, chest proudly swelling, he was awarded the degree of Doctor of International Friendship at the New York World's Fair by Dr. Frank Monaghan, professor of American History at Yale University and the Fair's director of research.

The only member of his family, the proud Antinae, to reach fame through celluloid rather than by the succulence of his more edible parts, Donald was taken through the General Motors Futurama, introduced to a genuine actress, Judy Canova of the Broadway play "Yokel Boy," and to Professor Chang Shan Tse, one of China's greatest living painters.

Bearing his honors lightly, the mallard telephoned Hollywood to tell the folks at home; only to be reproved by Goofy, who superciliously said that only Walt was allowed to receive degrees.

This was too much for the Doctor.

"Jealous," said he, "just jealous."

Michalove Sails on Australian Mission

Dan Michalove, assistant to Sidney R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, sailed a week ago from Los Angeles for Australia. Mr. Michalove, who made a survey of Hoyts theatres in Australia last year, will represent National Theatres in the consolidation of Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres.

The deal, which will combine about 180 theatres, is to run for 20 years. It is subject to ratification by the boards of directors of the respective companies. Charles E. Munro, managing director of Hoyts, who participated in the negotiations in this country, also sailed for Australia.

Seek Chicago Outlet

The problem of finding another Chicago Loop theatre in which to show Universal product is imminent due to the fact that RKO has enough films scheduled for 24 weeks of playing time at the RKO Palace, which formerly played both Universal and RKO films for first run. The situation may possibly result in the Jones, Linick and Schaeffer Oriental theatre obtaining first run films.

New MGM Cartoon Unit

Fred Quimby of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer short subjects department has installed a new cartoon unit at the studio. William Hanna, director, and Joe Barbera, cartoonist, are in charge of the unit, under Mr. Quimby's supervision. They will produce musical cartoons only.

B. & K. Tournament

The Balaban & Katz Employees Club staged its annual golf tournament at the Bunker Hill Country Club, Chicago, a week ago. More than 85 participated.

Film Lectures at Northwestern

Northwestern University, Chicago, is adding a 24-week motion picture lecture series to its college course this Fall.

Garrison Films, Inc., is releasing a musical short subject produced by Motion Picture Gould, Inc., titled "A Musical Message from Hollywood."

World Pictures Corporation will release "The City," produced for the New York World's Fair from a Pare Lorentz outline by American Documentary Films, Inc., and Civic Films.

Bill Cody, Jr., has been signed by William G. Smith of Jewel Productions Company to appear in a series of youth adventure stories.

Nathan Straus Heads "Night of Stars"

Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, will head the sixth annual "Night of Stars," the theatrical benefit for the settlement of Jewish Refugees in Palestine, which will be held November 15th at Madison Square Garden in New York City by arrangement with the United Jewish Appeal. Mr. Straus succeeds the late Harold Jacobi, who occupied the chairmanship for three years prior to his death last winter. Mr. Straus originated it and held the chairmanship of the "Night of Stars" for its first two editions.

Honorary chairmen of the producing committee are Barney Balaban, David Bernstein, Nate J. Blumberg, Jack Cohn, George J. Schaefer, Joseph M. Schenck, Murray Silverstone and Albert Warner. Louis K. Sidney is chairman of the committee and Marvin H. Schenck and Ben A. Boyer, associate chairmen.

Close to $500,000 was raised at the past five performances, over 100,000 attending.

"Time" Elects Larson

Roy E. Larsen has been elected president of Time, Inc., by the company's board of directors. Henry Luce continues as chairman of the board and senior editor of all Time, Inc., publications, including, in addition to "Time," "Life," "Fortune" and "The Architectural Forum."

Paramount Starts Construction

Signalizing the beginning of activity on Paramount's new $12,000,000 studio project in West Los Angeles, the company has announced that William Pereira has been hired as chief architect of the new plant. Mr. Pereira was also architect of the Esquire Theatre in Chicago, among other buildings.

Form New Corporation

Bi-Pal Theatres, Inc., has been formed at Albany, New York, with a capital stock of $10,000 in $100 shares. Charles Steiner, Benjamin Sherman, and Harry Fliashak are directors.

Leon Schlesinger has promoted Robert McKinson to chief animator of his cartoons. He will supervise all animation work on "Merry Melodies" and "Looney Tunes."

The Providence Bureau of Fire and Police has approved the picture, "The Women," but banned the stage play.

Troy Orr, in charge of trailers and advertising at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio has left the studio and has been succeeded by George Weiss.

Lawrence Fox, Jr., president of General Films, has purchased motion picture rights to the "Babar the Elephant" books by Jean de Brunhoff, and plans making the pictures at an eastern studio about October 1st.

Warner Brothers plan to reopen on Friday the Tremont, Ansonia, Conn., the only Warner house in Connecticut darkened during the summer.

"Imitation of Life," a Universal picture, set a house record at the Savoy theatre, Wilmington, Del., last week; that being the ninth time the film had played the theatre.

Al Adams Resigns From Republic

Al Adams, director of advertising and publicity for Republic for four years, has left the company. Mr. Adams began his film career in the advertising department of Paramount-Publix where he was press sheet editor and in charge of advertising layout and copy. He was assistant advertising manager for Paramount-Publix for a year and then joined the advertising and exploitation department of United Artists. After three years there he went to Republic.

New Buying Pool Seen In Indiana Cooperative

A new cooperative in Indiana, the Indianapolis Co-Operative Theatres, Inc., has taken shape, under the direction of Harry Markun, Oscar Kuschner, and Irving Tamler.

While it is reported that the association's prime purpose is to act as a buying agent, its platform declared its purposes to be, also, the reform of abuses, the prosecution of evil-doers, the adjustment of controversies, and the promotion of amity between distributor and exhibitor.

AMPA Starts Its New Season September 28th

With its first meeting of the new season designated "Past Presidents' Day," the Associated Motion Picture Advertisers, of New York, have set the date as September 28th.

Past presidents are invited, and will be asked for suggestions on association operations—and, especially, how to make it a "service to the industry." Expected to attend will be men like Howard Dietz, Hal Horne, Ralph Rolan, William Ferguson, Charles E. McCarthy, and Gordon White.

Following Sacramento he will visit San Francisco, Seattle, Portland, Denver, Kansas City, Winnipeg, Minneapolis, Chicago, Cleveland, Flint, Toronto, Rochester, N. Y.; Charlotte, Asheville, Washington, Boston, Providence, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New Brunswick, N. J.; Harrisburg, Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Akron and Milwaukee.

New Shipping Amendment

A new amendment to existing shipping regulations, which includes the shipment of all motion pictures and equipment to foreign markets, and which will take effect after October 1st provides that all shippers' Export Declarations shall be filed in advance of clearance.

Elite Productions, Inc., with headquarters at 1560 Broadway, New York, has been formed by Ludwig Landy, and will produce three films for the coming season, at the Film Art Studios in the Bronx.

One of the films will be Yiddish, another Negro, and the third a documentary on labor conditions in America. The first is "The Vilner Cantor."

National Broadcasting Company Changes Rates

Marking the first general rate revision since 1938, new rate cards have been issued by the National Broadcasting Company.

They institute a rate increase in 16 per cent of the network's stations, a decrease in 10 per cent, and make no change in the rates of the remaining 74 per cent of the stations. Listed on the cards are 174 stations.

On the "Red network," the discounts on the hours from 8 to 10 P. M. have been reduced from 7½ to 2½ per cent.

Changes are effective October 1st.

Predicts Passage of Ticket Broker Bill

It was predicted this week by Howard Spellman, New York City councilman, that his bill to limit legitimate theatre ticket advances to brokers, to 75 cents, will be passed by the Council.

The bill reads, in part, that a theatre owner or manager may print upon a ticket "the maximum premium, which in no event shall exceed 75 cents, at which the same may be resold by any ticket broker or other person."

Mr. Spellman was an assistant producer under B. P. Schulberg, at Paramount, in 1932.

Court Cuts Award In "Lynton" Suit

An award of $16,470 to Edward Sheldon and Margaret Ayer Barnes against the Moredall Realty Corporation for exhibiting the film, "Letty Lynton," at the Capitol theatre in New York was reduced to $3,-099 this week by Vincent L. Leibell, federal judge. Special Master Kenneth E. Walser had recently granted the award after a court ruling that "Letty Lynton" plagiarized the play "Dishonored Lady."

Judge Leibell, in his opinion, characterized Moredall Realty as an innocent infringer and reduced the award as a result of a previous decision of the United States circuit court in a suit against Loew's, Inc., and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Pictures Corporation which fixed damages at one-fifth of the net income of the picture.

Attorneys for authors Sheldon and Barnes were allowed $1,500 counsel fees and the Special Master $1,000 by the decision.

Court Grants Plea To Examine Zanuck

Thomas F. Noonan, New York supreme court justice, this week granted to Robert E. Sherwood and the Playwrights Producing Company the right to examine Darryl F. Zanuck before trial, in Los Angeles, but made it a condition that Mr. Sherwood pay $150 a day to Julian Abeles, attorney for Mr. Zanuck, for his legal services, $25 per day living expenses and $300 transportation expenses.

The order requires Mr. Zanuck to produce the records of the film "Young Mr. Lincoln" at the examination. Twentieth Century-Fox is defendant in a suit which charges it with trading upon the popularity of the Sherwood play "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

Assessment Reduced

Peter Schmuck, New York supreme court justice, this week approved the settlement of a proceeding brought by Milton C. Weisman and Kenneth P. Stenreich as trustee of the Fox Theatres Corporation against the City of New York to reduce assessments upon properties of the Broadway & 165th Street Corporation, a Fox subsidiary. Under terms of the settlement, the City agrees to lower assessments $10,000 for the years 1936 and 1937 upon discontinuance of the proceeding.

Milford Injunction Granted

The superior court, Milford, Conn., has granted an injunction against the Milford Drive-in-Theatre, in the case instituted by 12 residents who complained against the noise.

Italian Film Theatre

The Cinecitta theatre, New York, formerly the Squire theatre, opened Thursday as a first run outlet for Italian films released in this country by Esperia Distributing Company. The first release is "Scipio Africanus."

J. Hoffman, New Haven; Don Jacocks, Newark; Moe Silver, Albany; Ted Schlanger, Philadelphia; Harry Kalmine, Pittsbugh; John Payette, Washington and Herb Copelan, Atlantic City. Among home office executives attending were Clayton Bond, Ed Hinchy, Leonard Schlesinger, Harry Goldberg, Williard C. Patterson, Frank Phelps, Nat Fellman, Abel Vigard, W. Stewart McDonald, Harry Rosenquest, Louis Kaufman, Herman Maier and Frank Cahill.

OBITUARIES

Ethel Dell Dies; British Novelist

Ethel M. Dell, British novelist, 2,750,000 copies of whose novels were said to have been sold in the United States alone, died September 17th at Hertford, England. Some 15 of her works were rated, at one time or another as best sellers, and in the early 20's, she was reported to have one of the largest, if not the largest circle of readers in the world.

A British motion picture organization was once reported to have paid her $100,000 a year for the screen rights to all her writings.

Walter E. Wood Dead

Walter E. Wood, traffic superintendent of RCA Communications, Inc., died September 14th at his home in Dumont, N. J., after an illness of nine months. He was 53 years old.

Lawrence O. Lind

Lawrence O. Lind, father of Lloyd, assistant to George Weeks, Monogram vice-president in charge of sales, died September 17th at his home in New York. Funeral services were held Wednesday at the Fairchild Chapel, Garden City, Long Island.

Georges Pitoeff

Georges Pitoeff, 55, actor and theatrical producer noted for his interpretations of Ibsen's plays on the French stage, died at his home in Geneva, Switzerland, September 18th of a heart attack. He was a native of Russia.

New Cummins Concern Announced on Coast

Samuel Cummins, state-right operator, has formed a new cooperative distributing-producing company "somewhat along the lines of United Artists," said an announcement in Hollywood this week, which added that it "is a closed concern with no stock sales." Headquarters will be in New York and a name is to be chosen after a meeting later this month, the publicity release said.

Mr. Cummins is the distributor of the film "Ecstasy" and co-producer of "The Love Life of a Gorilla." Other pictures which Mr. Cummins has handled include "Sex Madness" and "Children of Loneliness."

At Selznick Studio

Sol Lesser has signed a contract with Selznick International Studios whereby he will house his company and shoot all his United Artists releases at the Selznick Culver City studio. The first of his productions for United Artists will be "Our Town," from the Pulitzer Prize play by Thornton Wilder. It is scheduled to go before the cameras late this year.

Max J. Felder and Sig Wittman this week purchased the stock of Triad Theatres, Inc., operating the Vogue, Metro and Congress in the Bronx, New York. The corporation formerly was headed by Ed Peskay. The Metro and Congress are being renovated and will reopen October 1st. The Vogue is operating.

The Light That Failed

(Paramount)

Tragic Romance

Millions have agreed that "The Light That Failed" is one of Rudyard Kipling's best stories. In it the author created an unforgettable character, an English war correspondent-artist who went blind while painting his masterpiece. The story touches on many subjects. All have dramatic worth. The main theme, however, is a sympathetic love story, backed by stirring action sequences resolute British soldiery comes face to face with fanatic Fuzzy-wuzzies in the Sudan.

The hero's eyesight, impaired in childhood, is incurably damaged in a native assault. Back in London, he resumes his artistic career, but then his childhood sweetheart proves no longer close or dear. Resigning himself to fate, he chooses a bedraggled street girl to be the model for his masterpiece. As blindness creeps on him, the girl rebels at his iron discipline, and when the great picture is completed, she destroys it. He returns to the Sudan to keep a date with death before a Fuzzy-wuzzie onslaught.

There will be hundreds in the picture, but the principal names are Ronald Colman, Walter Huston, Muriel Angelus, a Golden Circle member, Ida Lupino, Dudley Digges, Ernest Cossart and Colin Tapley. William Wellman, maker of "Beau Geste," is the director.

Release date: Feb. 9, 1940 (tentative).

The Roaring Twenties

(Warner)

Melodrama

Those things which happened during the prohibition era up to late 1929, and which now seem almost incredible, will be the thematic background of "The Roaring Twenties." The picture will tell the story of three men, all ex-soldiers, and a girl. One becomes the king of bootleggers and soars to prosperity and power, only to have the forces which elevated him smash him into oblivion and death. Another becomes the first of the racketeering gangsters. The third becomes a lawyer and enters the district attorney's office. The girl is a nonenity, who becomes a spectacular figure in the glittering world of entertainment. All the phases that made the 1920-1929 decade really roar will be dealt with.

The story used was written by Mark Hellinger, who during the period was an eye witness of all from the vantage point of his reportorial desk. The screen play is credited to Jerry Wald, Richard Macaulay and Robert Rossen. Raoul Walsh, who has a record of more than a hundred pictures, including "What Price Glory," "The Cockeyed World," "Me, Gangster," "The Bowery," as well as the recent "St. Louis Blues," is the director.

The cast will feature James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Jeffrey Lynn, Priscilla Lane and Gladys George. It will also present in feature roles Frank McHugh, Paul Kelly, Joe Sawyer, Elizabeth Risdon, Joseph Crehan, Robert Elliott and George Meeker.

Release date: To be determined.

Dr. Cyclops

(Paramount)

Weird Adventure

While "Four Feathers," on which he served as associate producer, is Ernest B. Schoedsack's latest credit, one needs to go back to "King Kong," "Son of Kong" and "Most Dangerous Game" for anything similar, as entertainment, to "Dr. Cyclops," which he now is directing. As "King Kong" was a phenomenon of technical achievement and astounding melodrama, so will be this picture, which is being produced in color.

The locale is the Peruvian jungles. There, at the behest of a deranged scientist who is going blind, comes a party of Americans, two men and a girl. One strange adventure follows another until the new arrivals discover they are standing atop a radium mine, a secret which the scientist has closely guarded. Promising to show them some of his experiments, he traps the group and reduces them to one-fifth normal size. Thereupon begin the little people's adventures. Two are killed before the survivors, first secreting themselves in the maniac's specimen case, are able to kill him. As they fight their way back to civilization they regrow to natural stature.

Albert Dekker, noted stage actor, will be seen in the title role. Janice Logan, Tom Coley and Charles Halton are the Americans, and Victor Kilian and Frank Yaconelli will be seen as Peruvians.

Release date: Dec. 22, 1939.

We Are Not Alone

(Warner)

Personal Melodrama

Paul Muni will be seen in another of those character portrayals which he interprets so ably. In the picturization of the novel by James Hilton, who collaborated on the "Camille" and "Career Man" screen plays, Muni will be seen as a kindly English country doctor who was too busy healing the sick to notice that war clouds were darkening the summer skies of 1914. Though innocent of any wrongdoing, he became the central figure in a scandal inspired by his shrewishly jealous wife. When she was found to have died of poisoning, circumstantial evidence forced his arrest, together with that of an innocent alien-enemy girl whom he had befriended, and both died on the scaffold.

The powerful story will present Muni, star of "Louis Pasteur" and "Emile Zola," in the type of character which won for him great fame. While there are a great many in the cast, the principal feature group is limited. The main supporting players are Jane Bryan, who was outstanding in "The Old Maid," Flora Robson, one of England's foremost character actresses, and 7-year-old Raymond Severn.

The picture is being directed by Edmond Goulding, who is long experienced in the handling of sympathetic emotion stirring material, as such pictures as "The Old Maid," "Dark Victory," "The Flame Within" and "Riptide" attest.

Release date: To be determined.

Four Wives

(Warner)

Family Story

Although "Daughters Courageous" intervened, "Four Wives" will be the direct sequel to "Four Daughters." Claude Rains, Priscilla Lane, Rosemary Lane, Lola Lane, Gale Page, Jeffry Lynn, May Robson, Frank McHugh and Dick Foran will be seen in this. John Garfield, who was the sensation of "Four Daughters," will be missing. His ghost will be seen only briefly and then as a vision, yet he may be considered the hero of the story. Additions to the cast are Eddie Albert of "Brother Rat" fame, who soon will be seen in "On Your Toes," Henry O'Neill, Vera Lewis and John Qualen.

Further continuing the "Four Daughters" tradition, Julius Epstein and Phillip Epstein, who did the screen plays for the preceding pictures, collaborated on the screen treatment of "Four Wives," which is based on a story by Maurice Hanline. Michael Curtiz, who directed the first two family episodes, is again at the helm.

Joy reigns in the household for two reasons: star boarder Felix is returning and one daughter is going to have a baby. Tragedy strikes quickly when it is learned that she never can have a child, while "Ann" (Garfield's widow), now engaged to "Felix," is to have a posthumous child. Haunted by the memory of her late husband, she elopes with "Felix." When the child is born, there is unhappiness and a separation, but when "Felix" returns to give his blood in a life-saving transfusion he happily can contend that the child has his blood in her veins.

Release date: To be determined.

The Cat and the Canary

(Paramount)

Comedy Melodrama

Along about December 1st, theatre goers probably are going to be in the mood for a lot of rib tickling comedy salted and peppered with a lot of spine chilling mystery, and exhibitors will be combing the market for just such attractions. "The Cat and the Canary," which will be available about that time, promises to be the kind of feature described.

It is not a brand new property. It was a successful stage show and popular picture 12 or 14 years ago.

The story may be summed up briefly.

The midnight reading of a will in a dilapidated mansion starts a night of weird goings on and eerie happenings in secret passages, a round of hidden treasure hunts and a series of madly baffling killings. Melodrama and comedy are counterbalanced in the detailing and then there is a love interest contrast.

Using the John Willard stage play, Walter DeLeon and Lynn Starling did the modernized screen adaptation. Both are skillful in their specialties, DeLeon having written many comedy screen stories, whereas Starling's record includes several mystery melodramas. Likewise, Elliot Nugent, director, has had much experience with both types of material.

value of thematic content and production detail,

For names to supplement the exploitation exhibitors will have Bob Hope, Paulette Goddard, now in "The Women," John Beal, Douglas Montgomery and Gale Sondergaard as primary values, and supplement them with Nydia Westman, George Zucco, Willard Robertson and Elizabeth Patterson.

Release date: Dec. 1, 1939.

Sued for Libel

(RKO-Radio)

Mystery Melodrama

The efforts of a radio broadcaster, a newspaper girl and a reporter to solve a triple murder and avert a libel suit, both situations having their root in a practical joke that backfired, is the story of "Sued for Libel." A false news tip brings on the libel suit and the trio's determination to escape its consequences sets it in frantic action to solve a murder mystery. Their activities precipitate two additional killings. Of course a romance is developed. Some clever detective work, involving the playing off of husband-wife jealousy, permits the trio to make the disclosures which name the real killer and force cancellation of the suit.

For primary name values the picture will offer Kent Taylor; newcomer Linda Hayes, who had been seen in "Conspiracy," "The Girl from Mexico" and "The Spellbinder"; Richard Lane and Morgan Conway. The supporting cast lists Keye Luke, Lillian Bond, now in "The Housekeeper's Daughter," Emory Parnell, Roger Pryor, Thurston Hall, featured in the "The Day the Bookies Wept," and Roy Gordon.

A Cliff Reid production, "Sued for Libel" is based on a story by Wolfe Kaufman for which Jerry Cady did the screen play. It is being directed by Leslie Goodwins, whose latest picture is "The Day the Bookies Wept."

Release date: To be determined.

Untamed

(Paramount)

North Woods Romance

The principals in "Untamed," which will be in color, are Ray Milland, Paramount's rapidly rising young star, Patricia Morison and Akim Tamiroff. William Frawley, Eily Malyon, J. M. Kerrigan, Esther Dane, Jane Darwell, Darryl Hickman and J. Farrell MacDonald will be the chief supporting players.

The story of the picture is from Sinclair Lewis' novel "Mantrap," and has been prepared for the screen by Frederick Hazlitt Brennan and Frank Butler. George Archainbaud is the director.

It's about a big city society doctor who, to overcome a passion for drinking, goes out into the wilderness to find love with another man's wife, and adventure. While the doctor and wife have a respectful admiration for each other, back fence gossip hints otherwise. The husband finds out about it while his wife and the doctor are battling a blizzard to bring medicine. He discovers that everything is honorable, but in the excitement the trio forget the medicine. The backwoods husband delivers the medicine, but is frozen to death. A year later, there's nothing to stop the doctor-widow romance.

Release date: Dec. 29, 1939.

Clarence Robson Ill

The transfer of R. S. Roddick to Halifax, N. S., where he will supervise theatres in the Maritime Province for Famous Players Canadian Corporation, will not mean the retirement of Clarence Robson, former supervisor. The reason for the transfer is the illness of Mr. Robson, who is expected to resume his duties after he recovers.

Announce Equipment Deal

H. B. Allinsmith, general manager of the Western Electric Company of Cuba, has announced the sale of a half dozen complete sound and projection equipments to Teatros Modernos, a circuit which in November will open six new theatres in and about San Juan, Puerto Rico. Western Electric of Cuba maintains in San Juan a large merchandise stock together with permanent personnel.

Signs for RCA Service

A service contract covering the sound reproducing equipment in the 24 theatres of the Alpine Theatre Circuit, Inc., has been awarded to RCA Photophone, according to W. L. Jones, RCA service manager. Most of the houses are in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD

Columbia

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Lew Ayres, Doris Dolan, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon—This is an excellent picture and the second in our series of boosting Lew Ayres. We played this three days and had a full house the first two nights and a good sized house the third night. Business dropped due to carnival. Lew, Cary and Katharine go over big here. Played July 27-29.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

IN EARLY ARIZONA: Bill Elliott, Dorothy Gulliver—Just another cowboy show. Does Hollywood pay for cowboy's stories? No wonder my patrons wear out the cushions in the rest rooms. Played August 18-19.—Roy S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ONLY ANGELS HAVE WINGS: Cary Grant, Jean Arthur, Richard Barthelmess, Thomas Mitchell—Good picture to only average business. Good for "A" playing time. Played September 1-2.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kansas. General patronage.

OUTPOST OF THE MOUNTIES: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—The first Starrett on new series and it certainly is good. The plot, the photography and the music by the Sons of the Pioneers is all that could be asked for from any out-of-door picture. Tops. Running time, 63 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WEST OF SANTE FE: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—These Charles Starrett's please a few and not like they used to. Why have the singing in them? Leave out the music and let's have some action! Played August 4-5.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

YOU CAN'T TAKE IT WITH YOU: Lionel Barrymore, Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Edward Arnold, Spring Byington, Mischa Auer, Ann Miller—Excellent. Did a little extra business. It's screwy and my patrons liked it. Lionel Barrymore excellent. Played August 6-7.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

First National

BLACKWELL'S ISLAND: John Garfield, Rosemary Lane, Dick Purcell—Very good action, gangster type story. My patrons like this stuff. Played August 4-5.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

DARK VICTORY: Bette Davis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Geraldine Fitzgerald—What a show, and can Bette Davis act. Business good. Had more people tell me how much they enjoyed this than any show all summer. Don't pass this one up.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

KID FROM KOKOMO, THE: Wayne Morris, Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell, May Robson—Played on bargain nights to good business and satisfied customers. Good story, wholesome comedy, good support and in fact May Robson steals the show. Played September 6-7.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kansas. General patronage.

YES, MY DARLING DAUGHTER: Priscilla Lane, Jeffrey Lynn, Fay Bainter, Roland Young, May Robson—A good show and it pleased. The print was in very poor shape and had some kicks on the jumpy scenes. Played August 30-31.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ANDY HARDY GETS SPRING FEVER: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford—Best of the Hardy series. Good for better days of the week. Played August 24-25.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kansas. General patronage.

CALLING DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Lana Turner, Lynne Carver—We played this and it beat its predecessor by $50. Boy, are these "Kildare" pictures good. Lew is definitely established here. Do they like him! They are anxiously awaiting "Remember." Next we are going to build up Ray Milland. Played August 27-29.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

GOODBYE, MR. CHIPS: Robert Donat, Greer Garson—This picture was made in England, and while it contains some very fine acting, it is definitely not a small town picture. Just made film rental on it. Running time, 114 minutes. Played July 6-7.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

LADY OF THE TROPICS: Robert Taylor, Hedy Lamarr—Your foyers and rest rooms will resemble battleship smoke screens when this is unreeling on your screen. Poor Bob Taylor! Business way off. Running time, 92 minutes. Played August 30-31.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

LADY OF THE TROPICS: Robert Taylor, Hedy Lamarr—Gorgeous Hedy and handsome Robert in a rather weak production, and while business was above average Metro will have to put this pair in a stronger story or, better still, how's about Hedy in a sarong and Taylor in a "G" string. Boy, oh, boy, would the boys and gals go for that. Played August 20-21.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kansas. General patronage.

MAISIE: Ann Sothern, Robert Young—Ann Sothern came through in a spicy little comedy with a catchy title that did very well at the box office and satisfied the customers. Metro has a chance to make a star out of this young lady as she proves that she has talent, if properly cast. Put it in your better days of the week. Played September 8-9.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kansas. General patronage.

MAISIE: Robert Young,, Ann Sothern, Cliff Edwards—A very enjoyable film. Lots of romance and comedy and only one disappointing fact. We still remember Cliff Edwards as "Ukulele Ike." It's been a long time since we have heard him play his "uke." How about it, Metro? Can't you squeeze in a tune now and then? Running time, 74 minutes. Played September 3-5.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

MIRACLES FOR SALE: Robert Young, Florence Rice—Entertaining all the way. Good novelty, good action, good comedy. Stand alone in smaller shorts, and good second half for the big shorts. Running time, 65 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY (reissue): Charles Laughton, Clark Gable, Franchot Tone—Done a little better than average and it's good. Print in very good shape. Play it again. Played September 8-9.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ON BORROWED TIME: Lionel Barrymore, Bobs Watson, Beulah Bondi, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Una Merkel—An excellent picture that will take a lot of work to put over and then the draw may be disappointing. Such pictures are too heavy for our small town and although this is a masterpiece in every respect, the audience reaction to such a picture is not good. Running time, 99 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

ROSE MARIE (reissue): Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—Played this second run and it did not do as well as we expected. However, a great picture.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SWEETHEARTS: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—A nice show but I had plenty kicks and walkouts. Business poor. The farmers don't go for this stuff. Played September 6-7.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TARZAN FINDS A SON: Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan—Business above average, but not compared to last Metro Tarzan. Too long between pictures and the one released in between was probably the reason. Well received and up to standard of all Metro Tarzans. Played September 10-11.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

THESE GLAMOUR GIRLS: Lew Ayres, Lana Turner, Anita Louise, Jane Bryan, Mary Beth Hughes, Ann Rutherford—We played this three nights and all seats were filled all three nights! I knew we couldn't go wrong on Lew and, boy, is he good in this! We gave the ladies a picture of Lew and the men a picture of Lana. Boy, am I glad we played this.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

WIZARD OF OZ: Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr, Billie Burke, Margaret Hamilton—A masterpiece! The most beautiful fantasy I have ever seen on the screen. This stands out better than the fairy scenes of "Midsummer Night's Dream" because of the gorgeous color. I personally would have preferred the "Tick Tock Man of Oz" plot to this one, but my hat is off to Mervyn LeRoy for this great accomplishment. You still have to work hard to sell this one, so don't book it in and try to coast on all the national advertising. Business was good. Running time, 101 minutes. Played August 16-18.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

WIZARD OF OZ: Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr, Billie Burke, Margaret Hamilton—Listen, boys, here's one of the greatest pictures to ever grace your screen. Don't listen to what some people say about being a kid's picture. This is one of the biggest kids-adults picture you have ever played. Class and entertainment all the way. Big enough for any spot and extended runs. Step on it and send your complaints to McPhee. He'll be waiting. Running time, 101 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

WIZARD OF OZ: Judy Garland, Frank Morgan, Ray Bolger, Jack Haley, Bert Lahr, Billie Burke, Margaret Hamilton—Entertaining production, beautiful color, unlimited publicity tieups, well cast, good for best days of week and extended run. Played September 10-11.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

WOMEN, THE: Norma Shearer, Joan Crawford, Rosalind Russell, Paulette Goddard, Joan Fontaine, Mary Boland, Phyllis Povah—This is a wonderful picture for the box office. We had to hang the S.R.O. sign out the first night. Miss Shearer and Miss Goddard were never better, but Rosalind Russell steals the show. Joan is great, too. By all means play it. Played September 4-6.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

YOUNG DR. KILDARE: Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Lynne Carver—The fans demanded that this be brought back and we brought it back. Lew and Lionel make a grand team and played to packed houses. The swimming pool sequences were unusually good. Played August 15-17.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

Paramount

BEAU GESTE: Cary Cooper, Ray Milland, Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, Susan Hayward, James

Stephenson, Heather Thatcher, Donald O'Connor, Ann Gillis, J. Carrol Naish—This is one grand flop at the box office here. Gary Cooper was never more miscast as the 20-year-old English "Beau Geste." He never once lets you forget he is from Montana. Cooper is not handsome or even good looking and hardly any of our audience who had read the book could feature Gary as "Beau." Gary's through. However, Ray Milland and Bob Preston were excellent. Brian Donlevy does a fine piece of acting. Susan Hayward is not worthy of her role. Heather Angel would have been much better, and where was Claudia? The changing of names and facts of a book always goes far towards ruining a picture. The Fort Zinderneuf sequences were well done. Played September 1-3.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

GRAND JURY'S SECRETS: John Howard, Gail Patrick—Played with "Sudden Money." Just got by as double bill. Very ordinary, very little entertainment. Pleased very few.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

HERITAGE OF THE DESERT: Evelyn Venable, Donald Woods—A Zane Grey western that held the interest. Better than average. Played August 11-12.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

INVITATION TO HAPPINESS: Fred MacMurray, Irene Dunne—Expected a nice picture from this one but was very much disappointed. This is not the kind of picture for Fred. Am afraid your patrons will find this picture slow and tiresome. The last twenty minutes are good. Running time, 95 minutes. Played September 6-7.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

ISLAND OF LOST MEN: Anna May Wong, Anthony Quinn—Played with "News Is Made at Night." A double bill that pleased all the way. Take your bread and butter pictures, boys, and double them. Give a little more for the money and make some for yourself.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

LAST TRAIN FROM MADRID, THE: Lew Ayres, Dorothy Lamour, Olympe Bradna, Karen Morley, Robert Cummings, Helen Mack, Gilbert Roland, Anthony Quinn, Lionel Atwill—This is one of the best pictures that I personally have ever seen. Just look at that cast. We had special large ads run in the newspapers calling the attention of the citizens to the pictures these stars have been in that have played this theatre. They all know Lew, Olympe, Dorothy, Bob Cummings, who went over big, Gilbert Roland (many remembered "Juarez"), Anthony Quinn in "Island of Lost Men," a great hit here, and Atwill, who was enjoyed in "Son of Frankenstein." We have never regretted running Lew's pictures. Played August 12-14.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

MAN ABOUT TOWN: Jack Benny, Dorothy Lamour, Edward Arnold, Binnie Barnes, Rochester—Rochester made this the most entertaining picture Jack Benny has turned out, but picture failed to draw average business. It is hard to understand how Benny can be so popular on the air and fail so miserably at the box office. Played August 13-14.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

OUR LEADING CITIZEN: Bob Burns, Susan Hayward—Good picture; good business. Pleased all. Running time, 90 minutes—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

SUDDEN MONEY: Charlie Ruggles, Marjorie Rambeau, Billy Lee—Played with "Grand Jury's Secrets." Just got by as double bill. Very ordinary very little entertainment. Pleased very few.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

UNDERCOVER DOCTOR: Lloyd Nolan, J. C. Naish, Heather Angel—Nice little programmer. Pleased generally. Running time, 66 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

UNION PACIFIC: Barbara Stanwyck, Joel McCrea, Robert Preston, Brian Donlevy, Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman—A very good show and pleased 100 per cent. A little too long and it didn't do the business of "Dodge City." Played August 27-28.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Republic

BILLY THE KID RETURNS: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart—Used with "Inside Story." Just another horse opera. Why don't somebody make a western a little different? Played August 25-26.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

IN OLD CALIENTE: Roy Rogers, Mary Hart, George Hayes—Good picture and good business. Running time, 55 minutes. Played September 8-9.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

IN OLD MONTEREY: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, George Hayes—The best Autry yet. Good story and enlarged cast. In fact, a first class production all around.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

NIGHT RIDERS, THE: Three Mesquiteers (John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune), Doreen McKay, Ruth Rogers—Played on a dual bill. Our western fans liked it immensely. We did nice business due to the fact we had a men's impersonation contest that sold us out.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

CAREER: Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis—Dandy little programmer that pleases all. Stand alone in the small towns and strong half in the big towns. Running time, 80 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

FIVE CAME BACK: Chester Morris, Wendy Barrie, Lucille Ball, Joseph Calleia—An interesting story, rather gruesome ending, well cast. Joseph Calleia again proves a master artist in portraying a difficult role. Well received and business average. Played September 8-9.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

MAD MISS MANTON: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Frances Mercer, Whitney Bourne—Some enjoyed it; others didn't. Didn't please my box office. Played August 11-12.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALEXANDER'S RAGTIME BAND: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Ethel Merman—I enjoyed it; so did my wife. We don't buy tickets. A box office flop. Played August 13-14.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ARIZONA WILDCAT: Jane Withers, Leo Carrillo, Pauline Moore, Henry Wilcoxson—Many of our patrons considered this the most satisfactory picture ever presented by Jane Withers. Leo Carrillo had a fat part in which he scored heavily. Played August 26.—C. W. Mills. Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN IN RENO: Sidney Toler, Phyllis Brooks, Ricardo Cortez, Slim Summerville, Eddie Collins—Fox made no mistake in selecting Sidney Toler for Charlie Chan. Slim Summerville and Eddie Collins supply plenty of comedy. An excellent picture. No reason it shouldn't please all nice week movie fans. Running time, 71 minutes. Played September 1-2.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

EVERYBODY'S BABY: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington, Shirley Deane—One of the best of the Jones Family. Plenty of laughs and pleased. Done a little extra business. Played August 18-19.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FRONTIER MARSHAL: Randolph Scott, Nancy Kelly, Cesar Romero, Binnie Barnes—Good picture; good business. Will please all classes. Good enough for a Sunday date and compares favorably with "Jesse James," "Dodge City" and "Oklahoma Kid." Running time, 70 minutes. Played September 5.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

HOUND OF THE BASKERVILLES, THE: Richard Greene, Basil Rathbone, Wendy Barrie, Nigel Bruce—A good show. Nothing big but it held the interest from start to finish. Just average business. Played August 23-24.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

INSIDE STORY: Michael Whalen, Jean Rogers—Just fair. Used on double feature. One reason why I have to double feature. Played August 25-26.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

JESSE JAMES: Tyrone Power, Henry Fonda, Nancy Kelly, Randolph Scott—Played repeat on this and it went better on a Friday and Saturday date. Excellent picture; pleased all. Played September 1-2.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

NEWS IS MADE AT NIGHT: Preston Foster, Lynn Bari—Played with "Island of Lost Men." A double bill that pleased all the way. Take your bread and butter pictures, boys, and double them.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

PARDON OUR NERVE: Michael Whalen, Lynn Bari—A program picture that was fair. So was the business. Played August 16-17.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ROSE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Al Jolson—A very good show that pleased all. Didn't do any extra business but pleased. Alice Faye very good. Played September 10-11.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ROSE OF WASHINGTON SQUARE: Alice Faye, Tyrone Power, Al Jolson—We did a fair business and most of our audience enjoyed it. Played August 16-17.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

SUSANNAH OF THE MOUNTIES: Shirley Temple, Randolph Scott, Margaret Lockwood—Used to play Temple on Sunday and Monday to top business. Later had to move to Friday and Saturday and business held up. Now we play her on double bills and she does only average business, yet Fox continues to put her in their top allocation. Poor picture and business only average. Played August 4-5.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

NEW CONTRIBUTORS ON FILMS PLAYED

New contributors to "What the Picture Did for Me" department of MOTION PICTURE HERALD this week include the following:

STANLEY LAMBERT, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis.

BOB SHERIDAN, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore.

RALPH LARNED, Paramount Theatre, LaCrosse, Kans.

Exhibitors Lambert and Sheridan are reporting for the first time. Mr. Larned was an earlier contributor, his latest previous report having been in the issue of April 25, 1936.

United Artists

KING OF THE TURF: Adolphe Menjou, Dolores Costello, Roger Daniel—One of the best father love stories I've seen. Had many good remarks about this. Fair business. Played August 2-3.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MAN IN THE IRON MASK, THE: Louis Hayward, Joan Bennett, Joseph Schildkraut, Warren William, Alan Hale—Tops! Cast could not have been better. Louis Hayward proves beyond any doubt that he is a top notch preformer. His portrayal ranks with Muni's, Tracy's, Flynn's, Gable's and any other stars Hollywood has. La Bennett in her dark hair makes Lamarr look like a fishmonger's wife, and Schildkraut, as usual' is outstanding. Business good. Played September 3-5.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

TOPPER TAKES A TRIP: Constance Bennett, Roland Young, Billie Burke, Alan Mowbray—They liked this. However, some complaints on continual drinking. Why do they do this? It takes all kinds of people to fill a theatre. Why antagonize any one element?—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Universal

ALL QUIET ON THE WESTERN FRONT (reissue): Lew Ayres, Louis Wolheim, Scott Kolk, Russell Gleason, Beryl Mercer—We managed to get a good print of this grand box office hit. We have a 700-seat house in this town of 1,000 people and we had to hang the S.R.O. sign out. We are so pleased by the showing this film made that we are going to make this town "Lew Ayres conscious." He was certainly grand in this picture. Many patrons recognized Lew, and others inquired "who the handsome lad" was. At least 10 different people wanted to know when Lew would play again. We have made arrangements to show "State Fair" and "The Last Train from Madrid." By all means play this if you can. Played July 1-4.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

EAST SIDE OF HEAVEN: Bing Crosby, Joan Blondell, Mischa Auer, Baby Sandy—Best draw from a Crosby production in long time. Mischa Auer and Sandy helped in a big way to put this picture over. Catchy tunes and good comedy. Played August 6-7.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

FAMILY NEXT DOOR, THE: Hugh Herbert, Joy Hodges, Juanita Quigley, Eddie Quillan—Skip it. Played on Employment Night and had more complaints on this than any picture in a long time. Story weak, comedy poor. Played September 5.—Ralph Larned, Paramount Theatre, La Crosse, Kansas. General patronage.

MY MAN GODFREY (reissue): William Powell, Carole Lombard—This reissue was run with gratifying success and excellent comedy and a very good print. Very well received. Running time, 93 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NEWSBOYS HOME: Jackie Cooper, Wendy Barrie, Edmund Lowe, "Little Tough Guys"—Very satisfactory to losing business because of the annual Fireman's Field Day. Played August 19.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

WEREWOLF OF LONDON, THE: Henry Hull, Valerie Hobson—We played this Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and it was a howling success. Miss Hobson was remembered by our patrons for her portrayals in "This Man in Paris" and "Clouds over Europe." This beat "Frankenstein" here. Hull is perfect.—Bob Sheridan, Gresham Theatre, Gresham, Ore. Small town and rural patronage.

Warner Brothers

DODGE CITY: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Ann Sheridan, Bruce Cabot, Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Victor Jory—This show drags them in. Best business this summer. Color helped. Plenty of action is what the people want. Played August 20-21.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY: Pat O'Brien, Ann Sheridan, John Payne, Gale Page—Action from Warner Bros.! And, boys, you get plenty of it in this baby. Exploited it from all angles and the people just rolled in on days that were scorching (and we have no ice plant here). First two days it opened we took in more than average whole week's receipts of the past five months. The press book is loaded with stunts. Bang on this one and you should clean up. Running time, 82 minutes. Played August 26-29.—Stanley Lambert, Rialto Theatre, Racine, Wis. General patronage.

OFF THE RECORD: Pat O'Brien, Joan Blondell—A better than average program show that drew fair. Plenty of laughs. Played August 9-10.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

OKLAHOMA KID, THE: James Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Rosemary Lane—Right up our alley in the small towns, but play it on Friday and Saturday. I made a bad mistake by playing on Sunday. Played July 30-31.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

CHUMP TAKES A BUMP, A: Charley Chase—The top shorts company of the industry comes through with another hit comedy. This one is excellent. Running time, 17 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

AIR EXPRESS

COMMUNITY SING: No. 9—A cowboy band in cowboy songs. Excellent in every respect. Give it preferred time.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

INSIDE THE CAPITOL: Washington Parade, No. 3—A picture of the House and Senate Chamber in Washington that is a trifle dry for our small town audiences. Just fair. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RATTLING ROMEO: Broadway Brevities—One of Charley Chase's best.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

YES, WE HAVE NO BONANZA: Broadway Comedies—One of the best of the Stooge slapstick comedies.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ART GALLERY: Cartoons—Just another cartoon. They have only used this three monkeys gag about a dozen times in the past two years. Running time, 10 minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

RURAL HUNGARY: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Excellent as is all this series. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STORY THAT COULDN'T BE PRINTED: Passing Parade, No. 8—When a company puts out such a short on this on historical facts, it is something that should be praised to the skies. This short was absolutely tops. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STREAMLINED SWING: Original Swing Band—Dear Metro, let's us have more like this one. These colored boys better than Mills Brothers. Excellent. Give it your best days.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

Paramount

BREAKING THE NEWS: Paragraphics—Entertaining sport reel.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

CHAMPAGNE MUSIC OF LAWRENCE WELK: Headliners—Very good.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LISTEN TO LUCAS: Headliners—This was terrible. Music, photography and settings almost same as all Paramount music reels. Junk it. Running time, 10 minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

RACING PIGEONS: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Very interesting. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

SWEET MOMENTS: Russ Morgan and His Orchestra—Very good musical reel.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BIRD DOGS: RKO Pathe Sportscope—Very good. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FERDINAND THE BULL: Walt Disney Cartoons—Excellent but these shorts don't bring you any extra business. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, THE: We very much appreciate this subject so much so we have bought them for the third time. They to us are essential as any short subject. They play a great part in building a clientele.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tillbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

FASHION FORECAST, NO. 4: Fashions—In a class by themselves as a colored fashion reel. Must be played in the right spot.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

INSIDE BASEBALL: Ed Thorgersen (Sports)—Excellent. Pass the word along to your baseball fans when you are playing this. Running time, 10½ minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

United Artists

JERUSALEM: World Windows—One of the best colored shorts this year. Play this one at Christmas.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

MUSIC LAND: Silly Symphonies—Somebody must have had some film to waste. If you haven't played it, forget it. Running time, 10 minutes.—Guy G. Black, Plaza Theatre, Inc., Lyons, Neb. Small town patronage.

WANDERERS OF THE DESERT: World Windows—Another excellent colored travel reel. A credit to anybody's program.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Vitaphone

DANGEROUS DAN McFOO: Merrie Melodies—Very good cartoon in color.—E. M. Freiburger, Paramount Theatre, Dewey, Okla. Small town patronage.

DEFYING DEATH: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Just fair. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

FEUD THERE WAS, A: Merrie Melodies—A laugh from start to finish. Very good. Color good. Running time, eight minutes.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

HOBO GADGET BAND: Merrie Melodies—Not so hot. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

VOODOO FIRES: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" Series—Too bad that this company has stopped this series on 1939 contract, as our trade wants them badly. This one is very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Serials

Columbia

OVERLAND WITH KIT CARSON: Bill Elliott, Iris Meredith—Although I don't think this serial is as good as 'Wild Bill Hickok," it pleases the fans and that's all we care about.—Ray S. Hanson, Fox Theatre, Fertile, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Republic

LONE RANGER RIDES AGAIN: Robert Livingston, Chief Thunder Cloud—One of the best of the serials and has real draw. The kids love "Heigh, ho, Silver" and the old folks do also.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

THIS IS THE TIME

Now if ever is the time for the theatreman, once and for all, to consolidate the position of his enterprise as the sanest, most reliable outlet for release and relaxation. War fills the press, the air, monopolizes every conversation. Seeking to escape from this ominous threat to world peace, a jittery public turns to entertainment. The motion picture show is set to do the best day-in-and-day-out job of it in the hands of theatremen who realize this responsibility and accept it as an obvious thing to do.

Already such acceptance is in evidence, currently from Manager Stanley Lambert in Racine, Wis., who sounds the clarion call in a type ad on "Golden Boy" at the Rialto. The copy that brought citywide commendation follows:

"War . . . abhorred by decent, home-loving families the world over. This message is written to detract your attention from the European crisis now existing. . . . Forget about war. . . . We reiterate that motion pictures are your best entertainment and we have just the picture to make you forget . . ."

In advertising, public relations and staff contacts today the theatre must be maintained as a universal refuge to earn the added prestige it rates, to justify the moral obligation the industry assumes in such dire times.

DIRECT FROM THE HEART

Members who read, in the news section of this issue, the warming account of Ted Emerson's private "Star Maker" premiere, in Omaha, for a hospitalized and homesick Detroit orphan, will thrill, as we did here, to the job done by the Tri-States Nebraska zone ad head. Any smart editor would grab the story for front-page attentions, as did the local dailies, the wire services and radio networks, in keeping it alive over a two-weeks stretch. The extended publicity was unusual, in that it was not planted, according to Ted, who confesses that his heart dictated the promotion rather than his "usual hardened efforts toward bigger grosses".

Your theatreman's sentimental side usually is as wide as a barn door. His good deeds are many and anonymous, with little thought of reward, publicity or otherwise. In this instance, a watchful Providence chose to return Emerson's bread cast upon the waters, in the form of boxoffice cake.

THEY BOTH TAKE SPEED

Wasn't so long ago that campaigns were studded with co-op pages and single co-op ads. If not so frequently, the boys are still turning them over—lately and vigorously, Ray Bell, who admits to over 125 sizeable newspaper co-ops in the past seven months for Loew's Washington theatres.

The present status of ad promotion is much like the science of base-stealing: dormant, because today's baseball depends more upon hitting than once-popular "inside stuff". It may be noted, however, that the player able to steal bases consistently will score more often than the bird who doesn't.

MAYBE THE SHORT CAN DO IT

To exploit the short subject, "Mechanix Illustrated", showing preparation of national advertising for Hamilton Watch, Bert Leighton promoted cooperation from the manufacturer, although obviously the maker's name was not included in the reel. The watch people were sold on the smart idea of distinctive window cards carrying prominent theatre mention, with which the theatreman landed display space from every dealer in Lancaster, Pa., and the county for his date at the Grand.

Subject matter in shorts often induces cooperation otherwise difficult to obtain. In this instance, it secured for Leighton a lot of hard-to-crack display space that top star names could not obtain.

"Kuehn-trained" may become a new classification of theatremen who learn about service from the manual by Rudy Kuehn, run here recently in serial form. Our stock of reprints is exhausted and requests continue to arrive. The latest is from the Senior High School vocational class, Fergus Falls, Minn.

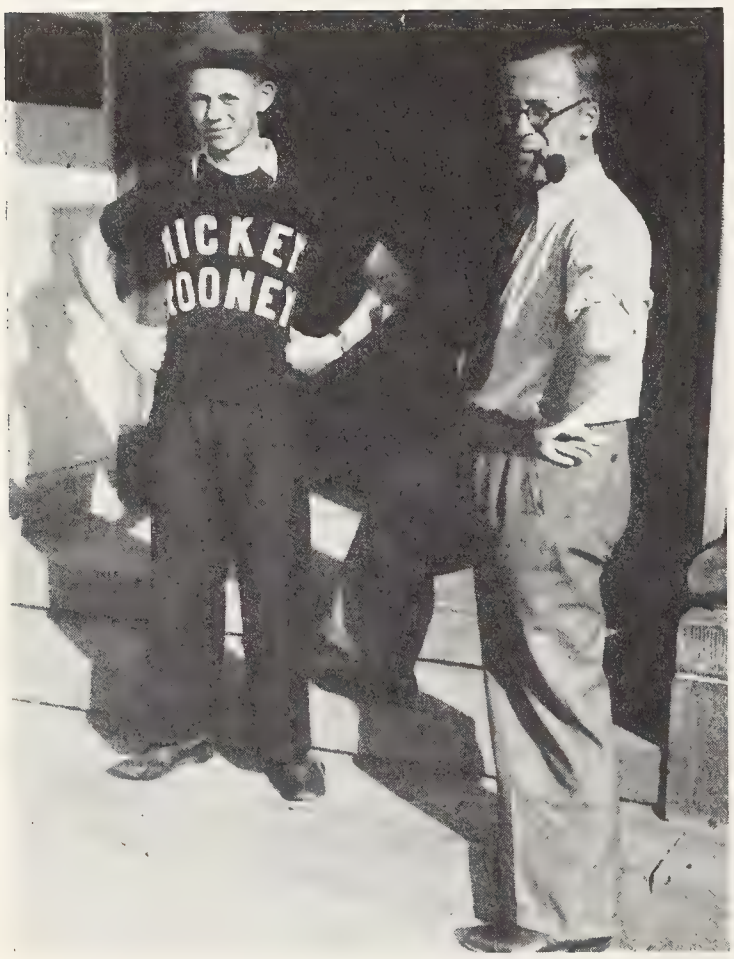
Round Table In Pictures

Through ads planted in the local dailies, George Irwin of the Lyceum, Duluth, Minn., secures three early editions of "The Wizard of Oz" which were used as part of his lobby display on the date. Atop the showcase was a cutout of Dorothy, while at either side were planted the Scarecrow and the Tin Man. In addition, other giant cutouts were spotted strategically about town. For his street bally, Irwin dressed one of his employees as the Scarecrow and lad with back bannered appropriately covered busy sections.

Advance for "Our Leading Citizen" at the Paramount in Waterloo, Ia., as arranged by Bob Fulton, was the construction of giant postcard carrying patron signatures which was addressed to Bob Burns. Photo of star posing with card was used by the theatreman in local dailies.

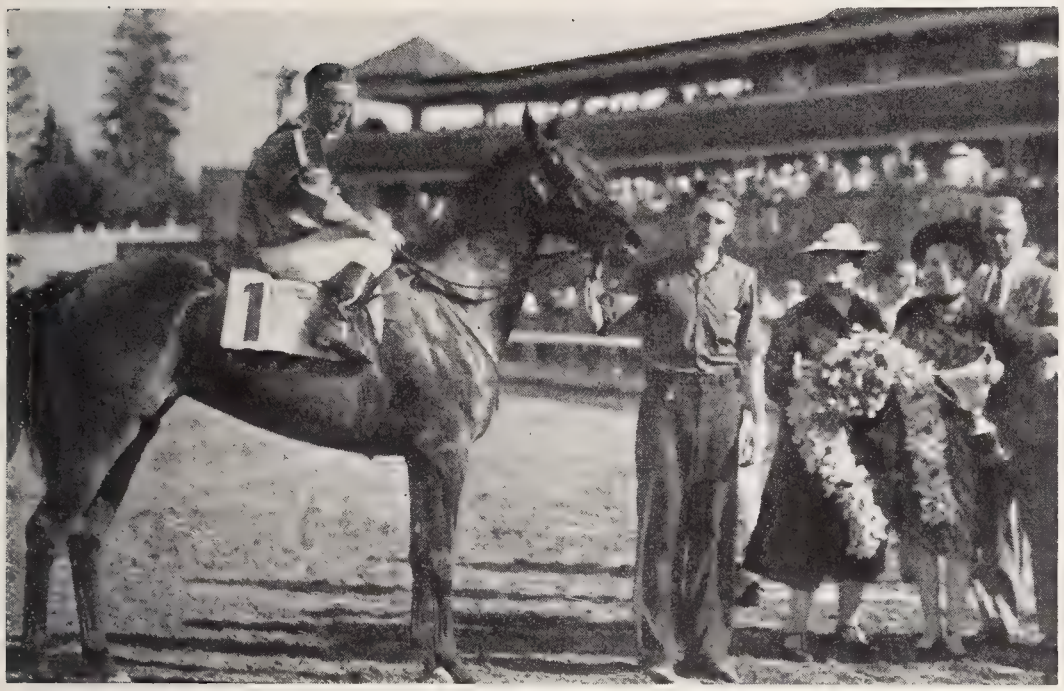


Dear Bob:-
Greetings from your Waterloo, Iowa fans. We greatly enjoyed your past pictures and know that we will enjoy your new picture "Our Leading Citizen" just as well when it is shown here in Waterloo.

PARAMOUNT THEATRE
WATERLOO, IOWA

WATERLOO AUG 21 4:30 PM 1939 IOWA

Bob Burns
Paramount Studios,
Hollywood,
California



To publicize the Number 12 issue of March of Time which highlighted the history of the industry, Manager Dave Martin at the Fox Paramount in Hollywood sent a Chaplin double out on streets. Photo above shows Martin talking to "Charlie".

At left may be seen the Danish Mickey Rooney double and Kay P. Nielsen, publicist for MGM in Copenhagen who arranged the contest in connection with "Out West with the Hardys". Lad wore back banner with copy, "I don't talk, you'd better see me in", etc.

Featured promotion for the new season campaign by the Publix Great States theatres of Danville, Ill., was the "Ceiling of Lights", as illustrated, covering entire block in which theatres are situated, exploitation bringing attention of shoppers away from remaining business section some two blocks removed. Immediately successful, the display will be permanent until end of the year to cover holiday shopping season. Entire campaign, of which this was a part, was credited by City Manager E. E. Crabtree to District Manager T. P. Ronan; Manager Vernon Everroad, Palace; Manager Don Knapp of the Lincoln. Artists C. J. Rhodes of Peoria and Gene Douglas of Danville also aided.

The Lionel Barrymore Handicap, run in honor of the star's birthday and to advertise opening of "On Borrowed Time" at the Orpheum in Vancouver, was the stunt arranged by Stan Pooley. Mr. Barrymore sent a telegram of appreciation and congratulations to the winner which was read over the mike before the assembled crowds. Promoted from cooperating jeweler was the trophy presented to the lucky jockey and which was displayed in store window several days ahead with appropriate tiein copy. Sailboat advertising was also used to sell the show to the crowds that gathered at nearby beaches, sails appropriately imprinted during afternoon and early evening cruises.

Mansfield, Ohio, turned out in force to honor its leading citizen, Louis Bromfield, author of "The Rains Came", which double-premiered at the Ohio and Madison Theatres there. Photo illustrated directly at right shows two of the theatres' ushers who covered entire town carrying giant sign covered with scene stills from the picture and stressing the world premiere and reserved seat angle. Lads would stop at busy street intersections to "rest" for a few moments and incidentally to give all a chance to read their sign.

They Say:

"I should like officially to enter your Round Table group and would appreciate one of those membership certificates. You've got the finest exploitation section in any publication and I can honestly say I have 'copped' more ideas from your paper than all the others put together. I have a back file covering several years and I find I can immediately find something to adapt to my needs anytime I need it by simply consulting Managers' Round Table."

—Al Blasko, Manager, Warners' Jeffrey Theatre, Chicago, Ill.

"Summer months, those dreaded most by nearly all showmen, are over, and it is with a certain amount of pride I write you this letter. Inspired by your beat-the-heat campaign last spring, we did not let up all summer and kept plugging with all our mid-winter vigor. Results were most gratifying. With two air-conditioned theatres playing in the same vicinity, first-run, we were able to show considerable increases over last year. I forgot to mention we only have a ventilating system in our theatre."

—Ed Lamoureux, Manager, Famous Players-Canadian Empire, Windsor, Ontario.

Ham Radio Apparatus Sells "Secrets" for McCoy

The cooperation received from members of the Athens, Ga., Amateur Radio Club and the local newspaper aided Manager P. E. McCoy at the Georgia Theatre in putting on a stunt for "Grand Jury Secrets" during its two-day engagement. In the windows of a vacant store adjacent to the theatre, McCoy set up "ham" radio apparatus with call cards from most every country plastered around the windows' edges. A receiving and sending set was set up, entire front of the building bannered with theatre copy, lithographs and stills.

Members of the club stationed an operator on duty during the hours the theatre was open and each patron attending the show was given "ham" radio message forms to write a message of 25 words or less to any friend in any country. McCoy reports that over 400 of these messages were sent with many answers received and called or mailed to the senders. Local paper devoted page one story to the stunt in addition to several stories during the picture engagement and idea was also featured in nearby town papers.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

DiPesa Garners Publicity On Local "Tarzan" Search

High spot of Joe DiPesa's "Tarzan Finds a Son" campaign at Loew's State in Boston was the elaborate atmospheric truck which toured the entire city playing records and animal roars. Much was made in the local dailies over the publicist's hunt for a local Tarzan, Jr., which brought a series of special stories with art in advance of opening, and the planting of a full-page in the Sunday pictorial section of the Boston Post.

Action heralds were distributed at beaches and playgrounds; entire chain druggists featured special sodas and, through the cooperation of the YMCA, they distributed, entirely at their expense, a quantity of mimeographed circulars with pictures, theatre and playdate plugs. Woodblocks were featured on choice location newsstands throughout the city, flyers distributed on a candid camera contest and a graphologist in theatre lobby brought additional publicity to the engagement.

Bradley Promotes Libraries For "Mr. Chips" Displays

Public library system of Eau Claire, Wis., aided Manager Dick Bradley at the State Theatre on his campaign on "Good-bye, Mr. Chips," by featuring displays of the book in all their branches and having a girl attendant available to answer all questions on the picture. Imprinted bookmarks were also distributed both at the libraries and by the theatre, as were heralds.

Man dressed as Santa Claus walked about town with back copy reading "I came all the way back just to see," etc. Leading restaurants carried tiein copy on their menus and various merchants came through with window displays in all of which the picture was prominently mentioned.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Local Speedways Help Plug "Indianapolis" for Denham

Tying up with local speedways, two racing cars were promoted and properly bannered with "Indianapolis Speedway" copy by C. Denham of the Dominion Theatre in Victoria, B. C., as his advance campaign on that picture. A parade consisting of the cars and p. a. sound truck was staged for Saturday afternoon, procession leaving the Canadian Pacific Railway docks shortly after the Seattle boat had arrived with a capacity crowd, and followed a route along the main streets and past the theatre. Show was plugged over loudspeaker opening night at local race meet.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Airship Sells "Navy"

Much was made locally over the stunt reported by E. C. Reeves at the Princess in Cookesville, Tenn., who for "Wings of the Navy" corraled local lads who towed a bannered plane from local airport to a city parking lot in the center of town. During the day, theatre sound truck was stationed at the ship making announcements about the picture and playing records. Later in the day, boys' band gave a concert in front of the theatre. Reeves credits two of his staff for pulling the stunt, namely, Charles Reeves and Joe Mabry.

Phillips Promotes Quick Cooperation In New Situation

Moving over a short time ago from the job of assistant to Manager George Dowdle, at the Luna, Deming, N. M., to manager of the Lea, Eunice, in the same state, Carmon Phillips reporting a number of campaigns in the new situation, emphasizes the procedure of an Appreciation Week, put over in cooperation with the city's leading merchants. Purpose was for the businessman to thank the locals for past business by means of a week of special bargains heavily advertised. The buildup was advanced by the Mayor with a proclamation crediting Phillips for the idea, this advance spread across page one of the local daily.

The Round Tabler's "Week" followed a month of solid activities, during which he put on two outstanding stage events, a bathing beauty contest, and in cooperation with the Lion's Club, a "womanless wedding." The beauty pageant entrants represented various merchants, each store contributing to the expense of a single entrant, identified by breast-banner carrying name of sponsor. Show was held on two consecutive nights, the eight finalists chosen by applause competing on the final night for the prizes of term contracts, loving cups and other prizes.

Stages "Womanless" Wedding

For the "womanless wedding," Phillips wrote the entire script which was in a comedy vein. The "flower pots" carried weeds instead of flowers and the ring proved to be a horse-collar. The rest of the procedure was in keeping with participants in comedy hillbilly attire. Business was capacity on both shows with the Lions given a percentage for the wedding performance to aid their charity funds.

During his first month in the new spot, Carmon promoted a free show for the local youngsters and tied in with the paper for a pair of guest tickets weekly, to the reader finding his name concealed in the ads. Both efforts were acknowledged in generous publicity by the paper as were the other promotions inaugurated by the theatreman.

The above are highlights of Phillip's first month in Eunice, which he reports have not only brought in a lot of extra business but have also aided in building up important prestige for a spot that needed a buildup. In most instances, the tieins were obtained without cost or held within the limits of the house budget.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Klingler's Unique Tieup

Conceived by Paul O. Klingler of the Rialto, in Lewistown, Pa. was the institutional stunt in connection with visitors to the New York World's Fair. Running a trailer, stories and scene mats in the Lewistown Sentinel, cards were available at the theatre to any patron anticipating attending the Fair for presentation at the Loew-MGM booth in Times Square. Patrons were requested to register in a special book in the theatre and the names were posted on a panel in the main entrance of lobby, which carried scenes of the New York booth.

Exploitation Briefs Here & There

For the personal appearance of Ebner and Hank on the stage of the Bay Theatre, in Green Bay, Wis., Francis B. Schlax ran advance newspaper ads to call attention to his "Old Settler's Night" on his stage. To all folks who had resided in Green Bay 50 years or more an invitation was extended to be guests of the management to witness square dancers, fiddlers, accordions, etc., etc. Street bally consisted of sway-back nag with straw hat pulling an old time bannered banner about town.

Promoting a truck for his street bally on "The Gorilla," Louie Lamm at the Uptown, in Cleveland, bannered the truck, mounted six-sheets on it and scene stills. Station on center of the truck was an iron cage in which usher dressed in gorilla outfit paced back and forth as the bally toured through the city streets.

Calling cards with the name Joan B. were distributed on the streets of Springfield, Ohio, as Mike Chakeres' advance on "Bachelor Mother" at the Regent Theatre. Also imprinted on the theatre telephone number for further information. Another street bally consisted of young girl pushing a baby buggy with large doll in it; she also carried an umbrella on which picture title and theatre were printed.

For the opening of the remodeled Hoffman Theatre, in Buchanan, Mich., E. C. Hoffman distributed heralds over a radius of 50 miles, planted window cards in stores in all surrounding towns and country newspaper carried stories and publicity. Wires of congratulations which were received from the stars in Hollywood were displayed in lobby on opening night, the local newspaper running a special edition, congratulating the theatre and also conveying the well wishes of the local merchants. Local high school band which was promoted for the occasion played in front of the theatre on opening night.

In exchange for a few passes, Bob Fulton of the Paramount, in Waterloo, Iowa, promoted a model 1912 car which was used for his street bally on "On Borrowed Time." Installed in the car was a p.a. system and microphone which made announcements to folks on street as the car was driven through the business district two days ahead of opening.

To build business during the Summer, Jimmy Redmond at the Bonham, in Fairbury, Neb., has promoted local merchants for seven bicycles, one to be given away each week, at his kiddie show. As many stores are tied in on the deal, each of which pays the cost of one bike. In order to get in on the stunt kids must make a purchase at any one of the cooperating stores, which will give him a ticket, entitling him to a chance at the gift. Drawings are held each week and prize immediately presented.

Pittsburgh Warnermen Report on "Honolulu"

Cleared through the zone office in the Pittsburgh territory and forwarded by Jim Totman of Joe Feldman's ad department of Harry Kalmine's zone are the "Honolulu" campaigns reported here.

At the Smoot Theatre, in Parkersburg, F. T. Thomas used his public address system to broadcast the music, etc., on the street in front of his house. Same system was used for making personal announcements to persons passing the theatre. Numerous window tieups were effected, using the commercial angle and dance stills and three spot announcements over local radio station were secured week ahead.

A hut with grass roof was used to cover the entire box office of the Regent Theatre, in Pittsburgh by Manager Henry Sutton. Through ties made with local dealer, an attractive girl was stationed in the lobby of the theatre dispensing gratis Dole's pineapple drinks and novelty Hawaiian jewelry. Display was also planted in the cooperating market along with the free giveaway of the drinks, and the house public address system was also used by Sutton, with amplifiers above boxoffice playing hit tunes from the picture.

Entire window of local five and ten was promoted by F. C. Brown of the Orpheum, in Titusville, to a Hawaiian display, with proper title and playdate credit. Candy counter plugged the opening day by offering a certain number of guest tickets which would be found in bags of candy. Girls throughout the store wore leis, attached to which were small cards advertising the picture. Heralds were distributed house-to-house and jumbo window cards spotted in prominent locations in town.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Pet Parade Held by Langdon For "Tarzan Finds a Son"

Sponsored through the cooperation of the Republican-News and the Paramount Theatre, in Kankakee, Ill., was a pet parade put on by Manager William T. Langdon for "Tarzan Finds a Son." Held on morning of opening day, parade was led by local high school band and wound through the business district before arriving at the theatre. In addition to awarding prizes to contestants with pets, prizes were given in connection with a yell contest and free admissions were given to the first 25 who attended the matinee performance dressed like Tarzan.

Sound truck rigged up to simulate jungle scene covered ball games, medicine shows, etc., plugging the opening, pennants with jungle scenes were hung throughout theatre foyer and lobby and six-sheets were illuminated and spotted in lobby.

"LET'S HEAR FROM YOU"

Safety Pin Cards Ballyhoo

Manager Julia Smith of the State Theatre, Waterbury, Conn., queried prospective fans on what they knew about babies in a novelty cards ballyhooing "Bachelor Mother." Mrs. Smith tied kiddie shop in on the promotion which included 10,000 cards with teaser copy and inserted safety pin.

The Display Ads On Next Page

(1) Another of George Limerick's gusty newspaper campaigns, this for "Mr. Chips," at the Aztec, Enid, Okla., is illustrated by a decisive 195 lines on three columns, for opening day, Sunday. To emphasize the entertainment of the British M-G-M production, George, using much of his copy for endorsements from leading locals who had seen the attraction, topped that with a personal plug, a money-back offer under his signature.

(2) For 12 days ahead, Limerick found occasion to strengthen his advance with a series of one-column teasers, each running about 40 lines. These, borrowed from his newspaper mat service, were changed daily, the four shown here being representative of the entire group. The first underline "coming" was followed by "soon" and four days ahead "Sunday."

(3-4) A unique contest was incorporated in a five-week campaign by R. E. Hutchinson, manager for the Alamo, Newnan, Ga., the weekly programs confined within the copy lines of outline letters spelling the theatre name. Prizes were given for the best posters made up of the five ads, at end of the contest. The "A" and "L" illustrated here, are three and two-column, respectively, 85 and 90 lines.

(5) Tieing in with the star's past achievements and using reverse panel for star and title as added emphasis, the Oscar Doob 110 lines on four columns, for "Blackmail" at the New York Capitol, built further interest with action art and "see" copy.

(6) The frank appeal by Leon Pickle for patronage to aid him win one of M-G-M's exploitation prizes on "Borrowed Time," also accomplished his purpose in calling attention to the merit of the attraction at the Kentucky, Henderson, Ky. "One of the most effective endorsement ads I've ever seen," writes Todd Ferguson, M-G-M Memphis zone exploiteer, who forwards it here. Size: 85 lines on two columns.

(7) To stress the continued boxoffice draught of "Old Maid" at the New York Strand, and to announce end of the Broadway run, was the purpose of this 105 lines on three columns, "page-stealer" from the copy-wise pencil of Warners' Mort Blumenstock. Everything was subordinated to the giant "6th Week," which told the whole story.

(8) Ken Hoel stepped right into the publicity opening created by the Presidential announcement on the change in Thanksgiving date, with 100 lines on two columns, as illustrated, on behalf of the strong attractions listed at the Harris-Alvin, Pittsburgh. Hoel aimed for a quick eye-attractor by reproducing the news story at the head of the layout.

TO OUR PATRONS

In the few short years in our Henderson theatres you have come to the writer's aid in contests and made possible special honors and prizes. At this time Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer is offering prizes for the best exploitation campaign and the highest percentage increase over other recent hits from this company for "ON BORROWED TIME," marking Lionel Barrymore's 30th birthday in films. It is a picture that has set many records this season. Many favorable reviews and endorsements have been received. I believe you will like it.

"On Borrowed Time" opens at the Kentucky for a 3 days showing starting TUESDAY.

I am out to WIN both of the top prizes and it is with your help that will make it possible. Your aid will be appreciated and your time will be well spent.

See it from the beginning.

Autumn Leaves Turn to Gold, and So Do Football Tieins

Round Tablers Set with Pigskin Promotions to Boost Fall Boxoffice Returns

THEY'RE off, as the saying goes, but this time they're off to make those pigskin tieins as theatremen begin to report what they have done and are doing to swing some of the national attention upon football in the direction of the boxoffice. All the tried and true reliables employed in past seasons will again see the light in one form or another. Innovations of different kinds will also be tried out and to be detailed when arrangements are made. In the meantime, here are the first returns from the field.

Straw Hat Burning Starts New Season

by A. J. KALBERER

Indiana, Washington, Ind.

Tied up with the newspaper and merchants in sponsoring a big stadium rally opening night with the burning of straw hats to end the summer season. Am enclosing tear sheets of the story in the paper.

Arranged with school superintendent, principal, band leader and coach to have a "Pep Session" in our theatre on opening of "Angels Wash Their Faces." The coach, football squad and band will parade from the gym to the theatre where they will be our guests. All high school students who wish to attend are to be given a 10 cent reduction in price for this night. This fact is to be publicized through class rooms and by cards to be given out at the school. The coach and Mayor of the city have agreed to give a short address to the house and cheer leaders will lead in some school "cheers" and songs.

Football schedules of the Washington High School team to be printed on small cards for pocket reference with our ad on the back. All games will be covered with heralds and on special features pertaining to sports, novelties will be distributed. Loud speaker announcements are also contracted for.

Dallas Boys Receive Many Football Prizes

by LOUIS CHARNINSKY

Capitol, Dallas, Texas

We have already given away a complete football outfit and several helmets and balls to the winners of a popularity contest I have been conducting for the kids the past four weeks. I have made arrangements for several of the city's outstanding players and a high school band to appear on the stage for the first show with the captain presenting the gifts to the winners.

When the football games get under way I have a plan in mind to give several passes weekly to my patrons for the big games. I have made arrangements with the schools to announce the Capitol's pictures at all of their games. In return we are giving the schools a plug when they play.

PETE SMITH REVIEW SHOWS 1938 THRILLS

Metro is priming Pete Smith's annual review of U. S. gridiron classics, "Football Thrills of 1938", with a concentrated campaign which will culminate in a special screening for nationally syndicated sports columnists at a luncheon of the Football Writers Association on September 25th at Jack Dempsey's restaurant.

The short presents 176 intercollegiate pigskin stars in the exciting highlights of last season's eight major gridiron contests from coast to coast, including U. S. C. vs. Alabama, U. S. C. vs. Duke, Pittsburgh vs. Carnegie Tech, Minnesota vs. Notre Dame, Pennsylvania vs. Columbia, and Wisconsin vs. Northwestern.

All the tickets to high school games carry the imprint of the Capitol Theatre on the back. Several thousand tickets will be sold each week so this scheme will really produce results.

I am going to run a popularity contest to pick the city's most popular player at the end of the season. The winner of this contest will receive several prizes including cash, a complete fall outfit and a season pass for two to the Capitol Theatre. We are promoting these gifts from the local merchants so our cash outlay will be minimized.

School Body To Parade To Pigskin Pep Rally

by SEYMOUR L. MORRIS

Palace, Lockport, N. Y.

As I have previously conducted in other years, I intend to have this rally in the theatre by having the football team, the school band and cheer-leaders up on our stage. The students form at the high school, college or athletic field, and march down to the theatre in a body, carrying red railroad flares. We usually arrange to have a special football feature or short on the program, and after the screen program the stage is turned over to the cheer-leaders and team. The favorite cheers and songs are given, and we usually have a public-spirited person give them a pep talk. In addition to this, we have the coach and head of the physical training department also give a talk, and then on behalf of the management I usually wish them luck.

This rally is advertised a week or so in advance by means of a trailer on our screen, a display in the lobby, readers in the school's paper, and also readers on the sport page of the local newspaper. In addition to this we present each student with a tag to wear, on one side of which is printed "Beat ——," and on the other side of which is printed "Attend the Pep Rally at the Palace Theatre Friday Night."

In one particular situation we had a Boosters' Committee, comprised of athletic-minded citizens who used to sponsor the rally and parade and also appear on the stage the night of the rally.

Supplies Rice Institute With Giant Megaphones

by FRANCIS DEERING

Loew's, Houston, Texas

Our best annual football tie-up is with Rice Institute whose cheer leaders we furnish with giant megaphones each year. Stringent regulations prohibit advertising of any sort on the field but theatre copy is painted in bold letters on the sides of each megaphone and are seen by the many thousands who pack the Stadium for each game.

We have been doing this stunt for about ten years and it is now more or less an institution with the school. The boys keep the megaphones as souvenirs at the end of each season.

Score Prediction Card Brings Pass Offer

by MARLOWE CONNER

Rhodes, Chicago, Ill.

We are so far away from any of the big football activity for any direct tie ups, and our local High School team has been so poor that there is little interest there. However we are not entirely unmindful of the great public interest in football and I am sending you a stunt which we tried out last season which we found was very popular and brought in hundreds of returns. The stunt is in the form of a Football Schedule and Prediction Card; however, we plan on making a few changes this year. For instance instead of giving 25 passes each week for closest score we will offer passes for those that are correct or only one away. We are also going to get merchants to cover the cost by taking the back side.

Prints Score Cards For Football Games

by MORRIS ROSENTHAL

Majestic, Bridgeport, Conn.

Every year we have tied in with local teams. We have several good semi-professional teams that draw crowds of 5,000 to 6,000 at each game. We print the score cards for the game and use the back for our current attractions. The players of the winning teams are invited as guests to see the show.

We have cards or banners on display between the quarters and sometimes send out a clown to amuse the crowds.

PAST "FORTNIGHT" EXPLOITATIONS

Unique Contest Landed in Local Papers By Miller-Pearlstein on "Livingstone"

Conducted through the cooperation of the Cleveland Press was the contest planted by Manager Ed Miller and publicist Manny Pearlstein for their opening of "Stanley and Livingstone" at Warners' Hippodrome, in Cleveland. Contest was based upon familiar local land sites which entrants were required to identify. First break was three days ahead and subsequent stories continued throughout the engagement. Total space accumulated due to the promotion was about 1,000, theatre awarding cash and ticket prizes. Tieup was also made with the Cleveland News on a classified ad contest.

Public Library system was supplied with stills which created into displays in all their branches and library also distributed specially imprinted bookmarks in advance. Transparency displays were set up in stores, bags imprinted, announcement cards stationed in hotels and counter cards featured in music stores.

Neat Newspaper Coverage Secured By Pollock for New Movie Season

Three full pages were landed by Les Pollock in the Democrat and Chronicle, Times Union and Evening News, all part of Round Tabler Les Pollock's campaign to launch Metro's new movie season at Loew's Theatre, in Rochester. Each page, carrying two-column briefs with cuts, was headed "M-G-M's new season hit parade is on the way." "Leo," dressed as drummer boy and wielding a baton, topped the page. Balance of page was devoted to art work and feature stories on current and forthcoming attractions.

Anderson's Daughter on Stage Tells "Wizard of Oz" Story

With the aid of his daughter, Bessie Lee, and his head usher, dressed respectively as Dorothy and the Scarecrow, Ivan D. Anderson, Liberty Theatre, in North Wilkesboro, N. C., used the pair for his street bally on "Wizard of Oz." In addition Bessie Lee from the stage announced the coming of the picture and gave a short story of the plot. Anderson's usher also performed by doing a scarecrow dance, much to the amusement of the audience. Theatreman also reports that the makeup of his scarecrow was so skillful that he will be glad to forward full particulars to inquiring Round Tablers.

Tully's Atmospheric Street Bally Advertises "Tarzan Finds a Son"

All the beaches close to Biddeford, Maine, were covered by Ralph Tully's "Tarzan Finds a Son" atmospheric truck as part of his advance exploitation on that picture's opening at the Central Theatre. In addition truck managed to be at the various local mills when the shifts changed, so that the theatreman managed to get his message before several thousand extra folks. On opening day, Tully horned in on the local annual field day parade, heralds were mailed to hotels, summer camps, etc., scene mat and readers were planted in the French newspaper and special advance lobby displays were constructed for the occasion.

UNUSUAL TRAILER FOR "RAINS CAME"

Smart trailer effect for "Rains Came" at the State, Sioux Falls, S. D., was worked out by Ralph Phillips as follows:

Toward closing of regular trailer, screen was flown. In "two" was black "cyc" on which closeup of stars and date were projected. House lights were then blacked-out, and as finish of the trailer was shown, still on the "cyc", rain-pipe, hung immediately in front, was turned on with baby spots on each side to heighten effect of the falling rains.

The reception of this unique presentation was immediate, says Phillips, with house applauding. Details were forwarded around the circuit by Charlie Winchell, Minnesota Amusement ad head, for further use.

Kessler Gets Merchant Cooperation For His Fifth Annual Baby Parade

Starting a month ahead, Bob Kessler, manager of the Benn Theatre, in Philadelphia, started advertising his fifth annual baby parade, requesting mothers to enter their children and announcing the different groups for which prizes would be awarded. Gifts were promoted for fattest baby, most comical baby, prettiest baby, nicest set of twins and one for the best float. Motion pictures of the entire affair were taken and shown on screen following night for one week.

Five loving cups which were promoted for the different divisions were on display in the cooperating merchants' windows during run of the contest. 40 by 60 display in lobby of theatre plugged the parade month in advance, Station WFIL cooperated with announcements and a special writeup appeared in all editions of the Daily News and Evening Ledger. Kessler further reports the street on which the line of march formed and where the prizes were awarded was washed down and appropriately bannered in gala attire for the event.

Ballys Stress Fitzgerald's "Wizard of Oz" Engagement

Publicizing his date on "Wizard of Oz" at the Poli Theatre, in Waterbury, Conn., Round Tabler Ed Fitzgerald featured a street bally consisting of men dressed as the four characters in the picture, i. e., the monkey, witch, cowardly lion and the scarecrow. All wore placards on their backs with appropriate tiein copy. Another bally was Glinda, the good fairy, the Wizard and Dorothy. This latter bally was driven around town in a gaily bannered car, copy on one side reading "See the technicolor 'Wizard of Oz' at the," etc., and the other "Follow these characters to the merry Land of Oz."

Scouts Take Over Theatre On "Scouts to the Rescue"

In advance of his opening of the serial "Scouts to the Rescue," Julius Daniels at the Strand, in Perth Amboy, N. J., contacted Scout headquarters and made arrangements for the boys to take over the operation of his house on opening day. For the entire day, lads acted in the capacity of manager, assistant manager, doorman, usher, etc., with local papers covering the stunt with stories and art work.

Arrangements were also made by the theatreman for a weekly contest to be held on the stage at which time Scouts showed their skill in knot tying, flag signaling and other routines. Members of the champion Perth Amboy American Legion Bugle Corps acted as judges on a bugle blowing contest with points awarded for appearance of uniform, position of bugle, execution, expression, intonation, etc. Each Saturday afternoon of the serial, the Chief Scout acted as master of ceremonies while a Scout hillbilly band entertained the customers.

Roving Cameraman Snaps Them For Rosenthal on "Glamour Girls"

Candid cameraman on the streets of Bridgeport snapped local girls as part of Morris Rosenthal's "Glamour Girls" at the Majestic Theatre. Photos were later put on display in the theatre lobby and each girl identifying herself received a guest ticket. Another lobby display featured a board through which a pair of cardboard legs were planted with appropriate tiein copy. For this street bally, Rosenthal used three girls in bathing suits with back signs, gals covered local beaches several days ahead of opening.

Local Search Instituted for "Dr. Livingstone" by Cowen

Through the cooperation of KTRB and the merchants of Modesto, Cal., Manager Wally Cowen at the Princess put over a "Find Dr. Livingstone" contest as an advance on that picture. Each of the 11 merchants tied up agreed to take five spot announcements day before contest to get it well established. Listeners were informed that "Dr. Livingstone" would make his appearance in stores of the cooperating merchants and that any person recognizing and addressing him by his name would be awarded merchandise prizes. Persons finding him in the stores were given their merchandise prize on the spot and those accosting him on the streets received theatre tickets. Only concession made toward dressing the "doctor" like an African missionary was the dark trousers, white coat and sun helmet he wore.

Blowups of the front page of the New York Herald carrying Stanley's story were planted in local newspaper window week ahead and in theatre lobby. Tropical sun helmets were worn by entire theatre staff and newsboys, letters were addressed to all ministers calling attention to the missionary work done by Dr. Livingstone and cooperation of libraries was secured, the latter featuring attractive displays.

On this and the following page appears an alphabetical index to the titles of all features listed in this week's Release Chart, with additional information for the exhibitor.

The number immediately following the title is the production number. Also given is information regarding the classification of the subject matter. A melodrama is denoted by the abbreviation Mel., Comedy by Com., Comedy-Melodrama by Com.-Mel., Musical by Mus., Musical Comedy by Mus.-Com., Western by West. If the production is made in color, the letter "C" appears in parenthesis after the classification. Thus: Com.-Mel. (C) denotes a Comedy-Melodrama in Color.

At the extreme right of the line containing the title of the production is the name of the distributor.

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parenthesis after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1939-40 season. Asterisk (*) after title of feature denotes first appearance of picture in Release Chart.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.
